REPORTS TO HUMANE SOCIETY SHOW 1927 AS YEAR OF EFFORT

Much Done By Humane Society in City and Surrounding District.

MORE WORK PLANNED.

Dr. Thomas Johnston Re-elected President at Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Humane Society was held last night in the board room of the Chamber of Commerce. Most enthusiastic reports were given which revealed a year of faithful work for the dumb animals in this section of Ontario. The work of the society was carried far beyond the boundaries of the city and county of Peterborough.

In 1928 a greater effort than ever will be made to secure more members and funds. The City Council will be asked to increase its grant and a representation will be made to the County Council for a grant.

A. B. McLeod, in a brief address, said he was sorry there were so few present. "We must work and let the people know there is a society. Every merchant on George Street should be canvassed and asked to join the Society, for there is a real work to do. To carry on this work more money is necessary, so I suggest that the county be asked for a grant for much of our work in the past has been carried on in the rural districts," said Mr. McLeod.

Inspector Smith, in giving his report, told of the most serious cases that had been brought to his attention and in every case the best thing possible was done for the animal and the guilty person brought to justice. During the year he examined 118 horses, humanely destroyed 12; brought to shelter 46 dogs, humanely destroyed 30, placed 21 dogs in homes; brought 42 cats to shelter, humanely destroyed 72; examined all the circus animals, issued 3 summons, got 2 convictions, investigated 44 complaints, issued 169 warnings, and made 44 emergency calls.

The financial report showed that the society had a balance of $69.94 in the treasury. The receipts amounted to $1,078.56, and the expenditure was $1,008.62.

The following officers were elected:
Hon. President—Col. C. H. Ackerman.
President—Dr. T. Johnston.
1st Vice-President—D. C. Grant.
2nd Vice-President—Miss B. Latimer.
3rd Vice-President—Thomas Sargent.

Directors — A. B. McLeod, J. E. Robins F. Goodfellow, J. Juby, J. Skinner, Dr. Murray Fraser, Mrs. G. A. Helson, Mrs. R. H. Parsons, and Miss Foote.
Inspector—R. C. Smith.

GALE SWEEPS OTTAWA VALLEY

ROADS IMPASSABLE

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 20 (Canadian Press).—The Ottawa Valley was swept by a blinding snow blizzard last night, and every form of traffic was delayed. Driven by a forty-mile gale from the north-west, the snow was blown into drifts several feet high in the open countryside.

In the capital, the full force of the street railway's storm fighting equipment had to be brought into action to maintain trolley service within the city limits. In the suburbs street car traffic was almost at a standstill.

Most of the country roads within a hundred mile radius of Ottawa had been rendered almost impassable four hours after the first fury of the storm swept into the valley.

Up until nine o'clock last night train service had been only slightly affected by the blizzard.

Drop In Temperature.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 20 (Canadian Press).—A mild wave which flourished in Manitoba early in the week gave way before a biting north-west wind yesterday, and a rapid drop in temperature was recorded. In Winnipeg and district the mercury dropped 16 degrees in four and one-half hours and was hovering around the 5 below zero mark yesterday afternoon.

Further west it remained comparatively mild, but heavy winds were reported.

TOPPLING MOUNTAIN FEARED.

Farming people of the Arbedo Valley, in Switzerland, have been warned by the Swiss Geological Survey that they must leave the valley with all possible speed, for at any moment Mount Arbino is likely to topple into the valley. For a long time the mountain has been known to be sliding. At first its summit moved about one inch every 12 months, but in recent years it has traveled 14 inches. During the coming year heavy rains and numerous earthquakes are expected to precipitate a catastrophe, burying the farms under tons of debris. Farmers are leaving the valley as speedily as possible.

Urges Coalition To Oppose Tariff Move

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(Canadian Press.)—A coalition between labor and employers to oppose lowering of the tariff was urged by President W. Warren Barbour, of the American Tariff League, at its annual meeting here last night.

Referring to passage by the Senate last Monday of the McMaster resolution for downward tariff revision, he declared there were six factors opposing protective tariff, which, together with the resolution, have placed the protective policy on the defensive, and made "1928 the biggest tariff year in a generation."

These elements of opposition, he explained, were indifference of American producers, farm opposition and a new political alignment in Congress. All these elements, he said, "constitute a real threat to American agriculture, industry and labor."

Y.M.C.A. ANNUAL MEETING IS HELD

DEFICIT REPORTED.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association was held last night at a supper meeting under the auspices of Y's Men's Club. During the supper, President Tom Dutton of the Y's Men Club, presided, but for the transaction of the association's business he turned over the meeting to G. A. Gillespie, of the Board of Directors.

Reports were presented by the different organizations using the Y.M.C.A. as a basis for their activities, and by the different departments of the association itselff. The financial statement showed that the deficit which had existed at the beginning of 1927, had grown somewhat during the year, and discussion brought out that this is largely due to a great many members letting their membership fees stand unpaid in spite of appeals made by the officials in this matter.

The report of the nomination meeting, presented by Joseph Wearing, proposed the following as directors: G. A. Macdonald, J. Hamilton, P. P. Westbye, Dr. J. J. Craig, G. S. Matthews and C. S. Cummer. They were elected for a term of three years.

A proposal to change the date of the annual meeting to enable the officers to collect more of the outstanding revenue was not adopted. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the Ladies' Auxiliary, which served the supper last night and was responded to by Mrs. G. H. Roper.

Directors present last night were G. A. Gillespie, Joseph Wearing, G. A. Macdonald, Thomas Barrie, W. A. Richardson, J. J. Turner and J. F. H. Wallace. There were preesnt representatives of the various societies and a number of senior members of the Y.

The report of the General Secretary, G. H. Roper which outlines the general condition and activities of the association, follows. The others will be puublished to-morrow.

A review of the work and activities of the association for the past year would show that while in some things we have not reached our objectives, in the most important phases of our work very satisfying advances have been made. It is perhaps too much to expect that we shall reach one hundred per cent. of our objective in every department, especially when we have placed our objective on a high level, but 1927 has been marked by steady and important progress. Two organizations, which perhaps are the very heart of the association program have made steady advancement, namely the Friday night Supper Club and the Y's Men's Club. At the present time both these organizations are stronger and more effective than at any time in their existence. In membership, the objective for the year was surpassed and the total number of members at present is six hundred and sixty-six, classified as follows: Sustaining 18; Business Men 67; Senior 132; Young Men 136; Social 25; Rural 32; Total men members 410. Boys' membership: Intermediate 72, Junior 92; Beginners 92; total 256.

Religious.

The special series of Sunday evening meetings held at the supper hour were conducted in the spring by Mr. Wearing as the leader, with an average attendance of over thirty. The messages were very impressive and decidedly inspirational in character. The addresses at the Friday night Supper Club have been in most cases of an inspirational character expressed in terms best suited to the thought and feeling of the young men of the group. The Boys' Bible Classes have been conducted most faithfully under the leadership of our Boys' Secretary.

Two Men Rescued From Stranded Ship

BARNEGAT, N. J., Jan. 20.—(Canadian Press.)— Heavy seas, running before a strong east wind, and a driving rain storm, forced coast guard authorities to abandon efforts to tow the eighty-foot lobster schooner Victory off a sandbar a mile north of here late yesterday.

Two of the crew of five men were taken ashore by coast guard patrols, but the others said they would remain until it became apparent that the schooner would break up. The vessel is owned by the White Lobster Company of Trenton.

W.M.S. MEETING IS CONCLUDED

Reports Presented at Final Meeting of Lindsay Presbyterial.

ADDRESSES GIVEN.

Sundry business and reports, chiefly concerned with young people's work, wound up the closing session yesterday afternoon of the third annual meeting of the Lindsay Presbyterial of the Woman's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, which has held a two-day session this week in St. Andrew's United Church. Mrs. R. G. Lawlor, the retiring president, was in the chair. Mrs. A. Bookhout, the new president for the Peterborough Presbyterial, and Miss Dunoon, the new president for the Lindsay Presbyterial, were on the platform and had charge of the devotional services. The minutes of the previous session were read by Mrs. W. H. Morton.

The story of the year's work included the report of Mission Bands by Mrs. E. W. Rowland, Omemee, the report of the C.G.I.T. groups by Mrs. A. I. Brown, Peterborough, and the report of the Circles and Y.W.A.'s given by Mrs. F. Riches, Cambray, followed by an interesting discussion.

Mrs. Rowland reported 25 Bands in the Presbyterial, with an annual membership of 610, and 63 life members, making a total of 673. Meetings held during the year were 253, cash expended on supply work $54.70, annual members' fees $58.50, life members $106.00, thankoffering $63.68, mite boxes $79.42, other sources $582.11. The total amount raised was $891.97, and the total amount sent $820.46. Once again the Busy Beaver Band of Queen Street United Church leads the Presbyterial in financial giving, George Street Band, Peterborough, coming second, and Omemee a close third. Mrs. Rowland stressed the great need for band leaders, and hoped that there would be delegates who would return to their homes determined that they would give their best to this important work.

Five C.G.I.T. groups affiliated with the W.M.S. were reported by Mrs. A. I. Brown. Mrs. J. McKone's Group from St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, again led the groups, and was given special mention for its work. Mrs. Brown also mentioned the float put on by the local girls for the Diamond Jubilee Celebration in Peterborough, and they chose for the name of this float, "Canada for Christ," in honor of the missionary element in their society.

Mrs. Frank Riches, of Cambray, brought a very interesting report of the Y.W.A.'s and Circles. The total givings sent to the treasurer amounted to $1,682.85 for the Circles and $830.12 for the Y.W.A.'s These jointly show an increase over last year of between $100.00 and $200.00. Financially the banner circle was that of First United Church, of Lindsay, sending in $750.00. One new Y.W.A. was reported at Knox United Church, Peterborough. Mention was made of two of the smaller circles having done good work. Little Britain, with a membership of only seven sending in $50.00, and Lakefield Y.W.A. sending in $35.60 with five members.

The conference for mission bands was led by Mrs. E. W. Rowland, of Omemee, during the noon recess, and many problems were discussed which were interesting and helpful to the band leaders.

Mrs. T. Cruikshank kindly presided at the organ during all the day sessions.

Regret was expressed from members from both presbyterials, regarding the separation that was found necessary to make them correspond with the presbyteries of the conference. During the past two years the work had been done under very harmonious conditions, and the hope was expressed that the same happy conditions would continue in each of the new presbyterials.

Report of Courtesy Committee.

"We, the members of the Courtesy Committee, wish to convey the appreciation of the Presbyterial to the following: For the hospitality met with on our arrival; to those who so kindly loaned their cars for the comfort of the delegates; for the welcome given by the ladies and the splendid meals provided. We feel all was done that could be to make us feel at home. We wish to thank the janitor and Mrs. Stevens for their kindly attention and the comfort of the building; for the untiring efforts of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Gordon, and his wife; for the freedom of the city conveyed by Mayor Denne; for the greetings given by Rev. Mr. Todd from the Presbytery; for the official board for

AUTHORITIES ON LOOKOUT FOR BANDITS

Keep Close Watch on Roads Leading Out of Montreal.

MAKE $10,000 HAUL.

Desperadoes Make Daring Daylight Robbery of St. Dennis Street Branch.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 20 (Canadian Press).—Despite an intensive man-hunt the three bandits who yesterday robbed the St. Denis Street branch of the Banque Canadiene Nationale of between $9,000 and $10,000 were still at large last night.

Acting on the theory that the desperados were members of an American criminal gang, railway stations and roads leading out of Montreal were closely watched by police last night. While not making any definite announcement the police indicate that several clues have been developed and that, coupled with good description of the robbers obtained from the staff of the bank, there is every reason to believe that the three men will be arrested before they can leave the city.

Yesterday's hold-up was one of the most daring ever recorded in the city. It was executed perfectly and in a very short space of time. Evidently familiar with the routine of the bank, the three men entered the premises at 12.55 p.m., brandishing revolvers. There was a large amount of cash on hand awaiting removal to an armored car which was to call at the bank shortly after 1 o'clock. Five persons were in the bank, the manager, Armand Robillard, and four clerks. The bandits made no attempt to conceal their actions. They were shouting as they ran through the front door and all brandished revolvers. Speaking in English, the leader announced that they had come to hold-up the bank. At the same time the intruders hurdled the counter and were inside the enclosure where the clerks work. The manager and his assistants were ordered to lie on the floor, face downward. Three of the clerks obeyed, but one, Emilien Cormier, reached for a revolver on the desk. One of the gang violently shoved him to the floor while another administered a kick and an order to "remain there." The manager attempted to reach his living premises in the rear of the bank, but two of the gang seized him and treated him in the same manner as the clerk. With the five employees on the floor and the two bandits standing over them with menacing revolvers, the third member of the band went to the cashier's counter and opened the drawer, emptying it.

Customers Enter Bank

As the drawer was being emptied two customers of the bank entered the front door. The bandits paid no attention to them but walked calmly around the counter and out the front door where they entered the small touring car they had parked near the entrance and made their escape.

The employees immediately raised the alarm and were on the street in time to see the car disappear northwards on St. Denis Street.

Detectives were soon on the scene and obtained good descriptions of the men. They stated that these descriptions did not tally with any persons who might have been suspected and for that reason worked on the theory that the robbers were from out-of-town.

WIND USHERS IN COLD WEATHER

GALES FORECAST.

TORONTO, January 20 (Canadian Press).—A south-westerly wind with a velocity ranging up to forty miles an hour has ushered into Central Ontario what promises to be a cold snap. A drop of twenty degrees in temperature was effected over night in Toronto and district, where the mercury stood around twenty above zero today. The forecast is for gales and lower temperatures for most sections of Ontario to-day and to-morrow.

Street Cars Tied Up.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 20 (Canadian Press).—The street car service here, which was tied up yesterday afternoon and last evening by a heavy fall of snow, is being restored to-day. City plows working during the night had opened many of the roads for motorists. About seven inches of snow has fallen and it is still snowing.

Interferes With Firemen.

Over seven thousand dollars damage was caused by two fires, one at 2.15 a.m. and the other at 3.30 a.m. to-day. A snowstorm interfered with the work of the brigade.

MRS. EDWARDS PRESIDENT OF LOCAL COUNCIL

Annual Meeting Featured By Address From National President.

REPORTS PRESENTED.

Thirty-two Societies Are Affiliated With Council—Good Balance in Treasury.

The annual meeting of the Local Council of Women was held yesterday afternoon in the green room and library of the Young Women's Christian Association, both rooms being needed for the attendance of about one hundred women, representing the affiliated societies and those who took advantage of the invitation to be present and meet the national president, Mrs. J. A. Wilson, of Ottawa, who gave a most inspiring and eloquent address during the course of the afternoon.

Although the reading of annual reports from the affiliated organizations was left over until the next meeting, election of officers took place yesterday afternoon, and the meeting concluded with a reception by Mrs. Wilson and the service of afternoon tea.

Officers for 1928 are Past President, Mrs. A. Stevenson; President, Mrs. C. H. Edwards; Vice-Presidents, Miss A. Lancaster, Mrs. G. Helson, Mrs. F. H. Dearborn, Mrs. J. D. Deyell and Mrs. J. J. Pollock; Recording Secretary, Mrs. J. Wearing; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. A. Mowat; Treasurer, Mrs. N. D. Seaton; Convenors of Committees Citizenship, Mrs. K. S. Wightman; Films, Mrs. N. D. Seaton and Mrs. R. H. Parsons; Household Economics, Mrs. E. Morrison; Public Health, Mrs. N. H. Sutton; Equal Moral Standard, Mrs. A. Stevenson; Education, Miss Hamilton and Mrs. W. R. Morris; Laws, Mrs. Chas. Ray; Professions and Employments for Women, Mrs. J. Mills; Soldiers' Pensions and Dependents, Mrs. W. R. Morris; League of Nations, Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner; Child Welfare, Police Matron, Amy Wood; Immigration, Miss Leta Brownscombe; Fine and Applied Arts, Mrs. Wm. Blackwell. Tellers for votes were Mrs. A. Stevenson, Mrs. J. Wearing and Miss Might.

The meeting opened with the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting by Mrs. Wearing, and the treasurer's report by Mrs. Seaton, showing total receipts of $430.43, which sum included a balance from the previous year of $86.80 and $112.40, derived from the film sponsored at the Regent Theatre. Total disbursements were $285.08, leaving a balance on hand of $145.35.

The report of the corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. Mowat, showed thirty-two affiliated societies in good standing and gave a brief resume of the year's work, expressing the hope that the work of the Well Babies' Clinic, in which the Council is greatly interested, may soon be duplicated in the south end of the city.

Mrs. Mowat, in conclusion, expressed the feelings of admiration and respect held by the Local Council for the National president, Mrs. Wilson, who so ably fulfills the duties of her position at all times.

President's Address.

The short address by the president, Mrs. C. H. Edwards, was concise and to the point, expressing succinctly some of the aims and hopes of the Council for the forthcoming year, and outlining various matters in which the members may find scope for their endeavors. Mrs. Edwards spoke first in commendation of the excellent water supply and twice-a-week garbage collection of Peterborough, as contrasted with similar conveniences in Ottawa, which is not so fortunate in either regard. The president also thanked the members for their hearty support and co-operation.

Matters which may be taken up by the Council in the coming year make an ambitious programme, in consideration of ways and means of obtaining a cheaper gas supply, the cleaning up of the Police Station, better lighting in the city's parks, especially in Inverlea Park, a more general pasteurization of milk, police protection for outside sections of the city, preventive forms of work for women and girls, a rest room for farm women at the market, an agitation for mental as well as physical examination for inmates of such places as the House of Refuge, a sanctuary for the bird-life of Peterborough and a better transportation system on the city streets. Increased interest in questions relating to infantile and maternal mortality was also mentioned.

Mrs. Wilson's Speech.

Mrs. Wilson, who was introduced by Mrs. Edwards as "the Prime Minister of our women's parliament in Canada," had a lucid, smoothly-flowing form of eloquent delivery which was marked also by clarity of thought and an especially attractive type of enunciation. With an evident wide grasp of all matters pertaining to the work of the National Council and a thorough knowledge of facts and conditions pertaining to them, she held the interested attention of her hearers during the course of a fairly lengthy discourse.

"Why have we a Council and what good is it?" was a question which was asked and answered by the speaker, who referred to the efficacy experienced in solving problems easily by bringing together many people and to the fact that the Council provides a meeting place for women of every type, "for Jew and Gentile, for Catholic and Protestant," on a common ground. This fact alone, she declared, would justify its existence.

In the Council, each of the affiliated societies has an equal chance to bring up matters of interest to all and its activities include many phases of

MARINES THINK RUMORS RUSE

Believe Sandino Has Fled To Honduras or Down River to Sea.

CAMP DESERTED.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 20. —(Canadian Press).—United States marines feared to-day that reports of the death of the rebel general, Augustino Sandino might be a ruse. Around his mountain stronghold of El Chipoie the only evidence noted by marine aviators was that of death and desolation. Sandino, if alive, it was believed, could have fled through the jungles to Honduras or down the Coco River to the Caribbean. Since the Honduran Government promised to allow no concentration of rebels on Honduran soil, it was believed that Sandino might be heading for the sea.

DIVERS WORKING TO RECOVER BODIES

Seven Men Carried to Bottom of Bay in Huge Steel Caisson.

PANAMA City Florida, Jan 20. — Canadian Press. — Divers were working to-day to recover the bodies of seven men drowned and pinned to the bottom of the East Bay yesterday, when the caisson on which they were at work sank and carried them with it. The huge steel shell, which workmen were putting in place for pouring cement to mould concrete piers, was dislodged, and held the men imprisoned within it, while it toppled to the water and sank to a depth of 55 feet in midbay.

Cardinal Dubois of Paris, and Philippe Roy, Commission General for Canada in Paris, were present.

This evening Cardinal Rouleau, was given a reception at the club Le Centre Catholique, which is composed of business and professional men.

FEDERAL CONSERVATIVE LEADER SPENDS A BUSY DAY AT QUEBEC

Hon. R. B. Bennett Delivers Two Speeches and Tendered Public Reception.

VISITS DIGNITARIES.

Addresses Canadian Women's Circle at Conclusion of Day's Activities.

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 20.— (Canadian Press.)— Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the Conservative party, was a visitor to Quebec yesterday, where he delivered two addresses and was tendered a public reception.

The day's programme started with a reception at the court house, where Hon. R. B. Bennett was received by Chief Justice Sir Francois Lemieux, and Elzear Baillargeon, Batonnier-General of the Quebec Bar. Later the Conservative chieftain visited Mgr. Omer Plante at the Archbishop's Palace, Lord Bishop Williams, and Lieutenant-Governor Perodeau.

Mr. Bennett then addressed the Canadian Club at luncheon and later delivered a speech before the Canadian Women's Circle. This concluded the day's activities and he left in the evening for Montreal and Ottawa.

Develop National Spirit.

Speaking before the Canadan Women's Circle, Mr. Bennett said that one of the most difficult problems to be faced by Canadians was to develop in Canada a truly national spirit.

The speaker traced the role that Canadian women played in the conduct of the country before they were accorded the franchise and, particularly, since the right to vote was granted them, and he stressed the nenecessity for women developing complete understanding of the responsibilities which fall upon them through the use of this prerogative in the administration of the country.

Women's Franchise.

"What should a woman ask herself?" Mr. Bennett asked. "Should she ask how she should vote? No, but she should ask why she is voting." Mr. Bennett insisted particularly that women who studied the history of the county should take a greater interest in the great problems which were apparent in municipal, provincial and national realms, and which needed so much attention. He denied that he spoke as a politician and said that he appeared before them simply as a citizen of Canada who wanted everyone to realize that the riches of the Dominion did not consist only of natural resources or well-filled bank books, but rested above all in the national life and the character of the people who inhabited the country stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific. "There is where the power of Canada lies," he declared, "and women had added a capital role, even before she was accorded the vote. It is of vital importance that the national life of this great country, where ten million people live, should develop without hindrance. Life was not given to us so that we might pass it entirely in the joys of existence, but in order that we might realize that these joys include Canada. The co-operation of all is needed if we are to prosper, and to this co-operation we should lend all our efforts."

New Building Record For Canadian Cities

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(Canadian Press.)—A new high building record was established by 65 leading Canadian cities in 1927, the gain over the previous record year being 16.6 per cent., according to S. W. Straus & Company. The year's volume, their survey indicates, was $185,451,271, exclusive of a great number of engineering projects. The average index of wholesale prices of building materials based on 1913 costs was 147.7.

The same cities reported a 2 per cent. increase in December over the same month of the previous year. Straus estimates that building operations of a spectacular nature will continue throughout Ontario during the winter, that province having registered a gain in December, 1927, of 82 per cent. over December, 1926.

ORDER THREE NEW PLANES

Will be Used in Civil Branch of Royal Canadian Air Force.

DELIVERY IN MAY

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 20.— (Canadian Press.)—The Department of National Defence has ordered three new aeroplanes, two of which will be built in the United States and the third in Montreal, for the civil branch of the Royal Canadian Air Force. The American-built machines will be specially constructed so that they may be adapted to making surveys at Fort Churchill in the spring. It is intended to establish a temporary air base at Fort Churchill, and from that base two planes will operate, making photographic surveys from day to day of ice conditions at the break-up. The operations are expected to begin some time in May, and will continue throughout the spring.

The work of the observers is closely allied to, although apart from, that now being carried on in the Hudson Straits. The airmen now operating in the Straits will continue their own observations upon the breaking up of the ice an its movements in that region during the spring season. A compilation of the reports turned in from these various air bases will form a valuable guide to the government in its future activities with regard to extending the navigation season in and out of Hudson Bay.

The new planes are scheduled for delivery early in May.

WOULD ESTABLISH CLOSER RELATIONS

Manitoba Farmers and Business Men Discuss Agricultural Problems.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 20 (Canadian Press).—Representatives of the United Farmers of Manitoba and members of the Greater Winnipeg Board of Trade conferred yesterday in an effort to establish closer relations between business men and farmers of Manitoba in solving problems of agriculture, under a plan discussed, representatives of business and of agriculture might get together as occasion might require, to deal with specific problems affecting the farming industries.

Yesterday's conference followed the suggestion of Premier John Bracken of Manitoba, made at the 1927 annual meeting of the Canadian Chambers of Commerce, that a closer relationship be established between commercial and agricultural interests of the Dominion.

The Weather

By way of variety we have had a change to colder conditions. A rapidly falling barometer yesterday afternoon presaged that something was about to happen. It proved to be a wind of gale proportions that whistled and howled during the latter half of the night. The temperature this morning was about twenty degrees. Colder weather is coming but is not likely to be excessive nor long continued. If there had been the amount of snow on the ground that is usually present at this date the roads would have been completely blocked with such a wind as prevailed last night.—W.P.

ARSENAL MAY BE MOVED TO LINDSAY

Government Has To Move the Depot From Ross Factory at Quebec.

OTTAWA, Jan. 20.—Complete removal of the Dominion Arsenal from Quebec to Lindsay, Ont., is under consideration as a result of completion of plans of the National Battlefields Commission, entailing removal of the ordnance depot from the Ross rifle factory at Quebec. The Government already possess a factory at Lindsay, which in the latter years of the war turned out munitions, etc. This factory was constructed also before 1914 and has proved its usefulness. It is understood that considerations of economy may actuate the Government in removing the arsenal to the Ontario town since it would be much less expensive to take advantage of the buildings already standing than to construct new ones.

STARTS DRIVE ON PRIZE FIGHTS

New York Senator Introduces Bill.

ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 20.—(Canadian Press).—A drive against professional pugilism was launched in the New York Legislature yesterday by Senator Alfred Kennedy. Senator Kennedy introduced a bill designed to prohibit boxing or wrestling matches for cash prizes. Numerous protests against the introduction of the measure have been received by Senator Kennedy. The bill stipulates that its prohibitions shall not apply to contests at which prizes other than cash are awarded.

SALVADOREAN DELEGATE MADE HEAD OF IMPORTANT COMMITTEE

Chairman of International Public Law Committee at Pan-Congress.

GREAT STATESMAN.

Antagonistic to Policies of the United States in Latin America.

HAVANA, Jan. 20. — Canadian Press. — Significance was attached in certain sections of the sixth Pan-American conference when Gustavo Guerrero, Salvadorean delegate, was yesterday elected chairman of the most important committee of the conference, the committee on international public law.

Senor Guerrero is reputedly antagonistic to the policies of the United States in Latin America. His name was proposed by Mr. Crestes Ferrera, Cuban ambassador at Washington, and seconded by Charles E. Hughes, chairman of the United States delegation, and he was unanimously raised to the head of the committee at the initial organization meeting of that body.

The committee over which Senor Guerrere will preside has jurisdiction over the most controversial resolutions which the conference has to pass upon. They are the draft treaties for the codifcation of American public international law prepared at the jurists' conference at Rio Janeiro last April, which recommended among other measures, prohibition by treaty of the interference by force of any American country in the internal affairs of another.

It is recalled however that during the Rio Conference, proposals were discussed to extend this prohibition to interfere in both internal and external affairs of another country and views have been freely expressed that the projection of the later proposals into the debates in the present committee headed by Guerrero are extremely likely

Delegate at Geneva

In connection with his election yesterday, officials here remembered that he had been both foreign minister of Salvador and his country's representative at Geneva, where he was reported as urging the American republics to form closer ties with the League of Nations. He is also credited with the organization of an agreement between Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras, which was said to have as its object resistance to foreign interference.

Dr. Enrique Olava, Columbian minister to the United States, heads the committee on Pan-American union affairs. Both Charles E. Hughes and Honorio Bueryrredon, of Argentina, had previously declined to stand for election.

Sampaio Gorre, of Brazil, was chosen as president of the committee on communications, and Tulie Gesteros, of the Dominican Republic, was elected vice president, the latter on the motion of United States Ambassador Fletcher.

This commission temporarily laid aside important scheduled problems, and adjourned until Saturday, when it will be decided what numbers of sub-committees is necessary. Meanwhile Ambassador Fletcher has been made permanent reporter of the general committee.

SMITH OUSTED FROM SENATE

FOR SECOND TIME

WASHINGTON, D.C., January 20 (Canadian Press). — The Senate late yesterday declared vacant the seat to which the people of Illinois elected Frank L. Smith.

By a vote of 61 to 23—more than a two-thirds majority—his credentials were declared to be tainted with "fraud and corruption," and it was decreed that he was not entitled to a seat.

Before finally barring its doors against the former chairman of the Illinois Commerce Commission on account of contributions to and expenditures in his primary campaign in 1926, the Senate voted, 56 to 27, against giving him the oath of office.

This was the second time this session that the oath had been denied, and by excluding Smith without first permitting him to take the oath, the Senate established a precedent in a case unique in its more than a century of history.

Only the staunchest members of the Republican Old Guard stuck to Smith's cause to the finish. They were joined by two Democrats, one from the South, the fiery Bloase of South Carolina, and one from the North-west, Steck, of Iowa.

Curtis, of Kansas, the Republican leader, and Jones, of Washington, the majority "whip," were among the 21 Republicans who joined forces with 39 Democrats and the one Farmer-Labor,(Shipstead, of Minnesota, in excluding the Illinois Republican Senator-elect.

MANY INJURED IN TWISTER

CUTS ACROSS OHIO

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 20 (Canadian Press).—Fourteen persons were injured and numerous houses and small buildings unroofed and otherwise damaged by a storm which swept through the southern part of Louiseville yesterday. Most serious damage was caused in an area extending from the Eighteenth Street Road to Fern Creek. Property damage was expected to exceed $100,000.,

Though the wind attained a velocity in excess of sixty miles an hour, no one suffered injuries that appeared likely to prove fatal.

One Killed in Ohio

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 20 (Canadian Press).—Sweeping out of overcast skies, a line squall, nearing the proportions of a tornado, cut a path through Southern Ohio yesterday, leaving one dead and many injured. Property damage was estimated at $800,000.

The storm was the worst experienced in this territory since the tornado of 1917. Damage was heaviest at Cumminsville, a suburb of Cincinnati, where the loss may agggregate $500,000. Homes and schoolhouses at Lindenwalk, Ohio, felt the fury of the high wind. Two school children were among the injured.

The only fatality occurred at ashington Court House, where A. R. Kruger, salesman, of Dayton, Ohio, was crushed to death by a coping that was blown from a building on to his automobile. Damage in this city, however, was slight.

BURNLEY FACTORY HAD HIGH RECORD

Not as Much Cheese Made Last Year, However—Officers Elected.

When Burnley Cheese and Butter Company Limited held its annual meeting, a large gathering of patrons and stockholders was present. J. A. Murray, district instructor, J. L. Irwin, dairy produce grader, and N. V. Drewry, director of Untied Dairymen Co-operative, were the speakers at the meeting and all gave the Burnley factory credit for its good standing in first grade of cheese. George Oitment is maker and in spite of some losses came out with a high score of 97½ per cent. The make was down considerably from 1926. Burnley had a make of over 102,000 pounds of cheese.

The average price for the season was 18.97 cents and the average price for a pound of butter fat 44.42 cents.

The officers for 1928 are Harry Richardson, president, W. E. Bonney, vice-president, J. Ferguson, L. Lockhart and C. Bull, directors, Peter Brahaney secretary, W. Sweet and M. Minor auditors.

OFFER REWARD OF $1,000 CASH COSTELLO CASE

FIND NO CLUES.

Mystery Surrounds Identity of Person Who Might Have Lured Girl Away.

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—One thousand dollars cash reward will be paid by the Board of Police Commissioners of the Toronto police department for information leading to the arrest and conviction of person or persons who caused the death of Florence Costello, North Toronto school girl who, coroner's jury said, had been killed by some persons unknown.

This decision was reached at a meeting of the Police Commissioners yesterday afternoon when Mayor McBride, chairman of the board, brought the question up regarding the reward. Not a single clue is in the hands of the police that will give them a lead to unravel this case, one of the most brutal in years. The identity of the person who might have lured the girl away is a complete mystery.

Questioned, Chief Constable Dickson and Inspector Guthrie of the detective department refused to talk about the case beyond stating that they were carrying on their investigations.

Detective-Sergeant George Tuft and Lockhart Trinnell of headquarters with Detective Richardson, North Toronto, are assigned to the crime.

That the police were quite surprised at some of the medical evidence produced at the inquest is known to be a fact. It is reported they were not informed of all the details following the autopsy performed by Dr. Frankish.

It is nearly a month now since the girl was found and the police now have to pick up a cold trail in an effort, if possible, to bring the murderer to justice.

PARIS WANTS GAMBLE.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—Parisians are tired of being forced to journey to distant resorts every time they want to risk their money on anything but race horses. For 16 years there has been a 60-mile restricted zone around the city in which casinos were not allowed. Members of the Chamber of Deputies are working for the passage of a bill to abolish this zone.

The Smithsonian Institution at Washington, D.C., established in 1846, maintains a library of 360,000 volumes.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

JESUS AND LAW OBSERVANCE

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Jan. 22. Jesus and the Law. Mark 2:18-22; 3:1-6.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D.

Text: Mark 2:18-22; 3:1-6.

And the disciples of John and of the Pharisees used to fast and they come and say unto Him, Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharisees fast, but Thy disciples fast not?

And Jesus said unto them, Can the children of the bride-chamber fast while the bridegroom is with them? as long as they have the bridegroom with them, they cannot fast.

But the days will come, when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then shall they fast in those days.

No man also seweth a piece of new cloth on an old garment; else the new piece that filled it up taketh away from the old, and the rent is made worse.

And no man putteth new wine into old bottles; else the new wine doth burst the bottles, and the wine is spilled, and the bottles will be marred but new wine must be put into new bottles.

And He entered again into the synagogue; and there was a man there which had a withered hand.

And they watched Him, whether He would heal him on the sabbath day; that they might accuse Him.

And He saith unto the man which had the withered hand, Stand forth. And He saith unto them, Is it lawful to do good on the sabbath days, or to do evil? to save life, or to kill? But they held their peace.

And when He had looked around about on them with anger, being grieved for the hardness of their hearts, He saith unto the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it out and his hand was restored whole as the other.

And the Pharisees went forth, and straightway took counsel with the Herodians against Him, how they might destroy Him.

Few questions have been more important in history than the relation of man to law.

Few questions, incidentally, are more important than this in America at the present hour. Only some rare and anarchic spirit, either of wilful disregard of the rights and privileges of others or of some half fanatical appreciation of liberty as a speculative thing, ever has questioned the value of law and custom, or of what law and custom have meant in the evolution of man from barbarism.

But laws and customs that were designed to meet specific needs crystallize, sometimes, into unjust or meaningless oppressions. Instead of enlarging the vision of man and giving greater scope to his spirit, they may weaken his initiative and suppress his personality and will.

Thus it comes about in history that from one standpoint law breakers have played almost as large a part in progress as law observers.

Back in the very beginning of Christianity when the apostles were admonished by the authorities to do certain things, their reply was, "We ought to obey God rather than men." In much the same spirit John Bunyan at a later day spent 12 years in Bedford jail because his conscience would not permit him to obey the law of the land which forbade freedom in prayer and worship.

Ruling Principle.

What then is the principle that must rule in life in relation to law? Or is there a principle that is easily discoverable and easily applied? A complex matter may be made much too simple, but if there is a principle and solution it would seem to be suggested in our lesson. It is found in the suggestion that there is a higher law that runs through life than the law of custom and convention, or even than the law of the state.

There is an authority of the voice of truth and conscience which, when a man once hears it, subdues every other voice. Here, for instance, was this custom and convention that the Pharisees observed about fasting, but Jesus pointed out that there is such a thing as fasting in spirit, a reverence in the inner sanctuary of the soul, which is much more sacred than any law concerning an external observance. It is possible to fast bodily and yet have very little of this spirit of fasting as an expression of the soul's aspiration.

So, too, in this more important illustration of the question of healing on the Sabbath Day. Custom and Convention said it was wrong. The higher law of humanity, which was the law of Christ and of Christian love, said that it was right to heal and do good on the Sabbath Day. In breaking the actual observance of law and custom Jesus revealed the higher law of life and truth.

In Our Own Land.

The fact that we are face to face with serious problems of lawlessness and law enforcement in our own land has led many people, especially many good Christians, in recent years to face the whole question in a way that has obscured the reality of this principle that the law of conscience in its ultimate expression is above every other law.

The obvious retort is that if this is so, what becomes of the state and of legal authority? If a man is free to disobserve any law that he does not like, or any law in which he does not believe, what are going to be the limits of this disregard of law, and how will any law retain its power and its sanctity?

The reply is that when men are moved by highmindedness, intelligence, and conscience, unless the laws of the land are almost hopelessly wrong, there would be little disposition to disobey them. The great mass of disobedience to law today is not upon high conscientious ground. It is rather upon the ground of self-indulgence and personal preference.

The fact of the matter is that there can be no great citizenship where the element of conscience is neglected or weakened, and where the vast mass of citizens of a state are moved by that conscientious conviction that would lead them to disobey a law that they believed to be morally or spiritually wrong there will be no danger of the law and life of that state being weakened.

Individual Daring.

Progress comes to the world through individual men daring, in behalf of vision and conscience, to disregard convention and custom, religiously and socially, where they believe that these things are lifeless and wrong. When the state passes, as it once did in England, laws that would make an ordinary prayer meeting in a home illegal, what can good Christians who love their independence and their religious freedom do other than persist in worshiping God according to the dictates of their own conscience?

The principle that a higher law runs through all of life is dangerous only for those who seek to pervert a great truth and wrest it to wrong purposes and results. A God-fearing nation wil be a law abiding nation because such a nation will have, on the whole, laws that ought to be observed.

It is a profound mistake to set the Lord Jesus, however, upon the side of mere formalism and complacency. He manifested in His earthly life the vigor and independence of the man who rebels against conventions and customs that have lost their vigor through losing their meaning and their reality. It is life that is the supreme thing, and law is great and noble only as it ministers to life, as it enlarges for man and society the sphere of noble living and the highest welfare.

PETERBOROUGH'S TREES.

Under the direction of the Board of Works, many trees throughout the city are being trimmed of useless branches and other dead trees are being cut down.

This is a very useful work and will effect an improvement on many city streets.

There are various sections where a judicious thinning out might be advisable, sections where trees are so crowded that they are interfering with each other's growth and making it almost impossible to cultivate lawns.

At the same time, however, it should be remembered that trees do not mature very rapidly, and sooner or later provision will have to be made to provide new ones where gaps have been left.

To look down upon the city from an aeroplane or from the top of Armour's Hill in mid-summer is almost like looking down upon a great park.

It should be the ambition of the city authorities to see that this condition is maintained, and to keep in mind the necessity of replenishing our store of trees when more are needed.

THE BAR IS NOT WANTED.

Ontario with a population of a little over 3,000,000 people, has about 2,000,000 persons old enough to legally purchase liquor permits.

Yet so far in the present fiscal year only some 218,000 residents of the Province have secured the required authority to purchase liquor.

Making allowances for the fact that there is a certain amount of using one permit for the convenience of two or three people, the total number of patrons of the Government's system of liquor stores and beer warehouses is surprisingly small, and the number who are abusing the privilege forms a decidedly small percentage of the permit-holders.

Under the circumstances it is difficult to justify any demand for the sale of beer by the glass, and it is more difficult to understand the contention of certain temperance leaders that drinking at the open bar would be preferable to the present system.

The Examiner does not believe that the people of Ontario want the bar restored or a return made to the old conditions under such a method of dealing with the liquor question.

They—or the majority of them—are satisfied that so long as the present plan is strictly carried out and there are no more evidences of abusing the privilege than there have been up to the present, that Government control is preferable both to the wide-open sale of pre-war days and to the underhand and up-the-alley sale of the so-called prohibition era.

THE KILLER OF THE HIGHWAY.

The number of people killed or hurt in automobile accidents in the United States last year reached a total of approximately three-quarters of a million.

More than 24,000 lives were lost and 720,000 persons were injured.

These figures are appalling.

As The Calgary Herald says: "It is astounding to contemplate the fact that in a single year and in a single country three-quarters of a million people were either killed or maimed through ignorant or careless operation of a machine that was designed to bring comfort and happiness rather than death and suffering to the human race."

Any disease that caused so many deaths and so much pain would be studied closely by the finest minds in medical science, eager to find a means of checking such a terrible malady.

We are supposed to be sensible people, on the average, on this Continent.

Are we going to let this terrible toll go on year after year, or are we going to resolve that "ignorant or careless operation" of motor cars must come to an end.

The motor cars is here to stay.

We must, therefore, learn to use it so that it will no longer be a deadly killer, but a real friend of humanity.

DO WE NEED TO DO THIS?

Mild spells may be appreciated by the men who hold snow-ploughing contracts, but to the caretakers of the municipal skating rinks they mean nothing but a smaller pay envelope.

The Examiner understands that when, as during the present winter the absence of cold weather has made outdoor skating impossible, these city employees are put on a half-pay basis.

Economy is an excellent thing in the administration of public business, but in the case of men whose remuneration for a week when they are fully employed is but $15.00 and who require every cent of that money for the needs of their families and themselves, there is surely no ratepayer who would complain if these employees were paid their by no means princely salaries even when the rinks are not in use because of a thaw.

When the weather is cold they work long hours in looking after the rinks and keeping the ice in shape for the public, and in view of the shortness of the season and their small rate of pay, they should get the same break as the snow-plough brigade, who get their contract price whether there is snow to remove or not.

A proud and prosperous city like the one we are all so fond of surely does not need to save at the expense of a few temporary employees who are none too lavishly paid at best, and who have a place for every copper of their weekly salary.

CUT THE TAX IN TWO.

Much was said at Chatham on Saturday about the importance of the British market for Canadian tobacco. The Hon. John S. Martin, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, touched another point of no small importance when, addressing Mr. Motherwell, the Federal Minister in charge of a similar department at Ottawa, he asked the Government to reduce the present tax on Canadian cigarettes from $6 to $3 per thousand. Mr. Martin pointed out that millions of cigarettes are being smuggled into this country annually because of the prohibitive tax placed on the Canadian article by our Government, and he believed it would be an excellent piece of business if the tax were cut in two, as suggested in representations to the Advisory Tariff Board some time ago.

Mr. Martin's plea is one of common sense. The heavy impost placed on Canadian cigarettes is a poor piece of business and has been such from the start. Human nature is human nature the world over. It is not reasonable to expect people to pay 35, and even 50 cents, a package for cigarettes, if it is possible for them to secure the same article, smuggled or otherwise, at two packages for 25 cents. Yet this is just the situation now, a situation that is taking vast sums of money out of the pockets of Canadian tobacco growers, Canadian workmen, Canadian manufacturers and the Canadian Government as well.

From Ottawa the other day came an intimation that this year's Budget announcements would likely contain a reduction of the cigarette tax. This should be done. The Canadian levy now is exactly twice that of the United States and it should be reduced to the American level in order to be effective. If this is done the growing of fine cigarette tobacco in Canada will be encouraged, our Canadian manufacturers will have a chance, and Canadian retailers, especially in border districts, will be given an opportunity to get back much of the legitimate business that is now lost to them.

Mr. Motherwell indicated clearly at Chatham that he is anxious to do everything possible to assist the tobacco industry generally. He can perform a real service for it by insisting to his Cabinet colleagues that the cigarette tax be cut in two.—Border Cities Star.

TREAT THEM LIKE NATIVE SONS.

Olav Tellefsen, aged 28, champion of the South Norwegian Ski Association for seven years and winner of more than fifty local skiing prizes in Norway, is going to the Olympic games as a representative of Canada. The Olympic committee is to be congratulated upon taking him in the face of objections which should never have been made.

The objectors were Canadians. They based their protest upon the fact that Tellefsen is naturalized, not native. Yet to be naturalized he had to be a bona fide citizen. He had to prove five years' residence in Canada and he had to swear allegiance to the British crown. That ought to be enough for anybody. If Canada is to secure the best type of immigrants, and if immigrants are to be encouraged to take out papers of naturalization, they must be recognized, when naturalized, as Canadians in every sense of the word. They must be given just as square a deal as the native-born.

The Scandinavians are good settlers. J. T. Thorson, Rhodes scholar from Manitoba in 1910 and today a member of the dominion parliament, is the son of naturalized Scandinavians from Iceland. He is only one of the many who have made good in Canada. Lieutenant-Colonel H. M. Hannesson, former Conservative member for Selkirk, was another; Hon. "Tom" Johnson, attorney-general for Manitoba, was a third. The famous Falcon hockey team, which won the Olympic hockey championship for Canada in 1920 was largely composed of the sons of Icelanders.

Why shouldn't another athlete of Scandinavian descent win skiing honors for the dominion in 1928? Doubtless Olav Tellefsen will. Those who criticized his inclusion in Canada's Olympic team were hard up for something to criticize.—Toronto Star.

THOSE DRIVERS' PERMITS.

Hon. George S. Henry introduced a sound practice when for a dollar apiece he sold driving licenses last summer. The possession of such a license was evidence that the owner was competent to drive, either by reason or experience or after due trial in the case of the quite young or the partly incapacitated. The back of the license was also a handy place for the police to record convictions of the blacker kind.

About the only flaw in the scheme was that a great many people didn't bother to get a driver's permit and managed to see the year out without one.

The Ottawa Journal estimates that there were five thousand people in Ottawa who ought to have paid their dollar for a license and didn't.

The same could be said of a lot of people in St. Thomas and Elgin, and of all the other cities and counties in the Province.

It is to be hoped the authorities will see to it that there is no such slipping out of the obligation this year. It is unfair to the Provincial revenue, and unfair to those who conscientiously obey the law.

These permits are good for the whole of this year, so there is an easy way of getting at the delinquents. Few drivers have taken out their license plates yet for 1928, and it should be made plain by Mr. Henry that drivers must produce their permits when they apply for their car licenses. If they have no permit, then they should be refused their plates unless they buy their driving permits there and then.

This would still enable lots of people to get by; younger members of the family who borrow the car when they want it. These must be checked up by the police, and a good plan would be for the Minister to decree that drivers must do as they do in England—carry their permits with them when driving.

Unless there is teeth in the law this year, people will ignore it in increasing numbers in future.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Border Cities Star suggests that Mr. Hanna should examine that barrel-shaped Seymour ghost. It might not have a permit.

Surely the latest atrocity should convince Michigan people that that State requires capital punishment.

The Varsity Grads are taking plus fours to Europe with them. Could you imagine the Peterborough team in that kind of garb if the blue and white had come through last winter!

The St. Lawrence waterway proposition is not producing any electrical energy yet, but it must be admitted that it is developing plenty of gas.

The Campbellford ghost, points out The Toronto Globe, did not "walk" the other evening when reporters kept vigil all night. It is evidently, adds our contemporary, a shy spook and resentful of publicity.

Henry Wise Wood is President of the United Farmers of Alberta for the thirteenth successive year. The veteran head of the farmers' organization knows his wheat, so to speak.

And now the Guelph policemen say they have been hearing ghosts. They should try to keep from dreaming when they fall asleep on duty.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, January 20 (Canadian Press). — A feature of the domestic grain trade here yesterday was the demand that developed from exporters for Manitoba spring wheat and sales of several loads of No. 3 Northern were made at two cents per bushel under the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f., bay ports. There was some demand from local buyers for oats and a moderate trade was done at steady prices.

The flour trade was fairly active, and prices for spring and winter wheat grades were well maintained.

The demand for all lines of millfeed continued good, and values were firm. A moderate amount of business was done in standard grades of rolled oats and prices were unchanged.

The export trade in baled hay was quiet and the local demand was also liimted, but prices were steady.

A weaker feeling developed in the egg market and prices for fresh eggs scored another decline of one to four cents per dozen, and storage eggs one cent per dozen. This was attributed to the fact that supplies were somewhat in excess of the daily requirements. The receipts were 611 cases.

Owing to the colder weather prevailing, the smaller receipts and a somewhat better demand from local and outside buyers for potatoes yesterday, a firmer feeling developed in the situation, and prices marked up five cents per bag. The trade was more active and sales of car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were made at $1.20 per bag of 90 pounds; Prince Edward Island White potatoes at $1.10 per bag of 90 pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.10 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk; New Brunswick White potatoes at $1.05 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk; and Quebec varieties at 95c to $1.00 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

Bean Demand Fair.

The demand for imported beans was fair and prices were firm. Car lots of choice white hand-picked were quoted at $2.80 per bushel, ex-track, and broken lots at $2.90 per bushel, ex-store.

The butter trade showed no improvement, the demand being still of a very limited character, but values were unchanged. The receipts were 135 packages.

The cheese market was dull and featureless. The receipts were 123 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, January 20 (Canadian Press). — Keeping in step with an unexpected advance at Liverpool, wheat values here displayed pronounced strength at times yesterday, influenced also by unfavorable crop conditions, south-west. On the other hand, corn declined toward the last, owing a good deal to prespective larger receipts here.

Wheat closed firm, ⅛c to ½c net higher; corn ¼c to ⅝c off, oats unchanged to ¼c to ⅜c lower, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents up. Larger trading in future deliveries of wheat here than had been the rule of late was also an outstanding feature, but this stimulus was somewhat offset by late weakness of the corn market. Besides, Argentine wheat shipments for the week were almost 2,000,000 bushels greater than for the week previous, and were also decidedly in excess of the total a year ago. As the day drew to an end, selling to release profits did much also to lop off part of the earlier gains in the wheat market.

Corn prices suffered material setbacks after having scored rather brisk upturns owing to general rains over the corn belt. An increase of offerings from nearby territory, however, was in evidence on the price bulges, and there were also bearish effects from Chicago purchases of about 2,000,000 bushels of corn to arrive. Oats were governed by the action of corn.

Provisions were firmer, reflecting the trend of hog values.

Life is so paradoxical. A lot of people keep their noses to the grindstone all the time trying to hold their heads up.

Sage advice isn't worth so much after all. For ages platitudinists have been telling us to forge ahead, and look what happened to the blacksmith.

The reason a wife can always find things at home that a husband can't is because she leaves home later in the day than he does.

A Thought

THOUGHTS ON LOYALTY

If you are working with or for a man, by all that is good and great, be loyal to that man, or be fair to yourself and resign.

To remain in a position and pay and then bite the hand that feeds you—to knock the man who pays you—to try to elevate yourself at the expense of your employer, is ingratitude, injustice—treason.

The dirtiest kind of dishonesty is disloyalty. There is nothing produced on earth quite so low as that of the ungrateful man.

Disloyalty is the abridgment of all human baseness. It is ignorance of head and ingratitude of heart.

No business organization can successfully cooperate, where the corrosion of disloyalty is rusting off the hinges of human effort.

We can lock the safe, count the cash, check up the stamps, and introduce the time clock; but disloyalty must be dismissed or the organization will be ditched.

If you are working with or for a man, work with and for that man and his organization—for your organization.

And remember this: Every time you criticize others in the organization, without showing, in a friendly way, and by your own example, a better way, you are simply costing the concern in cash, in confidence, in cooperation, more than you are worth, no matter what your pay may be.

Finding fault with others in the organization increases your obligation to introduce the necessary means of mending the mistakes.

Constantly criticize, if you want, but do not condemn others until you are ready and willing to help correct what is wrong, and, above all things, be loyal to the man who has placed you in a position to help him help others and to help yourself.

The Salvation Army each year gives about 450,000 Christmas dinners, 175,000 toys, and more than 25,000 Thanksgiving dinners.

Answer: Because when cod-liver oil is emulsified it is more perfectly absorbed, and does not disagree with digestion. Take

R. ANDERSON IS CHAIRMAN

Elected at First Meeting of Havelock School Board.

C. JAMIESON SECRETARY.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 20.—The inaugural meeting of the Havelock School Board was held in the school on Wednesday evening, Jan. 18, with all members present. After the newly-elected members, Trustees Jamieson, Fraser and Rigby had taken their declaration of office, the secretary called for nominations for chairman. Moved by Trustees Anderson and Rigby, that H. W. Roche be chairman.

Mr. Roche thanked the mover and seconder of the motion for the honor but declined to accept. He had the office before and thought there were other members on the Board who should have that honor, and that he would be glad to help in any way he could whoever received the appointment.

It was then moved by Trustees Rigby and Scully, that Robert Anderson be chairman. Mr. Anderson moved in amendment that Mr. Fraser be appointed chairman. Mr. Fraser declined in favor of Mr. Anderson and Mr. Anderson was declared elected.

C. Jamieson was appointed secretary for 1928 on motion by Trustees Rigby and Scully.

A communication was read from R. Buchanan, caretaker of the school, requesting an increase of salary. The present salary is $900.00 and Mr. Buchanan thought in view of the fact that it was a position requiring full time that the salary should be increased to $20.00 a week.

An application was received from F. B. McAdam for the position of school attendance office and on motion by Trustees Scully and Roche he received the appointment at a salary of $25.00.

On motion of Trustees Roche and Fraser the following accounts were passed:

R. J. McCutcheon, welding school seat, $1.50; W. C. Hildred, entrance fees and guarantee fund, $7.

Principal P. Yuill addressed the Board in regard to the art exhibit under the auspices of the school to be held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, the receipts of which are for the purpose of purchasing pictures for the school. Mr. Yuill asked that the Board give them some help in getting these pictures framed, as the number purchased will depend on the amount of proceeds from the exhibit. It was moved by Trustees Fraser and Scully that the matter be left over until the next meeting for more definite information.

It was moved by Trustees Roche and Scully, that the secretary-treasurer be bonded for 1928 for the same amount as 1927 ($1,000.00) the bond to be procured from the same bond company as last year.

After discussion on the condition of the school yard, Trustees Roche and Jamieson were appointed a committee for 1928 to look after school repairs and keeping up the school yard, on motion by Trustees Rigby and Scully.

Voice of the People

ABOUT THE NEW SERIAL

To the Editor:

Sir.—I am a patron of The Examiner, but I want to beg of you to have a little talk. I have been pained as I read our daily paper. It is sad enough to read of tragic occurrences, but when they are encouraged by the trash of such as the Regent Fox News of the gay and tragic life of the Canary Murder case, to be handed out to the minds of our young men and women of the country, it is too much. The comment of clean-minded people is: What are we going to end up in? No wonder our jails and prisons and asylums are full because of the dope that is poured into the minds of our young people. My young son saw the ad. on page nine, but my pained mind could not bear to let him see the story. I maintain it is scandalous and, if continued, I will refuse to continue the issues any longer. When it is a local paper, it is not supposed to be filled with dime novels.

Sincerely,
A SUBSCRIBER

P.S.—Even my boarder from Scotland said it would not be allowed at home.

Editor's Note:

It is not customary to reply to anonymous letters or to print them in The Examiner, but when an attack is made on The Examiner, we do not object to giving it publicity.

It is unfair at this stage to judge the new serial story. There is absolutely nothing in this story to call forth such a reprimand as the above letter, and the letter is doubly unfair since the writer could not have possibly read the entire story. The Examiner is running it at the same time as hundreds of other newspapers, and only a few in each newspaper office have had the opportunity to read the succeeding installments. We wish to assure readers that this serial story is not calculated to hurt the minds of even young people.

The objection that such stories would not be allowed in the Old Country is based on misapprehension, since there are no more sensational stories published in the world than in the Old Country newspapers and magazines.

RE GHOSTS.

To The Editor of The Examiner
Dear Sir:

Some fifty years ago Mr. A. P. Pousette rented the farm house in the present Nicholls Park and employed me to do carpenter work in it. One day I had to leave it for material when a young woman cleaning there told me the house was haunted and dared not stop alone. She said that ghosts had been seen wandering around. I told her I did not believe such nonsense, but she did and went off and left the work. I told Mr. Pousette about the ghosts and he said they did not like lawyers and would not trouble him. Two days later I went before dark to get a rough fire board to replace it with something more neat. When I reached the veranda I heard a strange noise in the house. I unlocked the front door and in the dark moved crates of furniture and found the racket came from behind the board I wanted. I struck a match and looked over the top, when the thing blew in my face and blew the light out. I then got a club and beat at the noise. I took a bunch of wiggling stuff to the light outside and found it was five night hawks, so heavy that they had broken down the nest. It was the mother bird that had blown out the light. I could tell more similar stories to show there is nothing in most ghost stories if investigated. A mouse caught in a trap by his tail and going down stairs made a splendid story; a rat caught in the wall and screaching one night was stopped by a good thump on the plaster.

Yours truly,
E. COURTNEY.

PREMIER DENIES CABINET RUMOR

No Change Planned, Says Ferguson, When Stories Told Him.

NOT JUSTIFIED.

TORONTO, Jan. 20. — Honors for persistency upon the point of pending changes in the Ferguson Cabinet so far remain even between the local evening press and Premier Ferguson. Reports of the resignation of Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey met emphatic denial on Wednesday. Yesterday the same journal returned with a story of the projected transfer of Hon. John S. Martin to the portfolio of education, and the elevation of Col. Tom Kennedy, M.P.P. for Peel, to fill the breach thus created. Premier Ferguson, however, countered this rumor as determinedly as its predecessor, denying that there was any basis for it in fact.

"Like the other," he said, "it is made out of whole cloth. While he is about it the writer might just as well tell me the date of my own resignation."

The Premier declared comprehensively that there was no question of Cabinet reorganization in the air. It had never been suggested or contemplated, he said, adding humorously that he would fail to see the justification for any change in the personnel of the present Government.

GRACE CHURCH HAD GOOD YEAR

SOCIETIES PROSPEROUS.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 20.—There has probably not been a more successful year in the history of Grace Presbyterian church than was reported at the annual meeting held in the church on Tuesday afternoon, January 17, the pastor, Rev. John Riddell, presiding.

Optimism was the key-note of the large gathering, the congregation being well represented by both men and women, indicating that interest in the activities and welfare of the church is not a mere matter of form but is deeply rooted in the hearts of its people.

The pastor's personal report of the year's work was most comprehensive, covering visitations among his people, an increased number of communicants enrolled on the church register, baptisms, marriages, etc., and the record of the twelve months, as presented by church officials, and representatives of the various organizations, showed progress, faithful service, and a keen desire to fulfill the duties assigned, while finances are in a very satisfactory condition.

W. T. A. Deyell reported for the Sunday school, in the absence of the treasurer, George McKnight, who is at present attending the O.A.C. at Guelph. The school has been growing rapidly in recent months, and is a most flourishing branch of the church's activities.

The Women's League, which embraces in its membership practically all the women connected with the church, had a lengthy statement of work accomplished successfully, the financial result netting $1,325.00. While a considerable sum has been expended on worthy objects through the year, there is still a substantial balance in the bank. The treasurer, Mrs. J. R. Eakins, reported for this organization.

The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary could also look back upon a year of useful and growing activity, its allocation of $100.00 having been more than met, and the Christian Endeavor Society, which was organized in the fall months, with Miss Phyllis Kidd as President, has a large attendance each week, a sustained interest in its varied program, and a bright outlook for future undertakings.

W. T. A. Deyell presented the financial report for the church, its items and sum total being quite satisfactory. The election of officers for the year resulted as follows:

Congregation Secretary— Charles Thorndyke.

Financial Secretary—H. R. Armstrong.

Treasurer—W. T. A. Deyell.

WINTER SCHOOL GREAT SUCCESS

United Church Course at Cobourg Attracts 125 Workers.

STUDYING LEADERSHIP.

BAILIEBORO, January 20. — The seventh annual winter school of the Bay of Quinte Conference came to a close at Trinity Church, Cobourg, on Sunday evening.

The classes were largely attended this year, as there were approximately one hundred and twenty five members registered, and a most interesting week was enjoyed by the members of the school.

Miss Semmons, of Toronto, was in charge of the children's division, Unit 1, and also of the C.G.I.T. group. Rev. J. E. Beckel was leader of the C.S. E.T. group, while Rev. Frank Lankford and Rev. Manson Doyle dealt with materials and methods in the adult or general course in teacher training classes. Rev. H. B. Neal, of Wooler, was in charge of the training in the devotional and worship life. Rev. Mr. Washington, of Fenelon Falls, conducted the morning vespers during the week, and Rev. George A. Brown, of Kingston, the evening vespers. Rev. SUB. CREW DROWNED NOT ASPHYXIATED

Doctor Says Autopsy Reveals Water and Oil in Lungs.

BOSTON, Jan. 20. — The 32 men whose bodies were recovered from the sunken submarine S-4 died of slow drowning, the naval court of inquiry investigating the S-4 disaster was informed yesterday. Dr. George B. McGrath, medical examiner of Suffolk County, presented to the court the results of autopsies performed on several of the bodies as well as blood tests made in three instances.

The latter tests, the medical examiner said, revealed no carbon monoxide or chlorine gas in the blood, while the carbon dioxide content with "within limits normal after death."

In support of his finding that death by drowning had been slow or gradual, Dr. McGrath said he had found the lungs of eight bodies on which autopsies were performed filled with water and oil, and a large quantity of water also in the chest cavities. The presence of water in the chest cavities, he said, indicated that a mixture of air and water had been breathed for some time before death.

ALTER RULES FOR BEER SALE

Brewers Confer With Liquor Control Board To Discuss Changes.

SALE BY BOTTLE ONLY.

TORONTO, Jan. 20. — Brewery interests of Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba spent yesterday morning in conference in the quarters of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, and immediately thereafter took the burden of their deliberations to Chairman Hanna and his colleagues of the Liquor Control Board. The result was an agreement between the brewers and the government commissioners to abolish the sale of beer by the half and quarter barrels and also the working out of a revised plan of operation for the brewery warehouses of the province, with a view to preventing discrimination against or in favor of the handling of any particular brand of beer.

The conference is thus regarded as having had a twofold effect of utmost importance. In the elimination of sale by the half and quarter barrel, and the consequent restriction of it to bottles, an important step is believed to have been taken in checking illegal sale in hotels. In the revision of the present system of brewery warehouses an important step is believed to have been taken in ironing out dissatisfaction which has existed amongst some brewers over the treatment which these establishments have been according their product.

Between 60 and 70 brewers attended the meeting, which reached a substantial accord in its views. This accord was afterwards shared by Chairman Hanna and his co-commissioners when matters were discussed with them.

Will Thwart Law Breakers.

The difficulties in regard to sale with which the brewers have been contending were principally concerned with the quarter and half-barrel units. These kegs were declared to be finding their way into the hands of law violators, and particularly to be convenient for hotels to connect to their bar taps if they should desire to break the law. There was general agreement, accordingly, upon the proposal to limit sale in the future to beer by the bottle.

The case with regard to the brewery warehouses was one wihch has been vexing both the brewers and the Liquor Control Board. The plan in the past has been for sufficient brewers to associate themselves together so that the expenses of a warehouse could be met, the minimum number necessary being four. The warehouse is then opened, the Government appointing an inspector to supervise its sales and the breweries concerned nominating their own representative to handle the clerical and other labors. The result of this system—an account of which complaint has developed, has been that certain breweries have obtained preponderance in the warehouses. It has even been claimed that influences have been brought to bear upon the salesmen there to induce them to discriminate against certain brands and in favor of others.

Commission Will Control.

The remedy which is being adopted for this situation is to have the warehouse staffs placed under the control of the Liquor Commission. In future the general manager of the brewery warehouses for the Control Board will have full power to hire or discharge not only the Government inspectors there, but also the general staff which handle the goods.

In the course of yesterday's discussion the issue of beer-by-the-glass was raised. The overwhelming consensus of opinion amongst the brewers was declaredly opposed to it on the grounds that nothing which savored of the return of the bar was desired. Sale by the bottle at tables, as in Quebec Province, was generally favored as the trend which the brewers would like to see future legislation follow.

PONTYPOOL Y.P.L. ATTENDANCE GOOD

Contest Serves to Bring Out Larger Number Than Usual.

PONTYPOOL, Jan. 20.—The Young People's League held their regular meeting in the basement of the United Church on Thursday evening, the president, Miss Marvin, in the chair. The meeting was under the leadership of the missionary vice-president, M. E. Hinton, who gave an interesting talk on Missionary Work.

Devotional exercises were taken by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Boomhour. Curent events were looked after by Miss. Mable Kellar in a very capable manner The amusement at the conclusion was a peanut contest with Mrs. George Wilder in charge. The winners were J. Brown and Miss M. Kellar, the prize being a nice box of writing paper.

The largest turnout of the season was present, probably due to the contest which was organized at the last meeting. There are two teams, namely, the Orange group, under J. Payne, and the White group, under M. E. Hinton. The contest is to last for four meetings, and the losing team has to treat the winners to a sleigh drive to Lotus. Each member present at League meeting counts one point for his group. Results for this meeting were for the Orange group 18 points, and the White group 11 points. The next meeting will be under the leadership of the Citizenship Department, with J. Payne in charge.

Manvers District L.O.L. held its annual meeting in the Orange Hall on Tuesday afternoon, with the District Master, Bro. Offa Staples, in the chair A goodly number were present and all the lodges were represented with one exception. County Lodge was represented by Bros. Nat. Belch and Bro. Stewart Fallis. The Grand Organizer was expected to be present, but owing to some misunderstanding did not arrive until the conclusion of the meeting. It was decided to have an Orange picnic in the centre of the township during the summer the same to be arranged for at the semi-annual meeting. A donation was granted to the True Blue and Orange Orphanage and some discourse took place in regard to Regulation 17, but no action was taken. The following officers were elected and installed by P.D.M. Hilton Johnston, 64, Janetville.

W.D.M.—Bro. Bert Richardson, 82.
D.D.M.—Bro. Ed. Bray, 1022.
Chaplain—Bro. W. Carron, 64.
Rec.-Sec.—Bro. Alvine McTill, 279.
Treasurer—Bro. Wm. Brown, 1022.
Lecturers—Bros. P. M. Richardson, 82; Bro. C. McNeil, 64.
Director of Ceremonies—Bro. J. Payne, 82.

It was decided to have the next annual meeting in Bethany. The members of L.O.L. 82 prepared a good lunch for the visiting brethren, consisting of crackers, cheese, cake, pie, tarts, coffee, etc., which was enjoyed by all.

Mr. H. M. Richardson is confined to his home, seriously ill, but is progressing as well as can be expected.

Mr. James Masters, who has been ill is practically recovered again. His son, Mr. Harold Masters, formerly of here and now of the North West, is visiting him.

Mrs. E. Carscadden celebrated her 83rd birthday last week and her many friends wish her good health to enjoy many more of them.

I.O.O.F. No. 296 is holding its annual installation of officers on Friday, December 20th, when the District Deputy and his team of Peterborough will be present.

GENERAL CONTEST RULES

How to Enter

1. The contest is open to everyone except:
   (a) Employees of The Peterborough Examiner, Ltd., or their immediate family.
   (b) Prize-winners in any similar contest who have won any of the major prizes.

2. Additional puzzle-charts may be obtained free by writing to the Contest Department or by calling at The Examiner Office.

3. Every figure in the puzzle is complete and entirely free from tricks or illusions. If any contestant is in doubt about any of the figures, send in the chart with the figures marked and the Contest Department will gladly give a ruling on the figure.

4. When you have solved the puzzle, fill in completely the solution blank, which must be accompanied by a remittance for at least a six months' subscription at the regular rates to The Evening Examiner. (See subscription rates.) See also the prize-list and note how the value of your prize is increased by paying for a year's subscription and by getting subscriptions from your friends. Renewal subscriptions, or subscriptions in arrears, if paid during contest period, count the same as new subscriptions and will be extended from the present expiry date, but not more than $15.00 will be received on any one solution or subscription.

5. In order that subscribers who pay carrier boys weekly may participate in this contest, books of tickets containing 22 weekly tickets for $3.00, or 44 for $6.00, will be sold. These remittances must be made direct to the Contest Department with your solution. Otherwise it cannot be registered. Each ticket is valued at 15c and will be redeemed from the carrier boy at that price.

6. Readers who give their subscription to some other contestant and later want to send in an answer themselves, may do so providing they fill in the coupon, giving the name of the person they paid their subscription to and the amount paid. No further payment is necessary.

7. The contest will close on March 15, 1928, but send in your solution as soon as possible as we are offering special prizes for the first correct solutions. (See full details under "Special Prizes.") There is nothing gained by holding back your answer once you have solved the puzzle, as a contestant may make several remittances on any answer sent in while the contest lasts up to a total amount of $15.00.

8. Contestants may send in a different answer to the puzzle with each remittance, but if one of your answers is correct the money sent in on your other answers will not increase the total value of your prize, and not more than one regular prize will be paid to one family.

9. Everyone has an equal chance. You can win the first prize and extra cash for only a six months' subscription, but note how the value of the first five prizes increases if you send in more money. Aim to win the maximum Grand Prize. The Evening Examiner is now recognized as the leading daily in Peterborough district and surrounding counties and no difficulty should be found in getting your friends or neighbors to subscribe for it.

10. Contestants who remit by mail or pay at the office should see that these remittances and answers are made on a proper contest coupon to ensure them reaching the Contest Department.

11. If the correct answer is not sent in by any contestant the prizes will be awarded for the nearest correct solutions. In the event of a tie a second puzzle will be presented which will be as practicable and solvable as the first. Only those tieing will be permitted to solve the second puzzle. Should two or more persons be tied in the second puzzle the prizes will be divided equally among those tieing. No cash will be accepted on the second puzzle.

12. In entering the contest, contestants agree to abide by the rules of the contest and to accept the decision of the judges as final. The Contest Department reserve the right to alter and amend its rules if necessary for the protection of contestants or The Peterborough Examiner. It also reserves the right to refund any subscriptions and to disqualify any contestants whom they consider should not be in the contest. Contestants are assured of the same impartial treatment which characterizes The Examiner in all its dealings.

THE PROBLEM

The problem is to add together all the figures shown above, which, when added together, represent the total number of tons that the Lift Lock weighs.

The puzzle is entirely free from tricks or illusions, every figure is complete and stands alone. The figures range from two to nine. There are no ones (1) or ciphers (0) in the puzzle. The sixes are curved, while the stem of the nines are straight.

We wish it clearly understood that every figure can be plainly seen. There is nothing hidden in the trees or shadows, but the problem of adding these is a real test of accuracy.

Remember, each figure is added separately. For example, 9777 is counted 9 plus 7 plus 7 plus 7, or, in other words, simply add them as if each figure stood one above the other in a single column.

REMEMBER, NO ONE KNOWS THE CORRECT ANSWER UNTIL THE CONTEST CLOSES

To ensure this we had Mr. E. M. Elliott, County Treasurer, and Mr. Frank Adams, City Treasurer, each erase one or more figures from the original drawing, which they carefully noted and sealed in an envelope and gave to the manager of the Royal Bank for safe keeping until the contest closes.

A TIP ON HOW TO WIN

Take a pencil and put down the numbers as you stroke them out, then add them up. Some suggest that you cut the chart into dozens of pieces, then check them from all sides; or if you wish, try blotting them out with colored ink or pencil. Others think the best way is to pick out all the twos, threes, fours, etc. Any they miss the first time they find later. Or suppose you try taking a combination of figures which, when added together, makes a total of ten. For example, 5 and 3 and 2 make 10. Tens are not only easily added together, but there is less danger of making a mistake.

Important Points to Remember

1. Everyone has the same opportunity. A person sending in only $3.00 in subscriptions has the same chance of winning the first prize as a person sending in more money. The advantage of sending in more money is to increase the value of the first five prizes.

2. This is a contest for Central Ontario district, or to any subscriber of The Examiner, no matter where he resides.

3. Don't forget to answer all the necessary questions on the solution blank.

4. If you collect a subscription from a friend or neighbour, that person can also submit an answer to the puzzle without further payment.

THE JUDGES

In order that each Contestant shall have fair and impartial treatment, we have arranged with Mr. Roland Denne, Mayor of the City and Alderman Nagel Phelan to act as judges for the contest. Any complaints in this connection will be referred to these judges whose decision will be absolutely final.

The Story Thus Far.

When the strangled body of Margaret Odell, known to Broadway as the "Canary," was found in her apartment, New York found itself confronted with one of the most baffling murders in its history. Vance, student of psychology and of crime, is taken to the apartment by Markham. The rooms are violently disordered. The medical examiner gives it as his opinion that the murder was committed about 11:30 the night preceding.

CHAPTER V.

"I guess that's all, doc," Heath decided. "I'll get the body to the mortuary right away. Let's have the postmortem as soon as you can."

"You'll get a report in the morning." And despite his apparent eagerness to be off, Doctor Doremus stepped into the bedroom and shook hands with Heath and Markham and Inspector Moran before he hurried out.

Heath followed him to the door, and I heard him direct the officer outside to telephone the department of public welfare to send an ambulance at once for the girl's body.

"Such detachment!" Vance said to Markham. "Here are you stewing most distressingly over the passing of one damsel fair and frail, and that blithe medicus is worrying only over a sluggish liver brought on by early rising."

"What has he to be upset over?" complained Markham. "The newspapers are not riding him with spurs . . . And by the way, what was the point of your questions about the torn dress?"

Vance lazily inspected the tip of his cigaret.

"Consider," he said. "The lady was evidently taken by surprise; for, had there been a struggle beforehand, she would not have been strangled from behind while sitting down. Therefore her gown and corsage were undoubtedly intact at the time she was seized. But—despite the conclusion of your dashing Paracelsus—the damage to her toilet was not of a nature that could have been self-inflicted in her struggle for air. If she had felt the constriction of the gown across her breast, she would have snatched the bodice itself by putting her fingers inside the band. But, if you noticed, her bodice was intact; the only thing that had been torn was the deep lace flounce on the outside; and it had been torn, or rather ripped, by a strong lateral pull; whereas, in the circumstances, any wrench on her part would have been downward or outward."

Inspector Moran was listening intently, but Heath seemed restless and impatient; apparently he regarded the torn gown as irrelevant to the simple main issue.

"Moreover," Vance went on; "there is the corsage. If she herself had torn it off while being strangled, it would doubtless have fallen to the floor; for, remember, she offered considerable resistance. Her body was twisted sidewise; her knee was drawn up, and one slipper had been kicked off.

"Now, no bunch of silken posies is going to remain in a lady's lap during such a commotion. Even when ladies sit still, their gloves and hand-bags and handkerchiefs and programs and serviettes are forever sliding off their laps on to the floor, don't y' know."

"But if your argument's correct," protested Markham, "then the tearing of the lace and the snatching off of the corsage could have been done only after she was dead. And I can't see any object in such senseless vandalism."

"Neither can I," sighed Vance. "It's all devilish queer."

Heath looked at him sharply. "That's the second time you've said that. But there's nothing what you'd call queer about this mess. It is a straight-away case." He spoke with an overtone of insistence, like a man arguing against his own insecurity of opinion. "The dress might've been torn almost any time," he went on stubbornly. "And the flower might've got caught in the lace of her skirt so it couldn't roll off."

"And how would you explain the jewel-case, Sergeant?" asked Vance.

"Well, the fellow might've tried the poker, and then, finding it wouldn't work, used his jimmy."

"If he had the efficient jimmy," countered Vance, "why did he go to the trouble of bringing the silly poker from the living-room?"

The Sergeant shook his head perplexedly.

"You never can tell why some of these crooks act the way they do."

"Tut, tut!" Vance chided him. "There should be no such word as 'never' in the bright lexicon of detecting."

Heath regarded him sharply. "Was there anything else that struck you as queer?" His subtle doubts were welling up again.

"Well, there's the lamp on the table in the other room."

We were standing near the archway between the two rooms, and Heath turned quickly and looked blankly at the fallen lamp.

"I don't see anything queer about that."

"It has been upset—eh, what?' suggested Vance.

"What if it has?" Heath was frankly puzzled. "Damn near everything in this apartment has been knocked crooked."

"Ah! But there's a reason for most of the other things having been disturbed—like the drawers and pigeonholes and closets and vases. They all indicate a search; they're consistent with a raid for loot. But that lamp, now, d' ye see, doesn't fit into the picture. It's a false note. It was standing on the opposite end of the table to where the murder was committed, at least five feet away; and it couldn't possibly have been knocked over in the struggle. . . . No, it won't do. It's got no business being upset, any more than that pretty mirror over the gatelegged table has any business being broken. That's why it's queer."

"What about those chairs and the little table?" asked Heath, pointing to two small gilded chairs which had been overturned, and a fragile tip-table that lay on its side near the piano.

"Oh, they fit into the ensemble," returned Vance. "They're all light pieces of furniture which could easily have been knocked over or thrown aside, by the hasty gentleman who rifled these rooms."

"The lamp might have been knocked over in the same way," argued Heath.

Vance shook his head. "Not tenable, Sergeant. It has a solid bronze base and isn't at all top-heavy; and being set well back on the table, it wasn't in any one's way. . . That lamp was upset deliberately."

The sergeant was silent for a while. Experience had taught him not to underestimate Vance's observations; and, I must confess, as I looked at the lamp lying on its side on the end of the library-table, well removed from any of the other disordered objects in the room, Vance's argument seemed to possess considerable force. I tried hard to fit it into a hasty reconstruction of the crime, but was utterly unable to do so.

Vance pointed with his cigaret toward the clothes-closet in the living-room. This closet was alongside of the foyer, in the corner near the Boule cabinet, directly opposite to the end of the davenport.

"You might let your mind dally a moment with the condition of that clothes-press," suggested Vance carelessly. "You will note that, though the door's ajar, the contents have not been touched. And it's about the only area in the apartment that hasn't been disturbed."

Heath walked over and looked into the closet.

"Well, anyway, I'll admit that's queer," he finally conceded.

Vance had followed him indolently, and stood gazing over his shoulder.

"And my word!" he exclaimed suddenly. "The key's on the inside of the lock. Fancy that, now! One can't lock a closet door with the key on the inside—can one, sergeant?"

"The key may not mean anything," Heath observed hopefully. "Maybe the door was never locked. Anyhow, we'll find out about that pretty soon. I'm holding the maid outside, and I'm going to have her on the carpet as soon as the captain finishes his job here."

He turned to Dubois, who, having completed his search for fingerprints in the bedroom, was now inspecting the piano.

"Any luck yet?"

The captain shook his head.

"Gloves," he answered succinctly.

"Same here," supplemented Bellamy gruffly, on his knees before the escritoire.

Vance, with a sardonic smile, turned and walked to the window, where he stood looking out and smoking placidly, as if his entire interest in the case had evaporated.

At this moment the door from the main hall opened, and a short thin little man, with gray hair and a scraggly gray beard, stepped inside and stood blinking against the vivid sunlight.

"Good morning, Professor," Heath greeted the newcomer. "Glad to see you. I've got something nifty, right in your line."

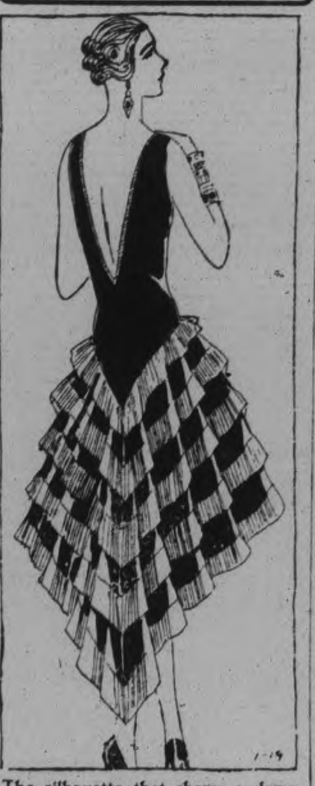
DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



The silhouette that shows a downward sag at the back is emphasized in this frock of taffeta and tulle with skirt, bodice and neckline cut in a long point at the back.

Since uneven hemlines have come into general fashion there seems to be no rule as to the exact angle that the unevenness should take.

Some skirts sag at both sides, some at one side only. A very new frock I saw the other day had drapery that was considerably longer at the front than anywhere else. But usually the downward droop is at the back and the effect is perhaps smartest when the sagging lines are repeated in the beltline and decolletage as well.

The women who first followed this fashion of the back droop were quite courageous because most of us still retain the old prejudice—which flourished in the days of the straight front and the front dip waistline—that the lines of a frock should all hang in just the opposite direction.

In keeping with this general backward sagging effect evening frocks are frequently cut with bodice fairly high at front and in a deep U line at the back. Sometimes there is a broad shallow U at front and a deeper U at the back.

In the new frocks necklines are decidedly varied. The broad U's are spoken of frequently for the coming season, but the V neckline both broad and narrow persists, and so does the square neckline and the one-sided effect with a diagonal line that makes the decolletage lower at one side than the other.

Bowknots have come into prominence as a decorative motive recently and applied bowknots of ribbon are seen on some of the more picturesque evening frocks. Small bows of ribbon are also sometimes used by way of decoration for the top of shoulder straps of evening frocks and sometimes there is a small bow of ribbon of the dress material at the point of the V neckline.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Miss Sutton, the day nurse, returning to duty the next morning at seven, bustled starchily into Faith's room, bringing in with her a faint but unmistakable odor of coffee and bacon and eggs. Hating herself for her interest in food, Faith could not keep her nostrils from twitching.

"Well, well, and how are we this fine morning?" Miss Sutton carolled cheerfully. "It's a wonderful day out—cold and still and sunshiny. I see by your chart that you slept well last night. Feel like eating a nice, hot breakfast?"

"Just a cup of coffee," she murmured faintly. She would not acknowledge even to herself that she was hungry.

But when the nurse, smiling broadly, deposited a tray of tempting, deliciously odorous food on the bedside table, Faith weakened, reached shamefacedly for a triangle of crisp, brown toast, glistening with melted butter.

"Doctor's orders are for you to eat every bit of this lovely breakfast," Miss Sutton encouraged her. "See? A beautiful coddled egg, a strip of curly, crackly bacon, a pot of real French-drip coffee and a glass of pure orange juice. Um-m! Isn't it nice to be an invalid? Now, I'll just leave you for a few minutes while you eat. Put on your light if you want anything."

Faith was childishly glad to be alone, for the warped pride of the sick would have kept her from eating if she had been watched. She was greedily scraping the egg-cup for the last delicious trace of egg when the door opened softly.

"Alone, Faith?" George called guardedly after he had closed the door.

"Oh!" she gasped, her face lighting up with pleasure and relief. "You're the one person I most wanted to see, George. Come close. I want to tell you something. I need your help."

He took her outstretched hand and chafed it gently. "Still got amnesia, honey?" he chuckled, his little black eyes very kind and fond.

"Yes, but I've got to be cured, I suppose," she confessed, smiling reluctantly. Somehow, with George, she did not feel so utterly loathesome as she had considered herself the day before. "I want to tell you why I ran away as I did. It was all a mistake, a horrible, ghastly mistake, due to my insane jealousy and suspicion. Oh, George, I'm not fit to live!"

"Steady, honey!" he urged, kissing the tips of her fingers. "I don't suppose any of us is fit to live, if the truth were known. But we've got to carry on and make the best of ourselves."

She told him then, in quick, whispered gasps, the story of her unfounded jealousy, the overheard conversation between Cherry and Bob, her determination to commit suicide, the reasons why she had not done so, and, finally, the explanation of that apparently damning conversation between Bob and her sister.

"And they think I'm good, George! I—so base, so unworthy!" she groaned. "Yesterday I hated myself so I didn't want to live, but I suppose I'll have to. But how can I get out of this 'amnesia' tangle?"

"Don't worry!" George begged. "I'll fix it, so that even the doctor will be completely taken in. No, I won't tell you how. You'll know, all right, as soon as I stage my stunt!"

Lyrics of Life - By Douglas Malloch

BEFORE THE DAWN

You will not find content by never knowing
An hour of ill:
The fire seems brightest when the wind is blowing,
The night is chill;
And every road of life that's worth the going
Lies up a hill.

You will not find your faith in tales you borrow
From other men,
For you must have your hurt, and your own sorrow,
And hear God then
Whisper His promise of a great Tomorrow
And joy again.

You will not find the path that leads to heaven
A sunlit lawn,
Nor know the truth of days till all the seven
Have come and gone.
The sun must sink, the clock must strike eleven,
Before the dawn.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

SATURDAY, JANUARY 21, 1928

While this is not an important day in planetary direction, according to astrology, the aspects are fairly good.

One may not trust one's judgment under this sway which makes for unwise optimism. Plans made today should not be too firmly relied on.

Writers and editors again are subject to the most promising planetary rule. Large profits for newspapers and magazines are indicated.

A period of slack interest in motion pictures is forecast but this will be followed by renewed enthusiasm.

Land investments are subject to the best influences of the stars and the seers warn against defection of capital to speculative channels.

The aged now should benefit and they should find comfort in evidence of a reaction toward oldtime standard of domestic life.

Under this rule a political leader of great sagacity may be recognized, but he will seek nothing for himself.

The West is to exercise unusual power in the coming national campaign when sensational incidents will mark conventions and elections.

Women may take comfort in the prophecy that they are to gain the confidence of the public in large enterprises which they will initiate.

One of the reactionaries among women will introduce old-time domestic arts, it is prognosticated.

Again women will practice proficiency with the needle and they will, also, accept old-time modes that are modest.

Housing conditions affecting the poor will be widely discussed, it is forecast, and there will be unusual suffering among the poor.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of prosperity in which elderly persons contribute.

Children born under this sign probably will be fond of books and will have a scientific trend of mind. Many subjects of this sign are chemists.

"ALIMONY CLUB" IS SENT TO NEW JAIL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The "Alimony Club" composed of about 30 men who would rather languish behind prison walls than fulfill court decrees, has been moved to new, but not better, quarter. The old Ludlow street jail, which has been its headquarters for 59 years, is being torn down. Some time ago it was discovered that the "guests" were served by a staff of 22 people, including four cooks, a physician and a laundress.

The inmates were not locked in their cells except at night. They had theatrical entertainments and a radio. They had rosebushes and dovecotes in the jail yard. They had service comparable to that of the best hotels. They had such a good time that they gave the warden a silver loving cup.

There is $5,764,386,844 in paper money in the United States.

"D'Ye Ken Hoo Tae Mak An Oatmeal MacAroon?"

MAGIC BAKING POWDER

'SCUSE the Scotch. It's the best we can do so far awa' frae the land o' cakes. But the word MacAroon in conjunction with Oatmeal, would make a Zulu wish to play the bagpipes. If Oatmeal MacAroons originated in Scotland, then it constitutes one more reason for admiring the versatile abilities of the Scottish people. The recipe is very simple—and, as might be expected—most economical!

1 tablespoon butter
1 cup white sugar
1 egg
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder
1 teaspoon vanilla
2½ cups rolled oats

Rub together butter, sugar, rolled oats, salt and baking powder, then drop in the egg unbeaten, add vanilla, mix well with wooden spoon. Drop mixture about the size of a hazelnut in buttered pans and bake 10 to 15 minutes.

GOLDEN WEDDING IS CELEBRATED

Mr. and Mrs. George Berry Entertain Family and Friends.

On Monday, Jan. 9th, the friends, relatives, and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. George Berry, 4th line, Cavan, gathered in the S.S. Hall at Centreville to celebrate with them the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding.

The hall was well filled by the time the guests of the evening arrived, and after Mr. Joseph Madill was appointed chairman for the evening, Mr. A. S. Hall and Mrs. O. B. Johnson brought Mr. and Mrs. Berry to the platform. An illuminated address was then read by Mr. W. W. Brown, and the presentation was made by Mr. H. A Earle and J. Isbister, while little Miss Phyllis Larmer presented Mrs. Berry with a beautiful bouquet of golden roses.

Mr. Berry was given a case of pipes and a gold-headed cane and Mrs. Berry an inscribed plate holding fifty golden dollars.

Mr. Berry, in spite of his eighty-five years rose to the occasion, and on behalf of his bride and himself, made a very feeling and suitable reply ending with a song—"The Irishman's Toast" rendered in a manner to be envied by many a younger man.

Speeches were made by the following gentlemen Rev. J. Riddle, G. A. Gillespie, R. Fair, W. T. Lucas, M.P., Jas. C. Campbell, A. J. Fallis, ex M.P.P., Thomas Donaldson, Robert Hooten, George Hooten and Dr. Berry.

An interesting item on the programme was a recitation by Mr. and Mrs. Berry's grand-daughter, little Miss Maureen Fisher. Miss Edith Deyell gave an excellent rendering of James W. Riley's—"The Girl I Love."

The musical numbers by Mr. Gauley and Dr. Berry were much enjoyed and Miss Viola White acquitted herself in her usual pleasing manner. Mr. Wilfred Johnson rendered "The Rosary" as a violin solo, and as his encore number played "Silver Threads Among the Gold" at the request of the bride.

At the close of the programme lunch was served to the two hundred or more who were present. Afterward the younger folk adjourned to the community hall where a couple of enjoyable hours were spent in music and dancing.

The address read as follows
"To Mr. and Mrs. George Berry, Centreville —

"We, your friends, relatives and neighbors are met here tonight to do you honor on this, the fiftieth anniversary of your wedding day.

"During your long residence in our midst, very many changes have taken place, not only in this immediate neighborhood, but in Canada and the world at large. You have rejoiced in seeing our vast Dominion advance year by year in population, in wealth, in prosperity and in national greatness. It is to men and women like yourselves honest, sturdy toilers of the field that much of the thanks for this commendable progress is due.

"Your excellent reputation as kind neighbors, successful farmers and loyal citizens is too well known to require any special mention. We are glad indeed to have this opportunity of meeting you and expressing our appreciation of the many kind acts you have performed, the helpful advice and counsel you have so cheerfully given, the ready word of sympathy spoken in times of sorrow and distress, during your long sojourn in our midst. We trust and hope that you may be spared to each other, to us and the neighborhood for many years to come.

"May the evening of your life here be happy and peaceful, and may you in the Heavenly Life receive that glorious reward promised to all faithful souls.

"Signed on behalf of all,
"H. A. EARLE."

ICE CUTTING TEN DAYS LATE

UNPLEASANT TASK.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 20—Ice-cutting on Attwooll & Sheppard's pond began on Thursday, January 19, ten days later than last year. The ice is of excellent quality but is only about twelve inches in thickness as compared with 16, 18 or even 20 inches in former seasons.

The men were wet through more than once on Thursday when the rain started, and their task was far from being a pleasant one for the initial day of work at the ice.

A number of farmers in the vicinity come in and cut the ice required at their respective home, while the supply lasts, in addition to the amount cut for local supply in private homes, hotels, restaurants, stores, etc.

DRINK WATER TO HELP WASH OUT KIDNEY POISON

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep you bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; make a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidneys trouble and backache.

MRS. EDWARDS PRESIDENT, ETC.

philanthropic, religious and educational work.

"One of the vital portions of the work is Canadianization, and I don't mean to Canadianize the other fellow, but ourselves. Many people think always in a provincial way. One of the great glories of this continent is the fact that on it we have two great Federations in the United States and Canada, and it is therefore important that we, each one of us, shall become citizens of all of Canada. What interests the Maritimes and British Columbia should also be of interest to us. In these days of wider communication afforded by the radio and the telegraph, a common meeting ground is the International Council of Women." Mrs. Wilsons went on to speak of her own experience at Geneva and to the realization there that, although we might not approve of a country like Germany in war time yet that disapproval did not necessarily mean that many of its women, such as encountered in the meetings, might not be charming and attractive and cultured, a realization that made for a broader international outlook.

Not a Feminist.

Repeating the feeling uttered by herself in younger days that the success of the Council was probably due to the fact that its members discussed its problems at home with their husbands, "a pronouncement that shows you that I am not a real feminist," Mrs. Wilson spoke of the idea advanced by Chesterton that women should not worry over a single vote when they could be empresses in their own homes, and the fact that parents wield such an enormous influence over their offspring.

"It is very hard for lads to go straight, because they are trying to tread the narrow path of virtue and still carve their own financial way in life." The study of such things as Citizenship and Equal Moral Standard, she declared, would necessarily broaden the outlook of any woman and make her a better parent.

An idea of the scope of the various committees was then outlined by Mrs. Wilson. Alluding to the Citizenship committee, she advanced the idea, which is being sponsored by one of the Councils, that Canada has arrived at a period in her history when her status has been sufficiently recognized to give her citizens, by right, a title to the word "Canadian," instead of being listed merely in the census, and in other ways.

"A weak spot in the Council and also in the feminine make-up is the fact that when we have passed a resolution we think we have finished with the matter, and a twenty-year-old resolution may often be used to excuse inactivity along the same lines. A resolution is only a beginning to the real work."

In connection with the work of the Mental Hygiene committee, reference was made to the long struggle before two conclusions were finally arrived at; "that there are mental defectives and that it is our duty to do something for them."

Speaking of the ameliorative legislation passed recently in Ontario in the way of the Mothers' Allowance and Workmen's Compensation Acts, the National president recommended further endeavor in having the Old Age Pension bills passed in the various provinces.

Work in the Conservation Committee was especially fitting for women, she thought, they being fitted by nature to protect life and conserve its resources. A consideration of the necessity of conserving our forests was urged, Mrs. Wilson speaking of the many tax-free communities in Europe, whose imposts are borne by the wooded areas in their vicinity which have been planted and tended through generations, and whose afforestation has been made a matter of immediate and constant concern.

Oil Pollution.

Another National committee of this type is the one devoted to efforts to prevent oil pollution, which has such a destructive effect on shipping, on bird life and even on the harbors where the waters are polluted by the excessive oil deposits from sea-going vessels. The coal supply of the country was another national affair, and the struggle to maintain the country's parks from private interests, "many of whose heads have their homes in Montreal," was another matter of interest.

In the Education committee, attention should be turned to the necessity of training more children for the soil and other types of labor, rather than encouraging them in pursuit of white collar jobs for which many were unfitted by mental capacity.

Regarding the committee on Equal moral standard, Mrs. Wilson said if the ideals of Sir Galahad and a proper sense of the sanctity of their own bodies were inculcated into the minds of the rising generation, especially of the boys she thought the commercialized traffic in women and children, which had become such a widespread menace, might be decreased.

She spoke of the necessity of repatriation of foreign-born girls residing in houses of ill-fame and referred to the quick clean up in vice conditions in Cuba, formerly one of the worst vice centres, after matters had been made uncomfortable by the police for those engaged in this loathsome business.

Adverting to a consideration of the finer aspects of the work of the Council the National president urged the necessity for support and cooperation in the work of the Committee and Fine and Applied Arts, and spoke of the efficacy of musical training for young children. "If beautiful music is in their hearts and in their homes, they will not so easily be fascinated by the vulgar modern songs."

Further efforts towards a decrease in infantile and maternal mortality, Canada ranking second highest in the world in figures concerning the latter," and I don't know why this should be, when we have such a beautiful country," training in Household Economics problems, and increased endeavor in solving Immigration questions, were also spoken of.

"The study of the Immigration question is a big subject. My own idea is that the theory is one thing and practice is another and it is up to us to see that these new comers who come to us shall have a friendly welcome because one ill-used family here can send back very damaging reports to the British Isles for instance and it is from the British Isles that we should try and get most of our new citizens for although we welcome other classes still we would like Canada to remain essentially British in outlook and ideas."

Playgrounds for the adolescent as well as for the very youthful child, were strongly recommended as a deterrent to vice. A study of the League of Nations work and aims was also strongly advised. A Town Planning Committee, to see that houses erected should be beautiful, rather than ugly, was another consideration. Mrs. Wilson concluded with the advice that the Local Councils should constantly worry their National convenors, so that the latter might be in a position to discover problems of different localities.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the speaker by Mrs. Edwards.

Routine Business.

Mrs. Edwards recommended to the Council members patronage of the picture "Roses of Picardy," to be presented at the Regent Theatre during the first four days of next week, under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League.

Votes of thanks occupied the attention of the meeting prior to the reception and service of tea which followed the business session. Sincere expressions of appreciation were accorded The Examiner, for reports and courtesies extended the Local Council, to the Y.W.C.A. for the use of the green room for monthly meetings and for kindness extended throughout the year, to the retiring officers and to those who helped in any way with the entertainment yesterday, and also to Mrs. F. A. Hodgson, who is leaving the city shortly, and who has been a faithful member of the council.

Mrs. Edwards alluded to the fact that Mrs. Hodgson had always done everything possible to keep the posters of the city at a high standard; also to her occupation of a unique position, in being for many years in charge of a business which made her the only woman proprietor of a poster plant in the Dominion.

STONE COMMITTED ON FRAUD CHARGES

Tales Told of Coming Fortune Recounted in St. Thomas Court.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Jan. 20.—Arthur T. Stone, of Madoc, Ont., described as the general manager of the Art Stone Company, of Belleville and Detroit, was committed yesterday by Magistrate Maxwell, to stand trial on five charges of obtaining money by false pretence, with intent to defraud. Preliminary hearings were held on two of the charges, those of Ernest Egley, local railroader, who has charged Stone with obtaining $200 from him in June of last year, and Mrs. Maude Dilts, wife of Howard Dilts, who invested $100. In the others, Stone waived preliminary examination through his counsel, Hugh Cameron.

Witnesses claim Stone had said that he had orders for 10,000 cases of hand cleaner from the F. W. Woolworth Co., Limited, and that on that order alone his commission was $2,100. Howard Dilts, in telling the court how he purchased two shares in the Stone Company in November, 1926, said that the defendant painted his industrial venture in glowing colors, going so far as to declare that he intended holding a big picnic of the shareholders at Port Stanley in August of last year, and refunding the shareholders all the money they had invested. They were to retain their stock holdings in the company. Dilts stated Stone had said he had 214 acres of stone deposits in Belleville.

Mrs. Egley said that she had heard the defendant say he had orders for his product from the F. W. Woolworth Co., Limited, the T. Eaton Co., and the Robert Simpson Company. She understood the orders were for stone chips for bulb planting and for hand cleaners and cleansers.

William J. Phelan of Toronto, buyer for the F. W. Woolworth Company, testified that his company had purchased about three tons of crystal rock through the defendant at a total cost of $63.70. Mr. Phelan deposed that other orders, about three, had been given for crystal rock, but had been returned by Mr. Stone, with the explanation that he was unable to fill them.

Edward W. Knowlton, of the T. Eaton Company, Toronto, said that he knew nothing about the Art Stone Company. There were records on file of orders having been given to the company for Stone products.

Thomas A. Wilson, assistant controller of the Robert Simpson Company, said that the company had no dealings of any kind with Stone or the Art Stone Company. Herman Ponsford, president of the Ponsford Construction Company, denied that any order had been placed with Stone or his company.

A feature of the evidence remarked upon by Magistrate Maxwell, in committing Stone for trial, was that the stock was sold for three different prices per share, although the stock certificates issued place the par value of each share at $100. Mr. Egley testified that he paid $100 a share for his stock; Mr. Dilts said he bought two shares for $100 in November, 1926, and that when Mr. Stone returned to his home on July 18, he was offered five shares for $100.

$500,000 COSTS IN $120,000 CASE

Privy Council Decides It After Seventeen Years' Litigation.

LEADING MEN DEAD.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 20.— That the way of the litigant is long, hard and expensive was never better proven than by the judgment of the Privy Council yesterday condemning the Cedars' Rapids Manufacturing and Power Company to pay the de'Beujeu estate $120,000 and all costs for certain water rights and one island in the St. Lawrence, 28 miles west of Montreal, which form part of the power development but has aided in lighting the city since 1915.

The cases lasted 17 years minus five days, having opened January 24th, 1911. For 15 years, the value of land has ceased to be the real basis of the struggle. Costs were the true issue, the case ends with law expenses estimated at almost a half million dollars. And while the matter has been in process of adjudication and re-adjudication, four of the main figures linked with it died—Sir Alexandre Lacoste, who was the representative of the estate; Francois De'Sales Bastein, K.C., umpire of the first arbitration board; Hon. Louis Telier, umpire on the second arbitration board, and Percival W. St. Georges, C.E., the company arbitrator.

The first offer for the property was $4,700. That mounted to $173,000 later in the case, then came down to $120,000, the final award. Two arbitration boards sat, one holding sessions for three and a half years. There was one appeal to the Superior Court, one to the Court of Appeals, two to the Supreme Court and two to the Privy Council.

CAIRO LIKES SHAKESPEARE.

Shakespeare in English was a success in Cairo, Egypt, where the government back a season of plays by the Bard recently. The government had guaranteed gross receipts of $21,500, but $630 in excess of this was taken in at the Opera House box office. Crowded houses were the rule, and when "Hamlet" and "Othello" were given, extra seats had to be arranged. Not only did the English patronize the productions, but at some performances half the audiences were Egyptians. They especially enjoyed "Hamlet," and frequently interrupted the performance with their enthusiastic applause.

Closing Quotations on the Principal Active Stocks.

THE MINE MARKETS.

Mining Corporation was in strong demand this morning, apparently on account of speculators desiring to obtain what are considered the valuable rights on these shares, in connection with Flin Flon.

The Mining Corporation management have expressed their wish for shareholders to have stock registered in their name immediately, and to forward their subscriptions for the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting shares as soon as possible.

Also Mining Corporation's interest of 150,000 shares of Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, Limited, can be considered a very valuable asset to the company and consequently a reason for higher prices in the stock.

Amulet, selling ex-rites, opened up this morning at $1.00 per share below yesterday's closing prices, which is apparently the value placed on the rights to be issued to shareholders on record, January 20, 1928.

Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves were much stronger this morning, and by the appearance of the whole market higher prices are indicated.

Premier Gold has been attracting considerable attention of late and has experienced a spectacular advance during the past day or two. Ore reserves at the Premier mine are stated to be in splendid condition, finances in good shape and the outlook for the property splendid. Also the stock has an added attraction by paying annual dividends amounting to about 10 per cent on current quotations. Another reason advanced for the activity in the Premeir stock is the report that mining stocks are experiencing a greater volume of trading and public interest on the West Coast than for some time.

Although very encouraging reports are coming through regarding results of the Noranda Smelting, the stock re-acted this morning to below $21.00 per share. Probably this is on account of a rumor on street regarding the value of the ore run, which was stated to be not so high in gold values as at first anticipated. Extraction is reported at 95 per cent, which can be considered quite favorable, particularly on account of the Noranda plant being new and more or less just broken in.

The market showed much greater strength this morning and has a strong indications of an important upward movement. Many stocks are regarded as selling very near or even below their intrinsic values and as a result very little news of possibilities and developments at the respective mining properties appears discounted.

Cold Weather In West Causes Advance In Wheat

CHICAGO, January 20 (Canadian Press).—Cold weather endangering domestic winter wheat where there is no blanket of snow did a good deal to turn the wheat market upward early to-day. Meanwhile corn values were easy, owing largely to improved conditions for the movement of corn to market. Opening unchanged to ½ cent higher, wheat subsequently scored gains all around. Corn started at 1-8 cent to ¾ cent decline, but afterwards rallied. Oats were firm. Provisions advanced.

Opening prices were: Wheat, March 129¾, May 130¾. Corn, March 89 1-8, May 91¾. Oats, March 54¾, May 56.

Few Big Advances Feature General Gain

TORONTO, Jan. 20. — Canadian Press. — Spectacular advances in individual issues against a generally steady back-ground, marked to-day's session of the Toronto stock exchange. Cockshutt Plow Preferred, an active leader of the morning, climbed 15 at 135. Loblaw preferred jumped 16 at 175 after a series of quiet advances. Bell Telephone and Shredded wheat both advanced points at 160 and 75. Famous Players, which like Loblaw, is generally very quiet, climbed six at 58. The main stocks in the list generally firmed moderately. Canadian Oil gained 1 at 60, while British American and Imperial were steady with yesterday. Petroleum eased fractionally; liquor stocks eased slightly. Pacific Burt climbed five at 136; Dominion Stores 1½ at 115, and building products fractionally; Nickel eased a fraction.

Standard Exchange Trend Is Irregular

TORONTO, January 20 (Canadian Press). — The market on the Standard Mining Exchange was irregular to-day with Mining Corporation, Nipissing, and Wright Hargreaves going higher, and Noranda dropping 90 cents. Mining Corporation was the market feature, adding 36 cents to yesterday's gains and selling up over the 5.40 mark. Nipissing advanced to around 5.80. Wright Hargreaves recorded a gain of 25 points to sell around 5.95.

Premier was strong in early trading, going up to 3.25, but dropped sharply later, finishing the morning at 2.65 bid. Amulet, selling ex rights, was back at 4.00, a loss of eighty. In the Kirkland Lake group Teck Hughes lost slightly at 9.75, Beaver slumped thirteen at 199, and Kirkland Lake lost 3. Noranda lost nearly a dollar at 20.50.

New York Market Recovers Losses

NEW YORK Jan 20. Canadian Press.—Further recoveries took place in to-day's stock market, although the advance was not accompanied by any substantial increase in trading. Buying seemed to centre in a few special issues in the leading groups of stocks, with indications that pools furnished much of the activity.

Despite the reduction in call money from 4 to 3½ per cent and the decrease of $32,000,000 in brokers' loan last week, the credit situation was still a source of some uneasiness and tended to restrict operations for the advance. This was probably due to the further liquidation of United States Government securities by Federal Reserve banks, which was interpreted in some quarters as an official effort to restrict the volume of credit available for securities speculation.

There was little in the day's business news to influence the price movement.

Hardware Business Is Much Improved

"Hardware and Metal," Toronto, comments on hardware and metal market movements as follows, in the issue of January 14th:—

Since salesmen returned to their territories and are calling on the hardware trade again, business has brightened up after the holiday lull. Orders in general hardware are mostly for sorting purposes after stock taking, however, and are not of very great volume. Winter lines of sport goods are enjoying active movement in many sections of the country.

The compiling of the year-end statement is almost completed with most retailers who close their financial year with the calendar year. Several firms with whom Hardware and Metal has been in communication, have stated that 1927 was a profitable year for them. The figure total showing the volume of business in some cases does not record such a marked increase over 1926, but that may be accounted for by the gradual decline in market prices of most commodities during the year. Competition is becoming keener each succeeding year, and margins of profit are growing smaller. Greater volume of business has to be done now to show the same total of profit.

Changes in price are more numerous this week and include a complete revision of prices of one line of oil stoves and heaters. The list prices on inside frosted electric lamps have been reduced. A new list of prices on rope, it is announced, will be issued on January 25, becoming effective from February 1, and is said will show material reductions in some products listed, particularly manila rope. Galvanized clothes line wire has been reduced in price, and a reduction in other wires is looked for in Eastern Canada.

The primary lead and tin markets have been showing considerable weakness lately and have reflected an influence on solder prices. These have been reduced from one half cent to one cent per pound.

The January volume of business going through iron and steel jobbers is reported to be keeping up to the total for December, which was exceptional for that month.

TORONTO, Jan. 20. — (Canadian Press.—Mrs. Barbara Deignton, struck by an axe in the hands of her husband last Saturday, to-day in hospital showed the first faint signs of returning to consciousness. For six days her recovery from six compound fractures of the skull has been despaired of, but a very slight improvement to-day led to the hope that her condition may become less critical. Her seven year old daughter, Joan, is slowly recovering from head wounds.

MAYOR VISITS KIWANIS CLUB

Songs By Dr. J. C. Smith and Birthday Message Feature Weekly Meeting.

BUSINESS TRANSACTED.

Dr. J. C. Smith, of Lakefield, entertained Kiwanis Club to-day with two musical selections, "Mandalay" and "The March of the Cameron Men," sung in splendid voice.

The meeting was almost entirely given over to business, but time was found for a short address by His Worship Mayor Denne, and the reading of an anniversary message from Kiwanis International President Henry C. Heinz, by Carl S. Browne, and a report on the District Trustees' meeting by Harry C. Huffman.

Joseph Wearing was booster, and prizes went to W. S. Merrell, Dr. G. Ray Scott, and Dr. J. J. Craig.

Mayor Denne expressed appreciation of the civic work done by Kiwanis Club, and made special reference of the assistance given by the club to the Industrial Exhibition. He made an appeal for support during his term of office in an effort to build a greater and better Peterborough.

President's Message.

The message read by Mr. Browne was as follows:

As the pendulum of time swings on into eternity, the mile posts on life's highway chronicle our progress, and in the observance of this Thirteenth Anniversary of Kiwanis, we may well pause and consider the achievements of the past and responsibilities of the future.

Like the flag of a nation, which has no other significance than that given to it by its people—their character; their accomplishments, their efforts, their hopes and sacrifices—so an organization has no other character than that given to it by its members. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

Organized as a single club in Detroit, January 15, 1915, Kiwanis has grown into an organization of 1,669 clubs in the United States and Canada, with over 100,000 members.

The objects, at first vague and indefinite, have developed into positive statements of purpose, and were incorporated into our By-laws and Constitution adopted in Denver in 1924. These objects stand forth as Holy Writ, and commend themselves to our soul and to our mind. Each year, subsequent to their adoption, we have endeavored to translate these objects into definite activities by various objectives. The work for the under-privileged child, our efforts for better citizenship, vocational guidance and placement, business standards, and closer relations between the farmer and the city man, have furnished our members with opportunities for unusual service.

The metamorphosis of things and the transition of time have developed into our modern day civilzaition a need of an influence such as is exerted by Kiwanis clubs. In this day of material success, when finance is enthroned and money is king, the heart interest developed through the human and spiritual relations of man to man is needed to direct the way. Great wealth and great power carry with them increasingly grave responsibilities. They also expose the recipient to the dangers of pride, arrogance, and selfishness. In the midst of material success, may we respond to the promptings of the human and the spiritual in all our relations.

Through the past thirteen years, Kiwanis has developed an efficient organization, through its International, district, and club units. With this machinery, with worthy objects and challenging objectives, we should all strive to make Kiwanis greater during the coming year.

We may well look back upon the past with pardonable pride. Our present is commanding. Our future holds forth prospects for greater service and usefulness. Our organization will continue to prosper as Kiwanis answers the needs of the times in developing individuals, contributing to community progress, and creating international leadership.

District Trustee.

Mr. Huffman, who represented the Club at a District Trustees' meeting at Kingston a week ago told of the discussions there pertaining to Kiwanis affairs. The Peterborough Club was honored by the appointment of Charles H. Elliott as chairman of the District Committee on Agriculture, and special reference was made to the efficiency of this Club. Announcement was made that the District Convention will be held at Kingston on September 24 and 25.

A motion to increase the Club dues to take care of running expenses was carried unanimously. It was pointed out that none of the money collected from the public in any of Kiwanis activities such as the Produced in Canada Exhibition is used for running expenses. These public contributions are kept in a separate fund in trust for underprivileged child work and other public activities. The costs of running the club and entertaining guests are met out of the dues collected from the members.

MUCH THUNDER IN WINTER.

Thunderstorms occur every two days in winter in the British Isles, according to a census made between October, 1926, and March, 1927, for use this winter. In that time there were storms somewhere in the country on 96 out of the 182 days recorded. January, with 23 storms, had the highest number in Great Britain and Ireland, while November, with 18, topped the list for England. The stormiest districts were the central portions of the west coasts of Scotland and Ireland. There were no thunderstorms whatever in many parts of the East Midlands and northern countries of England.

Be stubborn if you want to. But a fellow who sets his head seldom hatches out much.

W.M.S. MEETING

placing the church at our disposal: for the beautiful solos rendered and the able assistance of the choir and organist; for the C.G.I.T. for the excellent pageant; and last, but not least, for our missionary, Miss Shipley, who so ably addressed us. If we have omitted anyone we hope they will kindly accept our heartfelt thanks. We are sorry it has been found necessary to divide our Presbyterial, but we have enjoyed the fellowship together and trust the future holds success for both.

The report of the business committee was presented by the convenor, Miss E. Dunoon, and showed forty per cent. of the fifty-six auxiliaries were represented at the convention. An invitation to hold the next annual meeting of the Peterborough Presbyterial at St. James' Church, Peterborough, was accepted.

A most inspiring and successful convention was brought to a close by the singing of a hymn, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," and the closing prayer by Mrs. R. G. Lawlor, B.A.

Tea for those remaining over was provided by the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's United Church.

A well-stocked table of missionary literature was maintained in connection with the convention, with a table of 'free' pamphlets. Mrs. J. John of St. Andrew's Church was in charge of the literature.

Arrangements for billeting the delegates was in the hands of Miss M. Dickson and Mrs. Wilgar, with Miss Hamilton in charge of the post office.

The address of the retiring president, Mrs. R. G. Lawlor, B.A., of Norwood, was of great interest.

Mrs. Lawlor based her remarks on the theme, "The W.M.S. as a factor in the development of an abundant life," as found in the 10th verse of the 10th chapter of St. John's Gospel, "I have come that ye might have life, and that ye might have it more abundantly." This, she believed had not only reference to the life to come, but that His coming would bring an abundant life to His followers here on earth. More than mere existence is necessary for this abundant life.

Man has a four-fold nature—spiritual, intellectual, physical and social and in order to enjoy life abundantly it is essential that there be a complete development of all phases of this four-fold nature.

An ideal society is one in which every member has an opportunity for complete development. As their representatives, the missionaries, report their work, the members are convinced that the W.M.S. is a great joy producer, in other words a factor in developing the abundant life.

The W.M.S. work is divided into two parts. The work overseas, including West China, South China and Honan, Japan, Korea, India, Africa and Trinidad. In Canada the work is with the Orientals, in British Columbia, Vancouver Island; the Indians in the Pacific Coast, and all European foreigners in Western Canada, also in ports of entry and numerous cities and towns throughout this province as well as in parts of Quebec. The work both at home and overseas is conducted under the four-fold plan, evangelistic to the spiritual, educational to the intellectual, medical to the physical and social service to the social, corresponding with the four-fold nature of the individual.

When the society's missionaries first entered the service it was with but one objective, to engage in evangelistic work and to develop the spiritual nature. This met with a great measure of success, many being brought from spiritual darkness into light. Women to whom the future meant only dread and terror, were overcome with joy to learn that Christ came to save them, and that the future life was something to look forward to. The Evangelistic Department has not only served souls but has built churches, Sunday schools and trained native workers. A Sunday school convention in Korea was a feature of this year's work. In Africa a distinct mission of the Untied Church of Canada, was effected. In Canada the same features are developed. The growth of the native leadership and the sense of responsibility on the part of the native Christian for the evangelizing of their own people are the most inspiring features of the work. This is especially evidenced in China, where the native Chrisian is trying to carry on the work since the withdrawal of the missionaries from that field.

The missionaries who had been raised in a Christian atmosphere where an abundant life was possible, saw the necessity of directing attention to the other phases of the work. The scope of their work was enlarged and attempts at once made to produce better physical conditions, which in many places were indescribable. In many huts in Africa no larger than fifteen feet in diameter, lived often eleven human beings, together with 16 to 18 goats. Living for generations in this way with beasts, their natures had become beastly, in thought, conversation and even in appearance. They are ignorant of anatomy and the laws of health, so lack pure and nourishing food, and in many places have no good water supply. These conditions lead to unchecked epidemics.

Realizing the necessity in the face of all this ignorance and danger, missionary doctors and nurses were sent out. They have forced the care for the sick, hindered waste and stopped epidemics. As technically called, it is the work of "preventive medicine." It would be impossible to estimate the value of the work done along this line. Only a few years ago professors in political economy, advocated the doctrine that famines in these ignorant heathen countries were unavoidable. They advised that not too much sympathy be expended upon them, and to allow them to die off, and so re-establish the balance between numbers and food supply. The missionaries have proven, however, that this is all unnecessary and India and parts of Africa are living monuments of the changed conditions. The hosptial work has relieved physical suffering, restored health and the people rejoice in healthy bodies.

In Canada the W.M.S. engages in three types of hospital work. There are large and important hospitals under the church itself, to which it contributes liberally, the Women's Missionary Society's own hospitals, which it established and supports entirely; the work known as hospital units, which are only cottage hospitals, but which reach out with home visitation and service to the surrounding district.

Two fine new hospitals were opened in July, 1926. One is 85 miles from a railway, and the district is peopled by Scandinavians, French Canadians and Indians. The other is Arthur Hospital, 1,000 miles north of Vancouver, blocked for eight months in the year, patients coming in from great distances over lonely trails. The changes made possible by the W.M.S. permits them to realize something of the abundant life.

Schools of all kinds are opened wherever the Society carries on, as part of the intellectual phase of the work. Not only are there schools corresponding to the Public Schools but grade after grade has been added, until the schools now reach from Kindergarten to Universities, from which students graduate yearly and become in turn teachers and leaders in their own lands.

Mrs. Lawlor gave many instances of the success of some of these students, many of whom are now filling professions as lawyers, doctors and teachers. Great stress has been made in the training for leadership. Who will deny that these people to whom new doors have been opened will not have a greater joy in living? she asked. In other words they will live more abundantly than if they had not developed the intellectual side of their nature.

The three phases cited refer particularly to the individual but in efforts to develop the social side it affects relations with others. Everywhere the W.M.S. aims at improving social conditions. In fact social service work today is one of the greatest avenues of work in which the W.M.S. is engaged. One of the first evils that had to be fought in China was the opium habit and traffic.

The obligation to serve others is one of the chief lessons of the Sermon on the Mount, and the social service work of the Missionary is to apply these ideals to the problem of the community and of the nation. She educates the children and teaches them that womanhood and manhood are of equal worth; contends that neither their feet nor their minds should be bound, as in China. She cares for the orphan, the blind, the refugee from famines, flood and massacre. She has brought life and joy into the life of the outcast in India. The missionaries have done another thing of greatest value. They have presented an object lesson of a Christian home, where all the members of the family dwell in love and where there is no superiority nor inferiority.

In Canada the social service department is emphasized in community missions where "Friendliness" is the keynote, and everything is taught in these centres, "from bathing a baby to preaching a sermon." The community missions carry on all four phases of the work from Atlantic to Pacific. The Department of the Stranger in connection with the W.M.S. work is also a vital factor in producing the abundant life. In this department there are both national and international connections. It begins with the work at the ports and reaches down to the smallest auxiliary. It is splendidly organized and shows its ability and efficiency in caring for its special task.

The Supply Department aids all other departments. The needs of hospitals, community missions, the children and the aged of the Indian reserves, are all supplied from this department. The whole effect of the work has tended to the uplift of society.

While the members of the W.M.S. are not missionaries, the work is made possible by their efforts at home.

The organized work from Baby Bands, Auxiliaries, Presbyterials, Conference Branch, to the Dominion Board, cannot fail to make our lives more complete, said Mrs. Lawlor, urging all those not connected with this great woman's organization to join forces with them, and enjoy a more abundant life and become a factor in promoting that abundant life in others.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Lawlor's address, Mrs. H. F. Doig, sang in beautiful voice a solo, "O Divine Redeemer," by Gounod.

The address by Miss Minnie Shipley, missionary from Honan, China, was a revelation in many ways to those who had the great pleasure of listening to her.

She told first, what a joy it was to her to meet with these groups of W.M.S. workers in the homeland, and with the individuals. It was a thrill to come home to a new United Church. She told of the United Church in China—"there they call you the 'Mother Church,'" she said.

In her description of religious conditions in China she went back to the earliest times. Even then there were evidences of their belief in a Supreme Being. As an example of this was their Temple of Heaven at the gates of Pekin, with its roof as blue as the sky. Here, too, was their Altar of Heaven—a raised platform, twelve feet in height, on which the Emperor knelt for worship and prayer to the Supreme One, on behalf of his people. In this prayer appear many words and phrases similar to those found in the Old Testament. In many temples were found boxes beside the altar, bearing close resemblance to the Ark found in the tabernacles of the Israelites. In their own literature is found a story which is parallel to that of the flood and Noah. Is it possible to think of their conception of the Supreme One coming down from Noah?

Thus their religious instincts were expressed in their buildings and in their language more than six hundred years before Christ. It is known that there were colonies of Jews in China before the birth of Christ, and China is the only country which absorbed the Jews in their midst.

"Think of Paul's journey westward to Europe, what it has meant to them and to us!" said Miss Shipley.

Religion is the soul's search for God until it finds its satisfaction in Him. History proves the Chinese a religious-searching people. One of the early emperors sent out an embassy seeking the truth, but they found Buddhism instead of St. Paul's teaching. In the eleventh century a Buddhist philosopher introduced the abstract principle "Li," which he made supreme. "Li" translated is "Truth," as used in John, "I am the way, the truth, and the life." The masses of the common people not accepting this, held to their conviction that there is someone to whom men are responsible and who controls blessings and punishments, so they worship and pray to what they call the "Reverend Heavenly Father" who sends rain or withholds it, who causes sunshine or withholds it, who causes winds to blow, and who controls their lives and destinies. Thus there are first, scholars holding "Truth" as the supreme principle, second, the masses with their images, and holding to the fact that there was someone in control. All, however, believe in a future life. This is shown by their "ancestor" worship and by their provision for their dead in their spirit life. This is their background.

But it is these Chinese people, who in these days of turmoil are doing the thinking, are holding to the best they believe in, to the best they have always had, and are waiting, not talking. China will go forward now, if she will accept the "True One, even Jesus" as the personification of their word "li." (I am the Truth), and as a revelation of what they have always sought in a Supreme Being, as Christ the Saviour, accepted for imself and not associated with Westernism and what they have seen called Christian. Up to the war, they were eager to accept anything and everything from the West. Now they are trying to seek for the best, to discriminate and take only what is good.

How is such a presentation of Jesus to be made? In all ages, God has entrusted the message of His church. His church in China embraces half a million people among a population of four hundred million. How can the Chinese church make such a presentation? Not under foreign leadership and not while it is recognized as an institution transplanted from foreign lands.

This does not mean that the work of the missionary in China is done. Christians cannot say that with three hundred and ninety-nine and a half million still unwon. But it does mean a most delicate task ahead for the missionary who must become a close and helpful friend in consultation and advice, while the Chinese church decides for itself whether they will act on such advice or not. The gift of prayer is needed more than ever. Is the young Chinese Church able for such responsibility? It has been during the evacuation of the missionaries and they will be learning as time goes on.

Without knowing what the year was to bring forth, there has been training and preparation. In North Honan, the augmentation scheme was employed. In this way the congregations gradually assumed the responsibility and support of their own church. The work was done alone under local sessions and also with the help of the missionary.

It is the day of testing for the young church in China. It is such a day as Hebrew prophets called "A day of the Lord." Is the Chinese church strong enough for the responsibility? Are the missionaries big enough to work in their church as helpers? Is the Western church big enough to continue helping a struggling young church in its immense task?

"Many have desired to see the things which we see, and have not seen them."

Delaney and Heeney Signed for Elimination Bout

HEAVIES MEET ON MARCH 18TH

Rickard's New Assistant Celebrates Promotorial Debut by Promoting Bout.

SHARKEY-RISKO NEXT

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (Canadian Press)—John M. "Tex" Chapman, accustomed only to the whims and fancies of six-day bicycle racers, took full possession of Madison Square Garden in the absence of Tex Rickard yesterday and celebrated his promotorial debut by signing Jack Delaney and Tom Heeney to a 15-round joust on March 16.

Achieving his end where the original "Tex" had given up in high dudgeon before leaving Wednesday night for Miami, Fla., Rickard's newly appointed assistant hauled the fight managers before him yesterday, and in half an hour talked them into splitting half of the gate receipts evenly between them. Papers will be signed today.

The match forecast the final line-up of the "elimination" campaign to name Gene Tunney's opponent next Summer. Tex is reviewing the heavyweight program to sign Jack Sharkey and Johnny Risko to a 15-round bout on March 12 with the winners of both matches meeting early in April for the fight to challenge Tunney's supremacy in July. Jack Dempsey probably will face the title holder for the third time here in September.

The endurance contest between managers of Heeney and Delaney entering the second day, was brought to a sudden halt and general agreement when challenges of the New Zealander's courage reached the ears of Bernard Mortimer, British promoter and one of Heeney's stockholders. Mortimer went into private session with the remainder of the Heeney bondsmen and came out with an offer to bet the $10,000 on the Anzac and an agreement to split the purse.

Negotiations had been prolonged by Heeney's desire for five per cent more than Delaney.

During the general barter of services yesterday, no mention was made of Paulino Uzcudum, the fifth starter originally selected by Rickard for the final elimination fight. The Spaniard left yesterday to fight Romero Rojas in Mexico City, January 29, and will meet George Godfrey, the new "black menace," in Los Angeles in February.

Meet To-night.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan 20. Canadian Press. — Jack Delaney, who abdicated the light heavyweight boxing throne in search of heavyweight laurels, and Jack Humbeck, 205 lb. Belgian "cyclone," yesterday completed preparations for their ten round clash at the Argonne A. A. here to-night.

Delaney, fresh from a 20 second knockout victory over Sully Montgomery in New York last Monday, plans another whirlwind attack to gain the decision and another rung in the heavyweight elimination ladder he has started to climb. Humbeck who has yet to be flattened after 69 bouts, is just as anxious for victory and a little attention from the manufacturer of boxing's heavyweight title contenders.

Delaney expects to scale about 181 pounds, a weight that will force him to give away more than 20 pounds to his ponderous opponent. Thirty two rounds of preliminary skirmishing, including an eight round semi-final, are scheduled for the evening.

Haugen Is Chosen As Olympic Member

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 (Canadian Press).—Anders Haugen of Minneapolis, Times national ski-jumping champion and member of the last Olympic team, was chosen yesterday by the National Ski Association to be the third member of the American ski team, to represent the United States in the St. Moritz event, February 11 to 19.

In the 1924 Winter Olympic Games at Chamonix, France, Haugen scored the longest jump of the international tournament, but was ranked fourth in the final point standings. The Eastern donors of the fund raised to send the American ski team chose Rolf Monson, of Brattleboro, Vermont, and Charles Proctor of Dartmouth College, to complete the American trio.

WILL TAKE ICE.

Ross Robinson, Canadian champion and holder of the American five mile skating record, established last winter at Saranac Lake, when he defeated a big field, including Charlie Gorman of St. John, N.B. LONDON CLUB WINS SECOND ROUND PLAY Expert English Players Will Hold Strong Hand in Deciding Rackets Championship.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 20 (Canadian Press).—That the Queen's Racket Club of London, England, will hold a strong hand in the deciding of the Canadian championships here was assured yesterday when all three of the English players triumphed in the second-round play. The first of the trio to score a victory was E. W. Kempwelch, who defeated R. M. Rebmod of Montreal, three straight games. Then came the victory of Hon. C. N. Bruce over J. A. Holland, another Montrealer, while the third win was scored by J. C. F. Simpson, champion of England, over J. M. Van Alen of New York.

The meeting between Van Alen and Simpson was the feature of the day. Van Alen, although defeated, gave a good account of himself, and in each of the games, at one time or another, led the English player. Van Alen won the first game, which was set at three, by 16—15. He served to Simpson is a way that caught him off his guard, but once settled down to his game Simpson won the next three games and the match.

C. C. Pell of New York, holder of the Canadian singles title, also won his second round match. He defeated F. C. Dobell of Montreal, in straight sets.

SUNDERLAND WINS FROM NORTHAMPTON

Winner to Meet Manchester City in Fourth Round of Draw.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Sunderland defeated Northampton in a replayed game from the third round of the English Football Association Cup ties yesterday. The score was three goals to nil in Sunderland's favor. The match was played at Northampton. The winners meet Manchester City in the fourth round.

Sunderland won because their staying powers were superior. The two teams battled to a three-all draw at Sunderland on Saturday. Twenty thousand people saw the match yesterday, which was played under almost perfect conditions.

Northampton had much the better of the game in the first half and McInroy, the Sunderland goalie, was tested on a number of occasions. Near half-time a penalty was given against Sunderland but Allon shot over the bar.

Sunderland showed marked superiority over Northampton in the second half and pressed for most of the period. Halliday netted twice, while Clumas got a goal from a penalty.

Londons' smallest shop, which houses a successful art furnishing business, is fifteen feet long by 42 inches wide.

ONE-MINUTE INTERVIEWS

WALTER HAGEN SAYS:

I'm a firm believer in the power of psychology as relating to golf or any other sport.

I'm with these football coaches every minute who have cards plastered all over the players' dressing room to this effect, "The team that won't be beat, can't be beat," "Think victory," "Have the will to win," and the like.

No doubt there are a lot of better golf players than I am, but not until the game or tournament in which I am participating is over and some player, other than myself, has been declared the winner, am I convinced of the fact.

Then the proof is only temporary. The winner, as well as any other player who finished ahead, only has proved to me that in said event they were better than me. However, that doesn't hold good for the next game or tournament, for fame is fleeting in golf.

I have never entered any competitive golf match with a thought other than that I was going to win. No matter how badly things might break for me, I always cling to the belief that my opponents may run into just as much tough luck.

While often disgusted, I am never discouraged over a poor shot from the tee. It is my thought that a good recovery will always wipe out a shot that lands in the rough.

My opponents fear me because they know I never quit, no matter how poorly I am playing. Incidentally, there is a reverse English to the power of psychology. For when players realize some one who never quits is a close contender, a player noted for coming from behind, that thought doesn't tend to make their play any steadier.

Fans Paid $46,600 For 5 Attractions

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 20 (Canadian Press).—Winter may be considered the "off" season in sports, but Boston fandom paid $46,600 to witness five indoor attractions here in the last week. The Bruins-Canadiens National Hockey League game Tuesday topped the list with a $13,000 capacity house and 20,000 disappointed customers. The Bruins and Chicago and the Argonne A.A.'s Munn-Roberti fight drew $10,000 each. Ernie Schaaf and King Solomon were worth $8,500 and a wrestling show at the Arena on Monday netted $5,100.

Baby Saves Family; Gives Alarm of Fire

FORT WILLIAM, January 19.—A baby girl, 2½ years old, daughter of Mrs. Mary Burnais, saved her mother and five young brothers and sisters from possible death from flames when she was wakened by smoke and gave the alarm of fire in their home at 4.30 o'clock yesterday morning.

Scrambling in all haste in nightclothes, the mother managed to get five of her little ones to a neighbor's home in safety, while her eldest, a lad of 14 years, ran to pull a fire-alarm box.

LOW RANK TEAMS WIN N.H.L. GAMES

Americans Beat Maroons and Pirates Beat Ottawa.

BOTH GAMES CLOSE.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The Americans are trying to dig themselves out of the depths. They began with a creditable victory over the strong Montreal Maroon team last night, the gang of huskies who were champions of the world two years ago. Lionel Conacher, driving in a goal in a fast and furious second period which gave them the margin of victory, 1 to 0. As the Ottawa Senators were beaten by the Pittsburg Pirates, the Americans made a big gain, and they may defeat that aggregation of former greats, champions a year ago, when the teams meet next Tuesday evening.

Pirates Win

PITTSBURG, Jan. 20.—The Pittsburg Pirates flared from behind here last night to trim the world's champion Ottawa sextette, 3 to 1, in one of the most sensational ice classics ever staged in historic Duquesne Gardens. A throng of 5,000 frantic fans cheered the home team throughout sixty minutes of such milling as is seldom seen in the National circuit, and when at the conclusion of hostilities the Bucs were returned victorious they were tendered an ovation made up in warmth and volume for the bitterness of the many hoots and catcalls they had been subjected to throughout their unfortunate early season career.

SAYS AUGSBURG HAS BEST TEAM

Haddock Declares Amateur Association Will Not Approve Any Other Club.

WOULD STAGE PLAY-OFF

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 20 (Canadian Press).—William S. Haddock, president of the United States Amateur Hockey Association, said here yesterday, that if the Augsburg College team of Minneapolis is not approved by the American Olympic committee as the American Olympic hockey team, "the United States will not be represented at the Winter Olympics."

Haddock declared he would not approve now of any other team, but Augsburg College. He sent an agreement to Major-General Douglas MacArthur, chairman of the American Olympic Committee, pointing out to him that the "sport governing body selects the team and the Olympic committee gives formal approval only."

Advised that General MacArthur had declined to reconsider his decision not to approve the Augsburg team Haddock said that no other team would have the Amateur Hockey Association's approval, and declared it was "a representative college hockey team reflecting credit on school and country.

In his telegram to General MacArthur, Haddock stated that the University Club of Boston and several other teams throughout the country had been given an opportunity to represent the country, but that they could not raise money for expenses. Augsburg College, he said, "qualifies as to calibre and money."

Haddock said the Augsburg team has met and defeated all comers for two years. The team, he said, "is unquestionably as good as in previous Olympics, would defeat all countries with the possible exception of the Toronto Grads., Canada's representatives, and would have more than an outside chance to defeat them."

According to Haddock, the Augsburg team has made all arrangements to sail on January 25 to participate in the meet at St. Moritz.

Would Determine Entry.

BOSTON, Jan. 20. Canadian Press.—George Owen, Sr., chairman of the University Club Hockey Committee, yesterday told the Associated Press that the University Club would be "very glad" to meet the Augsburg College hockey team of Minneapolis in a test match to determine the Minnesota sextet's fitness as the American Olympic hockey entry.

"The University Club has absolutely no intention of sending its team to the Olympics," Chairman Owen said. "That has been found to be impossible for several very good reasons, among them the fact that our club is composed of young business men who could not afford the long absence or a last minute change in plans. Nevertheless we would be very happy to meet the Augsburg team either in Boston or New York if it might help in any way to determine the fitness of the Augsburg team to represent the United States at St. Moritz."

Chairman Owen said that his knowledge of the Augsburg Olympic situation was confined to newspaper accounts, but intimated that if an Augsburg - University game was sought officially he would be glad to co-operate.

Harris Only Manager Who Plays Regularly

BY BILLY EVANS

Is the playing manager a more effective leader than the bench pilot, or vice versa?

Taking the records of 1927 as a basis for comparison, the odds would be 2-1 in favor of the bench performers if you consider the eight clubs that finished in the money in the two major leagues.

In the American League the New York Yankees, managed by Miller Huggins, who didn't even leave the bench for the coaching lines, won about as they pleased from the rest of the field.

In the National League, the Pittsburgh Pirates, chaperoned by one Owen Bush, who confined his activities to the coaching lines as far as actual participation in the game went, finished in front after a gruelling campaign.

The world series provided a struggle between a retiring leader who literally stuck to the bench throughout the season, Miller Huggins, and a fiery, peppery pilot, Owen Bush, who started chattering in the first inning and never once quit, no matter how badly his club was trailing.

The outcome of the world series, which was won by the Yankees in four straight game, was a signal triumph for the non-talkative manager as typified by Miller Huggins. However, that doesnt' always hold good.

Of the four clubs that finished inside the money in the American League, these being New York, Philadelphia, Detroit and Washington, only one, the fourth-place club, was led by a playing manager, Stanley Harris being in charge at Washington.

The first four in the National League at the close of the season were Pittsburgh, St. Louis, New York and Chicago. Of these, the only team to have a playing leader was the St. Louis Cardinals, presided over by Catch-Bob O'Farrell, who since the close of the season has been demoted in favor of Bill McKechnie, a bench boss.

MacArthur Will Not Reconsider Decision

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (Canadian Press).—Expressing regret that no tryouts were held to select a United States Olympic hockey team Major-General Douglas MacArthur, chairman of the American Olympic Committee, yesterday declined to reconsider the decision disapproving choice of the Augsburg College team of Minneapolis as not sufficiently representative.

At the same time, General MacArthur disclosed that the University Club of Boston, which he said was regarded in the East as "fully equal of any hockey team in America," had applied for designation as the Olympic team.

The suggestion has been made that it is not too late to have Augsberg and the University Club meet in a tryout, either in Boston or New York to determine which was best fitted to go abroad, but General MacArthur said no tryouts "were being contemplated."

Instals Officers of I.O.O.F. Lodge—Social Evening Held.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 20.—Millbrook Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 308 held its regular meeting on Tuesday evening, the annual installation of officers being the outstanding feature of the occasion.

The retiring Noble Grand, Brother W. E. Ball, was in the chair for the first part of the business session, the ceremony of installation being conducted by Past District-Deputy George Lacheur, of Peterborough, assisted by District-Deputy Brother R. Martin, and the Degree Staff from Otonabee Lodge, Peterborough.

The officers for 1928 are:

P.N.G.—Brother W. E. Ball.
N.G.—Brother D. Sheppard.
V.G.—Brother C. B. Sutton.
Chaplain—Brother (Rev.) P. C. Howard.
R.S.—Brother J. A. Vance, P.G.
Treasurer—Brother D. Hampton.
F.S.—Brother P. I. Bentley, P.G.

L.S.V.G.—Brother H. J. Armstrong
R.S.S.—Brother Fred Elliott.
L.S.S.—Brother Arthur Fallis.
I.G.—Brother Wesley Wragg.
O.G.—Brother George Cobley.

The attendance numbered around one hundred and fifty, including about forty brother Oddfellows who motored out from Peterborough as members of the installing staff, or as visitors for the special occasion.

Brief addresses were made by visiting officials, and others, and following the formal session supper was served in the dining-hall, the social committee and other members of Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, looking after this important item in the evening's program, discharging a debt to brethren from the Subordinate Lodge who performed a similar service on the occasion of installation of officers in the Rebekah organization last week.

Brother David Hampton has been the treasurer of Millbrook Lodge for twenty-seven years, having first been elected to this position in 1900; he has been a charter member since 1894, and actively connected with Oddfellowship in an official capacity for over forty-five years.

This establishes a unique record, and taken in conjunction with his long connection with the Masonic Order, means that he has an honored place in the affection and esteem of his brethren of fraternal circles in the community.

BOY AGED TEN TRAVELS ALONE

Trip From Los Angeles to Glasgow Has No Terrors For John Barbour.

GOING TO SEE FATHER.

TORONTO, January 20. — With a bright red pencil much worn at the point stuck firmly in the pocket of his light tweed suit with "longs," young John Wylie Barbour, aged ten years, stepped off the Canadian Pacific train yesterday morning en route to St. John for half an hour's stroll around the Union Station. Alone he is travelling from Los Angeles to Glasgow, Scotland, on a visit to his father, whom he has not seen for six years, during which time he has been living with an uncle in Los Angeles. There are no terrors for him in the long journey, and he is quite happy, although he misses school, being in "B-6 and getting on nicely." He spends a great deal of his time when not looking at the scenery in drawing, then the pencil comes into action. Asked how he liked Scotland he remarked on his being there before, up until he was four, so, of course, he could speak with some freedom of the country of heather and hills. He has so far made friends with the train crew, and will no doubt become a favorite on the Canadian Pacific steamship Melita, on which he makes the voyage.

SEVEN TEAMS IN DOG DERBY

TWENTY MILE COURSE.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y., Jan. 20. — (Canadian Press).—Seven dog teams lined up here to-day for the beginning of Lake Placid's first sled dog Derby. The Derby was divided into two races, to be run to-day and tomorrow over twenty miles of snow-covered roads. Competing against six men drivers was a lone woman, Mrs. E. Ricker, Jr., of Poland Springs, Maine. Derby rules limited each team to seven dogs and stipulated that no changes could be made in the teams after the beginning of the Derby.

WOMAN DIES; MAN GUARDED

Other Woman in Triangle Under Bond Pending Husband's Recovery.

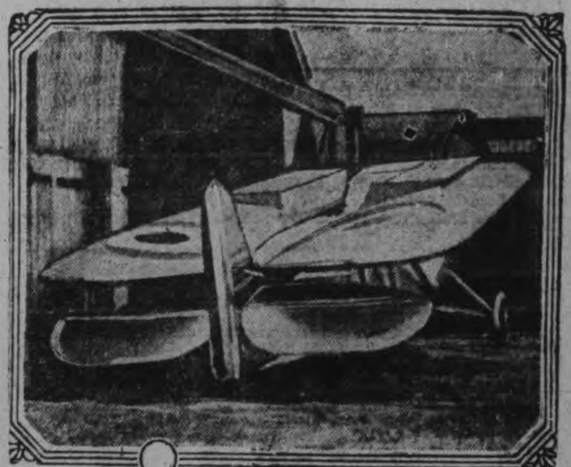
HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 20.—(Canadian Press.) — Mrs. Clare Gaudet, who with Dr. Harold Guilfoyle was shot in Guilfoyle's apartment on Wednesday night, died to-day in hospital here. Dr. Guilfoyle, who was wounded in the temple, is expected to recover but may suffer blindness. Mrs. Guilfoyle is held as a material witness in the case in ten thousand dollar bonds and a police guard is stationed at Dr. Guilfoyle's bed in the hospital.

Belief In Witches Saves Four Slayers

SZEGEDIN, Hungary, Jan. 20. (Canadian Press).—Four men today owed their freedom to the belief in witches. The men had a sick friend who told them his illness was due to the visits of a beggar woman who cast a spell over him. As the invalid told his tale an old woman entered the room, begging for alms. She was unable to answer the questions put by the four. They accepted the story she was a witch and hacked her to pieces.

They were accused of murder. The Superior Court reversed their conviction, saying the attendant circumstances pointed to the presence of a witch.

PLANE FOLDS TO FIT GARAGE



Here's a handy plane that folds up to fit a garage. Flight Sergeant Tom Livingston used the little Fairchild monoplane to fly from Long Island, N.Y., to Toronto. The machine is a cabin plane, but the wings fold back against the fuselage and enable it to be stored in a comparatively small place.

CHANGES PROPOSED IN JUVENILE COURT

York County Grand Jury Advocates Raising the Age Limit.

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—Considerable interest has been created in York County following the action of the Grand Jury of the Assize Court in recommending that the extension of the jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court so as to include adjacent rural areas was a matter worthy of investigation. The raising of the age limit of the accused in Juvenile Courts from 16 to 18 years was also recommended.

In an itnerview last night Magistrate T. H. Brunton expressed the opinion that he hadn't the slightest idea of what the Assize jury meant by the recommendation.

Powers Already Secured.

"The Juvenile Court has already secured powers in the county," he said. "I was appointed Judge of that court about a year ago. In the matter of raising the age limit of the accused in Juvenile Courts, I am strongly of the opinion that it would be a very desirable thing to do."

To raise the age limit, he explained, it would be necessary to secure the ratification of the Ontario Legislature.

Crown Attorney Frank Moore stated that he believed the recommendation of extending the jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court was "a wise suggestion."

"We would probably have better methods of handling the juvenile cases than we have at present," he said. "We have to work in conjunction with the city in many cases at present and we would be able to handle them all properly if the recommendation were acted upon."

Attorney in Favor.

With respect to the raising of the age limit the Crown Attorney was strongly in favor of such a step. It would then be possible to deal with all those arrested between the ages of 16 and 18 in the Juvenile Court and not as if they were hardened criminals, he thought.

Children's Aid Inspector Horace D. Ramsden didn't see where there would be any advantage in adopting the recommendation of extending the jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court, and believed that the County Assizes were capable of dealing with the cases effectively. Inspector Ramsden approved of raising the age limit, as he thought many cases dealt with in the higher court at present could be given greater consideration in a Juvenile Court.

W. D. Annis of Scarboro', Treasurer of the County Children's Aid Society, expressed his preference of seeing the present system continued.

"Major Brunton as County Magistrate has been wonderfully efficient in dealing with the juvenile cases, and I would not care to see any change," he said.

MADGE BELLAMY NOW A DEMURE IRISH LASSIE

Discards Her Flapper Characterizations in "Colleen."

Madge Bellamy has temporarily cast aside her flapper personality to play the part of a dainty Irish miss in Fox Films "Colleen," which Frank O'Connor directed and now playing at the Regent Theatre.

For the past two years, ever since she created "Sandy," Madge has been identified with intriguing flappers or ingenious poor girls who "modeled" for a living, until these roles have established her in a definite screen personality.

But in "Colleen" she proves that she has not forgotten how to be a little country maid. She makes of Sheila Kelly, a girl with a temper of her own, but with wit, beauty and charm to boot.

"Colleen" is the story of two race horses, two old Irish squires and an Irish lad and lassie. Frank O'Connor, whose lapses into brogue would betray his nationality if his name and face did not, was in his favorite element while directing this picture.

"ROSES OF PICARDY"

This big picture, which is being presented during the first four days of next week at the Regent Theatre, under auspices of the Catholic Women's League, played to capacity houses for one week recently at the Regent Theatre, Toronto, at prices ranging from 50 cents to $1.50. Tickets here are at the usual prices and may be purchased from members of the League or from Bond's and McDermid & Jury's Drug Stores.

"Roses of Picardy" may justly be described as one of the highest achievements of British film production ever presented in London. It is a tribute alike in plot interest, massiveness, photography, direction and good acting to the efforts of producers and artists overseas. From its opening to its close it is a picture whose excellence and story draws the greatest admiration and the keenest attention and interest of those beholding it.

"Roses of Picardy," though its action and interest are firmly embedded in the years of war that engulfed Europe, is removed from the average type of war picture. It has a deeper purpose than merely that of presenting activities on the battlefront, and the plot, its beginning centred in many interests, converge to the super-climax that will live long in the memory of those who witness it.

The appeal of "Roses of Picardy" will probably find a more responsive chord in the hearts of women than of men, though the interest for the latter is not by any means lacking. The story centres around a woman in a gripping and powerful drama which deals with the periods of anguish through which her love passes. In heroic sacrifice and romance it converts her into a modern Madonna.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"THE GARDEN OF ALLAH."

This feature, filmed from Robert Hichens' immortal drama of love and passion, owes its interest to the peculiar situation with which it deals. Unlike many films, it hews fairly strictly to the text of the book and anyone who has seen the play will also recognize the adherence to salient features, although the ending of the picture is banal and really constitutes a let-down in a production which has an amazing degree of interest in its unfolding. Probably the weak finale is due to a sort of collapse in emotional fervor suffered by the hero, who appears to be a sort of in-between person whose passions drag him to one side, while his intellect, refusing to be submerged, leads him to higher things. He is irritating. Worrying in his monastery cell over his subjugation to religious vows and longing for the freedom of the world, he continues to worry later, when he leaves the monastery, over his broken vows and to harass his wife with unrevealed, conscience-stricken pangs of remorse.

Ivan Petrovitch is very handsome, but he lacks the fire usually associated with the Slav temperament. His acting reminds one of Thomas Meighan's stuff, in a sort of bewildered acquiescence to a blind Fate that sends him hither and thither without guiding from his own mind. He is the Father Adrien of the well-known story, the Trappist monk who leaves his desert monastery at Staoueli and goes forth to find the happiness the cloister has robbed him of. He meets, journeying to the oasis of Beni-Mora, "queen of the desert," the blonde English beauty, the mildly sweet Domini Enfilden, who parents are dead and who seeks a refuge in the desert from the tyrannical whims of a father whose life was marked by hatred of religion.

Boris also meets Count Anteoni, the cultured gentleman who dwells at the desert's edge and whose garden constitutes the title of the tale. The Count vaguely remembers having met Boris previously, the actual encounter having occurred during his visit to the Trappist monastery, and he warns Domini against the dark, tragic man with whom she has become infatuated. The warning has the suual effect in such cases, and the girl and Boris are married, to embark immediately upon a desert honeymoon. When a mighty sandstorm ensues, and the Count visits their desert home, he finally recognizes Boris as the former monk and the latter tells Domini the truth. This moment constitutes a curious semi-colon in the picture, for the figure of Boris, never very strongly marked, commences to fade from this point. Domini takes the initiative and sends Boris back to the Trappist monastery. The last we see of him is his figure, clad in up-to-date garments, disappearing down the corridor of the ancient place. Then Domini retires to her garden and dwells there with Baris' son and the memories she has massed from her brief romance.

The heroine's role is beautifully portrayed by the lovely Alice Terry and there is a good deal of atmospheric attraction in the scenes from the African desert.

The program includes the usual entertaining short reels and a stirring episode of "The Collegians" series.—Jeannette.

AT THE GRAND.

A good evening's entertainment is better for the health than forty dollars worth of medicines and F. Stuart-Whyte's new success, "Dick Whittington and His Cat", marking the Anglo-Canadian producers return to the Dominion after an absence of some years, must be rated far ahead of "a good evening's entertainment."

It is a production on which there has, literally, been years of preparation. During the time when Mr. Whyte was shooting moving pictures on the Zambesi River, directing feature films in the South African diamond mines or in the Indies or in the interior and elsewhere in Australia, he spent most of his spare time in the development of book, music and lyrics for another pantomime or so. "Dick Whittington" was the culmination of many months of labor.

Since the frame-work of the production had involved such an unusual amount of early effort, Mr. Whyte decided that the balance of the undertaking would be carried out in exactly the same manner.

This accounts for a number of unusual features—the addition of a superb troupe of dancers, the Palace Girls—the election of the cream of English pantomime stars and a number of unusually fine singing voices—special orchestrations and harmony effects—extra comedians—and last, but far from least, a remarkable array of scenic backgrounds, with costuming and lighting effects to match.

It would be well to make special note of the dates for the local engagement. Almost everybody else will and this is one occasion when seats will be very much at a premium. "Dick Whittington" comes here, to the Grand for one performance next Thursday night.

ABLE PREACHER HERE ON SUNDAY

Rev. Profesosr Isherwood, of Toronto, to Speak at All Saints'.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.

In connection with the anniversary services to be held in All Saints' Church on Sunday, the people of Peterborough will have the opportunity of hearing the Reverend Professor Isherwood, who is at present on the staff of Wycliffe College, Toronto. He came to Canada after a very brilliant career at Oxford, and is a preacher of quite exceptional ability. Although still a very young man, he has had many opportunities presented to him for service in the widest fields of Christian work, and only three weeks ago he was one of the Canadian delegates to the World Student Christian Movement Convention. He will preach at the 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. services, and in the afternoon will address a special open meeting of young men and boys.

BIBLE SOCIETY SPEAKER HERE

Rev. T. Smetham, of English Society Will Give Address on Work.

NOTED AS ORATOR.

Noted as a clever speaker, Rev. T. Smetham, of the British and Foreign Bible Society, will be the speaker at the annual service of the Peterborough Bible Society, which will be held on Monday, January 30. Sunday, January 29, will be Bible Sunday, on which day local or visiting clergy will set forth the good work of the Upper Canada Bible Society, which is in charge of the work in Ontario to the congregations of the Peterborough churches. During the following week the annual canvass for funds will be made.

Discussing Rev. Mr. Smetham's retirement after 25 years' faithful service as a district secretary in England, the official publication of the Society says:

"The retirement of the Rev. T. Smetham from the position which he has occupied for nearly twenty-five years is a sorrowful event for great numbers of his friends. During all this period he has rendered unstinted service to the Bible Society is a district secretary, and wherever he has gone he has won friends, not only for the Society, but for himself. Mr. Smetham is a man of unusual gifts; very effective on the platform, and even more effective, perhaps, in speaking to individuals. We rejoice with him in the success which has attended his efforts, and we who have loved this man of the sunny face and heart of gold, pray that he may live long amongst us. It is impossible to think of him as old. He is among the youngest of us, but as men count years, he has reached the retiring age."

APSLEY PEOPLE ENJOY DANCES

Reeve and Councillors Entertain Ratepayers at One Affair.

MARRIED PEOPLE MEET

APSLEY, January 20. — The new Reeve and Council of Burleigh and Anstruther gave a dance in the Parish Hall on Monday evening, which was attended by more than two hundred people, a great number coming from South Burleigh, Haultain, Mount Julian, Young's Point, and Lakefield. As many as six sets in the square dances were going at one time and the capacity of the hall was taxed to its utmost. Refreshments were served about midnight, and the party broke up at 2 a.m., having spent a most enjoyable time.

On Friday evening the postponed married people's party was held in the Parish Hall, and so successful was it that it may become a monthly affair during the winter. About 60 persons attended, and with five fiddlers present there was no lack of music. A real old-fashioned party, reminiscent of the early days, was enjoyed, everyone joining in the old-time dances with a zest that was good to witness.

The young people staged a dance in the Town Hall the same evening, but were somewhat handicapped for music, only a mouth organ being available. Those who played for the married people were John Coones, John McColl, Will Staples, Mrs. R. Scott, and Miss P. Spence. Refreshments were served, and the party broke up at 1 a.m., after R. H. Knox had proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Spence, for the delightful time provided and enjoyed by all, which was vociferously applauded.

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Though Dante tried to console himself with the thought that in death Beatrice was more truly his than in life, he went through months of bitter grief. He tried writing melancholy verse, "that a few melancholy verses might stand me instead of tears," he says. He was quite disconsolate.

Then he plunged into a life of gaiety, in an effort to forget his sorrow. And later he went in for politics and really took an active part in municipal affairs. A year after Beatrice's death he saw, one day, a figure that reminded him of her, and followed it through the crowds.

Dante contrived a meeting with the "young and very beautiful lady" who so much reminded him of his beloved Beatrice, and for some time devoted himself to her. He found her delightful and finally rebuked himself because his "eyes began to be gladdened overmuch by her company."

So he turned back to the contemplation of his soul's bride. He determined to write a poem describing a visit to Paradise. Beatrice, as the figure of Divine Truth, would meet him at the gates of heaven and act as his guide. And so he began one of the world's great poems, the Divine Comedy.

Dormitory Department.

The dormitories during the early part of the year were well filled. Since the fall, however, there has been a serious falling off in the number of domitories occupied, owing to the fact that a considerable number of our residents left the city at about the same time, and others did not come in to take their place. During the same period there has been a serious falling off in transients, with the result that our revenue from this source was seriously curtailed.

Bowling Department.

The bowling alleys have continued to be in good demand and at present there are five leagues operating twenty-five teams.

Finances.

It was confidently hoped that it would be possible to not only meet current expenses but to wipe out a deficit of over five hundred dollars incurred during the two previous years. Owing to the serious falling off in revenue from dormitories and some other sources and unavoidable increase in certain expenses it was impossible to reach our objective financially and an increase in our deficit amounting to approximately two hundred dollars was unavoidable. It should be pointed out that we will attempt to operate on a budget including the same amount in subscriptions as in the year 1917 and 1918 whereas our operating costs are seventy-five per cent. greater than at that time.

The Association building has continued to be a meeting place for various civic and religious associations without charge.

The Ladies' Auxiliary has served the Association in its characteristic, efficient way and have added to its service by providing supper for the Y's Men's Club, which is a great deal appreciated by the club members.

The Board of Directors have given faithful and careful attention to the affairs of the Association and deserve the thanks of the members for their interest and devotion to the work.

Looking Forward.

At this time we should not only work back over the year that has gone, but try to catch a vision of the future and its possibilities. Our greatest problems at the present time are not particularly those of finances. The problem is that of providing for the needs of our members and for extending the influence of the Association to a larger number of young men and boys. At the present time it is practically impossible to serve in the membership any larger number than we are doing at present, particularly in the physical department. The survey of the locker accommodation shows that practically fifty per cent of the men's lockers are occupied by at least two members and in some cases more than this number are accommodated. There is no room to install more lockers in the present over-crowded locker rooms and our present situation shows that we have reached the limited accommodation in this department.

Our present swimming pool is decidedly unsatisfactory, being without a filter and on account of its location and construction it is impossible to keep it in any sanitary and attarctive condition. Owing to the antiquated heating system it is impossible to heat the water during the winter months. The location of our bowling alleys makes it very difficult to keep them in the attractive condition which should be characteristic of equipment maintained by the Association.

These unfavorable conditions call for the consideration of means for overcoming them and it is encouraging to be able to report that the directors at a special meeting considered favorably the plans for an extension on the south side of the building which have been laid away for some years. It is increasingly apparent that with the much higher standard set for swimming pools and other equipment of the Association that our facilities are no longer adequate.

This seems to be the conviction of the directors and this feeling is more or less freely expressed by the members themselves. It seems therefore that now is the psychological time to prepare for the completion of our plans for larger and more effective equipment. When this is secured there need be no limit set on the number of men and boys that may be served by the Association. If we all see the vision of possibilities and possess the necessary courage there should be no reason why 1928 should not be a turning point in the history of Peterborough Association.

With middle age ailments attacking over two-thirds of those past 40, every man who notices such distressing symptoms as Lameness, Pain in back and down through groin, scanty but frequent and burning Urination, "Getting-Up-Nights", Nervous Irritability and Lack of Force should at once try the amazing value of Dr. Southworth's URATABS.

While new to many, the truly remarkable value of URATABS has been thoroughly proven by more than 40 years of successful use in the private practice of Dr. H. C. Southworth. Reports from Doctors and Users alike offer convincing proofs: "I have never found anything to help my case until I tried URATABS." "URATABS are the best thing for Bladder Weakness and Irritation I have ever used." "No more backaches, no more pain, no more daily embarrassment of Getting-up-nights. I now sleep soundly and get up in the morning full of pep—thanks to URATABS."—This is amazing evidence!

No matter how long you have been troubled or how stubborn your case may seem to be, a ten-day test of Dr. Southworth's URATABS offers comfort and relief—and you can make the test without risk of cost, for any good druggist will supply you on guarantee of money back if not sat-

MISSION WORKER TELLS ABOUT CHINA

Miss Northcott Addresses Members of Missionary Societies.

Mrs. t r moved a vote of thanks to Miss Northcott on behalf of the W.M.S. of Knox United Church, which was seconded by Mrs. Burgess. Mrs. (Rev.) S. A. Kemp moved that the vote of thanks be made general on behalf of Regent street United church W.M.S. and the societies of the Baptist and Presbyterian churches. This motion was seconded by Mrs. Harv. This vote of thanks was heartily endorsed by all present.

R. W. Creighton, in thanking Miss Northcott for her address, and the ladies for their expression of appreciation, spoke of China's great age as a nation. It is said that the original Chinese left Mesopotamia for the East at the same time as Abraham went west to Palestine. Apropos of the saying that "East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet," Mr. Creighton spoke of the progress of Christianity which left Palestine and spread to Greece and western Europe, then to America and back to the East.

The Christian movement in Greece spread northward as well as westward, and the Orthodox Greek Church resulted, which was the Church of Eastern Europe, which in its turn spread East through Asia and found root in a Russian Christian Mission in Japan, which was carried on by one man. Christianity has encircled the earth.

Following the meeting, afternoon tea was served by the members of the W.A.

Beauty Treatments Lead To Boys' Arrest; Two Youths Given Life Terms For Murder

DUBUQUE, Iowa, January 20 (Canadian Press). — Two boys, er twenty, whose make-up of rouged cheeks, painted lips, and pencilled eyebrows has given way to the pallor that follows two months in jail, began serving life sentences to-day for slaying the grandmother of one of them. Leonard Cota, 18, and Howard Kramer, 19, were yesterday sentenced to life imprisonment for killing Cota's grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth McKitrick, of Zwingle, Iowa. It was the boys' "beauty" treatments that aroused the suspicion of the detectives, and led to their arrest six days after they had bound and gagged the aged woman and left her to die on the floor of the house while they looted twenty thousand dollars in cash and an equal amount in securities, nearly all of which was recovered.

Following the play, the Keene people entertained the visitors with a supper and dance, and the boys were unanimous in their appreciation of the hospitality shown by the people of Keene.

Gas in the Stomach Is Truly Dangerous

Gas, Pain, Bloating and a feeling of fullness after eating are almost certain evidence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach.

Too much acid irritates the delicate stomach lining, frequently causing chronic Gastritis and dangerous Ulcers. Food ferments and sours, forming a gas that distends the stomach, and often seriously affects the Heart.

It is genuine folly to neglect such a condition or to treat with artificial digestive aids that cannot neutralize the stomach acid. A better way is to get from your druggist some Bisurated Magnesia (powder or tablets) and take a little after each meal. This famous but simple and inexpensive stomach sweetener and anti-acid can be depended upon to prove its value in less than five minutes. In most instances, relief comes instantly! Pleasant and perfectly harmless to use—Bisurated Magnesia does give wonderful relief in nine out of ten cases. Ask your Doctor or Druggist.

Young Deer Is Seen Half Mile From City

A young deer was seen last night a half mile east of the city on the Warsaw Road by Harry Kearney. Mr. Kearney lives east of the Curtis brickyards, and early in the evening while returning home he saw a fawn on the road in front of the brickyards. When he saw the animal it ran east along the road. He followed for some little distance but lost it in the swamp.

The fawn is believed to have been chased down from the north by dogs, and yesterday the dogs of George Curtis took up the trail and chased it down to the road.

CHIMNEY FIRES GIVE MEN RUNS

Fire Brigade Makes Three Trips, Two to Ashburnham on Friday.

1927 LOSS $33,645.52.

After comparative quiet, the fire brigade received three calls on Thursday afternoon. The first of the trio came in at 1.25 p.m. from 219 Caddy street; the second at 1.48 p.m. from 169 Edinburgh street, and the third at 5.33 p.m. from 678 Armour Road. They were chimney fires.

A glance over Fire Chief Gimblett's records this morning revealed that in 1927 there were 438 alarms and 54 fires with a total loss of $33,645.52. This is a small loss, said the Chief, when it is considered that there are some 21,700 people in the city.

MAYOR DENNE IS RE-ELECTED TO PRESIDENCY OF EXHIBITION; IS UNANIMOUS CHOICE OF BOARD

T. M. McIndoo and W. F. Turner Are Vice-Presidents For 1928.

REPORT PRESENTED.

More Room Needed For Live Stock—Many New Entries Promised.

Mayor Denne was the unanimous choice for President of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition at the annual meeting of the Board held yesterday afternoon in the Council Chamber. His Worship was late in coming to the meeting as he had other important business to deal with, so in his absence Vice-President T. M. McIndoo took the chair and called for nominations for president. Mr. Denne's was the only name mentioned and when he came in he was taken by surprise and wanted them to hold another election, as he felt he would not be able to fill the position this year and that there were other men equally able to be President of the Exhibition, but the directors listened to his pleadings with a deaf ear.

Other officers elected were: First Vice President, T. M. McIndoo; Second Vice President, Webber Turner; Secretary, F. J. Hall; Treasurer, Fred Holmes; Managing Director of Live Stock, William Knox; Superintendent, J. Gillespie, and Honorary Treasurer, C. Cummer.

The financial report was not presented as D. Lawrie, the auditor, has not been able to audit the books. President Denne, in a short address, told of the visit to Toronto by the Board, and paid tribute to the members, all of whom paid their own expenses on that trip. He also thanked J. J. Duffus, G. A. Gillespie and ex-Mayor McIntyre for accompanying the delegation to Toronto. He was very optimistic about receiving a large grant from the government and asked the co-operation of the members in the coming year as there is a big effort to be made before the 1928 Exhibition opens.

Directors

The Board of Directors consists of: C. E. Moore, W. Steinkrauss, Thomas Graham, W. R. Shields, K. Denoon, Vivian Milburn, H. S. Routley, Walter Bowles, A. J. Reynolds, S. T. Milburn, J. Williams, C. F. Kitney, W. S. Merrill, V. Eastwood, Tom Brown, Stanley Lowe, J. A. Middleton, C. G. Graham, Gus White, R. T. Lillico, T. H. Hooper, J. O. Ball, E. F. Mason, D. Jordan, W. Stewart, R. M. Glover, J. McFarlane, J. McIntosh.

Live Stock Report

A most complete report on the live stock entry and the requirement necessary in that department was submitted by William Knox, managing director.

"In 1927 there were 1,100 entries of horses, cattle, sheep and swine, showing an increase of 25 per cent over the previous year. Cattle showed the largest increase when there were 450 entries compared to 309 the previous year. Horses dropped from 245 to 213, sheep entries increased from 223 to 307, and the swine entry was more than twice that of 1926.

"At present we are badly in need of more accommodation, for we have only stabling room for 300 cattle, 225 sheep, 100 swine, and 150 horses.

"Last fall we had in the neighborhood of 50 head of cattle including milch cows tied in the open. Some 80 head of sheep were housed in the Agricultural Representative's tent. The overflow of horses had to be housed in the race horse barns and temporary pens were built during the exhibition for the swine."

Mr. Knox held out every hope of those who were here in 1927 returning and he also sounded a most promising note for an increased entry.

"J. M. O'Brien of Renfrew will be here with a large string of Herefords. The Mossom Boyd Company of Bobcaygeon are coming back with a better class than ever. Mr. Shannon of Oakville is considering Peterborough this year with his famous Aberdeen Angus herd. J. Milligan and Sons of Cannington wish to come here with a large entry of Guernseys which will make us open up a class in our entry list for this breed of cattle," said Mr. Knox.

"While at the Royal last Fall looking up prospects for our exhibition, we received great encouragement from the exhibitors of sheep and swine. They praised the Peterborough Exhibition and promised to come here in large numbers next September. Their welcome assurance was: 'Just make room for us and if you need a donation, call on us and we will help you out.'

"We propose to divide the judging competition into two classes, Senior and Junior. The young farmers are taking a real interest in these judg-

Three Laborers Crushed To Death

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 21. — (Canadian Press).—Three men were crushed to death yesterday in the Canadian Vickers, Limited, boiler shop, when a steel beam on a travelling crane struck one of the three large circular plates and sent it against the others, jamming them together. The men, Robert Thornton, 35, Arthur Taylor, 39, and Robert Shields, 32, were engaged in painting the plates.

The men were crushed almost to a pulp beneath the weight of the plates. Thornton and Taylor were dead when pulled out by other employees, and Shields died a short time later in the first aid hospital of the plant.

RURAL DEANERY CLERGY MEET

Addresses By Rev. Major Belford and Rev. N. C. Wallace Feature Sessions.

REV. MR. SPENCE PRESIDES.

Of considerable importance was the ruri-decanal chapter meeting of the Deanery of Peterborough, which opened in St. John's church, Hunter street, Friday morning, and concluded with a splendid discourse by Rev. N. Clarke Wallace of Campbellford, in the evening.

In attendance throughout the various sessions were: The Rev. C. A. G. Spence, Rural Dean, of Apsley; Rev. R. T. C. Dwelly, secretary of Young's Point; Rev. T. J. O'Conor-Fenton, of Norwood; Rev. N. C. Wallace, of Campbellford; Rev. J. F. B. Belford, of Codrington; Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D., of St. John's church, Peterborough; Rev. J. L. Hughes of St. George's; Rev. J. D. Paterson of All Saints' Church; Rev. G. J. Bousfield of St. Luke's church, Peterborough and Rev. W. A. Pippin, of Hastings.

Celebration of the Holy Communion took place at 10.30 in the morning and at 11.00 a.m. the regular opening took place, including reception of the minutes. Fifteen minutes later the Rev. T. J. O'Conor-Fenton's subject was "The Greek Testament, (Romans xiii.)

Afternoon Session.

"The Church and its Relation to the Language Problem," was the subject of a most informing and interesting address by the Rev. James F. B. Belford, which featured the afternoon session.

The reverend gentleman delivered an informal talk on this occasion and discussion of many phases of his message was taken part in by others.

There was also considerable routine business discussed and disposed of before the closing of the meeting.

The Evening Service.

And he brought him to Jesus. And when Jesus beheld him, he said: "Thou art Simon, the son of Jonah; thou shalt be called Cephas, which is, by interpretation, a stone." Taking this, the 42nd verse of the first chapter of St. John, as his text, Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, of Campbellford, delivered a brief but inspiring sermon at the evening service, which was attended by many members of the congregation of St. John's Church.

The call to discipleship is one the church makes always. It cannot cease. Study of the Gospel shows that there is not one set form by which God calls men. Because it is an invitation men should be concerned with finding to whom that invitation comes or through what form it is sent. He not only said that He had come as a physician and called sinners unto Himself—He not only called to Himself all who were weak and heavy laden, but He placed Himself at their service. During months of His ministry there may have been many misconceptions of His word, but He made it clear that He was sympathetic to all who called Him.

The Jews were a race among which were many who appreciated the deliverance He represented. eH wished to teach the teachers first—that is why he seemed to neglect the Gentiles at first, but Christ made Himself the universal Saviour; that was clearly shown. He formed a personal connection with individuals in varied ways. This was shown by the manner in which he met the first five disciples.

At first Simon was delightfully surprised, then despaired, because of his unbalanced life. Simon thought he would not be suitable, but he went to see the newly discovered King and heard these words: "Thou art Simon, son of Jonah," and the words which followed, showing that He appreciated Simon's attitude. Thus, Simon was won by the assurance that there is room in the kingdom of God for such characters as his.

Thriugh Simon, Christ calls all diffident people who despair that they are not suited. He offers them new character and soundness, and so the call comes to men now as to Simon, and He will say, "Thou art Simon, son of Jonah—thou shalt be called Cephas."

Special music also featured the evening service, the children's choir being heard to advantage.

FEW ATTEND FARM MARKET

Cold Weather Serves To Keep Buyers and Sellers Away.

PRODUCE SCARCE.

Attendance at the farmers' market was slim this morning, and vendors were conspicuous by their small numbers. On the open market, where the brisk chill of the sub-zero temperature had a full scope over the open space, meat carcasses and wood were the only offerings, the former being quoted at 12 and 14 cents for beef, 26 cents for lamb, and 15 and 17 cents for front and hind quarters of pork. Hardwood was $9 and $10 a load, in stove lengths, and a load of elm was $9.

Upstairs, the stove proved a mecca for all patrons and showed a bright red fire between the grate openings. The usual large number of women vendors was lacking, and produce was scarce. Eggs were offered at 45 to 48 cents a dozen, butter at 38 and 40 cents a pound, and chicken at 28 and 30 cents a pound.

Urges Abolition Of Human Slavery

LONDON, Jan. 21 (Associated Press).—Lady Kathleen Simon, wife of Sir John Simon, noted Liberal statesman, who had much to do with bringing freedom to a quarter of a million slaves in Sierra Leone, Africa, speaking at the showing of the film, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," yesterday appealed for complete abolition of human slavery throughout the world in this generation.

"We have reason to believe," she said, "that there are still three or four million slaves to be set free in Abyssinia and China. Mothers have their children torn from them and massacred before their eyes. Husbands are torn from their wives, and, in Abyssinia, are marched across the deserts. They are brought to the slave market and sold like cattle into serfdom, which only ends with the grave."

Sir Austen Chamberlain and Lord Cecil, she said, had appealed to the League of Nations to regard ships which carry slaves as pirates, but their plea failed when France, Italy, Portugal, and some other nations declined to support it.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH REPORTS PLEASING

Congregation Is In Splendid Condition Financially and Otherwise.

The annual congregational meeting of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was held in the Sunday School Hall, Wednesday, January 18, 1928. A goodly number of members were present. Rev. William Allan, pastor, conducted the devotional exercises. On his vacating the chair, Mr. Lees was elected chairman to conduct the business part of the meeting. Very interesting reports were presented from the various organizations, a detail report of which will appear in the Annual Report. The Treasurer's statement, which is the index of the financial standing of the congregation, was a very encouraging one. Notwithstanding the fact, that the number of contributors had been considerably reduced, owing to removals and deaths, the returns had been quite satisfactory, and the books were closed with a substantial credit balance. The total receipts from open and envelope collection amounting to $9,906.82; from special contributions, $2,297.94; total $12,204.76.

Envelope contribution to mission, $3,795.98; from Sunday School for missions, $100.00; total $3.805.98.

Protestant Home, Mrs. W. H. Hill.

Children's Aid Society, J. A. McNabb.

Nicholls Hospital, E. F. Mason.

Auditors, W. L. Ferguson, Richard Lees.

Mr. Dutton presented the General Assembly's scheme of pensions, and the allocation for St. Paul's, was accepted by the congregation.

Appreciation of the services of the choir for attending so regularly and in such numbers all the services was expressed.

The Superintendent and officers of the Sunday School have been greatly encouraged by the growing interest in the work; the attendance at present being the largest for some time past.

THE WEATHER

We had some real winter weather last evening and during the night. While the temperature was not very low there was a biting wind. Lowest temperature during the night 9 degrees below zero. Later on in the morning it got down to 10 below. This is the lowest this winter.—W.P.

BIBLE SUNDAY BEING OBSERVED

Local Congregations To Hear Sermons on Work Next Sunday.

MEETING TO-MORROW.

Practically all the Protestant churches have arranged to recognize Sunday, Jan. 29, as Bible Sunday. Addresses will be given in each congregation either by the pastor or by a visiting speaker on the remarkable work being accomplished in different parts of the world through the distribution of copies of the Scriptures by representatives of the Canadian and the British and Foreign Bible Societies.

It has been decided not to ask for a special collection in the different congregations on "Bible Society Sunday." Instead the different congregations are being asked to provide canvassers with the purpose of conducting a city-wide canvass during the week commencing Jan. 30. Different sections of the city will be assigned to different congregations. Experience has shown that this method of raising funds gives better results than when special collections are taken up in the different conugregations as it ensures more people being reached. A special meeting of representatives of the different congregations will be held to-morrow afternoon in the Y.M.C.A., when arrangements will be made for the canvass and for a special mass meeting to be held Jan. 30 in the Murray Street Baptist Church.

WOUNDED MAN DIES.

Sydney Yarmul, Shot as Bandit, Succumbs to Wound.

MONTREAL, Jan. 21 (Canadian Press).—Sydney Yarmul, hat designer, died in hospital early to-day. He was shot by a policeman yesterday when Armand Robillard, manager of the local bank, which was held up on Thursday, thought he identified Yarmul as one of the robbers. Yarmul, ordered to hold up his hands by the policeman, lowered them and placed them in his pockets, and the policeman, thinking he was reaching for a gun, fired the fatal shot.

Regular Trans-Atlantic Airship Service Will Be Established Within Three Years

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (Canadian Press). — Regular airship passenger service between London and either New York or Montreal will begin within the next two or three years, Commander Charles D. Burney of the British Navy, said yesterday upon his arrival on the liner Homeric.

The projected trans-Atlantic flight of the dirigible R-100 next summer by the Airship Guarantee Company of England, he said, is planned as a demonstration flight preliminary to instituting regular service. The ship is being built to carry 100 passengers and 25 tons of paying loads at a speed of 75 miles an hour for 4,000 miles. It is expected to make the westward crossing in 43 hours and the return trip in 38 hours.

Commander Burney came here to arrange for landing facilities at New York and Montreal. He will seek permission for use of the mooring mast at the naval air station at Lakehurst, N.J., and the mast now under construction by the British Government at Montreal.

The R-100, he explained, will be the first of several ships to be put into service. Its successors, he said, will carry 33 tons of paying load at 100 mile speed for 6,000 miles without refueling. Negotiations will be started for mail contracts with the British, Canadian and United States Governments.

COSGRAVE HAS BRIEF VISIT AT NEW YORK

MINOR DISCORDS.

Thousands Line Dock on Arrival of Irish Free State President.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 21 (Canadian Press).—President William T. Cosgrave of the Irish Free State, whirled through New York so fast yesterday on his first visit to America that he was gone almost before it was realized he was here.

Landing at the Battery just before noon, he was on his way to Chicago well before three o'clock. His brief stay consisted of not much more than a ride up Broadway and a handful of official speeches.

Three thousand police were called out to preserve order, but they had almost nothing to do beyond watching the parade and listening to the band.

Few Minor Disorders.

A few very minor disorders were quickly quieted, but they did not escape the quick eye of the little blonde Irishman. Asked, as he was leaving, if he had noticed the weak attempts at unfriendly demonstrations, he chuckled and replied, "Oh, yes, indeed."

The liner Homeric, on which President Cosgrave came to New York, reached Quarantine late Thursday night, but the passengers remained aboard. Yesterday morning, the Irish leader was transferred to the city tug Macom and brought to the Battery by the Mayor's welcoming committee, each silk-hatted member wearing a large gold badge on which the visitor's name was spelled Cosgrove instead of Cosgrave by what Grover Whalen, the Mayor's welcomer in chief, called a "stupid error."

Crowd at Battery.

The crowd at the Battery, a friendly crowd, though undemonstrative and scarcely more numerous than the police, had been cleared of three men and a woman bearing placards derogatory to the President shortly before he arrived.

The progress up Broadway was between lanes of police so close that they looked like a blue picket fence. A few women waving flags and shouting remarks of an unfriendly nature gave police the only work they had to do.

At City Hall, the President and the Mayor, who had met in Ireland last year, exchanged felicitations and then the Presidential party continued uptown, to receive the blessing of Cardinal Hayes.

After that, they went to the private railway cars and soon were whisked away. It seemed possible that somewhere on his journey President Cosgrave might easily enough meet Eamon de Valera, Irish Republican leader, and his political adversary, who is also in the United States, but little was said about that.

"My mission is one of friendship," the President told reporters. "It would not be fitting for me now to speak of Mr. de Valera."

From Chicago the President and his party will go to Ottawa, Washington, Philadelphia, and so back to New York. Mr. Cosgrave will arrive in Ottawa on January 29. When in Washington he will be honored at a dinner to be given by Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian Minister to the United States.

Accompanying President Cosgrave are Colonel Joseph O'Reilly, aide-de-camp and personal bodyguard, one of the best pistol shots in Europe. Colonel O'Reilly acted in a similar capacity for the late Michael Collins. Also there is Diarmuid O'Hagerty, secretary of the Executive Council, and secretary of the department of the President; Joseph P. Walsh, secretary of external affairs, and Desmond FitzGerald, minister of defence. These make up the official party.

DISPOSAL PLANS ARE DISCUSSED

Dr. Berry, of Department of Health, Looks Over Sewage Disposal Situation.

TO ELIMINATE ODOR.

Dr. A. F. Berry, Director of the Revision of Sanitary Engineering of the Ontario Department of Health, on the invitation of Mayor Denne, visited the local sewage disposal plant, and discussed the plans whereby the plant will become more workable.

Mayor Denne is anxious to have the drying beds and digestive tanks installed in the local plant as soon as possible, so that there will not be the same disagreeable odor in the southern part of the city and surrounding townships this summer as there was last.

Announcement is made in the papers of Akron's 148th annual automobile show to be held next February. The Ohio city must have had motor cars some years before the rest of us.

FLOWER LOVERS OF THIS CITY HOLD THEIR ANNUAL MEETING; ALD. W. STOCKER IS PRESIDENT

INTERESTING PAPERS.

W. H. Young Discusses Roses and A. E. Prest Talks on Gladioli.

Ald. Walter Stocker was elected President of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, succeeding Charles Lacheur in that office, at the annual meeting of the Society held last night in the Chamber of Commerce. Other officers chosen were W. H. Young, first vice-president; A. E. Prest, second vice-president; S. T. Harris, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. S. T. Harris, Miss Eason, Harry Carter, Harry Beal, Fred Hall and J. Grierson, directors for two years.

Reports were presented at the meeting by the chairman of the Finance committee, Mr. Beal, showing a balance in the treasury; from the chairman of the Junior Horticultural work, A. J. Madill, telling of the success of the effort among the school children, 655 of whom had taken out a membership, and from the chairman of the membership committee, S. T. Harris.

President's Address.

A society such as ours, engaged in a specifically important community work, in addition to leadership, requires the active co-operation and guidance of an able directorate, who select chairmen of the different committees entrusted with the various phases of the horticultural development in the city.

I have been associated with the Peterborough Horticultural Society for some years and have followed its activities with much interest. This year, as chairman, I should like to make it clear that the progress made by the society has had the able direction, as I have had the assistance, of able men—men who have given much of their time at some sacrifice, I feel, to carry out the various undertakings of the Society. In the selection off commitee chairmen the society has been fortunate, as will develop later in the evening, when reports from the chairmen are called for.

Commitees for the year just passed were appointed as follows:

Finance Committee: Chairman H. L. Beal.

Premiums, Parks and Beds: Chairman D. C. Grant, with J. S. McGiffen, B.S.A., and W. H. Young.

Publicity Chairman, J. H. Callander with the president and the secretary.

Junior Membership: Chairman A. J. Madill.

Membership: Chairman S. T. Harris.

A problem which came up for consideration in the past year was a proposal by the city council tendered by Ald. J. M. Greene, chairman of Parks and Railways Committee, that the society administer the funds available from the city for the purpose of caring for and improving the city's parks. Had the proposal advocated the selection from the society of a parks commissioner, who thus appointed would have been assured of ample funds to carry on this work it is probable that the decision of this society would have been different. It was not thought advisable for us as a society to take over the care of the parks without the assurance of ample funds for judicious expenditure contingent upon this particular activity. That the city council should honour us with their confidence and make such a proposal to the society during my presidential term is I should think, a tribute to our organization, and it is only fitting that this address should contain something in the nature of appreciation of the confidence which the city council thought fit to repose in us.

The Gladiolus Show.

Of considerable interest locally, and perhaps leading directly from the Gladiolus competition held in Peterborough last year, was the down town Gladiolus exhibit, held last fall in the J. C. Turnbull windows kindly donated for that purpose. The Gladiolus is a beautiful flower and if such exhibits do nothing more than fire the enthusiasm of the people to beautify their home surroundings, we will say that they are worth while.

Of special interest to the membership will be the participation of the society in the outstandingly successful Peterborough celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation. The Horticultural float in this parade was admired by the thousands of eye-witnesses, and in addition to giving the Society some desirable publicity it must have been gratifying to Nature lovers to see that the beauties of nature are not to be excelled by the handiwork of man.

A suggestion which has been left over for the incoming executive was that an Iris and Peony exhibit be held in the window of a down town store. There is no reason why these exhibits should be confined to Gladiolus as there are many admirers of different kinds of flowers.

Our annual Lawn and Garden competition produced great interest this year, and no doubt the activity will in the future as in the past, increase

SHERIFF F. J. A. HALL,
Who continues to act as Secretary of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.

OTTAWA QUIET; CABINET IS BUSY

Sessional Program Still Closely Guarded—Speculation is Scarce.

MANY DELEGATIONS.

OTTAWA, January 21 (Canadian Press). — The events of the week in the Capital were not of a nature to catch the headlines of the press. Undoubtedly many things were happening within the inner council of the Cabinet where the Government's sessional program was being formulated, but as these matters are most closely guarded secrets, they were not productive of news. The Speech from the Throne, which will be read by His Excellency the Governor-General in the Senate Chamber on Thursday, will likely reveal some of the past week's Governmental activity, but the Prime Minister and his Cabinet have been notably silent, and even press speculation regarding legislation to be brought down has been meagre.

The Government departments have, in the natural course of their work, provided some news. The work of the Royal Canadian Air Force in Hudson Straits is reported as progressing favorably, and veteran flying men state that the men operating the survey there are carrying on one of the most strenuous flying undertakings in the world. It has been said that some announcement is to be made shortly by the Minister of the Interior regarding the Alberta-Ontario coal movement question.

As is usual during the days preceding the opening of Parliament, there have been several public and private delegations bringing to the Government requests for new laws, amendments to old laws, or advances from the treasury of the country.

RE-TRIAL ORDERED FOR BART BROOKS

Costs Expected To Make Record For Canadian Criminal Case.

TORONTO, January 21 (Canadian Press).—A third trial was ordered today by the Hon. W. H. Price, Ontario Attorney-General, for Bartlett J. Brooks, charged with attempting to procure an illegal operation for Ruth Dembner, his fiancee, who died a year ago.

Brooks' first trial, conviction and sentence of five years was quashed and the second ended last night in jury disagreement.

The third trial may bring the costs of the action up to a record figure for a Canadian criminal case. Two appeals were taken before the first trial was quashed. It is understood that Brooks will be allowed bail of ten thousand dollars, pending the third trial.

COBHAM RESUMES AFRICAN JOURNEY

Minor Mishaps To Plane Have Delayed Him at Malta Since November.

MALTA, Jan 21, Canadian Press. Sir Alan and Lady Cobham resumed their twenty thousand mile flight to Africa on Saturday. Cobham's seaplane suffered a number of minor mishaps upon its arrival here at the end of November.

ATORS TRACE SSING GIRL

$10,000 REWARD.

Woman Resembling Her at Pittsburgh, Pa., Was a Toronto Buyer.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 21. Canadian Press. — Despite the fact that St. John Smith, father of the missing Frances St. John Smith, had increased to $10,000 his offer of reward for information leading to her discovery no new clue of importance was available to the investigators yesterday.

In the week that has passed since the 19 year old Smith college freshman walked out of her room in Dewey Hall, she has been reported from a hundred points and detectives have scrutinized nearly a score of photostatic copies of hotel registers without avail.

Hope in what seemed to be a likely clue in Pittsburgh, Pa., was blasted when a girl who had been thought to resemble Miss Smith at a hotel there, was proven to be a Toronto jewelry buyer.

State Detective Joseph V. Daley, in charge of investigation here clings to his originally expressed theory that Miss Smith drowned herself in the Connecticut River.

Was Toronto Buyer.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 21. Canadian Press. — Miss Faye Neal, daughter of Rev. Thomas Neal, of 9 Homewood avenue, Toronto, while on business in Pittsburgh this week was the innocent cause of a considerable hubbub in connection with the search for Miss Frances Smith. An employee of the hotel where Miss Neal stopped thought she saw in Miss Neal a strong resemblance to the missing college girl, and she notified the police. Miss Neal continued on her way to New York without knowledge of the commotion she was leaving behind her. The Pittsburgh police called Toronto and learned that Miss Neal was a buyer for a Toronto jewelry firm, and that another clue had exploded.

From a Demented Person

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. — Canadian Press. — The police expresed the opinion yesterday that a telegrgam signed "O. F. Jones," saying that a "revelation" had informed the sender that the body off Miss Frances St. John Smith had been shipped to Jacksonville, was from a demented person.

The telegram sent from Jacksonville, read: "Revelation, Smith girl's body in container; checked out as baggage to Jacksonville, Florida."

Trapper Battles Lake Superior Waves In Open Rowboat To Aid Dying Friend

DULUTH, Minn., January 21 (Canadian Press). — A story of a forty-hour battle against high waves and ice cakes on Lake Superior in an open rowboat, equipped with an outboard motor, to bring a friend to the mainland for medical attention, was recounted yesterday by Arthur Anderson, Michigan State trapper from Isle Royal.

Ralph Anderson, 35, another Isle Royal trapper, is the man whose life Arthur Anderson is believed to have saved when Ralph became seriously ill a week ago. They are not related.

Hearing of Ralph's plight through another trapper, Arthur started out in his small boat, following the shore line of Isle Royal, to Rock Harbor, where he picked up the sick man.

The journey began at six p.m. on Wednesday, January 11. The lake was choppy, Anderson said, and after running for about fifteen miles through the ice cakes, he put in at Chippewa Harbor. The next morning the weather was still bad, and it was snowing heavily.

Undaunted, he wrapped his ill companion warmly and set out into the open lake to battle the high seas, floating ice cakes, and the snowstorm. He reached Hay Bay, about twenty miles farther on, before being forced to seek shelter.

Friday morning they again started out, putting into Washington Harbor for shelter, warmth and food at a trapper's cabin there. Later the wind shifted to the north-east, aiding the small motor, and they were able to make Grand Portage, on the mainland.

The total trip covered seventy-eight miles.

By automobile, they made their way on Saturday through the snowdrifts to the Two Harbors Hospital. Anderson is now receiving treatment for typhoid fever, and is considered out of danger.

REVISED BOOK IS PUBLISHED

New Book To Be Submitted To Church Assembly on February 6.

CHANGES MADE.

LONDON, January 21 (Associated Press).—Another move in the religious strife featuring the life of England at present was made yesterday with publication of the newly revised prayer book of the Church of England, which will be submitted to the Church Assembly on February 6.

If ratified by the Church Assembly, the book will again go to the House of Commons, where on December 15, after one of the most dramatic debates in modern times, Parliament rejected the version upon which the Church authorities had labored twenty years.

Coming closely on the heels of publication of the "Malines Conversations," which had sought church unity, and the Pope's encyclical stating definitely that a return to Rome was essential for church unity, the renewed attempt to obtain approval of the revised prayer book by the House of Commons is expected to add fuel to the flame of religious controversy. This controversy has its genesis in charges by one section of the Church of England that the revised prayer book is a movement in the direction of Roman Catholic forms and practices.

Certain changes have been made in the newly-revised version of the prayer book with reference to forms of worship which came under criticism, but it is understood that these are considered minor and ineffective ones by the Protestant Anglicans, and a renewed fight on the revision consequently is expected both in the Church Assembly and in Parliament. It is probable that the new measure will reach the House of Commons early in May.

Press Comment.

The Westminster Gazette asserts editorially that if the changes now proposed in the prayer book had been made in the first instance, the measure might have been accepted by the House of Commons, but, it thinks, now doubtful after all the fierce feeling aroused and the contemptuous remarks certain bishops made about the House of Commons whether the measure will prove acceptable.

"The issue," says the paper, "has been broadened out into a national issue, in which the Reformation and the Episcopacy are challenging symbols."

SALE OF STOCK WELL ATTENDED

COWS IN DEMAND.

WARSAW, Jan. 21.—A large crowd gathered at Alex. Calder's sale of stock and grain on Wednesday, January 18. Mr. Calder has a reputation for good stock and good grain, and men came for many miles. The cows averaged over one hundred dollars each, one selling for $126. The calves went at $33 each. One sow, with seven little ones, went for thirty-seven dollars. The hens, mostly rocks, with some leghorns, sold for from one dollar each to one dollar and twenty cents each.

One bin of oats went at seventy-five cents a bushel, and another at eighty cents a bushel.

The wheat went at $1.30 a bushel.

Mr. Calder kept one milch cow, and is raising forty head of two-year-olds.

In general, cattle are expensive here as elsewhere. Pigs are a drug, as the prices realized, even for selects, do not make hog raising a paying proposition. Many farmers are going out of this business altogether. The market for them is always fluctuating. They require a good deal of work, and even where there are plenty of roots to feed them, a farmer gets but little pay for his time, let alone interest on the money expended, or the value of the feed.

One man recently offered a batch of newly weaned pigs at one dollar each. Pigs a little older have changed hands at two dollars each, and some averaging sixty to eighty pounds at four dollars each.

Those who ship their fowl are still getting thirty and thirty-one cents clear for their chickens, dressed. Those who sell locally do not spend the time to go to the station.

The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid met at Mrs. William Dunford's home on Thursday afternoon. The sleety rain and wind kept several ladies at home. Final plans were made for the Sunday school entertainment.

A few nights ago a large doe was chased to Mr. Thomas Cooper's farm, and, held by the wire fence, caught in the vegetable garden. It was killed and found to be torn, evidently by fox dogs. It is not known from whence it was chased. There is a lot of fox chasing and people do not pay much attention to dogs unless they are interested in chases.

LAKEFIELD FAIR BOARD ELECTED

BALANCE IN TREASURY.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 21.—The annual meeting of the Lakefield Agricultural Society was held on Thursday afternaoon in the Council Chamber, with the president, Albert Darling, in the chair.

The president thanked the directors for their support and co-operation during the past year. He had only to mention work required to the directors to have it done, he said. The year had not been as successful as they could wish, but it did not fall behind, in fact there had been a slight gain each year. The fair was a success.

The financial report showed total receipts for the year of $1,469.73. Among the more important items making up this total were grants from the municipality and townships as follows: County grant, $200.00; Lakefield Council, $50.00; Smith Council $40.00; Douro Council, $25.00; Government grant, $169.00; Lakefield School Board grant, $49.60.

The gate receipts at the fair were $455, from the grand stand $21.60, and from the concert $72, from the concessions $14.00.

The fees for 1927 amounted to $52.00 and the balance carried over from 1926 was $129.53.

The expenditure for 1927 amounted to $1,262.21 which included $117.75 for printing, prizes for the school fair $46.35, horse race purse $150.00, foot and bicycle races $10.00, and other prizes $497.70; field crop competition $75.00, interest on the mortage $75.00; secretary's salary $50.00.

The balance on hand is $207.52, but the insurance premium and one or two small bills not yet in, are not included in the year's expenses.

The financial statement was adopted on motion of Messrs. Braden and Tedford.

Reports were given by members of the board of directors who served on the Horse committee, Cattle committee, Sheep committee and Concert committee.

Mr. Galvin reported $42.00 profit for the concert.

The society decided to enter again in the field crop competition.

CANADA ELIGIBLE TO ENTER UNION

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 21 (Canadian Press Cable).—Canada's position as a nation within the British Commonwealth need not prevent the participation of the Dominion in the Pan-American Union in the opinion of Julio Garcia, chief of the Mexican delegation to the Pan-American Conference now in session here. Canada is a nation within the American continent, her national status is equal to that of any other American country, and she should participate in American family conclaves, said Senor Garcia in an interview with the Canadian Press correspondent here.

NEW AUTOMOBILES STIR PUBLIC INTEREST.

Automobiles have been taking first place in the interest of the general public for some months. First all was the great expectancy as to what the many manufacturers would bring forth to meet the new order of things. Some brought out entirely new models, while others made drastic price reductions, then others made general equipment additions with changes in body construction that matched their more expensive brothers, and yet remained in their former price field. Among the latter class, the most outstanding example is the Pontiac Six —a General Motors product. Much special interest has been taken in this member of that tremendous organization, as it was the first to be entirely originated by them. Unusual precautions were taken to have this a proven product before putting it on the market. It was thoroughly tested in its every phase for over 2½ years, on the General Motors' proving ground. Their success is shown by the tremendous increase in their sales from year to year.

The recent announcement of the new models for 1928 has produced a great deal of interest and a great number have taken the opportunity of inspecting the new models in the show room of A. Brown & Son, 383 Water street. Outstanding among the new models on display is the Imperial Landau Sedan, which has been carried out in the most effective colour scheme, while the interior is finished in elaborate mohair plush, and the doors and instrument board are inlaid with walnut finished panels.

Besides the many chassis improvements, one is surprised to find in this low priced Six, the complete equipment that it has, including Love Joy Shock Absorbers, Oil Filter, Air Cleaner, Gasoline Filter, Thermostat Control on Radiator, Vacuum Cleaned Crank Case, Cross Flow Radiator and Four Wheel Brakes, a Semi-Coincidental Lock, that locks both the ignition and transmission at the same time. One of the great safety features is the including of head light tilting beams—a real courtesy light in every sense of the word.

Your time in close inspection of these latest Pontiac Sixes will convince you of the tremendous value incorporated in these cars.

POLICE STILL SEEK GIRL'S ASSAILANT

Request For Protection Received For Children of North Toronto.

TORONTO, January 20 (Canadian Press).—Police continued to day the almost hopeless endeavor to find some trace of the person or persons responsible for the death of thirteen-year-old Florence Costello, North Toronto schoolgirl, whose body was found in a creek some weeks ago, with a fractured skull and bearing evidence that she had been assaulted.

One outcome of the case is the Board of Education's request to the City Council to provide a safe way for children of the northern section to reach John Ross Robertson School without passing through a piece of bush to the north of that school.

Repeated complaints have been made of school children being accosted and the latent fears of parents have been aroused in full force. Two serious incidents have already occurred near the Robertson school, and as recently as Friday last school children near there were terrified by the actions of a strange man who accosted them on their way to school. Police were notified but the offender had escaped.

Recent Zero Weather Over the Great Lakes District Moderates To-day.

HIGH WINDS.

CHICAGO, Ills. Jan. 21.— (Canadian Press.)— A winter's spasm of wind and cold afflicting the Middle West Thursday night and Friday was less severe last night with complete relief in sight to-day.

At is height the wind attained a velocity of 65 miles an hour doing small damage at scattered places in the Great Lakes states and tossing Lake Michigan about so turbulently that virtually all shipping remained in harbor. Two deaths one at St. Paul and another at Milwaukee, were attributed to the storm.

Zero weather was recorded in the upper tier of Lakes states, while in Illinois and Indiana the thermometer dropped to ten above. Snow may follow the moderation to-day.

A peculiar accident delayed many commuters yesterday. The wind carried away a heavy switch control box and stalled ten Illinois Central suburban trains until the switch could be repaired.

PROPOSES INCREASE ON IMPORT RATES

Iowa Representative Would Increase Rates on Dozen Farm Commodities.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 21. — (Canadian Press.)—In the face of opposition on the part of Republican party leaders to revision of the tariff at this time, Representative Dickinson, Republican, Iowa, yesterday proposed an increase on the import rates of more than a dozen farm commodities and the transfer of a number of others from the free to the protected list.

He introduced a bill to that end and it was referred to the ways and means committee which must pass on tariff legislatin, but predictions based on the line-up of the House recently on the tariff question for the most part were that it would not get far.

Dickinson is a leader of the farm bloc in the House and his proposal is designed to benefit the farmer. While Democrats and a number of Republicans from the farm sections are expected to favor a report of the measure from committee, Democratic leaders have declined to commit themselves to any programme on the floor.

Several days ago, the Senate resolution, which called for a scaling down of "excessive" tariff duties as a means of affording farm relief, was tabled by the House on a rather decisive vote, this result being considered by many members as an indication that the House is in no need to readjust tariff schedules.

Among the products the Dickinson bill would afford greater tariff protection for are cocoanut oil, cattle, cattle hides, swine, extracts of meat, fresh, prepared or preserved; corn or maise, including cracked corn; oil bearing seeds, nuts and oils, expressed or extracted..

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

WILL HOUGHTON, at one point in the game of living, seemed destined to spend his days, and nights, too, in the show business. He was fascinated by the footlights and determined to be an actor. He had it in him to be a success; and if something had not happened to change the whole current of his life, his name, by this time, might have been that of another Broadway star! He has a charming personality supported by a magnificent physique. His voice is a glorious baritone. But he met the Son of God, and was turned aside from the stage to the cross. He is now a very successful minister of the gospel of Jesus Christ, and I count it an honor to have worked with him as a friend and brother craftsman. At an odd time I am made to think of him, although he is now in one country and I am in another. He rises before me as I recall some of his sayings when we were near each other.

COPYING CHRIST.

He says we have passed through a decade or two of preaching the ethics of Jesus. We have been told, and are still being told, that it is a great mistake to exalt the death of Jesus. What the world needs is to copy the life of Christ.

I can easily imagine that I am present in his church when he is preaching to a great congregation with this as his theme. And when he reaches that part of the subject I seem to hear him say: "Will all the good people who copy the life of Christ please stand? We would like to look at you. Have you read the life of Jesus? You have read He went about doing good. Perhaps you think of the expression 'doing good' as meaning the bestowing of little kindnesses as He went along the highways and byways of the land that flows with milk and honey. No doubt the Christ went out of the way to perform little thoughtful deeds, but they are not written in the story. According to the story as given in Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, His good deeds were MIRACLES.

"He never gave money to a blind man—He gave him new eyes.

"He never dropped a dollar in the box to help pay the funeral expenses of a widow's son. He gave life to the corpse.

"He never hurried out at night to get the doctor for a sick neighbor. He was the doctor.

"He never helped some old lame man across the street. He ironed out the limp.

"If you know of anyone doing good on this plan, send me his address. I'll walk a hundred miles to see him."

I can almost hear a pin drop on the heavily carpeted church floor as he pauses for a moment—which seems to be the length of an hour—and looks out over the congregation in search of some particular individual. It is one of those moments when you are made to feel that a searchlight is streaming into every heart and laying bare the thoughts and intents of the innermost being of man.

REAL PREACHING.

This is the sort of preaching I want to hear. I don't want the ministry of a man who makes me think mostly of kid gloves and rose water. Give me the privilege of "sitting under" a man who knows how to drive the gospel plough-share deep into the sub-soil of the soul. Let me get to the man who will not let me lose myself in the crowd. He may hurt my human feelings, but he will heal my soul.

I have heard some men speak in so apologetic a manner that I have wanted to kick them. And because I could not relieve my feelings in some such way, I have left feeling quite sick. All of which leads me to think that there are some men in the pulpit absolutely unfitted for it both by nature and by grace! They are the proverbial round pegs in square holes! When they preach you may get the idea that there is some such thing in the world as sin and some such people as sinners, but not within the sanctuary where they are preaching. It is their good fortune to have a congregation of very superior people to minister unto, and so they will spend their time in painting the flowers and parading the poets. The result is that the people in the pews get a thin sort of intellectual hash which even a goat would have difficulty in swallowing.

LET'S FACE FACTS.

"There are some who imagine they are copying Christ, and loving their neighbor as themselves, when they give away their cast-off garments, and out of their abundance give to the poor. Away with such nonsense. Let's face facts. Jesus Christ practiced the ethics of the Sermon on the Mount, but you don't.

"Give up everything you have and you are still a thousand miles or so short of that Life."

I could feel that the preacher's words were making a deep impression upon the hearers. He was casting his bread upon the waters, and it would not be so many days before it returned to him in evidences of changed lives.

WHAT TO STRESS.

"It is fair to assume that Jesus knew something of the meaning of His own life. Would it not be proper to stress the things He emphasized? He magnified His death. Have you noticed what a large part of the story of the New Testament is given to His death and to the events leading up to it?

"Jesus didn't say He came to bring an example of life. He said He came to bring life itself. If you have nothing better than the life of Christ you must forever hang your head in shame, as you see how far short you come to God's Standard Man. Thank God, we have something better. 'For He hath made Him to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him.'

HIS OWN TESTIMONY.

"Listen to the testimony of Jesus concerning Himself:

"'Even as the Son of Man came not to be ministered unto but to minister and to give His life a ransom for man.'

"'I lay down my life for the sheep . . . . I lay down My life that I may take it again.'

"'Hereby perceive we the love of God, because He laid down His life for us.'

"To a world dead in sin He came to bring life through His death. Any message that stops short of that is not a gospel message, though it speaks in honeyed words, and polished tones, of the matchless life of Christ.

"Some men once asked Jesus, 'What shall we do, that we might work the works of God?' Jesus answered and said unto them, 'This is the work of God, that ye believe on Him whom He hath sent.'"

Splendid! Long may you continue to believe in and preach a crucified Christ. Let the world treat your message as it will. Rest assured that God will take care of your testimony and you will have no cause to be ashamed in the day when "every knee shall bow, and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of the Father."

I send you greetings! Greetings from the Northland where I am to the Southland where you are.

—Allan Fairbairn.

The Minister Remarks--

—Love may be blind, but I have yet to learn that it is ever dumb.

—If love is blind, hatred, like Argus of ancient mythology, has eyes all over its body.

—Cultivate your virtues and commit your faults to the tender mercies of your enemies and see what happens.

—The under-dog gets our sympathy—the upper-dog gets our applause.

—Virtue is its own reward; vice tries to earn it, and is not satisfied when it gets it.

—If things do not come your way, seek the way things are coming.

—The right kind of a girl doesn't need to wait for Leap Year.

—When the worst comes to the worst it is up to us to make the best of it.

—Most people find it easy to be good if there are no opportunities to be otherwise.

—A. F.

Can anything be sadder than work left unfinished? Yes; work never begun.—Christina Rossetti.

When we feel a strong desire to thrust our advice on others, it is usually because we suspect their weakness; but we ought rather to suspect our own.—Colton.

The Influence Of A Sermon

JOHN NEWTON preached in an English village. Such was the indifference of the people that only a handful came to hear him. But among the number was Scott, the commentator. The sermon turned his thoughts toward the truth, and all the Christian influence of Scott's Commentary may be traced to that sermon. That restricted service, which seemed almost like wasting time, may have done more for the world than any other service in Newton's life. It has been well said that the world is listening yet to that sermon.

TELL US A STORY

IN the days of King Solomon there lived among the Jews a wise man named Lokman. Many stories are told about him, and various fables and parables are said to have been written by him. He was a native of Ethiopia; and after being a slave in many countries, he was finally sold among the Israelites. Some suppose he may be identified with Aesop; and all agree in saying that he was a truly good man, "remarkable for the love of God and reverence of His holy name." His master having once given him a very bitter kind of melon, called the coloquintida, he ate it without making wry faces or speaking a word. "How was it possible for you to swallow so nauseous a fruit?" asked the master. Lokman answered: "I have received so many sweets from you, that it is not wonderful I should have swallowed the only bitter fruit you ever gave me." The master was so much charmed with this reply that he gave Lokman his liberty.

WHAT has that young man heard which so much agitates him? Shame, sorrow, and something like despair are on his countenance, and his gestures are eloquent in the same way.

Yet it cannot be his own wrongdoing that moves him so deeply, for he has a sweet good face, which bears no trace of misdeeds, open or concealed. Something, however, there is which disturbs him profoundly, and this it is which makes him lay such a solemn charge on those five men whom you see standing before him. They are not ordinary men, not a chance group assembled anyhow—these have evidently come here for a purpose.

Let us look closer, and see if we can find out something while he is addressing them. They are apparently men of peace and learning. Judging by their dress, I should say they were teachers or councillors, and by their mien that they were men of high and responsible position. I observe that they are holding something to which they cast earnest and reverent glances.

The same men in a different place. They are not now listening to the voice of the young man with whom we left them, but in a small chamber are in deep and earnest conversation. Now there is a pause, and then one voice is heard. Listen! Are those the tones of a boy, or of a woman? Intensely solemn is the message, terrible are the words uttered in those clear, high tones. Truly, that youth forecasted their import aright.

LOVE

LOVE is the ethereal medium pervading God's Moral Universe, by means of which are propagated the motions of His impulse, by the heat of His grace, the light of His truth, the electricity of His activities, the magnetism of His nature, the affinities of His character, the gravitation of His will. In brief, Love is the very definition of Deity Himself. "God is love; and he that abideth in love abideth in God, and God in him."

Trying To Corner All The Virtues

ANYBODY who knows anything knows that members of the same profession are inclined to regard one another with a jealous eye; which is only another proof that the best of men are but men at the best, with all the imperfections of men. It is not unusual to hear a minister, lawyer or physician, in an unguarded moment, speak slightingly, if not contemptuously, of the work of a fellow-practitioner. Deprecate this fact as we may, it still remains true that it is an intensely human trait, especially if the "knocker" feels that his own work is not receiving its just measure of approbation.

For safety's sake, I shall go to the profession to which I don't belong, for an illustration, and say one or two things about my medical friends.

Not so long ago the Allopathists refused to recognize homeopathy as a legitimate way of practicing, and only recently have the "regulars" shown a willingness to treat on an equal plane the disciples of Hahnemann, although he gave both schools the names by which they are now known.

In an effort to cure the human ten afflicted many so-called schools of medicine, each professing a different method of healing, have come into operation. It is of more than passing interest to note that each one claims to have the only true method, and that the other are fallacious, while Christian Science says they are all worthless. The fact remains, however, that patients of all the schools, and Christian Scientists, too, pass away with about equal regularity.

The Allopath somewhat grudgingly recognizes his brother Homeopath and both refuse to see much good in the Osteopath, while neither is willing to admit the Chiropractic as being anything, but a charlatan. As for the Eclectics and Mechano and other Therapists, they simply don't exist in the estimation of the rival schools.

To the average layman, these differences fail to make much of an appeal, and when he is sick it matters little to him whether he is cured by an Allopath, an Osteopath or any other kind of a "path" so long as he is helped along the path of health!

It is a mistake for any school to think it can justly lay claim to all the virtues while branding the others as more or less fakes. Each school doubtless has merit, and some day there may rise a man big enough in his profession to recognize the good points of each and embody them in a single system of practice which will render worthless, because unnecessary, the present division into schools. Meanwhile if we can't boost, don't knock!

I Don't Know Why

I know not why His hand is laid
In chastening on my life;
Nor why it is my little world
Is filled so full of strife.

I know not why when faith looks up
And seeks for rest from pain,
That o'er my sky fresh clouds arise
And drench my path with rain.

I know not why my prayer so long
By Him has been denied;
Nor why, while others' ships sail on,
Mine should in port abide.

But I do know that God is love,
That He my burden shares;
And though I may not understand,
I know for me He cares.

I know the heights for which I long
Are often reached through pain.
I know the sheaves must needs be threshed
To yield the golden grain.

I know that though He may remove
The friends on whom I lean;
'Tis that I thus may learn to love
And trust the One Unseen.

And when at last I see His face
And know as I am known,
I shall not care how rough the road
That led me to my home.

—Grace E. Troy.

How Interesting

LOOKING up derivations is not unlike tracing ancestry. Occasionally, the result of the research is disillusioning. Owners of automobiles talk proudly of tonneaus and limousines. Once-upon-a-time the Cleveland Plain Dealer dug into a French dictionary and discovered that a tonneau is a "tub or wat" and a limousine a "rough goat skin such as is worn by the peasants near Limoges." That rather takes the grandiloquence out of these high-sounding words. We are familiar with the fact that "chauffeur"—a very pleasing word when preceded by the pronoun "my"—originally meant a fireman on a locomotive. But the Plain Dealer discovered that in French it carries the secondary meaning of "braggart." There is reason to believe that this significance has not been wholly lost and that it often is applicable to the owner as properly as to the driver of the car.

—A. F.

Standing At Ease

OUR whole trouble in our lot in this world rises from the disagreement of our mind therewith. Let the mind be brought to the lot, and the whole tumult is instantly hushed; let it be kept in that disposition, and the man shall stand at ease, in his affliction, like a rock unmoved with waters beating upon it.

—T. Boston.

A Black Catalogue

WHAT a black catalogue of crimes are these; ingratitude, rebellion, ignorance of God, inconsiderateness, obstinacy, alienation from God, sinfulness, evil deeds, corruptors, traitors, iniquitous, provokers of the Holy One; the head sick, the heart faint, the whole body putrid. This is no word-painting by a fanatical prophet. It is a description given by God to Isaiah of the nation of Israel, but it is no less a description of the individual man.

THE HUMANE SOCIETY.

Those "Why" people of whom Peterborough has its fair share—we mean those individual who look with suspicion upon any and all worth-while efforts and demand to why this or that organization is necessary—could scarcely read the report of the activities of the Peterborough Humane Society as published in The Examiner yesterday without being able to answer their own question so far as that particular body was concerned.

There is surely justification for the existence of an organization that in a year has succeeded in saving so many dumb animals from pain and suffering.

Ill-treated horses, stray dogs, many of them injured or ill, homeless cats—all these found in the Humane Society a friend in need, which offered them succor when help could be given or a humane and merciful death when they were beyond human assistance.

There is indeed a very real work for such an organization to do in Peterborough, and the report of the Inspector for last year indicates that this work is being done thoroughly and efficiently.

The Peterborough Humane Society is an organization that should not lack for community support.

WHY THIS DIFFERENCE?

For a serious offence against a young girl, a member of his congregation, the pastor of a Picton church was sentenced to thirteen months in an Ontario prison.

For an offence of the same nature against a girl pupil, the principal of a London (Ont.) school has been sentenced to three years in the Kingston Penitentiary.

The disparity in the punishment meted out for these very serious crimes cannot fail to produce violent criticism of the administration of justice in Ontario.

These men were convicted of a despicable offence in that they each took advantage of and ruined a young girl entrusted to their care, and whose honor they might be expected to defend rather than attack.

They deserve heavy punishment.

But why should the teacher go to the penitentiary for three years, while the clergyman escapes with little more than a third of that sentence at a jail farm?

If there is any difference at all the guilt of the minister is greater than that of the other offender, inasmuch as he was the spiritual advisor of his victim.

The light sentence given him is regarded by most people as a miscarriage of justice.

Many men whose educational opportunities and training were of a much lower standard than those of Mellor are serving long terms for similar offences.

THE MAYOR'S TWO JOBS.

For the eleventh consecutive year, Mayor Denne has been elected President of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.

No other name was thought of at the annual meeting yesterday.

Despite the fact that he has been entrusted by the citizens of Peterborough with the responsibilities of the chief magistrate's office, Mayor Denne's fellow-directors were unanimous in their faith in his ability to look after both these big jobs and do them both well.

They are both important positions undoubtedly, for civic duties make a heavy demand upon the time of the Mayor, while Peterborough's Exhibition has grown into a big business concern that requires able and active leadership.

Fortunately, however, Mayor Denne is a man of energy and an infinite capacity for hard work, and no one who realizes his willingness to unsparingly throw himself into the midst of the real work of every movement with which he is connected has any fear that the interests of the city or of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition will be neglected because he happens to be at the head of both.

His election for the eleventh time is a striking tribute on the part of his colleagues on the Exhibition Board to the high qualities of Mayor Denne's leadership for more than a decade of the Exhibition's history.

GOOD LUCK, GRADS.

The Varsity Grads, Canada's representatives in the Olympic hockey competition, sail tomorrow for Europe, and with them go the best wishes of the Canadian people generally.

They are undoubtedly the strongest amateur hockey team in Canada today, and there is every reason to feel confident that they will repeat the triumphs of the Falcons and Granites and bring the world's amateur hockey championship back with them.

Furthermore, they are a clean-cut, upstanding body of young athletes whose appearance and conduct, either in competition or off the ice, will be a worth-while advertisement for this country as the breeding ground of splendid and virile men.

Peterborough is particularly interested in the activities of the grads overseas, inasmuch as our own clever team of last season came within an ace of ousting the Varsity Alumni from the senior race, and their feat of holding Canada's Olympic representatives to a 3-1 score in two games was about the best showing that was made in competition with the ultimate winners.

From this city will go nothing but the most sincere wishes for the complete success of the Grads in their Olympic competition.

May they leave no doubt in anybody's mind that the best hockey in the world is played in that land of opportunity—Canada.

THE DANGERS OF LEISURE.

(From The Hartford Courant.)

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company has a relief benefit system and the annual report of this service is gratifying to the corporation. It shows that accidents are decreasing, as, while in 1906, 60 per cent. of relief benefits paid were on account of accidents, only 39 per cent. of the payments last year were so made.

On the other hand, deaths due to accidents while off duty greatly increased in the same period. Last year there were sixteen, over three times as many as in 1906. The additional information is given that of the sixteen deaths ten were due to automobile accidents. One gathers from these statistics that employees accustomed to the management of railway trains, the operation of which are most carefully safeguarded, find themselves at the mercy of motor vehicles which are operated by pretty nearly every person who can secure even temporary possession of one.

We find ourselves greatly impressed by the steady increase in the number of fatalities occurring to the employees who are off duty, who are striving to enjoy the leisure which is rightfully theirs, but it shows that leisure is a deal more dangerous than work unless the employment is especially fraught with danger. If proof is required of this it may be found by examining any issue of a daily paper for any Monday following a clear Sunday in summer, or the issue for July 5, or that for the day after Labor Day. It seems to be an established fact that when men and women start out for a holiday they leave their usual caution at home.

"VERY INTERESTING READING."

This is a time of reminiscences and interesting histories. Scarcely a publication of note but carries several interesting columns written by someone revealing the hidden mysteries of what has taken place in cabinets, conferences and diplomatic circles, and occasionally people, like "Margot," delve even deeper, informing the world of happenings of which we otherwise would have remained ignorant. A noted American has written a book telling us all about what a bad bunch the Harding Government was. Lloyd George has exposed to the public gaze not a few of the wartime secrets, and our late lamented friend, George Ham, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was persuaded by a magazine to reminisce very interestingly for several numbers. A man is scarcely warranted now in kissing his own wife, lest in some unguarded moment she might be induced to disclose that fact to an omnivorous public. Magazines must have this kind of reading, which in many instances is worth while, and some people have been known to go so far as to write a book.

But in all the multiplicity of reminiscences there are a few of real public interest, and others if they could be produced would make illuminating reading.

It has transpired during the past few weeks that an effort is being made to have Mr. J. W. Pugsley, the genial Secretary of the Railways Department at Ottawa, write either a series of articles, a book, or books, with the title, "Notable People with Whom I Have Travelled." Why Pugsley and why the title? Here is the answer. There are only certain people to whom Providence and the Board of Railway Commissioners entrust the right of a free passage for private cars on our railways, and the Secretary of the Railways Department is one of these favored few. No matter how great the statesman or how world-wide his reputation, the Government cannot send him across the Continent, or anywhere else for that matter, in a private car, unless that car is in charge of one chosen for the distinction of having a pass. Princes may come, princes may go, premiers and potentates may visit Canada and flash by an admiring throng at every station, but none have been honored to the extent of being allowed to have a private car without a particular attache of the railway, or of the Railway Department, in charge. Further than that, even, the Governor-General of Canada cannot cross the border into the United States with his cars on his own responsibility, but Mr. Pugsley, who has legal entree for a private car on all the roads of the United States, is in charge. As far back as the time of Li Hung Chang, J. W. was in commission and guided him safely across the Continent. He has accompanied every Minister of Canada since time was, almost, to the United States, and stood sponsor for their transportation conduct. He accompanied Sir Robert Borden to the four corners of the earth, operating his little free transportation ticket with great success. When our present Prime Minister desires a few days rest in a spot beyond the confines of the Dominion of Canada, he hails Mr. Pugsley to become temporarily his railway godfather, and the latter proceeds with alacrity to carry out the command.

There is not sufficient space accorded this article to enumerate even the names of the people who have been Mr. Pugsley's travelling companions, and, perhaps, it would be better not to, as the public does not wish to be encumbered with these details. But, although a very young man, he has been at this business for years, and what he has seen, and heard, if it could be spread out either in magazine or book form, would certainly be not only interesting but educative. Even if Mr. Pugsley were to confine his historical references to those who have passed beyond, a volume such as has been outlined here would be a worthy addition to any Canadian library. At that he would not need to divulge any secrets in order to make the volume very readable.

No person has ever travelled under the kindness of Mr. Pugsley but has been delighted with the manner in which the journey has been worked out in every detail, and the way in which he has treated all those who have been in his care.

If Mr. Pugsley could be induced to place in the printer's hands "copy" for such a volume, the reading public would be grateful, and the sum total of real information would be visibly enhanced.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Clear the way for the 1928 Peterborough Industrial Exhibition going stronger than ever.

We hasten to add to our own particular Hall of Fame Sir Henry Thornton, who the other evening made an after-dinner speech that consisted of but two sentences.

Yesterday's weather was surely "old-fashioned" enough to suit the oldest of the old-timers.

To save the United States the expense of building a bigger navy, why not sell our neighbors our own war fleet?

Mr. Ferguson's greatest activity these days is putting his Ministers back in the Cabinet after the Toronto evening papers have knocked them out.

First the frost and then the thaw have threatened the Niagara fruit crop. Something always does.

There are 23,000 patients in Canada's asylums, according to Dr. Hincks, and some 60,000 more outside these institutions mentally deficient. It would be interesting to know how many of the latter are driving motor cars.

The Timiskaming and North Bay Railway reports a record surplus for last year. Another sign of the ever-increasing wealth production of the Northland.

LOCAL HOG MARKETS.

Live hogs, thick, smooth, $8.00 cwt.; select graded, $8.50; dressed hogs, head on, $14.00; head off, $15.00 cwt.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, January 21. — With an unexpected heavy run of cattle for the opening market on Monday of this week prices took a sudden drop of from 50c to 75c on choice heavy steers. Even at the decline, which affected all grades of cattle, trade was slow, and there was a rather heavy carry-over to the succeeding markets.

Subsequent runs were light and demand for good butcher stuff again quickened in Tuesday and Wednesday markets.

Commenting on present conditions, a letter from the Industrial and Development Council says: "Scarcity of beef cattle has given rise to a big advance in cattle prices. The percentage of increase in prise is greatest in choice heavy steers, owing to the fact that last year there was a plethora of this class. Between the other classes of cattle the percentage advance has been fairly uniform."

"In 1927 United States markets have been the controlling factor in the Canadian beef situation. In 1925 and 1926 the British markets were large factors. In these two years Canada exported to Britain 110,800 and 79,000 cattle respectively. In eleven months of 1927 Canada exported to United States 181,000 cattle and 45,270,000 pounds of beef compared with 80,500 cattle and 15,000,000 pounds of beef in the same period of 1926. Exports of cattle to Britain in 1927 were about 8,000 head."

Calves this week have generally ruled about steady at a range from $13.00 to $15.00 off the road.

Lambs a little easier, but closing steady from $12.00 to $14.00.

The hog market was very unsettled for most part of the week, the packers bidding $8.25, f.o.b., selects, while sellers were trying to get a quarter higher. Market finally settled at a range from steady to 10c higher.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, January 21 (Canadian Press). — There was a fair inquiry from the United Kingdom for Canadian Western oats here yesterday, but as the prices were out of line, no business resulted.

Trading in cash grain in the local market was of a limited character, the demand being only of odd cars for domestic and country account, and prices were unchanged.

The movement of spring and winter wheat grades of flour was small, but values were firm.

The millfeed market was fairly active and the undertone was steady. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was quiet, but values were unchanged.

There was some demand from London, England, importers for Canadian baled hay and some sales were made for nearby shipment. The local trade was fair and prices were steady.

A fair amount of business was done in all grades of eggs and the feeling was easy, but there was no further change in prices. The receipts were 844 cases.

The potato trade was moderately active, and prices ruled firm. Odd cars of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were sold at $1.20 per bag of 90 pounds; Prince Edward Island White potatoes at 1.15 per$ bag of 90 pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.10 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, January 21 (Canadian Press). — Wheat and rye took a decided swing upward in price yesterday largely as the result of low temperatures endangering new domestic wheat. Comprehensive advices showed that snow protection has disappeared throughout the entire winter wheat territory. Increasing movement of the corn crop put selling pressure on the corn market.

Wheat closed strong, 1¼c to 1½c net higher, with rye showing 1c to 1⅞c gain, corn varying from ⅝c decline to 18¼c advance, oats ⅛c to ¼c to ¾c up, and provisions at a rise of 5c to 12c.

Indications of foreign buying of future deliveries went hand in hand yesterday with advancing prices for the bread grains, wheat and rye. Simultaneously, flour makers continued to absorb the offerings of good milling grades of wheat here, and talk was current that owners of a considerable amount of March wheat in Chicago would take deliveries on contracts, and would ship the wheat out, presumably to the seaboard. With almost no wheat coming in here, predictions were made that Chicago stocks on March 1 would be small.

About 5,000 bushels reduction of the official estimate of the wheat yield as compared with the latest previous forecast tended further to strengthen wheat values. Figures were also at hand purporting to show that the world's available wheat supply increased only 52,550,000 bushels in December against 78,837,000 bushels increase for the corresponding month the year before. Meanwhile, the outlook was for an additional drop in temperatures last night over domestic winter wheat sections, and there was no apparent likelihood of any immediate moisture relief where needed.

Corn prices were weakened by the heavier country offerings and by receivers announcing rural acceptance on 500,000 bushels of corn to arrive in Chicago, the largest total for any day so far this season. Besides, a cold wave prevailing over the corn belt is expected to facilitate the general marketing of corn. Oats were influenced by purchases both for cash interests and commission houses.

A Thought

SUCCESS OR FAILURE.

Success or failure largely depends on the way you meet opposition or the way you treat obstacles.

Every day some obstacle confronts you, but you have got to say yes or no to this opposition and say it then and there.

You have got to decide right there and then what is the thing to do, then tackle that obstacle with all your ambition and ability.

And here's the punch: Do not get discouraged every hour or two when the obstacle is opposing you and then try to make a second decision. Keep right on fighting for the decision you made before you tackled the opposition. You cannot trade horses in the middle of a stream without getting wet.

When opposition is forcing you, your judgment is not so good.

Success demands that we take time to make a decision, then comes the test of your strength, your sincerity, your determination to go through with the idea that you decided upon in the very beginning.

Failures flock this way and then that way when they encounter an obstacle. Successes settle what must be done, then they go ahead and do it, no matter what opposition they meet or what obstacle is necessary to be overcome.

Never try to change your mind—never let your mind waiver when you meet an obstacle. If you do, you are gone.

BUSES AND TAXATION

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 19, 1928.

Dear Sir:

Relative to the announcement in your paper recently concerning the Ontario Government's action in proclaiming legislation (Public Vehicles Act, Section 5) permitting cities to tax bus operators in respect of the portion of the bus routes within the city boundaries. The members of the Ontario Bus Owners' Association, while daily expecting this legislation to be proclaimed, and while realising that cities may wth some show of justice demand some compensation for the use of their roads, consider that cities may with some show of the gasoline tax of 3 cents a gallon, a road tax of 1-10 cent per bus seat per mile, the annual license fee for each bus operated, the chauffeurs' license fees, a Dominion luxury tax on all equipment operated, the ordinary business tax, the municipal income tax, and the Dominion income tax, and any other taxes we may have forgotten to mention specifically, is totally unjustified, and we wish to take this opportunity, before being taxed to death, of expressing the opinion that if the provincial authorities wished to give the cites a share of the revenue derived from bus operations, they might well have divided the proceeds of the taxes which were in effect before this additional tax was proclaimed ,instead of creating the additional tax.

We also take this opportunity of pointing out that as between passenger and freight transportation on the highways, taxation is not fairly divided. The truck operator pays no tax corresponding to the road tax of 1-10 cent per bus seat per mile paid by the bus operator. Nor does the truck operator pay the cities any road tax corresponding to the tax contemplated by the legislation just proclaimed.

This Association hopes that no city council will, after having given due consideration to the matter, be so short-sighted as to take advantage of this opportunity to further tax bus operators. The bus (there are now 480 of them licensed in Ontario) is a factor of major importance in the interest of business generally and of retail merchants particularly, in every city in the Province. Take away bus transportation, and without a doubt the business of merchants in all cities would suffer to a considerable degree, due simply to the fact that scores of country people, deprived of the use of the bus to take them to the city to shop, would go back to their mail order catalogues. Increase the cost of bus operation, and you increase bus fares, and the same effect, in more or less degree, is produced.

While a good many people seem to hold the opinion that the bus is only an undesirable competitor of the railway, the facts are otherwise. The bus has established a field for itself in economic transportation, and the creation of financial difficultes liable to have the effect of stopping or handicapping the natural growth of bus transportation is equivalent to the placing of barriers in the path of human progress. While the bus does take same traffic from the railways, it more than makes it up by creating traffic in road materials, gasoline, equipment and accessories, and by creating an additional urge to travel, and the bus operator rightly considers himself an economic ally to the railway, rather than a competitor. The bus in many instances is a passenger feeder to the railways. In justification of this view, we would point out that in 1920, when bus operation in Ontario was practically unheard of, the Canadian Pacific net earnings were $33,000,00 and the Canadian National Railways were incurring deficits which were the despair of the nation, but that in 1926, when bus operation in Ontario was well organized, the Canadian Pacific net earnings were $45,000,000, and the Canadian National had net earnings of $48,000,000.

Every bus operator in the Province of Ontario is of the considered opinion that he is taxed unduly now, and that it would be morally unfair and economically wrong for cities to add to the bus operators' burdens by imposing the tax that they have been given power to impose. Whether this opinion is right or wrong, it is at least worthy of some consideration on the part of the thinking public.

Yours truly,
J. SEDGWICK,
Counsel
Ontario Bus Owners' Association.

THE ONLY CAR OF ITS KIND IN THE WORLD

For numberless puzzled motorists Dodge Brothers new Victory Six will simplify the problem of selection, for nowhere in the world is there a car like it. Greater expenditure will not duplicate it.

To possess this car's unique advantages you must possess this car.

A Radical Departure in Body Design

In The Victory, for the first time in history, the body sill is eliminated. Body and chassis are built as a single integral unit.

Thus, the wide, deep chassis frame of The Victory, now flush with the lines of the body, avoids the customary overhang of a wide body upon a narrow frame; and the chassis itself, rather than the body, supports all weight—body, floor, seats and passengers.

Amazing Results

The results of this construction are astonishing.

330 body parts are eliminated.

Without the slightest sacrifice of headroom or road-clearance, the over-all height of the car is also lowered—one of the secrets of The Victory's great beauty.

The amazing resources of the car's brilliant power plant are multiplied still further by perfect distribution and economy of weight.

21 valid miles per gallon at 25 miles per hour is made possible FOR A SIX! Incredible smoothness at high speed is another great gift of this new design!

Elimination of back-wheel "chatter" when the 4-wheel Lockheed Hydraulic brakes are quickly applied is still another!

And thanks to The Victory's low center of gravity and wide chassis frame, swaying, skidding, tipping—each a factor of weight and its proper and improper placement—are reduced to a new and negligible minimum.

Another New Safety Feature

Yet Dodge Brothers have taken a further revolutionary step to insure the safest motor transportation it is possible to create.

For the first time in automobile history, they have applied the so-called battleship construction to closed car design.

In other words, the body has a double steel shell, locked together, with an air space intervening—is actually TWO bodies, one within the other—yet lighter by 175 pounds—and the safest body known.

HARVEY DONEY'S SINGING PLEASES

Toronto Soloist Gives Fine Program For Women's Music Club.

(By Jeanette.)

Harvey Doney, baritone soloist of Sherbourne street United church, Toronto was the visiting soloist at the fortnightly meeting of the Women's Music Club, held in the hall of the Conservatory of Music yesterday afternoon, and delighted the audience with a vocal recital of splendid music. Mr. Doney is the possessor of a rotund baritone voice, which is sometimes almost bass in quality, and has a rich, mellow, vibrant tone. Although his program was exceptionally attractive in every item, perhaps his outstanding number was the Mendelssohn composition, "I'm a Roamer," in which the singer simulates the bombastic outpourings of words of a dancer who has come to electrify a simple audience and whose rapid recital of his own talents bursts forth in a vital and vivid splash of song that calls forth every resource of breath control and enunciation.

Although Mr. Doney announced his belief that a baritone does not sing love songs as well as a tenor, still the inclusion of several heart numbers in his own program was very satisfactory to his audience. These included a little thing called "Last Night," another entitled "Still as the Night," and one of the difficult and yet interesting compositions by Handel, in the style of the older masters, in which a certain refrain of probably two sentences in length is made to fill out an entire song, a type that has an attraction all its own in the florid setting provided, the portamento cadences, the melodic and rhythmic character of the music. This number was entitled "Love that is True will Live Forever."

The odd song called "The Lute Player" by Allitson, a number that formed one of the test pieces at the recent Produced-in-Canada Exhibition at the Armouries, was handled in such a manner that it lost much of its dramtic appeal. Several of the competitors this summer sang this number much better than Mr. Doney. The same type of mis-handling of a striking composition was evident in "Tally Ho!" the hunting song which Edward Johnson made so marvellously compelling during his appearance in concert here. The laboring fox and the red-coated riders were absent from Mr. Doney's portrayal. He did not give a convincingly dramatic picture of a dramatic song.

The Prologue from "I Pagliacci" formed the soloist's opening selection, and was given in English, as were all the numbers on the program. This prologue, sung by Tonio, the clown, is done in the manner familiar to the old Greek playwrights, the principal character giving an idea of the performance by stepping before the curtain and reciting his version of it. It was a strong rendition, in which the singer's reverberating, resonant tones had a wide scope, and it brought the applause which followed each number on the vocalist's program.

Mr. Doney also sang "The Wanderer" by Schubert, demonstrating a fine pianissimo effect in its closing, Schumann's "Ich grolle nicht" ("I murmur not") and "The Two Grenadiers." An encore to the applause which greeted his final number, the splendidly sung "I'm a Roamer," was a bit of rollicking sweetness, in "We're off to Market, Johnny."

A very interesting interlude in the vocal program was the pianoforte music played by Miss Margaret Widdess, who gave four charming numbers entirely from memory. The type of selections chosen was very attractive, and Miss Widdess' playing was marked by a smooth, graceful execution, a free, limpid tone and soft touch that held the pleased attention of her audience to the conclusion of a delightful group. The first number was the buoyant, dancing music from Schubert's ballet numbers in his opera, "Rosamonde," and the second was a contrast in Torjussen's "To the Rising Sun," a poetical, dreamy thing, with a deeply-accented rich bass carrying the melody against reiterated treble chords. Schuett's "Etude Mignonne," a captivating thing of rippling sweetness, formed the third selection and the fourth and last was Liszt's "Nigtingale," in which clear, sparkling, vivid trills and crystalline cadenzas simulate the notes of the immortal bird. Renewed applause followed this group.

Accompaniments for Mr. Doney were played by Miss Agnes Logan with skilful proficiency.

The president of the club, Mrs. J. Forbes Allan, announced that the members intend to go to Toronto on Tuesday, March 13th, to hear Chaliapin, the great Russian basso, also that Mr. Doney will make a return visit to the city on Monday, February 13th, when he will act as soloist for a concert to be given by the Madrigal Singers, a group of twenty ladies trained by Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park.

(Supplied by F. G. Oke and Co.)

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 21. — The market continued to show signs of an upward trend. The prices holding firm. The technical position of the market leaders can be considered sound and much higher prices are anticipated.

There were no features during this morning's trading excepting perhaps Noranda which registered an appreciable gain over yesterday's closing prices.

Little news of importance was available on the street, but the bullish sentiment still prevails and it look as though the market will continue to show greater strength, as next week progresses; as a result there seems little doubt that speculators buying in this market will have very appreciable profits showing in their accounts when the expected bull market makes itself apparent and in view of this exceptionally promising condition of our mines up north, the bull market appears inevitable and near at hand.

Prices Move Upward In New York To-day

NEW YORK, Jan. 21— (Canadian Press.)—Resumption of upward price movement in to-day's market was temporarily interrupted by a heavy wave of profit taking, but speculators for the advance quickly regained control. Extreme gains in many of the active issues ranged from two to six points, with Public Utilities, Motors, and Merchandising issues giving the best exhibitions of group strength.

The week end market letters laid particular stress on the stiffening steel price and the pick-up in mill operations in that industry. Less alarm was expressed over the credit situatoin, although it was widely recognized as an important influence in the future trend of prices.

Montana Power was again the market leader, soaring six points to a new high record at 122. R. H. Macy advanced four points to a new peak at 254 and Montgomery Ward also rallied four points above yesterday's final quotation. Adams Express, Brooklyn Edison, and Hudson Motors were other outstanding strong points. The closing was firm.

Weather Unfavorable; Wheat Prices Go Up

CHICAGO, Jan. 21 — (Canadian Press).—Unfavorable reports as to the domestic winter crop outlook for wheat tended to steadier Chicago wheat values to-day after a wavering start. Initial weakness here was ascribed to Liverpool set-backs based on prospective large world shipments. Opening unchanged to 3-8 cent off, Chicago wheat sagged a little more and then scored slight general gains. Corn was easy, starting at ¼ to 5-8 cent decline, and subsequently showing some further drop. Oats held firm.

Opening prices were: Wheat, March 131, May 131¾; corn, March 88 5-8, May 91 5-8; oats, March 55 1-8, May 56¼.

Massey-Harris Leads Trading At Toronto

TORONTO, January 21 (Canadian Press). — Massey-Harris, easily the most prominent issue on the Toronto Stock Exchange, this morning climbed three at 44½ and the firmness was reflected in the general list, despite occasional recessions. The largest individual gain was a jump of eleven points in the quiet Famous Players at 79. Page Hersey, very active, gained 2½ at 97. Loblaw Common one at 100, and Cockshutt Plow, the unlisted leader, advanced three at 137.

The liquors were active, Brewing and Carlings showing point gains at 35½ and 40. Malting eased a fraction at 39½, and Walker's was ⅛ easier at 67.

In the oils British-American was a quarter higher at 37⅞, and Petroleum a fraction higher at 39⅛.

International Nickel touched 96¼, but eased to 94⅞ for a slight loss. Bell Telephone lost two, and a point recession occurred in Pacific Grain, Pure Gold, and Sales Book.

PUBLIC SCHOOL LEAGUE OPENS

Three Good Games Played at Cognawaga Rink This Morning.

MANY ROOTERS OUT.

The Public School Hockey League opened this morning with three games being played at the Cognawaga rink. Although the morning was cold it did not stop many rooters from the six schools attending the games.

The first fixture was between Prince of Wales and King Edward, with the former winning handily by seven goals to one.

Central and Queen Alexandra had a real tussle in the second game and the Central boys were forced hard to win by three goals to one.

In the third game Queen Mary beat King George by ten goals to one. The Queen Mary team was a strong, well-balanced aggregation and played fine hockey. The King George boys were much smaller, and for their size they played a fine style of combination hockey.

J. E. Munro refereed the first two games and D. Crawford the second.

The standing at present is:

	Won.	Lost.
Prince of Wales	1	0
Central	1	0
King Edward	0	1
Queen Alexandra	0	1

ST. THOMAS, Jan. 20.—Jimmy, the city's pet crow, which has caused so much amusement to pedestrians on Talbot Street by his impudence in stealing rides on automobile tops and fenders and his quarrels with the pigeons in the Holy Angels' Church belfry, has fallen into disrepute and may be banished to Siberia or be ordered shot at sunrise.

Half a dozen complaints were made yesterday about the crow having chased and terrorized little children in various parts of the city. One report has been made to Chairman Dr. Porter, of the Board of Education and is being investigated. The 5-year-old daughter of J. Bowie fell and suffered painful injuries a few days ago in endeavoring to run away from the crow when it flew at her head. Another woman reported seeing the crow chase two screaming children for nearly a block the other day.

The crow has been in the habit of playing with the older children and alighting on their shoulders, and it is believed that there was nothing malicious in his behavior with the little tots. However, parents are complaining vigorously.

the interest of home-owners in their immediate surroundings. Considerable money is expended by the Society in promoting this and similar competitions.

The Junior Vegetable Exhibit, held in conjunction with the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition was, thanks to those in charge, a decidedly successful event, and we are indebted to His Worship Mayor Denne, President of the Fair Board, and his colleagues for their many courtesies and attention given our needs on the grounds. It is hoped that such exhibits will be continued in the future and that they will from year to year gather momentum.

The treasurer's report will indicate that the affairs of the society are in good order that the membership is increasing, and that we as a directorate are passing on to the incoming executive the organization and wherewithal to work with.

Our affiliation with the Peterboro Chamber of Commerce continued harmoniously through the year, and I would like to express on behalf of the executive, our appreciation of their services throughout last year and in the past.

My presidential report would not be complete without some allusion to the press. The Examiner has been most liberal with its space, in the promotion of our work and their consideration and unselfishness could not be allowed to pass unrecorded.

Let me in closing once again express my personal appreciation of the service, sympathy and co-operation of the executive during the past year bespeak for the new president similar unselfish consideration, by his executive, and extend on behalf of the retiring executive our most cordial thanks to the members of the society, who by their subscriptions and interest made it possible to carry out what we as a society undertook during the calendar year 1927.

Plans Discussed

During a short period of discussion and suggestion a number of interesting and helpful proposals were made. J. Grierson advocated having some member of the society visit each school about the time of the membership campaign to address the children on the proper way of planting and caring for their seeds. Interesting the children in this way would broaden the influence of the society and not only prepare the children for senior membership but get their parents interested as well.

This suggestion was enlarged by Mrs. S. T. Harris, who proposed telling the children, just before Exhibition Week, how to arrange their flowers to make the most striking display possible.

W. H. Young proposed that the success met with in the window show of gladioli last summer should be the basis for extending this program, starting with peonies and irises, followed a month later by a rose display. A further suggestion came from F. Hall, that the first show be a tulip show.

The necessity of the society seeing that the options promised were delivered to the members was stressed by Mr. Grierson, who said that several members had been lost through failure to get theirs.

The features of the evening were addresses by members of the society, W. H. Young discussing roses and A. E. Prest gladioli, while F. Hall added a few words about fertilizers.

Roses Discussed

Mr. Young delivered what he termed a few rambling remarks, taking up no particular course but talking on various points which occurred to him or his audience. His love of what he considered the finest flower grown was evident, especially in his disgust and pain caused by the way some people treat their plants. There were some, he said, to whom he would not wish to sell a rose plant, as it is alive and needs love and care from its growers if it is to flourish.

Mr. Young's interest dates back to the days when as a boy he frequented his father's little greenhouse in Scotland. When he came to this country he took up the importation and growth of fine plants from Ireland and Scotland. He advised his audience not to let a rose plant stand, but to plant it as soon as it was brought home, in order that the roots might not dry out any more, and spoke against taking all the stones out of ground to be used for their culture, as they keep the ground cool.

The growing of roses is worth while and repays all the trouble taken, he declared in conclusion.

Mr. Prest, after attributing his interest in flowers to a visit to Mr. Young's garden some years ago, delivered a carefully prepared paper on gladioli, which is given in full:

How and When to Plant Gladioli

My attention was drawn to the frontispiece that decorates the official stationery of the Peterborough Horticultural Society. This decoration is a cut of the Gladiolus. Evidently the Glad. lovers of the society have christened this year, 1928, as "The Gladiolus Year."

Possibly my remarks may be addressed to growers of Gladioli who already are familiar with the successful growing of this beautiful flower. However, we may all benefit by a little refreshing of our minds on the methods and experiences of others.

Gladiolus today is becoming recognized as the King of all Summer flowers. No other flower has the wonderful range of color combinations such as we find in the Gladiolus. Each year the size, color and beauty of these glorious flowers are being improved.

Endless new varieties are being placed on the market and new types are being developed. No wonder that this flower is becoming the most popular flower of the day.

The Soil.—The ideal soil is a moist rich, sandy loam containing plenty of humus or vegetable matter. A heavy clay soil may be improved by adding fine coal ashes or fine sand. Perhaps the ideal location would be to plant where a well-hoed crop has been raised on rich manured land of the year before.

Any well-rotted manure may be used; cow manure is to be preferred; sheep manure is good, but bear in mind that this dried pulverized form is greatly lacking in humus.

A good plan is to turn in or spade in a lot of rich manure in the fall and turn the soil over again in the Spring.

Remember the Gladiolus is a sun worshipper; plant in the open sun; they should not be planted in the shade of trees or buildings.

In our province large corms may be planted from early May to June 15th.

For a long blooming season, plant at intervals of two or three weeks.

With a sufficient quantity of a well-balanced mixture containing early and late varieties blooming all the way from 56 to 110 days you should have a wealth of bloom covering a period of at least ten weeks.

If well developed new corms and cormels are desired late varieties should be planted early. I find it quite necessary to plant late varieties like War, Peace, T. T. Kent, F. C. Peters, Youells Favorite and others, the first week in May, the blooming of these generally come along the first or second week in September.

Keep in mind this point, the development of corms and cormels comes after the blooming season.

My own experience has found that the earlier planted varieties make better root growth and are in better condition for production of fine blooms.

Plough or spade the soil to a depth of ten inches. After smoothing and pulverizing the soil to make mellow, dig your trenches five inches deep making rows eighteen inches to two feet apart; eighteen inches is sufficient width for the hand hoe or cultivator; twenty-four inches should be the width for the wheel hoe.

Set corms right side up and from four to six inches apart.

Rare and expensive varieties may be cut in two pieces, the cut surface of the corms should be covered with powdered sulphur to prevent decay; in cutting, care should be taken that each piece has a good bud and part of the root surface.

Quite a controversy has arisen as to the depth of planting. Some growers find that shallow planting produced better growth, larger corms, and larger amount of cormels.

For our climate I would recommend deep planting, three inches deep for small corms ¾-in. diameter, five inches deep for mature corms 1½ to 2 inches diameter.

Deep planting of the corms will help support the spike in the blooming season; deep planting will also prevent drying out and wilting in a dry spell.

The smaller size corms should be planted earlier to give longer season in which to develop.

Proper preparation of soil fertilizers and planting is half the battle. Many expect results by dumping the corms in the soil in any old way. You cannot cut long spikes of bloom with careless planting. Another class of gardener will look pretty well after the preliminary preparation and planting, and then get tired of caring for them, and these people are apt to blame the variety or the dealer because they have no prize-winning blooms.

No flower replays proper care and good cultivation better than the gladious.

After planting keep a crust from forming over the rows; as the soil drys out after each rain, rake over with a steel rake; this will keep the weeds back and the soil in good condition and encourage the shoots to come through the soil.

Keep crust from forming between rows, cultivate frequently with the five-prong hand cultivator or the wheel hoe; keep this up continuously through the growing period. Constant cultivation will create a dust mulch that will be very helpful to growth in the dry season and also helps to conserve moisture.

After plants are well grown be careful not to cultivate too deeply; too deep cultivation near the plants may disturb the root growth.

Bone meal, sheep manure may be cultivated in beside the rows to advantage after the flower stalks begin to appear.

For large flowers plenty of water must be given after buds begin to appear. Remember a thorough soaking once a week is better than many light sprinklings.

After heavy rains, go out and right up any plants that are blown over, press them back in place with the foot. A few stakes painted green are very useful for staking up some of the extra heavy blooms.

Gladioli growers are increasing in great numbers each year. If you have never grown Glads, now is the time to start. No flower is so easily grown, none will give you so many surprises or exclamations of delight as you view the various varieties opening out in their array of beauty.

There are no secrets connected with Gladioli culture. To grow vigorous plants, good-sized flowers and healthy corms, one must plant and fertilize propertly, cultivate industriously and provide sufficient moisture.

Your industry and care of your flower garden will help make "The City Beautiful."

Go, make thy garden as fair as thou canst.
Thou workest not alone;
Perchance he whose is next to thine
Will see it, and mend his own.

Fred Hall described certain experiments he had made with fertilizers and took up the relative properties of various types of commercial fertilizer offered on the market.

Despite the cold weather, little more conductive to thinking of flowers than to growing them, there was a good turnout of members, including several ladies, at the meeting.

Electricity is finding increasing employment in the sterlization of water, the impurities being transformed into substances which further the process of sterlization, while the oxygen is turned into ozone.

Elmwood, May 13th, 1927.

Mr. B. J. Murfin.
Dear Sir:—

I must write and let you know how our son, who had creeping paralysis, is improving. He had taken your medicine about a week only when he could walk and in three weeks had gained 13 lbs. He helped his father with seeding and is working every day and is feeling fine. Our daughter is also making an improvement, is gaining nicely, but is still taking your medicine. We certainly cannot praise your medicine too highly for what is has done for us all.

We do not think there is any medicine sold on the market so effective in building up a run down system as Mr. Murfin's Natural Herb Medicine and we highly recommend it to our neighbors and friends.

Hoping to see you soon, we remain,

Work of Year Reviewed in Statements Read By Various Officials.

The following reports were presented at the annual meeting of the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday night.

Physical Department.

Our gymnasium exhibition was this year put on in the Brock Street rink in connection with boys' week and was a complete success in every way.

At the military camp the physical director supervised the physical and social programs for the man under canvas.

Swimming lessons were given to every member expressing a desire for same, which brought classes of non-swimmers from the men's and boys' sections.

A special class in apparatus, group games, team games, track and field athletics, and swimming has been organized for the Normal students at the request of the principal and under authority from the Department of Education.

Reports of the Leaders' Corps and Harriers' Club will be given separately.

In addition to the above we have ten weekly class periods in connection with the calisthenics of the Collegiate Institute.

Boys' Division.

It is with a peculiar sense of gratification that the Boys' Work Committee presents this report covering the membership between the ages of ten and seventeen years. The year just closed has been one of increased activity and participation on the part of our boy members, of whom we have at this time 72 intermediates, 92 juniors, and 92 beginners. It must be manifestly apparent to all that the brief compass of this report is all too small to take care of the many contacts we make with the boys of this city in a manner adequate and fitting.

Of the routine program—familiar to all who have passed through or been in touch with the Boys' Division—little need be said. Sufficient is it that we have organized our class groups and have carried on a program of suppers and movie shows in the manner approved by all boys.

Summer camp was combined with the Rotary Club for the second season under the plan whereby the Rotary Club supplies site, equipment and the cook, and we provide the supervision and promotion. The camp operated for eight weeks.

In connection with the city-wide boys' week our Boys' Division assumed the responsibility for putting across the first boys' hobby show, wherein the boys of the city and surrounding territory were enabled to exhibit "one and all of the many things they own, make or do." A check-up shows that 162 boys entered 291 exhibits.

Growing out of the hobby show we now have organized a Boys' Stamp Club and a Men's Stamp Club, the latter supplying intelligent leadership to the boys that they may make the most of an interesting hobby. The orchestra, under the leadership of Don Munro, the Camera Club under Max Sauer, and the Outing Club under Trevor Miller, are all taking care of the diversified interests of boy life.

Bible study groups are this season engaged in the study of "Youth's Eternal Quest and God's Reply," which study is being carried on in all the groups of the Association throughout the world, following in chronological sequence the life of Christ. As a part of this Association's program whereby boys are led to express themselves in service for others, $76 was earned by the sale of Christmas cards and given to the foreign work fund.

The Boys' Work Committee and the secretary of the Division unite to thank all who have so freely given assistance and counsel during the past year and to bespeak a continuance of the same during 1928.

Y's Men's Club.

The Y's Men's Club is one of a movement that was started about ten years ago by Mr. Paul Alexander, a young lawyer of Cleveland, Ohio, and that movement has in that time become almost world wide, their being clubs in Canada, United States, Australia, New Zealand, China, Japan, and India. Its object is to serve the Y.M.C.A. in any way possible, and membership is restricted to Y.M.C.A. members in good standing.

The Peterborough Club was organized October 28, 1926, the first president being Mr. Roy White, and the membership then was fifteen. The charter was presented to us on May 19, 1927, by the Belleville Club, who came up in force.

From October, 1926, to December, 1927, there were 38 meetings held. The Club had complete charge of the program in the building on New Year's Day, both years. They assisted with the circus and boys' hobby show in May, 1927, and conducted a booth at the Peterborough Exhibition last September.

The membership on December 31, 1927, was 28 and have elected Mr. Tom Dutton as president for 1928.

Peterborough Leaders' Corps.

The Peterborough Leaders' Corps prepared and suitably carried the arrangements for the first convention of the Ontario Leaders' Corps to be held in this city. This was no small task, our Corps being the "baby corps of the convention," and the success of the convention was due chiefly to work of Mr. Loomis and our president, Trevor Miller, who had also the honor of being the president of the Ontario Leaders' Corps. There were over eighty representatives from the different Corps through the province at the convention.

The Leaders' Corps resumed the Sunday night suppers under the capable leadership of Mr. Joseph Wearing. These meetings again proved so successful that the Corps is hoping to be able to conduct them again this year.

The Leaders' Corps helped in the success of the boys' week circus, not only through its display of gymnastics but also by aiding in the preparation of the performance and by supervising different acts as they were given on the floor.

From a recent report from Toronto, we are advised that the Peterborough Corps has obtained a high standing in the recent Leaders' Corps examinations.

We have partly decorated the room given for use by the board of directors by the application of wallpaper and paint, but at present have been unable to finish furnishing the room so as to have it ready for use through lack of funds. We however hope to be able to do this in the near future.

The Leaders' Corps has organized and is maintaining a Junior Leaders' Corps, which already has shown an active part in the activities of the "Y."

The attendance of the Corps has averaged over eighty-five per cent during the year, which shows the interest taken in the work by the Leaders.

This Corps has financed itself in all its ventures and although it may not have a large balance on the books, it is on the right side.

The Corps would like to take this opportunity of wishing the board of directors of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. success in all their undertakings and to inform them that the Leaders' Corps will gladly do anything that will aid in advancement of the "Y" in this city.

Harriers' Club.

The Peterborough "Y" Harriers Club was organized with Charlie Thorpe as president and Hector McLeod as secretary.

During the past year the Club actively participated in several long distance runs. The first run of this nature took place on September 13, when 26 runners relayed a message from the Toronto Exhibition Board to the local Fair Board, extending the former's good wishes for the continued success of the latter.

The run from Toronto created quite an interest in the sport of running, and when Lindsay held an athletic meet several groups of runners went from the Club and were successful in carrying off four trophies.

On October 29 the Club ran from Lindsay, while at the same time a group of runners started out from Peterborough and ran to Lindsay.

At the Thanksgiving road race, held in Peterborough, and sponsored by the Harriers, the Club carried off first honors, second place going to the Canadian General Electric Company's team. This event, which has been rather a dead issue in the city for a few years, was, owing to the enthusiasm of the Harriers, one of the best contested meets that has been witnessed.

A splendid banquet was put on by the Club, at which the trophies won at Lindsay and those won on Thanksgiving were presented to the winners, while all those participating in the initial run from Toronto received a handsomely worked crest depicting the event for which it was presented.

By this time the Club numbered some 50 members, who were all keenly interested in running. Some of these fellows were not members of the "Y," but upon joining the Harriers' Club they immediately joined the Association.

I should like to express, on behalf of the Harriers' Club, the deep and sincere appreciation that the Club feels for the help, guidance and aid that has been rendered by the Y.M.C.A. and its staff. Had it not been for the active co-operation of the officials it would not have been possible for the Club to make the success of its organization that it has.

The Ladies' Auxiliary.

In February we held a successful Valentine tea.

On April 12 we served supper for the board and subscribers.

On May 12, 13 and 14, the ladies had booths at the boys' poster and hobby show.

Provided refreshments for fall rally of the Y.M.C.A.

In November the ladies were given the opportunity to serve the Thursday night suppers for the "Y" men, as a means of keeping a little money in the treasury. We are still continuing this work.

During the year the Auxiliary ha some curtain material. Nine cases were provided for keeping the silver of the Y.M.C.A. in.

LAW SOCIETY ENTERTAINED

Mr. and Mrs. Basil D. Hall Give Dinner For Members and Wives.

JUDGE HUYCKE SPEAKS.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil D. Hall entertained the members of the Peterborough Law Association and their friends at a delightful dinner last evening at the Empress Hotel, the main feature of the evening being an address entitled "Looking Backward," delivered by Judge Huycke.

Dinner was served to thirty-four guests in the grill room, the tables being arranged with vases of green crystal holding yellow daffodils and yellow candles in candelabra and silver candlesticks. At the conclusion, Mr. Hall rose to speak of the pleasure afforded himself and Mrs. Hall by the evidence of good will from members of the local Law Association, the majority of whose firms were represented last evening.

Speaking as past president of the Association, he referred to the pleasant relations experienced by him in working with other members of the society, during his tenure of office, and referred to the good fortune of the district in possessing such a judge, police magistrate and new appointee to the bench for the united counties of Durham and Northumberland. He went on to congratulate the newly-appointed president, Mr. V. J. McElderry, and to wish for him the same help and assistance that he had received from the members.

His Honor, Judge Huycke, speaking in preface of his paper, was in jocular vein and his anecdotes and humorous sallies were met with much appreciation by his audience.

Opening with a reference to his pleasure in being present and to his gratification also at seeing among the guests his old friend, Mr. E. H. D. Hall, His Honor went on to score the practice prevalent in the province, while not obtaining in this city, "where a member of the bar acts as police magistrate," of filling such positions with men, "cheesemakers, auctioneers, veterinary surgeons and blacksmiths," who were not fitted for such work. He cited the case of the man who had to consider an offence by a couple of boys who had stolen a punt from a creek and who decided that this came under the head of "piracy on the high seas" with punishment by hanging, but finally made the punishment a fine of $100.

He went on to urge upon the lawyer present a realization of the fact that "the law is a jealous mistress and none can succeed in legal work unless he labors hard at it." Lawyers used to be called the "gentlemen of the learned profession of the law," and each one of these words should be emphasized. They should be gentlemen and they should be learned. "For, although a clergyman may stick to his theology and a doctor to his medicine or surgery, there is no department of life that a lawyer is not forced to consider at some time or another in the discharge of his duties."

His Honor emphasized the help given to the lawyers, and especially the younger men, by Mr. George J. Sherry, Clerk of the County Court.

"Unremitting industry, general good temper and careful study should distinguish the members of the Bar. It is the duty of the Bench to be courteous and kindly and respectful and members of the Bar should assist the Bench in every way." His Honor spoke of the practice of lawyers in trying to mislead the Court by giving a leading to the witness and to his dislike of such forced and "pulled-out" evidence.

The paper, entitled "Looking Backward," which constitutes a study of the development of Common Law, was then given, to appear in full in a later issue. This was listened to with intent appreciation by the guests, and at its conclusion, Mr. Hall spoke of the "intellectual treat" provided and thanked His Honor for the trouble entailed in the preparation of the paper, which appeared in full in the December issue of The Bar Review, and has been commented on very favorably on several occasions since its publication.

The appreciation of those present to Mr. and Mrs. Hall was voiced by Mr. J. Wearing and followed by the enthusiastic rendering of three cheers and a tiger.

Members and friends of the Association who were present included Mr. and Mrs. Basil D. Hall, His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke, E. A. Peck, M.P., and Miss Peck, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C. and Mrs. Gordon, Magistrate O. A. Langley and Mrs. Langley, R. R. Hall, K.C. and Mrs. Hall, F. D. Kerr, K.C. and Mrs. Kerr, V. J. McElderry; Crown Attorney G. Hatton and Miss Marjorie Hatton, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. DeLaPlante, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wearing, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Medd, G. J. Sherry, E. H. D. Hall, J. F. Strickland, Mr. and Mrs. A. Stevenson, J. W. Stevenson, W. F. Huycke, Mrs. J. Blaiklock, Mrs. A. E. Dixon, Mrs. J. E. L. Goodwill, Miss G. Reinhardt and Miss Marion Harstone.

LONDON, Jan. 21 (Canadian Press).—The belief that his new racing car, "Blue Bird," built at a cost of twenty thousand pounds sterling especially for an attempt to break the world's automobile speed record at Daytona Beach, is capable of achieving a speed of 220 miles an hour was expressed by its owner and designer, Capt. Malcolm Campbell. The "Blue Bird" is on display in this city and with its nine hundred horse-power motor is attracting a good deal of attention.

WAS VERY WEAK
NERVOUS AND MELANCHOLY
Mrs. Geo. McKenzie, Campbellford, Ont., writes:—"A short time ago I was troubled very bady with my heart and nerves, the cause of it, I think, was my going through the change of life.
"I was very weak and melancholy, and so nervous I could hardly bear to hear a clock ticking, and I did not sleep well.
"I was advised to try MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS so I sent at once for a box; took them and got another, and before they were all gone I felt good, my nerves are fine, I do not mind any noise, and I can sleep well. I cannot recommend them too highly to those suffering as I did."

DR. GANDIER AT TRINITY CHURCH

Distinguished Clergyman Will Be Speaker at Anniversary Services.

VISITED MISSION FIELDS.

Tomorrow Trinity Church celebrates the day of beginnings in connection with her history as a congregation. This church and congregation was formerly known as the old Charlotte Street Church.

It has a long history of service behind it, though years have been enriched by a ministry of devoted and consecrated men and women. It has been blessed with a ministry whose names have become known among the foremost men of the church. Today she worships in a beautiful church recognized by church leaders as one of the outstanding church buildings in the United Church of Canada. The church today faces her task with confidence and hope. Her many organizations are well officered, and a spirit of optimism and good will prevails among the people.

Tomorrow she is to have as her special preacher the Rev. Dr. A. Gandier of Toronto, a man beloved by the great church he represents, and recognized as one of the foremost preachers on the continent. Having recently returned from a visit to the mission field of the United Church of Canada, he will have messages of great importance for the many who shall be glad to hear him. In India and China and elsewhere his wise counsel has been sought. Peterborough will be glad to hear this very distinguished servant of the church.

NO BETTER MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

A medicine for the baby or growing child—one that the mother can feel assured is absolutely safe as well as efficient—is found in Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are praised by thousands of mothers throughout the country. These mothers have found by actual experience that there is no other medicine for little ones to equal them. Once a mother has used them for her children she will use nothing else. Concerning them Mrs. Charles Hutt, Tancook Island, N.S., writes:—"I have ten children, the baby being just six months old. I have used Baby's Own Tablets for them for the past 20 years and can truthfully say that I know of no beter medicine for little ones. I always keep a box of the Tablets in the house and would advise all other mothers to do so."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or will be mailed upon receipt of price, 25 cents per box, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WOMEN WHO ARE WEAK

Gain New Vitality By Building Up the Blood.

There are many women who pass their days in a constant state of weariness. They have barely sufficient energy to enable them to perform their manifold duties. Often they have an aching head, a miserable pain in the back, and limbs that feel as heavy as lead. The whole trouble is due to bloodlessness. No woman need suffer in this way. It is easy to obtain a supply of rich red blood by taking Dr. Williams' Pills. The new blood created by these pills rapidly builds up the system; headaches and backaches disappear, energy returns and the joy of living is felt once more.

Proof of these statements is given by Mrs. Ed. Lanore, Stoney Point, Ont., who says:—"For a long time I had been in a very miserable condition, always feeling tired out, sleepy and weak. The least work about the house would leave me helplessly tired and nothing that I did seemed to give relief. Believing that a rest might do me good, we moved to town, but, contrary to expectations, instead of getting better I was growing steadily weaker. One day while talking to a neighbor, she urged my taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, telling me that her daughter had been in a condition much like mine. This persuaded me to try this medicine, and I have much reason to be grateful that I followed her advice. After the use of a few boxes of pills, there could be no doubt that they were helping me, and as I continued their use my health and strength came back and now I am doing all my own work and feeling in the best of health. For this splendid condition I must give my thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

The pills are sold by all druggists, or you can get them by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

General Baron, of Mexico, Called Upon Premier King Recently.

OTTAWA, Jan. 21 (Canadian Press).—As far as can be ascertained here, the Government has not received from Consul General Barron of Mexico any formal intimation that he is willing to retire. General Barron was in Ottawa about a week ago and called upon the Prime Minister, but no announcement was made as to what took place at the interview. The Hon. Charles Marcel, Liberal member for Bonaventure, has a resolution asking for the recall of General Barron on the Order Paper of the House of Commons, and it will be debated duirng the coming session.

GRID REFERENCE SYSTEM USEFUL

Each Point Has Same Number on Sheets of All Sizes.

USED IN MAP MAKING.

When we were at school and our lesson in geography was to copy a map from the school text book we would very often start off by marking a set of squares on the map in the book. Then by placing a similar set of squares on the sheet of paper on which our map was to be drawn, we could readily draw it by copying the outlines of the printed map square by square. The system of using squares on maps was thus well recognized by common usage in school life, and although it was not thought of particularly in that connection it was really a system of map referencing.

The same system of squares has been used for many years for map reference purposes by publishers of guide books and general maps. Each square, for convenience, would be designated by a number or by a number in combination with a letter of the alphabet. This combination would be obtained by marking the strips or squares in one direction with a letter and those in other direction with a number, the squares having such designations as A7, D9, etc. This method, owing to its simplicity, soon became very popular, and resulted in great convenience to the map user.

In order that they might be easily used for reference purposes, it became a common practice for topographical map sheets to be squared off in like manner. For purposes of administration and for other purposes, it is most desirable to have a system such that when a name is given there can be no mistaking the place or feature that is referred to. If you have a map which is squared and wish to write to someone who has a similar map, there can be little possibility of a mistake if you quote the name of the map sheet and then, in referring to the feature in question, state it is a certain square.

One difficulty, however, with the usual squaring system is that the number of the squares are only good for one particular map. If you have several different maps of the same area at different scales, then it would be quite possible that the same place would be in differently numbered squares on the different maps.

The so-called "Grid" system as worked out by the Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior, is really nothing more than a nationalized system of squares, so arranged that if any place is referred to by its two grid number (letters of the alphabet not being used) there can be no mistake as to its location—whether or not the name of any particular map sheet is mentioned. Thus, if there are several map sheets of the same area at different scale, then under this national grid system, the two reference numbers of any grid square would always refer precisely to the same location on the ground.

For all ordinary purposes, to say that a point lies in square 22-112 or in the northwest quarter of such a square is sufficient. But if greater precision is required, decimals can be added to the reference numbers to the ultimate practical limit, so as to identify the point exactly. Moreover, if one wishes to go further than this, the system of grid squares provides an accurate means of obtaining the distance and direction (or bearing) from one point to another. And this last mentioned possibility is not confined to two points shown upon one may shoot but may also be used to connect up points which may be shown upon adjacent sheets or upon sheets even far removed from one another. All that would be necessary to make this computation would be to know the grid square reference numbers, decimals and all, of the initial point and also of the final point, the rest being a matter of simple mathematics.

SEYMOUR FAIR HAD GOOD YEAR DESPITE LOSS

Bad Weather Caused Deficit on Exhibition, Reports Indicate.

T. J. HORKINS PRESIDENT.

Officers Are Elected at Annual Meeting—Plans For 1928 Discussed.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 21. — The Seymour Agricultural Society held its first meeting of the year yesterday afternoon in the council chambers in the public library building. There was not as large an attendance as might have been expected on account of the bitter cold and drifing storm, but there were enough members present to carry on the business of receiving the reports for the year and election of officers for the present year. Henry Watters, retiring president, occupied the chair. As soon as the meeting was open for business, a motion was passed expressing sympathy and regret of the society of the loss of so valued a member as the late Mrs. William Hume. The president and secretary both spoke in connection with the motion. A similar motion was also passed with reference to the death of the late Henry and Mrs. Dunham. The late Mr. Dunham had been a director of the fair for years, and Mrs. unham had been a most consistent prize winner.

President Watters then expressed his appreciation of the assistance given him during the year which had resulted in the 1927 Fair being the greatest success that the Campbellford Fair has ever been. Every department, he said, had had its full complement of exhibits and both the exhibitors and visitors had been well pleased and satisfied. There had been no one disappointed, and while the Fair was not a financial success, the advertisement which the crowds would give the association was well worth the slight deficit in receipts.

During the year, payments amounting to a considerable sum had been made, and the May 24th celebration had ended in a loss of $165. The total loss amounted to approximately $900 for the year. Mr. Watters thought that May 24th was a poor day for sports, since it seemed to come too early in the season and the weather had been rainy and cold on different occasions. The same had also been true of the fair dates. Rain had cnsiderably cut down the attendance and hence caused a decrease in the revenue. He further expressed the opinion that the directors should attend all meetings and take an active part in the final preparation of the groups for the Fair and other occasions.

In concluding his address, Mr. Watters expressed his appreciation for the honor shown him in appointing him President for 1927 and wished the society all the success possible in future years.

Treasurer Reports.

The business proceeded to the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting and the receiving of reports. The treasurer's report showed only $7.23 cash surplus as against $67.50 at the end of 1926, but there was a decided increase in membership fees, 118 in 1927 as against 77 in 1926. The total receipts for the year had been $4,487.71, and the expenditures were $4,480.48, leaving a balance of $7.23. The treasurer, J. N. Stone, in presenting the report, stated that in his seven years as secretary-treasurer, the report for 1927 was the best he had ever presented.

As a result of the report, a discussion arose as to the item for feeding stock, and it was explained that grain was supplied to race horses. The hog prize money had also been increased by about a third, and this was appreciated by several members, who thought that there was every reason to cater to this item of the prize-list. The report thus discussed satisfied the members present and was received on motion.

In presenting the directors' report, Mr. Stone explained that Charles Macoun had asked him to speak on the idea of holding a spring fair, similar to those being held in Millbrook, but the idea was not acted upon definitely. It will be discussed more thoroughly at the next meeting. It was also decided to enter the standing field crop competition again this year, and the fee of two dollars was ordered paid. The crops will be oats and corn, the same as last year, and will be judged by departmental officials.

Celebration as Usual.

The May celebration was the next item to come under the hammer, and caused considerable discussion. Other dates were suggested by various members. The result was a motion to continue the celebration on the 24th as usual, and an amendment to alter the date to a later one in the summer. The amendment was supported only by its mover and seconder, and the celebration will be carried out as usual on May 24.

Vice-President Horkins then broached the matter of new buildings for the grounds, and the matter of financing them.

Delegates to represent the Seymour Society at various conventions will be the secretary, J. N. Stone, at the fair convention in Toronto, and W. J. Stevens and John Locke in Belleville on Thursday, January 26. No delegate was appointed to attend the Harness Horse Association meeting being held in the Prince George Hotel, Toronto, but it is expected that some member will attend and be given the authority to vote as a representative. The date is February 2, 1928.

For the election of officers, the vote was taken by ballot. For president, Henry Watters and T. J. Horkins were nominated. Mr. Watters was president for 1927, with Mr. Horkins as first vice. The vote resulted in a tie, and Mr. Horkins generously offered to withdraw his name in favor of Mr. Watters, but his nominators did not consent, and his name stood for the second ballot. This was necessary since the members had not appointed a chairman for this part of the meeting, and Mr. Stone could not properly be called upon to cast the deciding vote. Mr. Horkins did not vote on the first round. When John Locke had been elected chairman, the election proceeded. The second ballot resulted in Mr. Horkins being elected by one vote. The president-elect thanked his supporters, and those who had not voted for him as well. He hoped they would all work together, and assured them that he would do all he possibly could to make the year's work a success.

The first and second vice-presidents elected were George VanVolkenberg and William Stevens. The 13 directors are G. A. Kingston, W. S Grills, Henry Watters, F. M. Ruthrerford, Dr. S. L. O'Hara, Robert Innes, D. A. Owen, J. A. Murray, W. J. Abenethy, C. H. Coveny Alex Hume, W. A. Wynn and John Locke. The same auditors as last year will retain office again this year, Chas. Bedford and Marshall West. The lady directors will continue the same as last year with the vacancy left by the death of Mrs. William Hume occupied by Mrs. Ernest McCook.

At the close of the election Mayor Kingston and President-elect Horkins moved a vote of appreciation for the work done by the retiring president and both spoke to the motion. In his reply Mr. Waters said he hoped that the society would continue its upward trend in high gear. His remarks were greeted with applause.

VESSELS COLLIDE.

British Warship and Italian Steamer Crash in Aegean Sea.

VALETTA, Malta, Jan. 21 (Canadian Press).—The British cruiser Caledon and the Italian steamer Antares collided yesterday in Boro Channel, Aegean Sea. The Antares was taken under tow to Piraeus, and the Caledon was reported to have been damaged, but no definite word has been received here as to the extent of her damages or the details of the collision.

ing competitions and they are becoming big things in their lives," concluded Mr. Knox.

The directors decided to use department judges as far as possible at this year's Exhibition. The Board will have the usual field crop competition in wheat and oats. T. M. McIndoo and William Knox were appointed delegates to the Ontario Convention of Fairs.

No Drawing Contest

The drawing contest, which has received a great deal of unfavorable criticism will be taken from the prize list. The motion picture showed this contest up in a very unfavorable manner, and Hon. Mr. Martin commented on it when the delegation was in Toronto. The secretary was asked to write the Minister, telling him there will be no drawing contest in the future at the Peterborough Exhibition.

S. A. Oke and R. M. Glover moved a vote of thanks to President Denne for his accepting the office this year in spite of the fact that he was Mayor of the city and a very busy man. The members all endorsed this by standing and giving a hearty hand-clap.

President Denne thanked the Board for the honor. He said he felt that he should let some other member have it, as he had about enough on his shoulders as Mayor of the city, but the member would not hear tell of him not taking the office.

Webber Turner, R. M. Glover, and E. F. Mason were appointed a committee to make arrangements for the annual banquet which will be held next Friday night.

All committee chairmen were asked to prepare a list of their committees immediately, so that all committees would be able to get to work

The question of departmental judges was discussed and it was decided to get two for the cattle, one for beef cattle and one for dairy cattle, and also a man for horses and a lady judge.

On motion it was decided to send the affiliation fee to the Ontario Fall Fairs Association.

The question of sending a delegate to the convention to be held in Toronto February 1st and 2nd was discussed at some length and it was decided to send Howard W. Beavis to represent the Lakefield Agricultural Society.

Messrs. A. H. Clarke and G. H. Spence were appointed auditors.

Mr. Darling suggested that a vote of thanks was due to Chief of Police Webster for his splendid work at the fair and his co-operation all through the year. This vote was given in an audible and hearty manner.

Mr. Webtser thanked the members of the Society for their appreciation and modesty and said he had merely done his duty. Mr. Webster urged greater co-operation on the part of the directors who should stand behind the fair or else get out of it. Mr. Webster suggested that some improvements in the arrangements would make the fair a better and more attractive enterprise. The horse race, Mr. Webster characterized as "the most disgraceful horse race" he ever saw and he has travelled all over North America and has been a considerable bit of Europe and Asia. The prize money should never have been paid, he declared.

The board of directors agreed with Mr. Webster in regard to the quality of the horse race being the poorest feature of the fair.

Mr. Braden wished to have a vote of thanks given to the Chief and Councillors Tedford and Harrison for the help given the society on several occasions by the town team.

J. E. Galvin was, on motion, asked to take the chair for the election of officers and these officers were elected:

1st Vice-Pres.—Mr. John Blakeley.

2nd Vice-Pres—Mr. Howard Beavis.

The meeting adjourned and was followed immediately by a meeting of the board of directors, who proceeded to elect J. E. Galvin as secretary.

Messrs. A. E. Higgins, J. Blakeley, B. Garbutt, R. Duff and T. Braden were re-elected to the Property committee.

Mr. Darling thanked the directors for his re-election as president and assured them of his efforts for a good fair and bespoke the continued co-operation of the board of directors to make the 1928 fair bigger and better than ever.

A Man of Rare Attainment

Honored politically and professionally, during his lifetime, Dr. R. V. Pierce, whose picture appears here, made a success few have equalled. He was the originator of that great herbal tonic, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the sale of which has, each succeeding year, been greatly increased.

When you feel weak, tire easily, become discouraged quickly and sometimes feel like giving up the struggle, just ask your nearest druggist for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, or "G.M.D.," in fluid or tablets.

Users everywhere laud its praises.

Send 10 cents for trial pkg. of tablets to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ontario.

GENERAL CONTEST RULES

How to Enter

1. The contest is open to everyone except:
   (a) Employees of The Peterborough Examiner, Ltd., or their immediate family.
   (b) Prize-winners in any similar contest who have won any of the major prizes.

2. Additional puzzle-charts may be obtained free by writing to the Contest Department or by calling at The Examiner Office.

3. Every figure in the puzzle is complete and entirely free from tricks or illusions. If any contestant is in doubt about any of the figures, send in the chart with the figures marked and the Contest Department will gladly give a ruling on the figure.

4. When you have solved the puzzle, fill in completely the solution blank, which must be accompanied by a remittance for at least a six months' subscription at the regular rates to The Evening Examiner. (See subscription rates.) See also the prize-list and note how the value of your prize is increased by paying for a year's subscription and by getting subscriptions from your friends. Renewal subscriptions, or subscriptions in arrears, if paid during contest period, count the same as new subscriptions and will be extended from the present expiry date, but not more than $15.00 will be received on any one solution or subscription.

5. In order that subscribers who pay carrier boys weekly may participate in this contest, books of tickets containing 22 weekly tickets for $3.00, or 44 for $6.00, will be sold. These remittances must be made direct to the Contest Department with your solution. Otherwise it cannot be registered. Each ticket is valued at 15c and will be redeemed from the carrier boy at that price.

6. Readers who give their subscription to some other contestant and later want to send in an answer themselves, may do so providing they fill in the coupon, giving the name of the person they paid their subscription to and the amount paid. No further payment is necessary.

7. The contest will close on March 15, 1928, but send in your solution as soon as possible as we are offering special prizes for the first correct solutions. (See full details under "Special Prizes.") There is nothing gained by holding back your answer once you have solved the puzzle, as a contestant may make several remittances on any answer sent in while the contest lasts up to a total amount of $15.00.

8. Contestants may send in a different answer to the puzzle with each remittance, but if one of your answers is correct the money sent in on your other answers will not increase the total value of your prize, and not more than one regular prize will be paid to one family.

9. Everyone has an equal chance. You can win the first prize and extra cash for only a six months' subscription, but note how the value of the first five prizes increases if you send in more money. Aim to win the maximum Grand Prize. The Evening Examiner is now recognized as the leading daily in Peterborough district and surrounding counties and no difficulty should be found in getting your friends or neighbors to subscribe for it.

10. Contestants who remit by mail or pay at the office should see that these remittances and answers are made on a proper contest coupon to ensure them reaching the Contest Department.

11. If the correct answer is not sent in by any contestant the prizes will be awarded for the nearest correct solutions. In the event of a tie a second puzzle will be presented which will be as practicable and solvable as the first. Only those tieing will be permitted to solve the second puzzle. Should two or more persons be tied in the second puzzle the prizes will be divided equally among those tieing. No cash will be accepted on the second puzzle.

12. In entering the contest, contestants agree to abide by the rules of the contest and to accept the decision of the judges as final. The Contest Department reserve the right to alter and amend its rules if necessary for the protection of contestants or The Peterborough Examiner. It also reserves the right to refund any subscriptions and to disqualify any contestants whom they consider should not be in the contest. Contestants are assured of the same impartial treatment which characterizes The Examiner in all its dealings.

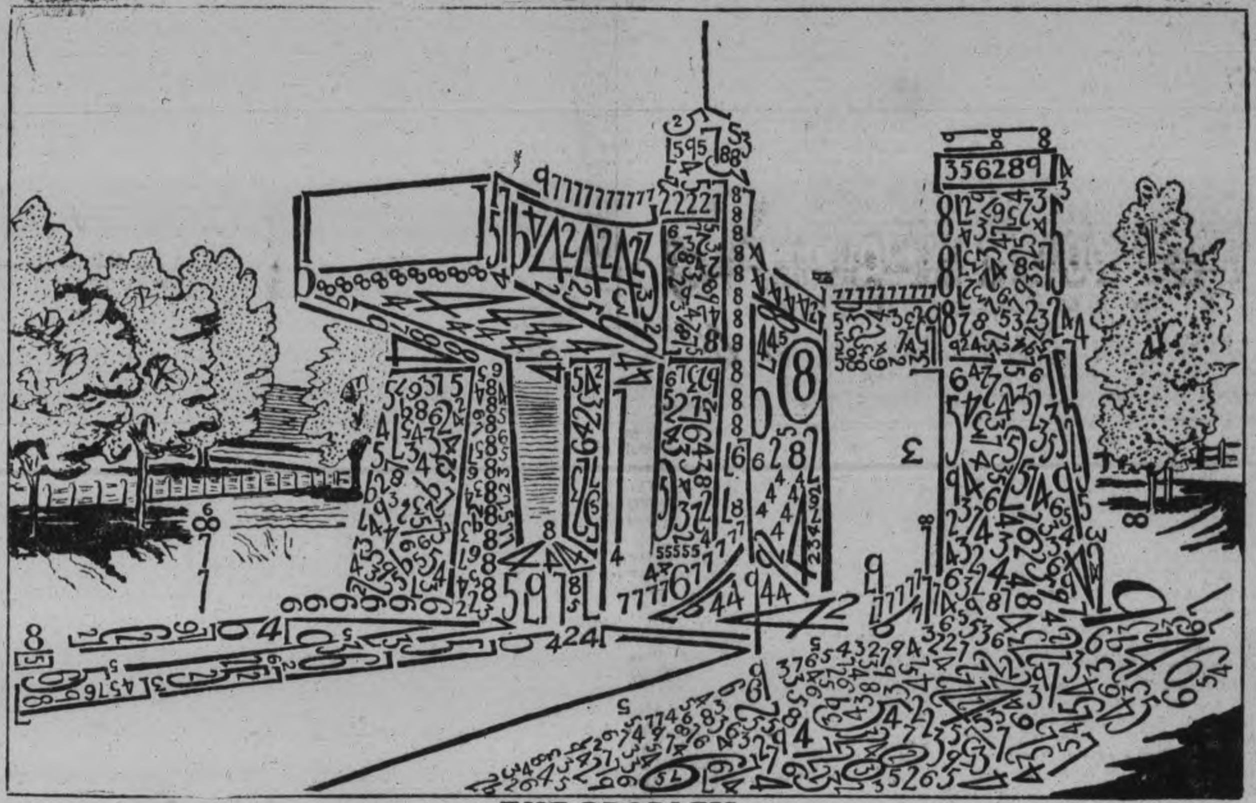
HOW MANY TONS DOES THE LIFT LOCK WEIGH?



THE PROBLEM

The problem is to add together all the figures shown above, which, when added together, represent the total number of tons that the Lift Lock weighs.

The puzzle is entirely free from tricks or illusions, every figure is complete and stands alone. The figures range from two to nine. There are no ones (1) or ciphers (0) in the puzzle. The sixes are curved, while the stem of the nines are straight.

We wish it clearly understood that every figure can be plainly seen. There is nothing hidden in the trees or shadows, but the problem of adding these is a real test of accuracy.

Remember, each figure is added separately. For example, 9777 is counted 9 plus 7 plus 7 plus 7, or, in other words, simply add them as if each figure stood one above the other in a single column.

REMEMBER, NO ONE KNOWS THE CORRECT ANSWER UNTIL THE CONTEST CLOSES

To ensure this we had Mr. E. M. Elliott, County Treasurer, and Mr. Frank Adams, City Treasurer, each erase one or more figures from the original drawing, which they carefully noted and sealed in an envelope and gave to the manager of the Royal Bank for safe keeping until the contest closes.

A TIP ON HOW TO WIN

Take a pencil and put down the numbers as you stroke them out, then add them up. Some suggest that you cut the chart into dozens of pieces, then check them from all sides; or if you wish, try blotting them out with colored ink or pencil. Others think the best way is to pick out all the twos, threes, fours, etc. Any they miss the first time they find later. Or suppose you try taking a combination of figures which, when added together, makes a total of ten. For example, 5 and 3 and 2 make 10. Tens are not only easily added together, but there is less danger of making a mistake.

Important Points to Remember

1. Everyone has the same opportunity. A person sending in only $3.00 in subscriptions has the same chance of winning the first prize as a person sending in more money. The advantage of sending in more money is to increase the value of the first five prizes.

2. This is a contest for Central Ontario district, or to any subscriber of The Examiner, no matter where he resides.

3. Don't forget to answer all the necessary questions on the solution blank.

4. If you collect a subscription from a friend or neighbour, that person can also submit an answer to the puzzle without further payment.

THE JUDGES

In order that each Contestant shall have fair and impartial treatment, we have arranged with Mr. Roland Denne, Mayor of the City and Alderman Nagel Phelan to act as judges for the contest. Any complaints in this connection will be referred to these judges whose decision will be absolutely final.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Almost imperceptibly the desire to live began to push its way through the dark, smothering cloaks of despair beneath which Faith had buried her soul. The delicious breakfast, which she had enjoyed despite her unwillingness to do so, had a great deal to do with it, of course, but the tide of joy which had swept over her when she learned the truth—that Bob loved her and that he had merely been trying to persuade Cherry to accept Nils Jonson if he proposed again—had not been pushed back as far as she thought, when the sense of her own unworthiness had descended upon her. That joy was still with her, fighting valiantly for control of her nerves and heart, and inch by inch it was gaining upon her self-loathing. No human being can long hate himself as Faith had done and keep his sanity. George's words, "I don't suppose any of us is fit to live, if the truth were known," were more comforting than he could have known they would be. She hugged them to her heart, laid them pityingly upon her poor bruised ego, fashioned new rose-colored cloaks of illusion of them, so that she might be able to bear living with herself again. But this time she knew that they were illusions, believed that never again in all her life would she be arrogant because of her "goodness" and "nobility."

"But I suppose everyone of us is a mixture of saint and sinner, and only God knows which predominates—the saint or the sinner," Faith mused, routing despair.
when joy had almost succeeded in

The doctor paid his morning visit at eleven and beamed with pleasure at her decided improvement.

'You scared us yesterday by trying to shoot the mercury out of the thermometer," he teased her jovially. "Now, young lady, how's your memory? What's your name?"

Faith closed her eyes so that he could not see the shame in them as she forced herself to lie again "Stella Pringle. I can't remember anything else."

"Well, Miss Pringle," the doctor laughed a little too loudly to conceal his anxiety, "have it your own way. Feel like seeing any visitors this morning? There's a certain young lady that's mighty anxious to see you, even if you don't remember her. But maybe you will."

She lay with her eyes closed, hoping desperately that she could play up to George's "stunt" for bringing back her "memory," whatever that stunt might be. He should have prepared her—

She heard the door close upon the doctor and the nurse, who went out whispering together. Her eyes were still closed, for she was afraid to look when the door opened again. But it was only Miss Sutton, rustling starchily in. She heard the nurse approach the bed, bend over it, lay something on the crook of her arm, something alive, something small and yet vitally heavy, something preciously, infinitely familiar—

Faith's eyes flew open, took in, in one glorious flash, a tangle of copper-and-gold curls, a pair of round, wide brown eyes, baby-cheeks poppy-bright with the cold and with health. She could not have restrained her cry of joy if she had wanted to

"Hope! My baby! Hope!"

Lyrics of Life - By Douglas Malloch

A PARTICULAR WISH

Some dream of a heaven of gold, some dream of a heaven of song,
But I have a dream of a heaven of mine, a dream I have dreamed all along.
It isn't to carry a harp, it isn't to dance in a street,
In fact I am hoping to get me a chance to rest both my hands and my feet.
For this would be heaven for me, yes, this would be something sublime—
To not have to be some particular place at any particular time.

I rise a particular hour, to catch a particular car,
To be at a certain particular desk, for people particular are,
I have a particular job, to do a particular way,
And always it seems it's especially hard that certain particular day.
Oh, here's what makes labor a task, and here's what makes living a crime
Because you must be some particular place some certain particular time.

Some wish for a plenty of coin, some long for a plenty of fame,
I'm ready to say no particular wealth is my particular aim.
No, all that I ask is enough to tell all the world to go hang,
And not have to spend some particular day with any particular gang.
When Gabriel blows on his horn, I doubt if to heaven I'll climb,
I don't want to be some particular place at any particular time.

MEAT AND PROTEIN SUBSTITUTES

Man's original source of protein nourishment may have been the roots, herbs, nuts, and wild fruits, but it is likely that at a very early age in his development he learned to use flesh foods of various kinds, probably at first using oysters, molusks, and the different kinds of bird and reptile eggs.

Pre-historic man proabbly ate his food only to satisfy his appetite, with little regard to food value. It has really been only a few hundred years since we have understood how to analyze foods, and to get an inkling of the way the body converts them to its use. So far we have only scratched the surface in our study of food chemistry, but from the knowledge that there are such elements as proteins, carbohydrates, hydrocarbons, and vitamins, we have been able to arrange a more scientific diet so as to more adequately provide for the body's needs.

We know that the substance called "protein" is a nitrogeneous material which can be secured from all kinds of flesh foods, and also in varying amounts from most vegetables, fruits and nuts.

In the past few years dietitians have been quibbling over what constitutes the best kind of protein food. As with every subject for discussion, there are many sides to the question. Meat provides us with an easily digested protein, and if the correct amount is used in good combination with other foods, and if it is prepared properly, there is no other source of protein nourishment which can so well fit our body's needs.

Those who are ethically opposed to the use of flesh foods are divided into three classes—the vegetarians, the lacto-vegetarians, and those who try to live on a diet of uncooked foods. A strict vegetarian will not use meat, butter, milk, cheese, or any animal product. He assumes his stand against all animal products either because he is ethically or religiously opposed, or because he believes that such foods are essentially poisonous. A strict vegetarian must secure his protein from the small amount found in vegetables, and the larger amount found in nuts, whole grains, and the legumes.

All vegetables contain from one to three per cent of protein, but this proportion is not enough compared to the large amount of starch which they contain. All whole grains are high in protein value, but are not as easily digested as the animal proteins. Nuts furnish a large supply of protein elements, but because of the large amount of fat which all nuts contain they are likewise not as easily digested as the protein from flesh food. A vegetarian doing hard muscular work will find he can digest the nut and grain proteins to better advantage than the brain worker.

Most vegetarians are really lacto-vegetarians; that is, they use milk, butter and cheese, and the larger proportion also uses eggs. In this way they get a large amount of protein, all of which, however, is deficient in some of the amino acids contained in flesh foods.

The one who believes in a raw food diet must get his protein mostly from nuts. The raw-fooder sometimes uses uncooked grains, but it is doubtful whether he receives much nourishment from the use of grain in this state. Grain foods are improved by cooking probably more than any other kind of food.

Whether using meat or meat substitutes, be careful in combining them with other foods, and in preparing them correctly.

Questions and Answers.

Question Mrs. H. C. H. asks "Can a person be anemic and have high blood pressure at the same time?"

Answer It is possible to have anemia and high blood pressure at the same time, as high blood pressure is caused either by hypertention of the arteries, or due to hardening of the arterial walls. Anemia is a condition where there is a lack of red blood cells and hemoglobin.

Question Willabelle asks "Will you inform me how Sally-Lunn got its name?"

Answer Sally Lunn, a resident of Bath, England, originated a form of tea cake similar to the English muffin, which has since been identified by her name.

Question Thank You asks "Will you please explain what you mean by an internal bath? One woman I know is drinking a quart of warm water night and morning, and another is using two quarts of warm water as an enema night and morning. Which is correct? Also, is a warm bath in the tub all right when one hasn't a shower?"

Answer When the term, "internal bath" is used it usually refers to a washing of the colon by what is otherwise known as an enema. It is true that one can wash out the stomach by drinking large quantities of water, but this has a very different effect upon the intestine, as the water is absorbed mostly in the stomach. You can also arrange a very satisfactory shower by securing one of the shower attachments which connects with your bathtub faucet. A shower can then be taken while sitting or squatting in the tub. It is better to use cool or cold water, as warm water is always enervating.

CONTINUAL dosing upsets children's delicate stomachs. Vicks is applied externally and therefore cannot disturb the digestion. It acts in two ways:

(1) The body heat releases the ingredients in the form of vapors which are inhaled.

KITCHENER GREENSHIRTS WIN FROM PETERBOROUGH 12 TO 3; PILE UP LEAD IN FIRST PERIOD

FIGHT RIGHT TO END.

Superior Combination Enables Twin City Team to Win Game on Home Ice.

(Special to The Examiner)

KITCHENER, Jan. 21.—After dominating the Twin City Green Shirts for many years, Peterborough's spell was finally broken here last night, when the Green Shirts humbled the Peterborough squad by a 12 to 3 score in a Senior O.H.A. game. Despite the one-sided score the game was an interesting struggle with the Blue and White Petes not as badly outclassed as the score would indicate. A bad first period in which the Twin City sharpshooters rattled six goals past Hall, who subbed in the nets for LeBarr, the regular goalie, was the cause of the overwhelming score, for in the second and third periods the Petes held the Green Shirts fairly well.

Peterborough lost many chances to score through failure to pass the puck in the first two periods and by lack of punch in the goal mouth. In the third period they played better hockey and registered all three counters in that frace. The Green Shirts undoubtedly had the edge all around, but at times the Petes made things very interesting for the winners. After the homesters had boosted the score to 10-0 in the third period Peterborough came to life with a bang, scoring two goals in one minute and forty seconds. The final counter came with twenty seconds to goal.

Hall's goal-tending, especially in the first period, was to a large degree responsible for the big score, although the youngster player much better in the second and third frames. At times he was distinctly brilliant with his spectacular saves. When the Kitchener club scored six goals in the first period it took a lot of the fight out of the Peterborough squad, but they kept trying to the bitter end.

Kane Leads Petes

Kane, McPhee and Foley were the outstanding men on the Peterborough line-up, this trio accounting for the three goals. Kane was easily the most dangerous man on the Blue and White line and he deserved more than the one goal which he secured. In the second period he was beaten out of two goals by the brilliant saves of Klem, the Twin City goalkeeper. McPhee also showed considerable punch on the attack. Foley did not display much brilliance until the final period, when he sprung to sudden prominent in a pinch-hitting capacity, giving the pass for the first goal and counting the final Peterborough goal himself. Williams at centre, also turned in a fair game. The defence was not so good, Rose's showing being a distinct disappointment to the Twin City fans, who expected him to shine.

Seagram and Chuck Roth were easily the stars of the home club, notching four and three counters respectively. Both played heady, fast, combination hockey. The veteran George Karges was also very good, tallying two goals. Hiller also got a pair, while Molson bagged the other Twin city goal. The winners played superior combination, especially in the second and third periods. Half of the dozen goals were scored on combination plays. Roth, in addition to scoring three goals, handed out three passes which developed into counters, while Seagram gave two.

The Play.

Peterborough checked the homesters into submission for five minutes, but then the Greenshirts broke loose, scoring five goals in as many minutes. Seagram made the first period score read 6-0 just before the bell sounded. The Petes played much better in the second, with Hall doing some nifty goalkeeping, holding the Greenshirts to two goals. Scoring alternated in the final period, the Twin City boys counting two, followed by Kane's and McPhee's counters, and then Hiller and Karges added another pair for the homesters, only to have Foley make the final registration with 20 seconds to go. The team:

Twin City— Goal, Klem; defence, Schneider and Karges; centre, Seagram; wings, Molson and Hiller; subs, Roth and Farrell.

Peterborough—Goal, Hall; defence, Lackey and Rose; centre, Williams; wings, Kane and McPhee; subs, Foley and Maudsley.

ST. JOHN'S TEAM DEFEATS GROVE AT LAKEFIELD

Local O. H. A. Junior Outfit Forced the Play in Overtime.

SCORE 9 TO 6.

Play Was Clean and Practically Free From Penalties.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 21. — Scoring three goals in the overtime periods, St. John's junior O.H.A. team won thir first game of the season by a 9-6 score from Grove school in an exhibition tilt at the Lakefield Arena last night.

Although nothing was at stake as a result of the game both teams tried hard to win, giving a snappy exhibition of clean hockey. The game was practically free from penalties, with none in the first period, Johnson and Terry Hall taking two minors in second and Jarvis for Peterborough with (2) and Hunt for Grove (1) in the final frame. Braden Blewett of Lakefield, acted as referee.

Play.

In the first quarter of the initial frame Terry Hall scored for the St. John's two minutes after play began with Hartley sinking another tally a few minutes later, leaving the score 2-0 for the visitors.

The remainder of the period belonged to the school boys with play practically centering around the Peterborough goal. Loosemore scored first for the locals, Peck tieing the score later, four minutes after Hamilton tallied, then Bagg, leaving the count 4-2 in favor of the school boys at the end of the first period.

Terry Hall scored two goals for St. John's in the second period to tie count, both teams playing even hockey in this frame, neither being able to gain advantage of the other.

Loosemore tallied for Lakefield, 5 minutes after play began in the third period and Terry Hall again evened the score 2 minutes later.

Shortly after Loosemore sank his second of the period, and Jarvis brought up the score one minute later leaving the count 6-6 at the end of the final frame.

In the first overtime period Jack Hall tallied two goals for St. John's and in the second Hartley scored for the visitors.

The line up:

St. John's: Goal, Payne; right defence, Johnson; left defence, Frost; centre, Hartley; left wing, Jarvis; right wing, Terry Hall; subs., Jack Hall, Cuthbertson, Dunkerly and Hutchinson.

New Series Formed.

As a sort of a new thing in local sport the Cement Company has started a "Broomaloo" series with four teams entered: (1) Electricians; (2) Machinists; (3) Dam Workers, and (4) Operators.

This game is played with a football and brooms without the use of skates, along the same geneal rules as hockey and bears about the same relation as softball does to baseball.

The first game was played last Wednesday between the Machinists and the Electricians. The score was a tie 2-2.

Last night the same two teams tangled with the Machinists, having the best of the argument by 3-1 count. Next game to be played between Machinists and Dam Workers. Ira Lennox acted as referee.

Electricians: Mackran, Lee, Crapo, Brown, Lasure, Davidson, Price-Jackson and O'Neill.

BILL TILDEN SAYS:

I am not as pessimistic about the chances of the United States to regain the Davis Cup from France, as are the writers on tennis. No matter how great a player may be, and tennis has produced a number of scintillating stars, time and effort will always produce a greater one. The United States lost a great player when Vincent Richards decided to turn professional. Of more recent date, has been the proof that Bill Johnston and myself, as well as a number of other veteran players, are going back.

Turn to the pages of tennis history and you will find that Smith of England met his superior in Doherty; Rice of Australia met his Brookes; McLoughlin of America met his Williams, who in turn met his Johnston, and then I happened to enter the scene.

Tennis, like all other sports, runs in cycles, and for three of four years the French menace has been ever present. During the past year Lacoste, Cochet and other French stars have held the upper hand.

On form, it seems that France, with its long list of first-string stars and many prospective youngsters, should hold sway in tennis for some time, but there is nothing certain about it.

For five or six years several of us veteran players have rather hogged the spotlight in tennis. Now that the older players all seem to be retrograding at the same time, I look for many new names to break into the headlines as far as tennis is concerned.

There are a number of younger players who are certain to help in regaining lost tennis prestige. It will be well to watch the youngsters like Lott, Doeg, White, Shields and others during the coming season. They should do well.

SEPPALA LEADS IN DOG DERBY

Makes Best Time in First Day's Lap of Annual Race.

THROUGH STORM.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y., Jan. 21. — Canadian Press. — Driving his team of sled dogs through a blizzard which was a reminder of winter storms at his home in Nome, Alaska, Leonard Seppala made the best time in yesterday's first lap of the annual dog sled derby here. The time for covering the 15 mile course was made in 1 hour, 26 minutes and 17 seconds. The only woman contender present, Mrs. E. P. Ricker, Jr., of Poland Springs, Maine, finished in second place, more than 23 minutes behind Seppala. Several dogs raised by Seppala were harnessed in Mrs. Ricker's team.

A blizzard which raged throughout the night and part of yesterday covered field and forest in the Adirondacks with more than a foot of snow. Driven by a high wind the snow was so blinding that for much of the 15 miles the drivers were not able to see more than ten feet ahead.

To-day's race was without a winner, as under the rules of the event, the rating of the teams is based on the average time made for the two days of racing.

One of the contestants, Walter Channing of Boston, did not finish the course to-day as the leader of his pack met with an accident along the course.

The times yesterday follow:

Leonard Seppala, Nome, Alaska, 1 hour, 26 minutes and 17 seconds.

Mrs. E. P. Ricker, Jr., Poland Springs, Me., 1 hour, 49 minutes and 2 seconds.

Hiram Mason, Jr., Tamworth, N. H., 1 hour, 50 minutes and 9 seconds.

Jacques Suzanne, Lake Placid, 2 hours, 32 minutes, 30 seconds.

H. W. Prendergast, North Conway, N.H., 2 hours, 40 minutes, and 6 seconds.

The derby, the first annual event of the kind to be held here, was under the auspices of the New England Sled Dog Club.

Maroons Will Meet Canadiens To-Night

MONTREAL, Que. Jan. 21.—The Maroons, a strong defensive machine, with Hefty Munro Siebert and Dutton combination in front of Benedict's goal, meet the Canadiens here to-night. The chances are that after the experience of their past two clashes this winter, the first a tie and the second a win for for Canadiens by a single goal margin, Maroons will resort to a strong defensive style of hockey to hold Canadiens out and will rely on the "breaks" in an effort to prevent the Canadiens scoring their eighth straight triumph.

Both teams will be all put to win as victors in these intra-city matches are keenly sought. Maroons will have a double incentive, however, in that they need a victory to assure their hold on second position in the Canadian section of the race.

INSIDE SPORTIN' DOPE

By A WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, they has been a new winter sport developed in these parts since my last letter. I mean ghost hunting. Personally I ain't had nothing to do with it myself, but according to them that has the thrills is greatly exaggerated. I get a bigger kick outa the ghost that walks here every Fri., and I'm glad to say it's a heap more punctual than that there barrel-shaped spook that is supposed to have did his stuff down in Seymour. Anyway, they ain't no ghost what thinks much of hisself that is going to make his appearance anywhere where they's a bunch of Toronto Star and Telegram reporters around. A spectre that gotta into that company'd sure have a tough time explaining it to his fellow spooks.

Mister Sporting Editor, ain't they no way to stop them kicking our hockey teams around? Up to today (Thurs.) we dropped 4 more games this week, giving us the remarkable record of 11 O.H.A. games and 11 losses. And worst than that, Mister Lew Lebarr's kids declared this a scoreless week and they didn't dint the nets 2 games hand-running. This kinda thing can't keep up. Anyway, Mister Wright's srs. give us a real exhibition of hockey against Varsity Wed. night, and them students sure got a lotta help from luck and Mister Harry Batstone to win 3-1. The 1st goal that was scored by Mister Don Carrick, the amateur golf champion, was golf at its finest. Mister Carrick sliced his drive and got into the rough, but his ball rebounded unto the green and he was down in 1. But anyway Mister Carrick was not hard-boiled enough to say that was the way he played it. Mister Red Legon that was expected to be with us was with them, but it didn't mean a thing. The Petes saw to it that Mister Legon didn't get no chance to shine, and the way they checked him was nobody's business. The customers enjoyed the night's doings immensely, and they come out loudly declaring that if they hadda much luck as Varsity they'd own the C.P.R. The Petes may not bring home no championships this winter, Mac, but if they can kick in with a few more games like Wed. night the winter ain't going to be a total loss.

I was among them what heard Mister Bennett speak here the other night. Ain't it funny how much them politicians don't know about things? Here was the leader up there on the platform wanting to know where a lot of former Canadians was, and I felt like telling him that Mister Joe Dwyer, Mister Bert McLeod and Mister Biffer Ranger was with the Kansas City pros. But what was the use? Them birds that wanta be prime minister and boss the country oughta to know where such well-known citizens as them boys is without me having to tip them off. I don't get none of that salary that the leader of the opposition drags down.

Next week is another week, Mac, and mebbe by when my next is written I'll be able to tell about some Peterboro team somewhere, sometime winning a game somehow.

Anyway, here's hoping.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

CHAPMAN AFTER SHARKEY BOUT

Rickard's Assistant Batters the Heavyweight Ranks Into Battle Order.

SET FOR MARCH 12TH.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. Canadian Press. — With Tom Heeney and Jack Delaney definitely tied to an agreement to fight 15 rounds on March 1, "Texas" Chapman, relief promoter at Madison Square Garden, continued yesterday to batter the ranks of heavyweight contenders into close battle order.

The new ruler of New York's castle of clout, applying the formulae that made him "Czar" of the six-day bicycle game, ordered Jess McMahon to Boston on Monday to sign Jack Sharkey for a 15 round tussle with Johnny Riske, the Cleveland baker boy, on March 12. Chapman in his newly created role of assistant general manager of the garden, is substituting for Tex Rickard during the first string promoter's visit to Miami, Fla., to discuss the heavyweight situation with Champion Gene Tunney.

Chapman said that Riske's acceptance of a match with Sharkey already is on file at the Garden and that the Boston tar also had agreed to the match. McMahon's job will be to clinch the deal and gain Sharkey's signature to a contract.

Present plans for Rickard's final "tournament of five" call for the winner of these two bouts to meet about April 30 in a match to decide the first challenger to Tunney next summer. Jack Dempsey, if he decides to return to the ring for a third shot at the big marine, probably will be Tunney's opponent in a second title battle next September

At the recent annual conference held in London by the National Union of the Professional and Industrial Blind the official notes of the proceedings were taken by a blind stenographer using Braille shorthand.

The Prince of Wales has joined the ranks of the many people who are now collecting models of ships. He has a number of these for the adornment of Marlborough House, his new London home.

RONALD COLMAN AND VILMA BANKY CO-STARRED IN "THE MAGIC FLAME," NEW SAMUEL GOLDWYN FILM

Story of Circus and Royal Court Life Has Ronald Colman in Two Roles.

Samuel Goldwyn, producer of "Stella Dallas," "The Night of Love," "The Dark Angel" and other distinguished films, offers as the piece de resistance of his career the new Ronald Colman-Vilma Banky film, "The Magic Flame," coming to the Capitol theatre Monday. Directed by Henry King, maker of "Stella Dallas," and adapted by Bess Meredith from Rudolph Lothar's play, "King Harlequin," "The Magic Flame" is a story of clowns and counts, circus and court, love and laughter.

Ronald Colman plays two roles in the film, that of a clown and that of a count. It is Vilma Banky, an aerial artist, whom Colman's two characters love and struggle for. Into the warp and woof of that conflict Henry King has injected romance, surprising situations, humor, satire, physical struggle, a pair of murders, a balloon ascension and parachute jump, a whole circus filmed in its colorful details, and directorial acumen such as the moviegoing public has come to associate with his name.

Goldwyn emphasized in a wire to Manager Fletcher when the theatre executive booked "The Magic Flame" through United Artists Corporation that the new Colman-Banky film has been made by practiced, expert hands. The continuity was the last one written by June Mathis, scenarist of "The Four Horsemen" and discoverer of Rudolph Valentino. The theme song, played by Ronald Colman on a guitar during the film, was composed by Dr. Sigmund Spaeth. Sets were designed by Carl Oscar Borg, Swedish artist; while George Barnes, A.S.C., did the photography. George Marion, Jr., and Nellie Revell wrote the titles. Finally, "The Magic Flame" is released by United Artists Corporation, which offers films of Mary Pickford, Norma Talmadge, Gloria Swanson, Corinne Griffith, Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, John Barrymore and other big stars.

The action of the story occurs in a Mediterranean country, Baretti's circus furnishing the background against which Vilma Banky and Ronald Colman make love. It is when Colman, the Clown has triumphed over Colman, the Count, that the locale is switched to the Royal Court, with the Clown accepted on all hands as King of Illyria. When Vilma Banky arrives at the court to avenge the murder of her lover, the Clown, she does not suspect the true identity of the monarch. It is with the disentanglement of this tense situation that the plot thereafter is concerned.

Gustave von Seyffertitz, who will be remembered as the Grimes of Mary Pickford's "Sparrows," appears in the court sequences as the chancellor. Others in the cast are Augustino Borgato, who supported Duse on the stage; Harvey Clarke, a descendant of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow; Shirley Palmer, newest Samuel Goldwyn discovery; Cosmo Kyrle Bellew and George Davis.

Pete Sanstol, the Norwegian flyweight, appears to be one of the best little fighters whom Europe has sent over to America in a long time.

"ROSES OF PICARDYS" SETS A PROBLEM—DID MADELINE DO RIGHT?

Madeline is mistress of the Spanish Farm, a typical Flemish stronghold dating back to the time when Flanders was the cockpit of Europe. Even as the implacable spirit of that borderland so often fought over yet never really conquered, is Madeline, competent, self-assured, forgetting and forgiving nothing.

Madeline loved Georges D'Archeville, the gay, careless son of the seigneur of the little town of Hondebecq. But Georges did not love her. He was a philanderer who, while honoring Madeline with his amours, considered her beneath his station. She had no illusions on the subject, knew that she was not loved, but yet was content so long as Georges was near.

Then came the war and he, magnificent in his cuirassier's uniform, left for the war. Months passed by and brought no word from him. Later a battalion of British troops were billeted at the Spanish Farm and she besought the liaison officer, Lieut. Skene, to find out where her lover's regiment was.

Skene as piqued with the pertinacity of Madeline, the dour way in which she demanded compensation for damage done by his men, but he did not fall in love with her. A few days later he and his platoon went up to the line in readiness for a night attack, a nightmare of mud and murder from which he emerged unscathed but with every nerve jangling. Back at the Spanish Farm terror took possession of him. He dreaded the return to the line. Meeting Madeline he cried in self-pity, "Comfort me, a little, before I go back to die." And Madeline, touched by pity for the shell-shocked officer, took him in, caressing him like a mother with a child, easing her aching heart by giving him the comfort he craved.

This is a portion of the story of "Roses of Picardy," a story of the reaction of two men and a woman to the war. It opens up a problem that will intrigue all womenfolk. Did Madeline do right to seek comfort and give comfort under the provocation of a forgetful lover and the urge of sympathy for Skene?

"Roses of Picardy" is the finest war film yet made. Coming for four days to the Regent, beginning Monday.

AT THE GRAND.

No kind of theatrical production ha the universal appeal of the English pantomime—when deftly produced and staged.

No producer, in the history of Canadian theatrical affairs has been able to produce and stage these spectacles with the cleverness of F. Stuart-Whyte and his absence from Canadian theatres for the past few years has been regretted from one end of the Dominion to the other.

Now—at last—he has consented to return, forsaking the director's megaphone of the movie studio to give the Canadian theatregoer another of those remarkable music-dance-comedy - and - color presentations which made him internationally famous.

The new hit, "Dick Whittington and His Cat" comes here to the Grand on Thursday for one performance only.

It is a hit with any and every type of audience. Staged with a galaxy of costume and scenic effects which even Stuart-Whyte himself has never before equalled and with book, music and lyrics, well punctuated both with thrills and laughs, these features alone would insure it a whole-hearted reception from the theatre-going public.

Added to this, however, Mr. Whyte is bringing a remarkably talented cast headed by stars from such productions as the Ziegfeld offerings and from Daly's in London. Worth particular note, too, is the dance ensemble featuring the Six Palace Girls.

M-G-M'S 'BEN-HUR' COMING HERE SOON

Film Version Surpasses Stage Spectacle In Dramatic Power.

"Ben-Hur," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production made in Italy and in California, by special arrangement with A. L. Erlanger, Charles B. Dillingham and F. Ziegfeld, Jr., will have its premiere here at the Grand Opera House, Monday, January 30th, opening a special engagement on that date. The picture was directed by Fred Niblo, and the history of its three years in work is a real-life odyssey of enterprise and adventuring, culminating with the completion of the Antioch circus and race course and the filming of the great chariot race twixt Messala and Ben-Hur.

General Lew Wallace wrote "Ben-Hur" half a century ago (1875-80), and its success as a novel was followed in 1899 by its dramatization. The stage spectacle held the boards for twenty-two seasons, in which it became the most widely known stage offering in America. In picturizing the work Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has enjoyed the immense advantage for the movies of a story laid in outdoor scenes and characterized by the splendor and pomp of Graeco-Roman milieu in the time of Christ. Among the greater scenes on which the Newer Art has lavished its resources are those of the Wise Men and the Star of Bethlehem, Jerusalem under Roman occupation, the sea battle twixt Creeks and Romans, the life in Antioch and the chariot race, the hero's assembling of his Gallileean legions, the finding of his mother and sister in the Vale of Hinnom, and the miraculous healing wrought by the Divine power. These scenes are knit together by a story of love and revenge, to which the romance of Ben-Hur and Esther, the intrigues of Messala and the wiles of Iras, lend engrossing interest. Ramon Novarro (in the title part), Betty Bronson, Francis X. Bushman, May McAvoy, Claire McDowell, Kathleen Key, Carmel Myers, Nigel de Brulier, Mitchell Lewis, Frank Currier, are some of the principal players.

A large oil painting of Edward Hanlan has been bequeathed to the City of Toronto by the widow of the world-famous oarsman.

A series of seventy-two-mile walking contests are being held in Calcutta and vicinity.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

THE STORY THUS FAR

It was the Jewel case that puzzled Vance. It was found in the apartment not far from the strangled body of Margaret Odell, the beautiful stage star known as the "Canary." The case looked as if someone had first tried to open it with a poker and then had succeeded in opening it with a chisel. Vance, Markham's friend, and a student of crime psychology, thinks it most peculiar.

CHAPTER VI

Deputy-Inspector Conrad Brenner was one of that small army of obscure, but highly capable experts who are connected with the New York police department, and who are constantly being consulted on abstruse technical problems, but whose names and achievements rarely get into the public prints.

His specialty was locks and burglars' tools; and I doubt if, even among those exhaustively painstaking criminologists of the University of Lausanne, there was a more accurate reader of the evidential signs left by the implements of house-breakers. In appearance and bearing he was like a withered little college professor.* His black, unpressed suit was old-fashioned in cut; and he wore a very high stiff collar, with a narrow black string tie. His gold-rimmed spectacles were so thick-lensed that the pupils of his eyes gave the impression of acute belladonna poisoning.

When Heath had spoken to him, he merely stood staring with a sort of detached expectancy; he seemed utterly unaware that there was any one else in the room. The sergeant, evidently familiar with the little man's idiosyncrasies of manner, did not wait for a response, but started at once for the bedroom.

"This way, please, Professor," he directed, cajolingly, going to the dressing table and picking up the jewel-case. "Take a squint at this, and tell me what you see."

Inspector Brenner followed Heath, without looking to right or left, and, taking the jewel-case, went silently to the window and began to examine it. Vance, whose interest seemed suddenly to be awakened, came forward and stood watching him.

For fully five minutes the little expert inspected the case, holding it within a few inches of his myopic eyes. Then he lifted his glance to Heath and winked several times rapidly.

"Two instruments were used in opening this case." His voice was small and high-pitched, but there was in it an undeniable quality of authority. "One bent the lid and made several fractures on the baked enamel. The other was, I should say, a steel chisel of some kind, and was used to break the lock.

"The first instrument, which was blunt, was employed amateurishly, at the wrong angle of leverage; and the effort resulted only in twisting the overhang of the lid. But the steel chisel was inserted with a knowledge of the correct point of oscillation, where a minimum of leverage would produce the counteracting stress necessary to displace the lockbolts."

"A professional job?" suggested Heath.

"Highly so," answered the inspector, again blinking. "That is to say, the forcing of the lock was professional. And I would even go so far as to advance the opinion that the instrument used was one especially constructed for such illegal purposes."

"Could this have done the job?" Heath held out the poker.

The other looked at it closely, and turned it over several times.

"It might have been the instrument that bent the cover, but it was not the one used for prying open the lock. This poker is cast iron and would have snapped under any great pressure, whereas this box is of cold rolled eighteen-gauge steel plate, with an inset cylinder pin-tumbler lock taking a peracentric key. The leverage force necessary to distort the flange sufficiently to lift the lid could have been made only by a steel chisel."

"Well, that's that. Heath seemed well satisfied with Inspector Brenner's conclusion. "I'll send the box down to you, Professor, and you can let me know what else you find out."

"I'll take it along, if you have no objection." And the little man tucked it under his arm and shuffled out without another word.

Heath grinned at Markham. "Queer bird. He ain't happy unless he's measuring jimmy marks on doors and windows and things. He couldn't wait till I sent him the box. He'll hold it lovingly on his lap all the way down in the subway, like a mother with a baby."

Vance was still standing near the dressing-table, gazing perplexedly into space.

"Markham," he said, "the condition of that jewel-case is positively astounding. It's unreasonable, illogical, insane. It complicates the situation most damnably. That steel box simply couldn't have been chiselled open by a professional burglar . . . and yet, don't y' know, it actually was."

Before Markham could reply, a satisfied grunt from Captain Dubois attracted our attention.

"I've got something for you, Sergeant," he announced.

We moved expectantly into the living-room. Dubois was bending over the end of the library-table almost directly behind the place where Margaret Odell's body had been found.

He took out an insufflator, which was like a very small hand-bellows, and blew a fine light-yellow powder evenly over about a square foot of the polished rosewood surface of the table-top. Then he gently blew away the surplus powder, and there appeared the impression of a human hand distinctly registered in saffron.

The bulb of the thumb and each fleshy hummock between the joints of the fingers and around the palm stood out like tiny circular islands. All the papillary ridges were clearly discernible. The photographer then hooked his camera to a peculiar adjustable tripod and, carefully focusing his lens, took two flashlight pictures of the hand-mark.

"This ought to do." Dubois was pleased with his find. "It's the right hand—a clear print—and the guy who made it was standing right behind the dame. . . . And it's the newest print in the place."

"What about this box?" Heath pointed to the black document-box on the table near the overturned lamp.

"Not a mark—wiped clean."

Dubois began putting away his paraphernalia.

"I say, Captain Dubois," interposed Vance, "did you take a good look at the inside door-knob of that clothes-press?"

The man swung about abruptly, and gave Vance a glowering look.

"People ain't in the habit of handling the inside knobs of closet doors. They open and shut closets from the outside."

Vance raised his eyebrows in simulated astonishment.

"Do they, now, really?—Fancy that! . . . Still, don't y' know, if one were inside the closet, one couldn't reach the outside knob."

"The people I know don't shut themselves in clothes closets."Dubois tones was ponderously sarcastic.

"You positively amaze me!" declared Vance. "All the people I know are addicted to the habit—a sort of daily pastime, don't y' know."

Markham, always diplomatic, intervened.

What idea have you about that closet, Vance?"

"Alas! I wish I had one," was the dolorous answer. "It's because I can't, for the life of me, make sense of its neat and orderly appearance that I'm so interested in it. Really, y' know, it should have been artistically looted."

Heath was not entirely free from the same vague misgivings that were disturbing Vance, for he turned to Dubois and said

"You might go over the knob, Captain. As this gentleman says, there's something funny about the condition of that closet."

Dubois, silent and surly, went to the closet door and sprayed his yellow powder over the inside knob. When he had blown the loose particles away, he bent over it with his magnifying-glass. At length he straightened up, and gave Vance a look of ill-natured appraisal.

"There's fresh prints on it, all right," he grudgingly admitted; "and unless I'm mistaken they were made by the same hand as those on the table. Both thumb-marks are ulnar loops, and the index-fingers are both whorl patterns. . . . Here, Pete," he ordered the photographer, "make some shots of that knob."

When this had been done, Dubois, Bellamy, and the photographer left us. A few moments later, after an interchange of pleasantries, Inspector Moran also departed. At the door he passed two men in the white uniform of internes, who had come to take away the girl's body.

*It is an interesting fact that for the nineteen years he had been connected with the New York police department, he had been referred to, by his superiors and subordinates, alike, as "the Professor."

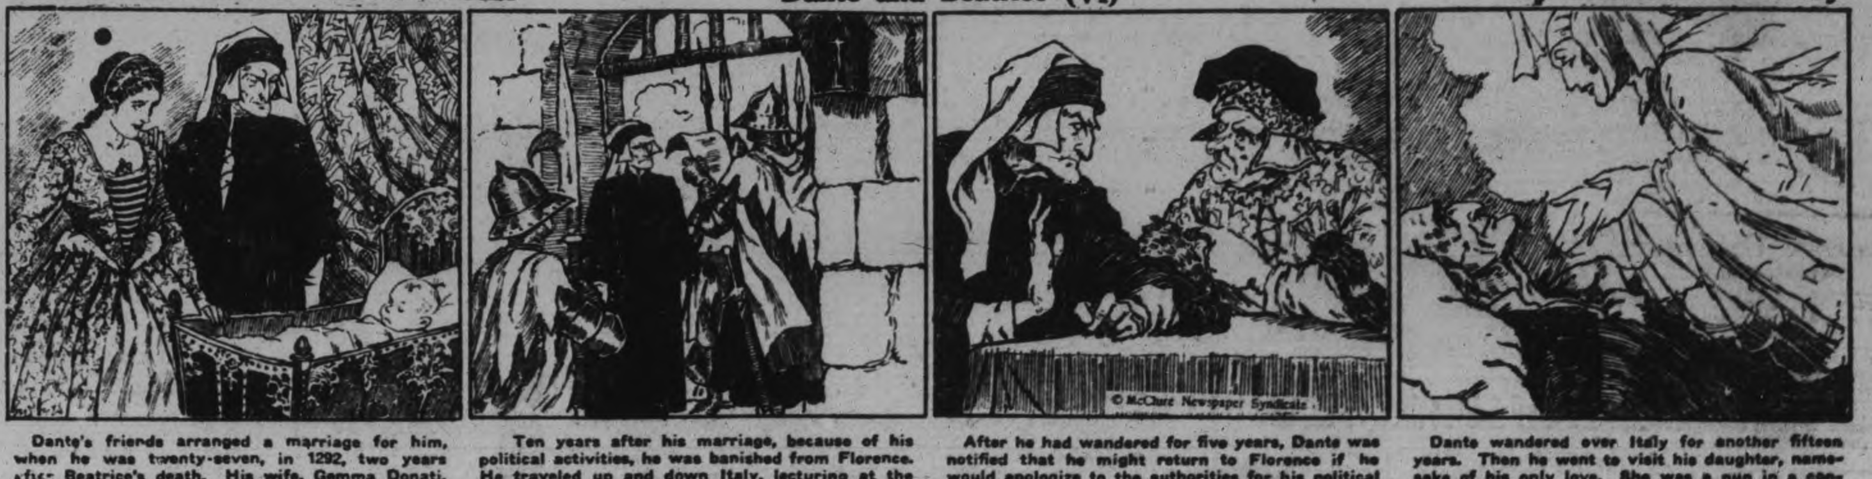
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES Dante and Beatrice (VI) By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Dante's friends arranged a marriage for him, when he was twenty-seven, in 1292, two years after Beatrice's death. His wife, Gemma Donati, must have been a sympathetic woman, with an understanding of her poet-husband's nature, for she seems not to have objected when he named one of their daughters Beatrice.

Ten years after his marriage, because of his political activities, he was banished from Florence. He traveled up and down Italy, lecturing at the universities, writing poetry, and dreaming of Beatrice and his beloved Florence. Apparently he made no efforts to see his wife after his banishment. He never returned home.

After he had wandered for five years, Dante was notified that he might return to Florence if he would apologize to the authorities for his political offenses. He replied that, as he had been guilty of no offense, he would accept no pardon. And it was then decreed that he should be burned alive if he ever returned.

Dante wandered over Italy for another fifteen years. Then he went to visit his daughter, namesake of his only love. She was a nun in a convent just outside of Ravenna. And there he died, in the year 1321, at the age of fifty-six. His first love was his last, and at the end the vision of Beatrice was with him.

MORE BUILDING IN PAST YEAR

Best Year For Construction in Canada's History—More Forecast.

1928 TO BE BETTER YET.

According to a survey and forecast just completed by the Copper and Brass Research Association dealing with building construction, repairs and maintenance throughout Canada, this Dominion has never experienced a better year, nor has the outlook been so bright as at the present moment. This survey brings up the usually forgotten point that the annual expenditure on repairs to and maintenance of homes, apartments, educational, public, business buildings and factories amounts to a very large sum each year. This sum, the survey goes on to say, approximated $200,000,000 in 1927 and will be greater in 1928.

Amongst the mass of data gathered are shown the contracts awarded figures for new construction, which, during 1927, show an increase over all previous years on record. The actual estimates for the past ten years, excluding all engineering and public utilities works, follow

1926	301,661,000
1925	209,564,300
1924	186,656,500
1923	205,104,000
1922	211,343,000
1921	177,880,800
1920	183,384,700
1919	163,713,800
1918	79,833,800

Building To Be Greater.

It is deduced from the records studied that the immediate future holds great promise for larger building programmes. Definite indications include the pronounced movement of families, businesses and industries away from congested centres to less crowded aresa; the imperative necessity of finding more parking space in large cities by the demolition of old buildings and the general re-planning of business sections; the growing demand for well-planned apartments and apartment hotels; the necessity for an increased scale of building and fixed plant extension by the railroads; the rebuilding of obsolete industrial plants; and an extensive and long-delayed programme of repairs and alterations to tens of thousands of private dwellings. All of these factors tending to greater building construction in all lines are in evidence to a greater or less degree each year, but in 1928 they will be accentuated by the growing general prosperity of the country, and particularly by the rapid development of the mining and pulp industry across the northern belt of Canada. From this development the entire country will derive a stream of wealth, augmenting the favorable circumstances which already provide an ample supply of mortgage money at the lowest interest rate since 1913. The will to build, which is always latent in the most depressed periods, will blossom in the presence of abundant capital available for investment in all sound and reasonable building operations on a liberal scale.

Business Building Very Active.

As in 1926 when the construction of buildings coming under the business classification stepped ahead of residential, they again took the lead in 1927, exceeded the previous total and accounted for 50% of all building construction. Residential construction equalled that of the house building year, 1922, and including apartments, went far ahead of former records, taking care of 38% of all work. Industrial construction fell off sharply once it lost the support of continued contracts in the pulp and paper and power fields but nevertheless it was quite able to hold its own with any year's record previous to 1926. Only twelve per cent is shown for this kind of building. New building in Canada, exclusive of engineering contracts, is divided by the survey into three major groups for which the respective annual totals during the past decade are shown, as follows, (000 omitted).

	Residential	Business	Industrial
1918	$14,661	$26,196	$38,975
1919	47,015	59,606	57,091
1920	54,891	86,073	64,625
1921	76,655	84,721	16,503
1922	104,201	81,385	25,755
1923	97,645	80,436	27,022
1924	91,224	73,666	21,765
1925	96,489	73,067	40,007
1926	109,562	112,408	79,689
1927	124,940	163,429	39,989

It is seen from a glance at the above figures that after maintaining a more or less uniform expenditure in the business building classifications for six years, which amounts were spent largely on absolutely necessary accommodation, that in 1926 a much larger sum was spent. In 1927, a year of expansion and progress, the total practically doubled that of any year except 1926. Office buildings were the high light accounting for $40,752,900 worth, while hotels continued the trend of 1926, and took care of $30,598,700. Over twenty-two millions of dollars were spent in the construction of educational buildings, a greater sum than in any year except 1922, when twenty-seven millions was shown fot that type. Increased business demands more and more storage space, and it is being provided for by many large and ordinary warehouses. Twenty millions of dollars have been invested in such structures in each of the past two years. The construction of churches, hospitals, public buildings, stores and public garages was carried on at much higher levels than usual during 1927, while theatres, after picking up somewhat in 1926, fell off again slightly.

theatres, after picking up somewhat

Apartment Houses Increasing.

In 1922, the house building year, when it became possible for thousands to own their own homes, who could not do so during the previous depressive years, a wave of home building started which has been maintained at good levels ever since. During the past year, it is estimated that $98,957,800 was spent on new homes, an amount approximating that of 1922, and greatly exceeii f exceeding that of any intervening year.

The construction of apartment houses is increasing year by year, especially in the larger cities. This type of housing is sought by those who seek convenience and comfort without the responsibilities of operating large individual homes. On this type of work alone $25,981,800 was spent during 1927, and there is an increasing trend towards such structures.

Many New Factories.

The survey shows that the construction of new factories continues to be brisk. True, in 1926, more money was spent on industrial plants, but a few large pulp and paper and power developments in out-of-the-way places swelled the total in exceptional degree. The survey shows that there were actually more new factories and additions built during 1927 than in 1926. The individual contracts were spread around in more places and in smaller amounts. The total investment in such new building during 1927 was $39,988,900, not including a large sum which might be added to take care of interior alterations and re-arrangements made necessary by new machines and more scientific layout.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Any persons who desire to have sewers or sidewalks constructed this year are notified that petitions for them must be received by the Council before April 1st next, in order that the work may be done this year.

Chiropractor is a Science which devotes special attention to the human spine. The spine is the line-shaft of the body, and in its natural formation protects the spinal cord and nerves, but if a vertebra becomes slightly displaced or tilted through the stress and strain of every-day life, some nerve fibres will be constricted. The result is impaired function and finally disease in the tissues supplied by the impinged nerves.
SPINAL ADJUSTMENTS
do release pressure from nerves, thus permitting a normal flow of vital force to weakened tissues. The fact that numbers of people are enjoying good health because of having taken spinal adjustments is positive proof that CHIROPRACTIC IS FULFILLING ITS MISSION.

Obituary

MRS. JOHN BRADFIELD.

The death took place on Friday, January 20, of Mrs. Margaret Bradfield, widow of the late John Bradfield, in her 76th year. The funeral will take place from the family residence, Bewdley, Ont., on Monday, January 23, at 9.30 a.m. and will proceed to the Little Lake cemetery for interment.

JEREMIAH TWOMEY.

"'Jerry died last night.'' These words passed reverently the news from neighbor to neighbor in the little town of Fenelon Falls, that one of their most beloved citizens has passed to his eternal reward. On Friday, January 13th, Jeremiah Twomey, noble in every sense of the word, passed out from among his neighbors whom he loved so well.

"Jerry died last night," and strong men used to sorrow and bereavement, turned away in thoughtful silence. Did he not belong to us all? Who could now befriend us with such good counsel and guidance? Did he not always lead in every wise work? Was he not always among us? For two generations he rested under his shade as under the boughs of a mighty oak. It seemed as though he should remain forever. We cherish this indefinite habitual assurance. Ah, death does come to all!

These were the thoughts that flooded the souls of honest townfolk, and I give them to you as I heard them from honest yeomen men whom I met the day of the funeral. There, in and around the little Catholic church on the hill, was abundant evidence silent and articulate, of how a good man is always great. A good man's influence mounts with the accumulation of his days, for he seeks not self-aggrandizement. His influence is not that of the demagogue acquired without merit and lost without disgrace.

We laid him away with many tokens of love in the little cemetery beteween Fenelon and Caygeon. He is at rest. And what a beautiful, peaceful rest!

Siting alone with my thoughts tonight I fancy that the chickadees came this afternoon to feast upon those beautiful wreaths; and that the rabbits hopped up from the woods for a bountiful evening meal. I fancy too that Jerry smiled at them, God's timid innocent, gentle creatures.

His countless, nameless, little acts of kindness, the best part of a good man' life still lives. No! Jerry is not dead.

JAMES THOMPSON.

Mrs. Harry Gunsolus, of this city, has received word of the death of her brother, James Thompson, which took place at his home in Los Angeles, California, on Tuesday, January 17, 1928. His many acquaintances in Peterborough will learn with regret of the death of this former resident who left here some eighteen eyars ago. He was the son of the late Peter Thompson, and in the South was identified with Masonic Lodges. He was a Methodist.

Left to mourn are his sorrowing widow, in Los Angeles, his mother, Mrs Peter Thompson, of Cleveland, one son Clifford, of Rochester, N.Y., three brothers, Louis and Newton of Cleveland and Stanley of St. Louis, and six sisters, namely, Mrs A. E. Fordham of Toronto, Mrs. C. K. Elias of New York, Mrs. Gunsolus of Peterborough, Mrs. A. Jobson, Mrs. R. Gibbs, and Mrs. A. Hobibn, all of Cleveland.

Details of the funeral were not available, but it is understood that interment will take place in a Los Angeles cemetery.

GEORGE CHAMBERS

The following notice from a Vancouver paper refers to the death of George Chambers, a native and former resident of Peterborough. A nieces in the city is Mrs. Copeland of Stewart Street and Mr. Stewart Chambers is a nephew:

"The funeral of George Chambers, who died last evening at the home of his son, Ralph Chambers, 2063 Athol Street, will be held on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock from Speers' funeral home to the Regina Cemetery. Rev. W. A. Lochead, pastor of Westminster United Church, will conduct the services at the funeral home. The deceased has been a resident of Regina for the past 20 years and was about 86 years of age. He has been in ill-health for the past seven months.

The late Mr. Chambers was born in Peterborough, Ont., and farmed in that district up to 20 years ago when he retired and came West to Regina at the age of 66. He was predeceased by his wife who, coincidently, was buried in Regina exactly a year prior to the demise of Mr. Chambers.

Four sons and eight daughters survive the deceased. They are Leslie, Napinka, Man.; George, Regina; Milton, Star City, Sask.; Ralph, Regina; Miss Helen and Miss Pearl, Regina; Mrs. W. B. Adams, Vancouver; Mrs. Andrew List, Oakland, Cal.; Mrs. Elizabeth Bertram, Los Angeles; Mrs. B. Robertson, Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. Y. S. Shepherd, Oklahoma City, Okla; and Mrs. Fraser Waddell, Pitman, Sask."

MRS. JAMES DICKSON.

Hannah Hunter, widow of the late James A. Dickson, passed away on Friday, January 20th, at her residence, 321 Roger Street, in her seventy-second year. She was in her usual good health, and the call came suddenly. Her sickness was of short duration. She was a devoted mother and kind and loving friend. She leaves to mourn her loss one daughter, Mrs. A. W. Gamble, and two brothers, Thomas of Peterborough and Warren of Toronto.

The funeral will be held from her late residence on Monday, January 23, at three o'clock. The funeral will be conducted by Rev. A. E. Thornley, M.A., of Mark Street United Church, and will be private.

PATRIOTIC LEAGUE IS PREPARING PLAY

"Leave It To Gloria" Is Tuneful Production and Very Colorful.

The Ashburnham Women's Patriotic League, which had such a success last year with the production of "Cinderella," is presenting another play of an entirely different order at the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday evenings of next week, January 27th and 28th. This play, directed by C. G. Stevens of the Mallabar Producing Company, Toronto, with Miss May Perry of the same company directing the choruses, is entitled "Leave it to Gloria," and is one of those peppy, colorful affairs that includes in its presentation a lot of tuneful music, snappy dialogue, and gorgeous costuming, with humour, and sustained interest in the story, which centers about the adventures of a couple of lively chaps who accidentally tumble out of an airplane into the midst of the gayeties at a fashionable seaside summer resort, and are mistaken for members of European royalty by the proprietor of the hotel and his guests. Through this misapprehension, complications are created that lead to no end of fun and are guaranteed grouch dispellers. Further complications are added and the fun is increased by an ancient East Indian idol whose remarkable magic power cause some interesting and surprising things to happen at unexpected moments.

A cast of over one hundred people take part in the musical comedy, which has two acts, the first being set on the lawn of the Fairview Hotel at Brighton-by-the-Sea during the morning of a day whose evening provides the setting for the second act.

The musical numbers are of a very catchy, lilting type and some of the dances are described as gorgeous, especially the Radium Dance or Goldenglow number, with the girls gowned in gold satin. The first act ends with an ensemble which includes the various members of several charming choruses, in a brilliantly-costumed Show Girl chorus, a Summer dance in which the members appear in light organdie frocks of pastel tints, and three sports dances, in tennis, golf and canoe attire.

A Bowery number, appropriately gowned in the conventional attire of "rough-house dames and gents," appears in the second act, also a junior chorus of little ladies, ranging in years from five to eleven, done in blackface pickaninny style and doing a darky dance.

The "Merry Merries" is a jazz number in this act and the Primrose dance is a beautiful bit with old-fashioned gowns and poke bonnets, with crinoline and old-time nosegays holding flashlights. Mr. Hugh Lush has a solo for this number. The "Rubes" dance is done in overalls and "cow breakfast" hats, and a fast Yama or "Googlum-Oos" dance is rendered to the tune of "Nightmare Blues," with the girls dressed in harlequin costumes of black and orange satin, with pompom-pointed hats.

The cast is as follows Keenan Sharpe (an author in search of adventure and pictorial material), played by Norman Laing; Amos Happ (an aviator) Jack Primeau; Billy Butts and Bob Westbrook, Johan Krough and Ronald Fleming; Monsieur Saint Sisseson (proprietor of the hotel), J. A. LeBlanc; Pickles Johnson (darky porter), Edward Leonard; Bailey Hay, George Nichols; Marjorie Winston, Sally Satterlee, Betty Benson and Phyllis Wainder (guests), Mrs. O. H. Nichols, Miss Greta LeBarr, Miss Alma Blanchard and Miss Geraldine Collins; Miss Pansy Pendennis Uptergraft (chaperon), Miss Annie Crocker and Chloe (her maid), Mrs. H. D. McClelland. Little Sophie Yeotes has a solo dance in the second act.

FOURTH PETERBOROUGH TROOP

The meeting of the Fourth Peterborough Troop of Boy Scouts on Thursday night opened with flag break, followed by the investiture of Gordon Hardie into the troop.

The troop were very sorry to hear that Rayburn Cook is moving out of the city. Scout Cook has been an active member for the troop for over a year. He was given three rousing cheers and a tiger by the troop. Later he shook hands with each member.

A knot tieing contest was held, followed by games of dodger, ball and rooster fighting. The remaining conventional signs were learned.

The council fire opened with the singing of the first verse and the chorus of the Maple Leaf, followed by There's One More River to Cross, and There's a Hole in My Basket. Mr. Corbett read a story about trailing a bear after the first snow fall, which was interesting.

The meeting closed with the singing of God Save the King, the lowering of the flag and thirty seconds of scout silence.

Mr. Taylor, scoutmaster of the Third Troop, and Mr. Hope, cubmaster of the Fifth Pack, were visitors.

At a meeting on Tuesday night a hockey schedule was drawn up between the four troops. The first game will be held on Wednesday, January 25, if the weather permits.

The troop competition ends next Thursday. The Owls are leading now by about ten points.

The fire brigade answered two calls during the high wind storm on Friday afternoon. At 3.47 p.m. a chimney fire at 387 Mark street east was extinguished by use of chemicals and at 4.51 p.m. a chimney fire at 96 Lansdowne street required similar treatment.

WEIRD SOUNDS DON'T WORRY HOUSE OWNERS

Visitors Often Startled By Noises Heard in Some Homes.

SOME EXAMPLES.

Furnace Hums Regardless of Atmospheric Conditions—Weird Moanings.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 23. — In order to be strictly up to the last scream of fashion, it is most essential that one have a ghost to produce or refer to at the proper times. But this most assuredly does not mean that the family skeleton is to be dragged forth from the seclusion of the clothes press in the back bedroom and aired before the general public. Such things are simply not being done. On rare occasions, and the rarer the better, the skeletons are well aired in the court rooms of our native land and those directly concerned are usually none too well pleased.

But even so, hundreds of bonafide ghosts have been located quite recently in this once peaceable little community. True, the town is not as sleepy as Sleepy Hollow, nor does it resemble Birds-Eye Centre, so famous in the comic strip world. But it really has been peaceable since the days when the white water men vanished with their spiked boots and their season's beards. It may also be remembered by some that their pay rolls vanished at the same time.

Now the ghosts are having their innings, and the town is not going to be caught napping by the rural districts surrounding. Their ghost will not perform regularly. It sulks and hides in the most unsearchable places. The town ghosts are more reliable, so they say.

On the west side of the river, there stands an ancient brick house which dates back as far as '78. It stands on a hill and is surrounded by extensive grounds on which grow monster elm trees. It is a small family that occupies the residence and fortunately the members are not inclined to believe in the ghost form of spirits. But they readily admit that there is humming noise issues from their furnace on certain occasions which they do not feel is easily explained. The noise begins with a low hum and varies from the sound of a high speed saw cutting hardwood to a kind of muffled roar. Its source is not hard to find. It comes from the furnace, but how? The postion of the drafts has apparently no relation, nor has the prevailing atmospheric conditions. It comes and it goes at will. It does no harm and the people of the house have humorously named the strange sound, Ambroise the pet ghost.

On the east side of the river there is another brick house whose history dates back over forty years. When the wind shrills about the structure, there are the most hideous moans heard from the region of the west wall near the centre and close to the foundation. A guest at dinner was so frightened on one occasion that he turned deathly pale and asked to be momentarily excused. Nor was he the only one to lose his nerve. Lady callers one windy afternoon, heard the blood-freezing groans and were momentarily terrified. They did not hesitate to state that they would not remain in the house one minute with such a thing. Nor could they be blamed for taking such a view of the matter when even the resident family find themselves startled occasionally when the thing moans unexpectedly. The weird sound reacts on their nerves before they realize that there is nothing of which to be frightened.

The solution of the mystery is quite simple. An unskilled workman had been engaged to attach metal weather strip to certain doors in the house. On a west door, there is a stone sill. The shrinkage of the hardwood flooring in the room has left a tiny air space between the floor and the sill and the metal weather strip acts exactly as the tongue in an organ pipe. As it happens, the tone is particularly weird and its variations as it ascends and descends the scale do not make it any more soothing to the nerves, but the family treat it as a joke. And now that strange sights and noises about the house seem to be fashionable, they are quite pleased that they at least have the noise though the vision is denied them.

GROWTH OF NEWSPRINT EXPORTS

Great as has been the advance in the manufacture of wood pulp in Canada, it has been exceeded by the increase in production of newsprint paper as export figures establish. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics states that in 1890 Canada's total exports of paper were valued at only $122, whereas for the calendar year 1926 they had increased in quantity to 3,463,971,800 pounds with a value of $114,090,595.

AMERY ARRIVES AT CAPITAL CITY

British Statesman Welcomed at Ottawa By Dominion Government Party.

WILL ATTEND BANQUET.

OTTAWA, Ont., January 23 (Canadian Press). — Right Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery, British Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, reached the Capital yesterday morning, and will remain in Ottawa until the end of t[illegible] week. Colonel Amery, who [illegible] travelled overnight from Toronto, was met at the Union Station by Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, and Harry Baldwin, secretary to the Prime Minister; Mr. Oscar D. Skelton, Under-Secretary of State for External Affairs; E. J. Lemaire, K.C., Clerk of the Privy Council of Canada; Major W. Willis O'Connor, D. S.O., aide-de-camp to the Governor-General, and Eric C. Mieville, private secretary to His Excellency.

Colonel Amery was immediately conducted to Government House, where he will reside during his stay in Ottawa.

Yesterday the British Minister indulged in his favorite sport—skiing—and a small party was organized at Government House to accompany him into the Gatineau Hills, where several hours were passed in Canada's winter pastime. Colonel Amery had lunch in one of the ski clubs, and returned early yesterday afternoon to Ottawa.

Later on in the day, the visitor had tea with the Chief Justice and Mrs. Anglin, and last evening Colonel Amery was the guest at a small dinner party given by Sir George and Lady Perley at the Country Club.

Colonel Amery will face a busy day to-day, and his functions will open at 10.30 a.m., when he will receive the press at Government House. He will lunch with Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the Opposition, at the Country Club, and in the evening there will be a state banquet in his honor at Rideau Hall.

The Examiner's Contest

Questions and Answers.

Q.—If I qualify for the Grand Prize, and do not get first place am I eligible for any of the other prizes?

A.—Yes, the qualifying for the Grand Prize only determines the value of your prize if you should win, you are quite eligible for any of the fifty prizes or special prizes.

Q.—When will the special prize winners be announced?

A.—As the correct answer will not be known until the contest closes the winners cannot be determined until that time.

Q.—In the event of two persons tieing for first prize on the first contest and in solving the second puzzle to determine the winner of the two, does the one that fails, take second prize or does it go to the second closest on the first contest?

A.—The first and second prizes would be reserved for the two tieing on the first puzzle and the second puzzle between the two, would determine which gets first and second respectively.

Q.—If quite a number tied on first puzzle and a second puzzle is tried, would those coming second, third, and so on in second puzzle win the prizes.

A.—As stated in previous question, the prizes are reserved for those tieing on the first puzzle, the tie breaker is to determine the prizes they would get.

SPEAKER ASKS PLACE IN SUN FOR CHEMISTS

R. M. Rowat Tells Rotarians What His Profession Has Done For Industry.

ELIMINATING WASTE.

Intelligent Research Saves Time, Material and Energy, He Points Out.

A strong plea for a place in the sun for the chemist was made before the Peterborough Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon today by R. M. Rowat of Toronto, Chief Chemist of the Canadian Packing Company, whose informative and interesting address on "Waste Elimination in Industry," was greatly enjoyed by the members.

President A. L. Killily was in the chair, and among the guests were Ald. Walter Stocker and Mr. and Mrs. Frogget of Toronto. Mr. Frogget, who is private secretary to Dr. H. A. Fricker, conductor of the Mendelssohn Choir, contributed two splendid songs to the program; Mrs. Frogget effectively supplying the accompaniment.

Rotarian Dr. A. W. McPherson, who has been absent for some time on account of illness, was welcomed back by President Killaly amid warm applause from the members.

Mr. Rowat, who was introduced by Rotarian Gordon S. Matthews, pointed out in beginning his address, that the chemistry profession has for a long time suffered from a lack of publicity and as an example he explained that when the re-classification of the Federal Civil Service positions had been made by a firm of efficiency experts, the chemists were given a salary just one-third of that paid to the doctors and lawyers in the Civil Service, although a training of six or seven years in college was demanded.

The speaker then proceeded to give some concrete illustrations of what chemical research had been able to do in the way of eliminating waste time, material and energy in industry. He explained how chemists had very materially shortened the time necessary to cure meat and had speeded up the manufacture of glue by eliminating the lime process. It was not exactly true, he declared, that the pork packing industry utilized everything but the squeal. While not much of the animal product was wasted the packers were great users and wasters of other materials. Enough salt, for example, went into the Otonabee River every day to increase the salt content of the lakes below, while daily larger quantities of albumen were similarly wasted.

Mr. Rowat explained how chemical research had been used to great advantage in many industries to prevent waste of material and energy, pointing out among other examples how the salt companies in the electrolysis of salt and the consequent formation of hydrochloric acid had been able to use the heat thus produced to run the evaporators.

Active research, close control over all the processes and technical education of the heads of industry were named by the speaker as the necessary factors in the effective elimination of waste.

Rotarian R F. Downey, in a characteristically witty speech, expressed the thanks of the club to the speaker and to Mr. and Mrs. Frogget, the latter being presented with a bouquet of flowers as a mark of Rotary appreciation.

Rotarian Andrew Brown urged a 100 per cent attendance at the next two meetings of the club.

FRIGIDAIRE CALLS DEALERS' MEETING

Agents of General Motors Subsidiary To Hold Conferences.

Frigidaire Corporation, the General Motors Subsidiary which has made such tremendous strides in the field of electric refrigeration in the past few years, has announced its plans for the holding of a series of meetings across the continent to acquaint the members of its sales organization with its plans and ideas for 1928.

Several thousand supervisors, dealers and salesmen will be assembled in this series of meetings. E. G. Biechler, president and general manager of the corporation, announced that several hundred members of the Canadian field organization will be brought to Chicago and Boston. "The outlook for the electric refrigeration industry was never more promising" said Mr. Biechler. "Orders for 1927 in our ice cream cabinet division were approximately equal to those of 1926. In all the remainder of our commercial business and in our household business our unit sales were more than double those of 1926."

Detroit-Windsor Bridge Seems Assured With Letting of Contracts For Cable Wires

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (Canadian Press).—In a special despatch from Detroit, The Herald-Tribune says this morning, "contracts for supplying the wire for the main cables and suspended ropes of the new Detroit International bridge have been awarded to the American Cable Company, Inc., an associate company of the American Chain Company, thus making an assured fact of the long-contemplated span over the Detroit River to connect the United States and Canada at what is perhaps the largest port of entry along our northern border.

"The new bridge will be 1.7 miles long with a span of 1,850 meet. This span is one hundred feet longer than that of the Philadelphia-Camden bridge, at present the longest suspension bridge in the world. The specifications carry provisions for five lanes of motor traffic and an eight-foot walk for pedestrians. The wire for the cables is made by a new process, which is said to increase its working strength by twenty per cent."

ANNIVERSARY IS CELEBRATED AT ALL SAINTS'

Rev. Prof. Isherwood of Wycliffe College, Preaches Inspiring Sermons.

SUITABLE FOR OCCASION.

Encouragement For Coming Years Expressed in Fine Addresses By Visiting Speaker.

"There shall be a handful of corn in the earth upon the top of the mountains; the fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon," part of the sixteenth verse of the seventy-second Psalm, was the text from which the Rev. Professor Isherwood of Wycliffe College, Toronto, preached an anniversary sermon of inspiration and encouragement to the people of All Saints' Church yesterday morning.

All of this Psalm, said the speaker, is concerned with the rule of the Master, giving a wonderful graphic picture of what shall happen in that great day when "Jesus shall reign where're the sun, doth his successive journeys run." The day is coming when that will be true, and that is the basis of Christian optimism. Meanwhile that can be spiritually true; all that this passage speaks of is possible of spiritual fulfilment. When the Master is King as well as Savior there can be fulfilment of this text.

The first lesson taught by the text is that God can destroy the tyranny of past experience. Everybody is bound to the past, often more than is realized, and people live as if what never happened before cannot happen in the future. They look back and see that there has been a lack of fruitfulness in the service of the Master and if told there is a possibility of doing better in the future they say it is impossible.

The text shows that God can destroy this tyranny of the past. It would seem impossible that wheat could grow on a mountain where it has never been known to grow, but God is a God of the impossible; with God in control the impossible becomes gloriously realized. God can reverse the past and in Christ deliver men from its tyranny. Though the past has been spoiled the future may be glorious.

"Has there been difficulty?" asked the speaker. "Then we can say: 'Thanks be to God which causes us to triumph in Jesus Christ.' Has there been barrenness? Then that may be altered and there will be fruitfulness. We may have been like Peter, silent and afraid, but through the wonderful change which the master made he who denied Him became such that they marvelled at his boldness."

"The second lesson of the text is that God is able to overcome the forces of hostile environment. No cry goes to the Master more often than the complaint about environment. I know only too well how difficult it is, but I stand here because I am convinced that environment can be overcome and that God, working through you and me, can overcome it. Neither heredity nor environment has the last word. The Gospel of Christ can conquer."

The speaker pointed out the poor location for grain. A mountain top is composed of stone and shale, and the winds and the sun beat on anything planted there. He compared the growth of wheat there, under God's rule, to the lives lived by many under very bad conditions. He told of an old man he had known in England who had been paralysed from his hips down, and whose family had let him go to the poorhouse. Yet this man had been happy and cheerful and a visit did the clergyman as much good as it did the inmate. The old man had witnessed for Christ in spite of his environment.

"Environment may be hostile, but if it is viewed as a scene of service we can triumph and the difficulties may be steps to victory?" continued Professor Isherwood, telling the story

Collie Is Safe, Though Frozen

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 23. Canadian Press. — The white collie dog of the Lake St. Clair ice floe lives although his feet and his tail were severely frozen. The collie, object of perilous rescue attempts over a period of two days and finally reported humanely put to death by an officer's bullet to spare him from suffering, has been safely brought to shore.

The dog was rescued on Saturday by Emmett Pentecost, who sighted the animal a half mile out in the lake, his feet and his tail frozen solid in his ice prison, but still able to yelp for help.

By some strange turn of fate the dog had escaped the death to which his would-be rescuers had left him, even to avoiding the 'mercy bullets" sent across the churning waters of the lake by his master to end his misery.

Faint barks carried ashore by a strong wind, first attracted Pentecost's attention. After sighting the animal, Pentecost, with Ralph Holmes, walked partly across the ice to a lighthouse, where they obtained a small boat. Pentecost set out in it alone, reached the dog and freed him from his prison by chopping his legs and tail out of the ice.

FLIER FROZEN AFTER WRECK

UNABLE TO START FIRE.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Jan. 23. —(Canadian Press).—A diary telling of tail spins and a parachute jump in a blizzard has revealed how Fred Hoyt, Kansas aviator, died of exposure while he sought shelter in the snow bound mountain country of Southern Idaho.

The diary, also containing a letter to his bride of a month, told how Hoyt was forced down in a canyon on January 14 and of his unsuccessful effort to avoid being frozen to death. His body was found on Saturday by a rancher, six miles from the spot where the ship crashed, and between two piles of brush he had gathered for a fire he was unable to start.

Toreador Kills Bull On Street

MADRID, Jan. 23 (Canadian Press).—La Grand Via, one of Madrid's busiest thoroughfares, to-day was the scene of an unexpected demonstration of the science of bull fighting, when "Fortuna," a toreador, killed a runaway bull in front of the United States Consulate. The bull had escaped from a local ring and terrorized residents of the city when, it dashed through the downtown streets. Suddenly a passer-by, recognized as "Fortuna," stepped out, armed with a sword. Approaching the bull, the toreador, after displaying a few tricks in the art of fighting bulls, made a plunge with his sword and the bull fell dead at his feet.

COSGRAVE DUE AT WASHINGTON THIS MORNING

Irish Free State President Scheduled To Meet Coolidge To-day.

ATTENDS LUNCHEONS.

Erin Executive Much Pleased With Visit To Chicago.

Aboard the Manhattan Limited, En Route to Washington, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press.)— Fired with enthusiasm for Chicago, its mayor and its citizenry, but slightly fatigued after his 24 hour visit, William T. Cosgrave, head of the Irish Free State, last night was travelling toward Washington, where he is to spend the next four days.

Mr. Cosgrave, his aide-de-camp, and three other members of the executive council of the Irish Free State, who landed in New York on Friday, are scheduled to meet President Coolidge this afternoon. The introductions will be performed by T. A. Smiddy, Irish Free State minister to Washington, who is travelling with the party, which includes Lieutenant-General Diarmuid O'Hagarty, secretary of the executive council; Desmond Fitzgerald, minister of defene; Joseph P. Walsh, secretary of the department of External Affairs, and Colonel Joseph O'Reilly, aide-de-camp.

The party is due to arrive in Washington at 8.50 a.m. to-day. It left Chicago at 10.30 a.m. yesterday.

Pleased With Chicago.

"There is no city so libelled as Chicago," Mr. Cosgrave told an Associated Press correspondent aboard the train. "I never saw such order, such perfect control of traffic, such marvellous buildings and such cordial people. The Irish there are tip-top Americans. You ask me about that libelled man, Big Bill Thompson. If I were not the habit of discounting much, I would have thought before I came here that he was a tough and a roughneck. He is a kindly, big American, who is full of enthusiasm for his country and its history, is bubbling over with the idea of making Chicago the greatest of American cities by connecting it with the sea."

He paid tribute to Michael Faherty, president of the Chicago Board of Local Improvements, at whose invitation Mr. Cosgrave's visit to the United States for the first time was largely due. Faherty, he said, is a typical Irish-American of the sort who has contributed much towards the upbuilding of the country. He said he was "very much pleased" with Faherty's speech at a dinner last night, tendered by the Irish Fellowship Club of Chicago.

"Mr. Faherty's address was entirely unexpected and I am glad the American people have been told Ireland could arrange her own affairs."

After lunching in his private car, Mr. Cosgrave was ordered to retire for a nap by Dr. John J. Killen, of Chicago, who is his honorary physician for the American tour.

Has Busy Time.

Dr. Killen said afterwards that Mr. Cosgrave was tired as a result of his busy round of public functions. "He has had almost no let-up since he landed in New York," Dr. Killen said, "and then he's been meeting so many people, shaking hands with them, and you know how an Irishman grips when he shakes hands. But Mr. Cosgrave is in excellent condition."

Prior to boarding the train, Mr. Cograve and his party attended mass in one of the oldest Roman Catholic churches in Chicago.

He was particularly pleased with the singing of Irish ballads, including the "Shamrock of Ireland," by the choir and the Irish atmosphere of St. Patrick's church.

Before his call at the White House to-day, Mr. Cosgrave will attend a private luncheon to be given by Col. William Donovan of the "Fighting 69th" Regiment, New York National Guard. This evening, the Irish Free State leader will dine with Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian minister to Washington. On Friday and Saturday the visitors will be in Philadelphia. Their itinerary calls for their departure for Ottawa next Sunday. Members of the party said they might visit Atlantic City next Sunday morning.

The Weather

Lowest point yesterday (Sunday) 5 degrees; highest 38. A comparatively mild and pleasant mid-winter day. Still milder this morning, the temperature been around the freezing point. Some colder weather is near at hand, but nothing of an extreme nature. This winter has been a mild one, but will break no records—and it has yet about six weeks to go—and many things may happen in that time.—W. P.

Huge Amphitheatre Unearthed In "Gaul"

LES ANDELYS, France, January 23 (Associated Press). — A Roman theatre, apparently the largest built in Roman Gaul, has been discovered here.

By its form and vast dimensions it offers the greatest interest to archaeologists and students of the history of the Roman occupation. Excavations made up to the present show its diameter is nearly 400 feet, which is estimated would give a seating capacity of over 60,000.

The theatre at Orange, hitherto regarded as the largest in France, has a diameter of only 335 feet, with accommodation for 42,000.

200 ON LIST AS OUT OF WORK

Number Has Been Decreasing Ever Since Reaching Peak at Christmas.

IMPROVEMENT LIKELY.

A call at the local branch of the Provincial Employment Bureau today disclosed some interesting facts about the employment in Peterborough and district served by this office. Since around Christmas time there have been many names of applicants for positions listed on the books. The number, then around three hundred, has gradually decreased until now there are some two hundred men open to suggestion of where work may be obtained. This number comprises laborers, mechanics, woodsmen, farm hands, and office workers.

For a city of its size, Peterborough supplies work for a large number of people, but even temporary positions for the two hundred are hard to find at this time of year.

The farmers are not overly anxious to take on help unless as a means of retaining a particularly capable man who will remain for the harvesting season. There has been some relief in other lines of employment and with considerable building throughout the city Superintendent Hugh Robertson hopes that many of the names may be taken off the list in the near future.

Around the City

Owing to the high wind on Saturday, the fire brigade was called out on two occasions. At 9.45 a.m. danger from overheated pipes at 134 Rubidge Street made it necessary to call the firemen and a similar reason at 491 Parnell Street caused a second run about two hours later.

At 10.07 a.m. today overheated stovepipes required attention at 845 Water Street.

Women Are Stronger Physically Than Men

LONDON, January 23 (Associated Press). — "Man are poor creatures compared with women," said Sir William Arbuthnot-Lane, noted physician, at a demonstration of the rhythmic health movement. He said:

"It is upon the woman that the future of this country depends, and we must do everything in our power to keep her physically fit."

Sir William declared it is so simple to keep fit. Good food, fresh air and simple exercises would keep the body fit without any artificial means.

NEW PROPOSALS MARK BEGINNING FURTHER STRIFE

Life of Anglican Church Now at Stake, Opinion of London Observer.

UNEASINESS STILL ACUTE.

Manifesto Issued By Bishop Barnes Declares Revision Gravely Inadequate.

LONDON, January 23 (Canadian Press Cable). — The very life of the Church of England is now at stake, in the opinion of the London Observer, which in an editorial also declares that the new proposals clearly inaugurate new controversies, while the manifesto of Bishop Barnes of Birmingham, saying that the revision of the prayer book now proposed, does not go far enough, proves that Protestant uneasiness is as acute as ever.

"These profound and moving questions which go to the very roots of religious beliefs," says the Observer, "cannot be handled in the secular press or by either House of Parliament. They are spiritual matters falling within the province of the church itself, but when the measure is finally submitted to Parliament, it will bring forward the practical question, 'Will the Church of England as hitherto established continue to exist?' The verdict of Parliament cannot be predicted."

Will Convulse Politics.

Continuing the Observer says: "If disestablishment becomes a practical issue, it will convulse politics, disrupt parties, and bring inevitable dissension into every department of our national life."

The London Sunday Times expresses the opinion that the removal of misapprehension which was the House of Bishops' avowed object, hardly seems to have been attained. "The bishops," says the Sunday Times, "seem hardly to have grasped the significance of the House of Commons vote, which rejected the prayer book, or the depth or extent of Protestant feeling in this country."

"The publication last week of the Malines report," continues the Sunday Times, "was hardly calculated to help the new prayer book orward. The more closely the situation is examined, the more certain it becomes a conviction that a real agreement is impossible. The extreme Anglo-Catholics will be glad to see the measure dead. So, too, for the opposite reasons would the Evangelicals."

In concluding, the Sunday Times says: "If, as seems plain, the measure promotes neither order nor unity in the country, it may be wise to insist that the Church shall make haste more slowly."

COSGRAVE BEGINS WASHINGTON VISIT

Dinner With Massey and Call On Coolidge On To-day's Program.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (Canadian Press).—William T. Cosgrave, President of the Executive Council of the Irish Free State, arrived here today for a four-day visit. The official party was met by representatives of the State Department, the British Embassy, and the Irish Free State Legation.

The visitors' program today included an audience with President Coolidge, dinner with the Canadian Minister, Vincent Massey, and luncheon with the Assistant Attorney-General, William J. Donovan.

U. S. Navy Officer Predicts War Soon

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (Canadian Press).—War between the United States and its commercial competitors in the not distant future was predicted Saturday by Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

In a discussion of the proposed $725,000,000 naval building programme, before the National Republican Club, Admiral Plunkett said:

"We are nearer war today than ever before in our history as a nation.

"The penalty of commercial and industrial efficiency," Admiral Plunkett said, "inevitably is war. If I read history correctly, this country is nearer war than ever before, because its commercial position today places us in competition with other great commercial nations."

LOST COLLEGE GIRL HUNTED IN WASHINGTON

Four Persons Sure That Heiress Dined in Cafe With Escort.

COMB SCHOOL DISTRICT.

Clue Held Most Promising So Far—Investigations Sent On To Capital.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Acting on what they termed "the most tangible clue yet received" in the mysterious disappearance of Frances St. John Smith, Smith College student, New York detectives started early Saturday for Washington. Four persons reported seeing the girl in that city last Wednesday.

One point of the latest club in the search which has covered the entire north-eastern seaboard is that all four descriptions tally with Miss Smith's. The girl believed to be the missing heiress was seen in a Washington restaurant Wednesday with a young man.

As the two sat at their table, the four reports said, her escort called her attention to a newspaper article. When reading it, she fainted. She was revived and departed with the man in a sedan.

Other Leads Followed.

Meantime a score of other reports, many of them from New York City, are being given careful attention by police. Federal authorities are continuing their investigation of the letter demanding $2,500 for the safe return of the girl, sent to her father from Manhattan Friday.

Several reports about a girl answering Miss Smith's description were received from Jersey City and Newark.

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, New York society woman, and classmate of Mrs. St. John Smith, the missing girl's mother, took charge of the search in this city. Mrs. Sabin was positive that Frances did not elope. She explained:

"Frances had no interest in any young man, I am sure. If she had there would have been no need for concealment."

Troopers Renew Search.

In Massachusetts, where the girl's father, St. John Smith, is heading the search, a twenty-mile area near the school was gone over Saturday. Though the ground had been searched several times since the girl was reported missing eighteen mounted State troopers and a dozen others in automobiles were again ordered to go over it.

The search was ordered by Brigadier-General Foote, State Commissioner of Public Safety. His orders were taken as definite indication that the commissioner had abandoned the theory that the girl is being held for ransom.

The mother, in Northampton to aid the father in the search and bordering on collapse, is still in a serious condition, it was announced.

MAYOR ADDRESSES FRIDAY NIGHT CLUB

Tells Members About Municipal Affairs—Dance Follows.

Friday night was a red letter event in the history of the Friday Night Supper Club. Not only was the regular supper distinguished by the presence of His Worship Mayor Denne, but following the meeting, there was held, in the Paragon Hall, a most enjoyable club dance.

At the customary hour—6.15 p.m. —some forty-five members of the club entered the dining room of the Y.M.C.A., where they enjoyed an appetizing supper. It was followed by the initiation of Mayor Denne as an honorary member, with all due ceremony. He, in return, delivered a particularly interesting address on "Municipal Affairs," at the conclusion of which a most sincere vote of thanks was moved and seconded by Ralph Adair and Keith Copping.

The patrons and patronesses at the dance were Mr. and Mrs. J. F. H. Wallace and Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Roper, and it was their pleasure to witness a number of stunts put on by several club members, as well as to enter into the various other activities of the evening. Mowry's Collegians supplied the music.

Hughes Says U.S. Is Far From Harboring Imperialistic Designs On Latin-America

HAVANA, January 23 (Canadian Press). — The United States, far from harboring imperialistic designs upon Latin-America, desires to see south of the Rio Grande, independent, strong and prosperous republics, Charles Evans Hughes, chairman of the United States delegation to the Pan-American Conference, here, told the American Chamber of Commerce of Cuba at a banquet last night.

The former Secretary of State listed independence, stability, goodwill, and co-operation as the four pillars upon which Pan-Americanism rests. He declared that "it is the firm policy of the United States to respect the territorial integrity of the American republics. We have no policy of aggression.

But it is also the policy of the United States "to encourage stability in the interest of independence," Mr. Hughes continued, "for the former is essential to enjoyment of the latter. It was while acting on this principle that the United States entered Santo Domingo, Haiti, and lastly Nicaragua," Mr. Hughes said, "but in every case the endeavors of the United States were directed towards the earliest evacuation possible.

We are at this moment in Nicaragua," he said, "but what we are doing there and the commitments we have made are at the request of both parties and in the interest of peace and order and a fair election. We have no desire to stay. We wish Nicaragua to be strong, presperous, and independent. We entered to meet an imperative but temporary exigency, and we shall retire as soon as it is possible."

MUTUAL LIFE HAD GOOD YEAR

Wrote Over $52,000,000 in New Business During 1927.

REVENUE YIELD HIGHER.

The year 1927 was a most successful one for the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada. Figures have been published showing that the Company wrote during the year over $52,250,000 of new business which brings the assurances in force to $386,669,481 or no less than $32,600,000 in excess of the amount in force at the end of 1926. Assets increased by $8,600,000. Dividends paid policy-holders were $3,646,000, which represents an increase of more than $550,000 over the previous year.

The surplus earnings of the company amounted to the gratifying sum of $4,501,387, which is $360,000 more than the very satisfactory earnings of 1926. These figures show a relation of assets of $50.45 per $1,000. This means much to Mutual policyholders because profits belongs to them, and are paid either in the form of cash, reduced premiums or increased insurance.

Progress was made in every department of the company's business. The assets of the Mutual Life— mostly gilt-edged government and municipal securities, have grown to a total of $89,233,343. These assets are all Canadian and represent investments in every province. They give policyholders the added satisfaction of knowing that their funds are being used to develop their own country. This company has surplus funds and investment reserves amounting to more than $11,829,000, so that the continued liberal dividend distributions are assured.

It will be gratifying to Mutual policy-holders to note that the cost ratio of securing new members for the Mutual family and administrating the company's affairs declines as the membership grows. The ratio for 1927 was only 14.44 p.c., as compared to 15.11 p.c. in 1926 and 15.23 p.c. in 1925.

On the other hand, the revenue from investments held up remarkably well, considering the steadily declining interest rates which marked the past year. The average rate earned on Mutual investments in 1926 was 6.48 p.m., while in 1927, despite the general decline, the Mutual's investments yielded 6.46 p.c.

Canadians have cause for pride in the record of The Mutual Life of Canada. Starting without one cent of share capital, two years after Canadian Confederation, its growth has kept pace well with that of Canada, and the company to-day ranks as one of the strong institutions of the Dominion and one of the soundest life insurance companies on the continent. Its investments are confined to Canadian securities and its policy holders are, of course, chiefly Canadians, as this company confines its operations to Canada and Newfoundland.

KNOX OFFICERS ARE RE-ELECTED

Reports Show Church To Have Had Year of Progress.

SOCIETIES THRIVING.

Last Wednesday evening the people of Knox Church gathered in goodly numbers to hold the annual business meeting of the congregation. Rev. Mr. McDonald conducted the opening devotions, and was appointed chairman for the gathering while Mr. John W. Buyers continued his faithful and efficient services as secretary.

Reports from every department of the church activities were given in such form as to show how splendidly successful the work of the year had been. There has been substantial increases in membership and contributions. All regular expenses were met and outstanding debts paid, while considerable extra work of repair had been carried out and only a small deficit remained to be carried over into the next year. The objective for the missionary work of the church at large was more than reached and the W.M. Society had also measured up to their allocation.

In round figures $10,000 represents the generosity of the people of Knox in behalf of all the activities undertaken during the nine months which were under review. It is characteristic of the missionary spirit of Knox Church that about one-third of this amount was devoted to missionary enterprises.

The retiring members of the Board of Managers were all unanimously re-elected for another term of three years. They are Messrs. H. J. McCannon, A. Gilles, H. Baptie, G. Davis, and H. Henry. Mr. Williard Fair was elected to fill in a two-year term, and Mr. Howard Clegg for a period of one year on the Board.

The work of the Ladies' Aid came in for the special approval of the men who, by a standing vote, thanked them for the untiring labors of the year and the success of their efforts in reducing the debt on the church property.

The Sunday School is in a thriving condition and is well organized to carry on effective service in religious education. Recently a Men's Club has been organized to meet the requirements of those who had no other means of taking part in the work of the church, and from the enthusiasm with which the venture was launched it appears to have a fine future in cultivating friendships and bringing various sections of the congregation into a closer fellowship.

The choir come in for special mention and praise for the regularity and faithfulness of their services and the very fine leadership which they render in the public ownership of the church.

A kindly worded and appreciative resolution of thanks of the minister and his family for the part they have played in helping forward the congregation's welfare was passed with enthusiasm, and gratefully acknowledged by the chairman.

The dominant feeling prevailing was one of encouragement, and a spirit of enthusiasm and optimism will be carried into the work of another year. At the conclusion of business a social half-hour was enjoyed during which the ladies kept up their reputation for hospitality by serving refreshments. The gathering was dismissed by singing the Doxology.

U.S. STEAMSHIPS CARRYING GRAIN

President of Navigation Federation Says Law Being Broken.

TORONTO, Jan. 23. Canadian Press. — The statement that in five years the United States shipping interests have gained control of over 65 per cent. of the lake carriage of Canadian grain, and are breaking the Canadian coast wise act to put the Canadian steamship companies out of business was made by Capt. C. Robinson, Goderich who this week was elected grand president of the Canadian Navigation Federation.

"American shipping interests," he said, "have practically taken over the grain cariage on the great lakes. Over 65 per cent. of the Canadian grain is now carried in American bottoms. In a few years Canadian steamship companies will be completely extinct unless the government enforces the act."

The act, he pointed out, forbids a ship of any country than the dominion to operate between two ports in Canada. The government has been winking at infractions of this law, Captain Robinson alleged, saying that Buffalo boats were permitted to carry grain from Fort William to Montreal by way of Buffalo and Fairport.

CHANCEL CHAPTER ELECTS OFFICERS

Miss M. English Again President of St. John's Ladies.

The annual meeting of the Chancel Chapter of St. John's church was held at the home of the president, Miss M. English, on Thursday afternoon. The opening exercises were taken by the vicar, Rev. Dr. Blagrave; the minutes were read and the report of the treasurer was given. Satisfaction was expressed at the activities of the Guild during the past year also over the arrangements made for keeping the sanctuary equipment up to date.

Samoan To Boycott New Zealand Goods

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, June 23. (Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's.) — The Samoan natives have commenced a boycott against New Zealand goods, according to information received at the Auckland office of a well-known shipping company yesterday.

New Zealand holds a mandate over Samoa under the League of Nations. Recently a commission of Enquiry was appointed to investigate charges of "dictatorship" against Sir George Richardson, Administrator of Samoa. The commission found that the charges were unfounded, and as a result O. F. Nelson and A. G. Smyth, were deported for playing a prominent part in causing unrest among the Samoans. The latter staked a mild demonstration on the day that Smyth and Nelson sailed from Samoa.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad and loving memory of Gertrude Bellingham who died one year ago to-day, Jan. 23:

She bade no one a last farewell,
She said good bye to none,
Her loving heart had ceased to beat,
And before we knew it she was gone:
Her cheerful smile and kindly ways
We pleasantly recall.
She had a kind word for everyone,
And died beloved by all.

When we saw our darling drifting
From this world of joy and woe,
Our hearts were filled with sorrow
To think she had to go.
We asked our Heavenly Father
To hear our tearful plea
That we might keep our darling,
But at last it could not be.

Sadly missed by brothers and sisters and little daughters, Gwennie and Dorothy.

This in brief is the offer submitted to Premier Rhodes by Hon. A. S. MacMillan, Liberal leader in the Upper House, writing "on behalf of a number of his colleagues."

SENDS OUT S.O.S. SIGNALS

Steamship Nebraskan Reported in Distress Off Nantucket Shore.

CUTTER TO RESCUE.

NEW YORK, Jan 23. — Canadian Press. — Efforts of a coast guard cutter to get into communication with the Steamship Nebraskan, reported in distress off the Nantucket shore, resulted last night in reports that an SOS signal had been sent out.

The coast guard cutter Hemesha left New London on Saturday to join craft from the Woods Hole base in going to the aid of the Nebraskan, after word had been received that the vessel was in trouble.

The cutter Ammen relayed to naval quarters here information that the Nebraskan was in distress and also went to her aid. The nature of the ship's difficulties could not be learned by naval headquarters here.

Broadcasting was interrupted for about 20 minutes and reports were current among the radio stations and broadcasters that an SOS had been sent out. The reports were later declared to have been based upon misinterpretation of the reasons for the Brooklyn Navy Yard's request for a cessation of broadcasting.

The Nebraskan a freighter, was said by officials of the American-Hawaiian line to have a wireless outfit, but only one operator. In their opinion, failure of naval stations to get in touch with the vessel might have been because this operator was not on duty at the time.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

VALUABLE HERD ORDERED KILLED

Cousins of Campbellford Man Lose Heavily Because of Foot and Mouth Disease.

85 ANIMALS DESTROYED.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 23.—The London Daily Mail carries an item of interest to many of the Campbellford citizens in its issue of Monday, December 19, 1927. The ten-thousand dollar dairy herd of Dairy Farm was completely destroyed by order of the Imperial Government as a measure against footh and mouth disease which was found to be in existence there. Some eighty-five beasts were destroyed and their carcasses burned in all night funeral pyre.

These animals were of the Fresian and Dairy Shorthorn breeds and were one of the most valuable herds in the district. The farm has stable accommodation for one hundred head of cattle and is considered modern in every respect. The owners, W. H. and M. Winstanley, will suffer a considerable loss as there is only a very small grant allowed by the government for such a loss through this disease.

Gilbert Winstanley of Campbellford is a cousin of the owners of the herd which has been destroyed and was himself a farmer up to the time of the war. After returning from overseas, he found he was unable to continue farm work and is now employed at the pulp mill here. He states that this is not the first loss the farm has sustained. Twenty years ago the father of the present owners lost his entire herd. But on that occasion, Anthrax was the cause. Mr. Winstanley of town is more or less conversant with conditions along this line in England and believes that the government allowances made to his cousins will amount to approximately one quarter of their losses.

PARALYZED

COULD NOT WALK, BUT RESTORED WITH NATURAL HERBS.

Elmwood, May 13th, 1927.

Mr. B. J. Murfin.

Dear Sir:—

I must write and let you know how our son, who had creeping paralysis, is improving. He had taken your medicine about a week only when he could walk and in three weeks had gained 13 lbs. He helped his father with seeding and is working every day and is feeling fine. Our daughter is also making an improvement, is gaining nicely, but is still taking your medicine. We certainly cannot praise your medicine too highly for what is has done for us all.

We do not think there is any medicine sold on the market so effective in building up a run down system as Mr. Murfin's Natural Herb Medicine and we highly recommend it to our neighbors and friends.

Hoping to see you soon, we remain,

Sincerely yours,

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Liefso.

The Story Thus Far.

"The people I know don't shut themselves in clothes closets," said the finger-print expert. "You positively amaze me," declared Vance. A few minutes later finger-prints were found on the inside door-knob of the closet in the apartment in which the beautiful Margaret Odell had been found strangled. But the amazing Vance declares the prints will not lead them to the murderer.

CHAPTER VII.

(Tuesday, September 11: 10:30 a.m.)

Markham and Heath and Vance and I were now alone in the apartment. Dark, low-hanging clouds had drifted across the sun, and the gray spectral light intensified the tragic atmosphere of the rooms.

Markham had lighted a cigar, and stood leaning against the piano, looking about him with a disconsolate but determined air. Vance had moved over to one of the pictures on the side wall of the living room—Boucher's "La Bergere Endormie" I think it was—and stood looking at it with cynical contempt.

"Dimpled nudities, gamboling cupids and woolly clouds for royal cocottes," he commented. His distaste for all the painting of the French decadence under Louis XV was profound. "One wonders what pictures courtesans hung in their boudoirs before the invention of these amorous eclogues, with their blue verdure and beribboned sheep."

"I'm more interested at present in what took place in this particular boudoir last night," retorted Markham impatiently.

"There's not much doubt about that, sir," said Heath encouragingly. "And I've an idea that when Dubois checks up those finger-prints with our files, we'll about know who did it."

Vance turned toward him with a rueful smile.

"You're so trusting, Sergeant. I, in turn, have an idea that, long before this touchin' case is clarified, you'll wish the irascible Captain with the insect-powder had never found those finger-prints."

He made a playful gesture of emphasis. "Permit me to whisper into your ear that the person who left his sign-manuals on yonder rosewood table and cut-glass doorknob had nothing whatever to do with the precipitate demise of the fair Mademoiselle Odell."

"What is it you suspect?" demanded Markham sharply.

"Not a thing, old dear," blandly declared Vance. "I'm wandering about in a mental murk as empty of sign-posts as interplanetary space. The jaws of darkness do devour me up; I'm in the dead vast and middle of the night. My mental darkness is Egyptian, Stygian, Cimmerian."

Markham's jaw tightened in exasperation; he was familiar with this evasive loquacity of Vance's. Dismissing the subject, he addressed himself to Heath.

"Have you done any questioning of the people in the house here?"

"I talked to Odell's maid and to the janitor and the switchboard operators but I didn't go much into details—I was waiting for you. I'll say this, though what they did tell me made my head swim. If they don't back down on some of their statements we're up against it."

"Let's have them in now, then," suggested Markham; "the maid first." He sat down on the piano-bench with his back to the keyboard.

Heath rose, but instead of going to the door, walked to the oriel window.

"There's one thing I want to call your attention to, sir, before you interview these people, and that's the matter of entrances and exits in this apartment." He drew aside the gold-gauze curtain. "Look at that iron grating. All the windows in this place, including the ones in the bathroom, are equipped with iron bars just like these. It's only eight or ten feet to the ground here, and whoever built this house wasn't taking any chances of burglars getting in through the windows."

He released the curtain, and strode into the foyer.

"Now, there's only one entrance to this apartment, and that's this door here opening off the main hall. There isn't a transom or an air-shaft or a dumb-waiter in the place, and that means that the only way—the only way—that anybody can get in or out of this apartment is through this door.

"Just keep that fact in your mind, sir, while you're listening to the stories of these people. . . Now, I'll have the maid brought in."

In response to Heath's order a detective led in a mulatto woman about thirty years old. She was neatly dressed, and gave one the impression of capability. When she spoke it was with a quiet, clear enunciation which attested to a greater degree of education than is ordinarily found in members of her class.

Her name, we learned, was Amy Gibson; and the information elicited by Markham's preliminary questioning consisted of the following facts

She had arrived at the apartment that morning a few minutes after seven, and, as was her custom, had let herself in with her own key, as her mistress generally slept till late.

Once or twice a week she came early to do sewing and mending for Miss Odell before the latter arose. On this particular morning she had come early to make an alteration in a gown.

As soon as she opened the door she had been confronted by the disorder of the apartment, for the Venetian-glass doors of the foyer were wide open; and almost simultaneously she had noticed the body of her mistress on the davenport.

She had called at once to Jessup, the night telephone operator then on duty, who, after one glance into the living-room, had notified the police. She had then sat down in the public reception-room and waited for the arrival of the officers.

Her testimony had been simple and direct and intelligently stated. If she was nervous or excited, she managed to keep her feelings well under control.

"Now," continued Markham, after a short pause, "let us go back to last night. At what time did you leave Miss Odell?"

"A few minutes before seven, sir," the woman answered, in a colorless, even tone which seemed to be characteristic of her speech.

"Is that your usual hour for leaving?"

"No; I generally go about six. But last night Miss Odell wanted me to help her dress for dinner."

"Don't you always help her dress for dinner?"

"No, sir. But last night she was going with some gentleman to dinner and the theatre, and wanted to look specially nice."

"Ah!" Markham leaned forward. "And who was this gentleman?"

"I don't know, sir—Miss Odell didn't say."

"And you couldn't suggest who it might have been?"

"I couldn't say, sir."

"And when did Miss Odell tell you that she wanted you to come early this morning?"

"When I was leaving last night."

"So she evidently didn't anticipate any danger, or have any fear of her companion."

"It doesn't look that way." The woman paused, as if considering. "No, I know she didn't. She was in good spirits."

Markham turned to Heath.

"Any other questions you want to ask, Sergeant?"

Heath removed an unlighted cigar from his mouth, and bent forward, resting his hands on his knees.

"What jewelry did this Odell woman have on last night?" he demanded gruffly.

The maid's manner became cool and a bit haughty.

"Miss Odell"—she emphasized the "Miss," by way of reproaching him for the disrespect implied in his omission—"wore all her rings, five or six of them, and three bracelets—one of square diamonds and emeralds. She also had on a sunburst of pear-shaped diamonds on a chain round her neck, and she carried a platinum lorgnette set with diamonds and pearls."

"Did she own any other jewelry?"

"A few small pieces, maybe, but I'm not sure."

"And did she keep 'em in a steel jewel-case in the bedroom?"

"Yes—when she wasn't wearing them." There was more than a suggestion of sarcasm in the reply.

"Oh, I thought maybe she kept 'em locked up when she had 'em on." Heath's antagonism had been aroused by the maid's attitude; he could not have failed to note that she had consistently omitted the punctillious "sir" when answering him.

He now stood up and pointed loweringly to the black document-box on the rosewood table.

"Ever see that before?"

The woman nodded indifferently "Many times."

"Where was it generally kept?"

"In that thing." She indicated the Boule cabinet with a motion of the head.

"What was in the box?"

"How should I know?"

"You don't know—huh?" Heath thrust out his jaw, but his bullying attitude had no effect upon the impassive maid.

"I've got no idea," she replied, calmly. "It was always kept locked, and I never saw Miss Odell open it."

The Sergeant walked over to the door of the living-room closet.

"See that key?" he asked angrily.

Again the woman nodded; but this time I detected a look of mild astonishment in her eyes.

"Was that key always kept on the inside of the door?"

"No; it was always on the outside."

It was decided to enter the field crop competition, the crops to be barley and white oats. Departmental judges are to be employed as usual.

The secretary-treasurer's salary was fixed at $75.00 for 1928. This finished the business of the annual meeting.

The directors present immediately convened and appointed M. W. Sine, V.S., as secretary-treasurer for 1928.

The meeting then adjourned at the call of the President.

An expedition has started from northern Egypt to study conditions of the sources of the Nile.

The Business Girl Knows the Dollars-and-Cents Value of "That Schoolgirl Complexion"

As beauty is rated a dollars-and-cents asset by women of the stage and screen, so too it is rated today by women in the business world. Note there the lovely complexions that you see.

The rule for gaining a good complexion is the same as for keeping one—soap and water, as advised by virtually every leading authority on skin care. This is to keep the skin and pores clean and free of beauty-impairing accumulations.

The one secret is in the kind of soap one uses. Only a true complexion soap can be wisely employed on the skin. Other soaps may be too harsh.

Palmolive Soap is untouched by human hands until you break the wrapper—it is never sold unwrapped

The rule for "That Schoolgirl Complexion"

Thus millions use Palmolive, in this way—a soap made for ONE purpose only, to safeguard the skin. A good complexion is worth too much to experiment.

Wash your face gently with soothing Palmolive Soap, massaging the lather softly into the skin. Rinse thoroughly, first with warm water, then with cold. If your skin is inclined to be dry, apply a touch of good cold cream—that is all.

Do this regularly, and particularly in the evening. Use powder and rouge if you wish. But never leave them on over night. They clog the pores, often enlarge them. Blackheads and disfigurements often follow. They must be washed away.

Avoid this mistake

Do not use ordinary soaps in the treatment given above. Do not think any green soap, or one represented as of olive and palm oils, is the same as Palmolive.

And it costs but 10c the cake! So little that millions let it do for their bodies what it does for their faces. Obtain a cake today. Then note what an amazing difference one week makes.

THE PRESS AND ACCURACY.

In a speech to newspaper men last week Hon. R. B. Bennett, the Conservative Federal leader, urged accuracy on the part of the press in reporting the utterances of public men.

Accuracy is aimed at by every reporter who takes his profession seriously, and as a rule, in Canadian newspapers at least, public speakers with the ability to express their thoughts clearly are reported accurately.

Usually it is the man who is not able to put his ideas into words so that they fairly represent what he means to convey that sometimes feels that the newspapers have not done him justice.

He has perhaps not said just what he intended to say, and is aware of that fact when his statement is reproduced in cold type.

Newspaper men are not infallible, but they strive to be accurate and succeed remarkably well on the whole.

And in any case public men in Canada need have no fear that Canadian newspapers will deliberately misrepresent what they say.

DE LAVAL'S GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY.

Peterborough as the home of the Canadian plant of the company, a plant that is incidentally the largest dairy equipment manufacturing factory in the British Empire, will be interested in knowing that the golden anniversary of the De Laval organization is being celebrated this year.

The centrifugal cream separator was, as a matter of fact, invented by Dr. Gustal De Laval in 1878.

What that invention has meant to the dairying industry need scarcely to be pointed out.

It can be said, however, with a good deal of truth, that the cream separator has been the foundation of modern dairying's development, and has been responsible for making it a great industry.

The fiftieth anniversary of the launching of the De Laval organization is made the occasion for a very fine golden anniversary number of the De Laval Monthly, a number filled with most interesting articles dealing with the remarkable growth of the company's business.

Among the contributors is W. R. Breyfogle, General Manager of the De Laval Company, Limited, Canada, who has a very educative article on "De Laval, Servant of the Canadian Dairy Industry."

Pictures of Mr. Breyfogle and of the Peterborough plant also appear in this splendid number.

HOW THE EXHIBITION GROWS.

The report of William Knox, Managing Director of Livestock at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, indicates that the big fair is not allowing its agricultural departments to be submerged by the amusement features, great as have been these in recent years.

An increase of twenty-five per cent. in the livestock entries over the year before and a total registration of 1,100 entries in horses, cattle, sheep and swine, show the Peterborough Industrial as making remarkable progress in this as in other departments.

The showing in cattle at the last Exhibition when, in spite of the new accommodation provided, all the entries could not be housed, and fifty head of cattle had to be tied in the open, was proof of the splendid reputation of Peterborough's fair and the attention it is attracting among stockmen.

Altogether there were 450 entries in cattle, an increase of 141 over the 1926 Exhibition, and although the number of horses showed a slight decrease, the sheep entries climbed from 228 to 307, and the number of swine more than doubled.

This year's programme will include, regardless of the assistance that is expected from the Ontario Government, the building of new cattle and horse barns, accommodation that the flood of entries last year shows to be very badly needed.

THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

To Ald. Walter Stocker's manifold duties as Chairman of the Board of Works have been added the responsibility of directing the affairs of the Peterborough Horticultural Society during the year.

Ald. Stocker is keenly interested in horticulture, is a hard worker, and will undoubtedly give the Society active leadership.

The Horticultural Society is an organization that has made splendid progress in Peterborough, and that has done much to make this a more attractive city and to interest the citizens generally in the desirability of taking greater care of their lawns and gardens.

It is real community work this, of inculcating a love for the city beautiful, and the Society should have the active assistance of a larger number of members in its efforts on behalf of a prettier and cleaner Peterborough.

It is encouraging in this regard to note that during the past year some 655 school children have taken out membership.

Many of these children will undoubtedly develop a keen interest in the things for which the Horticultural Society stands, and as they reach adult years will continue their active participation in the affairs of the organization.

CANADA AND THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

Efforts are being made to induce Canadians to take more interest in the League of Nations. The object is worthy of hearty support, and the movement is likely to meet with no opposition except from those incurable jingoes who regard war as an essential medicine for humanity, or from those who look upon the League with coldness or hostility as a rival of the British Empire. As to the latter objection, it need only be said that Great Britain is itself the leading spirit in the League of Nations, and the membership in the United Kingdom is large.

Those who are most friendly to the League might fairly ask what more Canada could do to promote peace than she is already doing. No war has arisen out of any act of hers. Difficult racial problems have been solved peaceably by Canadian statesmanship, and our relations with the United States are an example for the world. There is no expectation that the League of Nations will be called upon to adjudicate in any dispute arising here. Canada's only participation in war on a large scale was undertaken from the motive of warding off a European danger and settling a European dispute. The League of Nations is occupied almost solely with European problems. The League indirectly benefits Canada by working in this field because it is from another European conflict that danger is to be apprehended. Competition for African territory coveted by European nations might again set the world aflame.

Apart from this consideration, Canada's interest in the question must be of an unselfish kind, springing from concern for the welfare of the human race and longing to lighten its burdens. In the League Canada has a fine spokesman in Senator Dandurand, with his genial and conciliatory manners, his broad outlook and his knowledge of Canadian affairs. When pessimists talk as if the racial differences of Europe were an impassable barrier to peace and friendship, he can show how in Canada two races once described as "two nations warring in the bosom of a single State" are now living in harmony because of the application of two simple ideas—good-will and common-sense—and how the relations between Canada and the United States are of such a kind as never to cause a moment's anxiety in England.—London Advertiser.

AN ILL-ADVISED SUGGESTION.

Not a little comment has been made throughout the press upon the proposal advanced by a grand jury at Toronto that an amendment should be made to the Criminal Code of the Dominion under the terms of which the duty of sentencing a person convicted of a criminal offence should be withdrawn from the presiding judge and transferred to a board, upon which experts in mental diseases might predominate, in order that the state of mind of the criminal might be detected before he was sentenced to imprisonment or death.

While it is evident that the adoption of such a plan would do away with the contradictory testimony of expert witnesses which accompanies almost every murder trial in which a plea of insanity is advanced and while it is conceivable that other benefits might be conferred in the event of it becoming law, it is by no means so clear that the chief purpose of justice—that of protecting society and administering punishment for the commission of a crime—would be forwarded. A plan almost identical in its provisions has been proposed in the State of New York by its Governor, Al Smith, and has met with a more or less favorable reception at the hands of the press of that State and of the United States as a whole. But the necessity of bringing about a reform of the criminal law is much more pronounced in that country than in Canada. Properly or improperly, the accusation is being made against the system of criminal justice in the United States that it has suffered almost a complete breakdown. It has become the practice for almost every criminal charged with a capital offence to enter a plea of insanity, and in consequence of this and of the very peculiar provisions included in the criminal codes of different States, it is becoming increasingly difficult to obtain a conviction and the execution of those found guilty of murder. The ridiculousness of the situation which has arisen in the States was never made more apparent than in the recently-heard case of Remus, the bootlegger, who was accused of the murder of his wife and who successfully evaded the death penalty by pleading insanity at the time of the murder. He was, therefore, sentenced to incarceration in a mental institution as the alternative. But he now comes forward with a further plea that his admitted state of insanity at the time of the murder does not necessarily mean that he is now in a similar state and he is actually arguing that, because of this, he should be released from the mental institution and allowed to go free.

Whatever the need in the United States for the adoption of the Smith plan after which the recommendation of the Toronto grand jury is patterned, no similar need is apparent in this country. The criminal courts of Canada have built up a reputation for fairness, coupled with adequate punishment for offences under the Criminal Code, which has rendered this country the terror of notorious evil-doers. Members of the lawless element which appears to be upon the increase across the border know if they commit a crime in Canada and are detected, there is almost a certainty that they will pay the penalty provided for in the law. The Canadian courts are fair; they hear and consider every argument that may be advanced in behalf of the prisoner; but they are also swift and sure. Under the Canadian system, there is no possibility of the evasion which is being practised daily across the line through the advantage which is taken of technicalities and other hair-splitting. And it is very largely for that reason that, while the United States are steeped in serious crime to an alarming extent, Canada remains comparatively free of it.

For this country to adopt the recommendation which has been made by the Toronto grand jury would not only be a radical departure from British criminal practice, but it would also open the door to serious abuses. It is notorious that while alienists may be found to pronounce almost any criminal insane, there are also alienists who will with equal readiness express the opinion that he is sane. What would happen if the experts appointed to the board of review disagreed upon the mental condition of the prisoner, as there is every possibility that they might? Would the prisoner escape punishment? Or would it be necessary for him to undergo re-trial and re-trial, as has become the custom in certain centres of the United States, until finally the crime with which he was charged became only a memory? The Canadian courts are now functioning very well indeed; they are dealing in a most satisfactory manner with those who are brought before them upon criminal charges. It will be time enough to entertain the Toronto suggestion if ever they lose their present power and efficiency.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Petes shouldn't be discouraged. The Canadiens have lost a game, too.

Members of the deputation who went to Toronto to urge a grant for the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition paid their own expenses. Another example of the spirit that has been responsible for the remarkable growth of the Exhibition.

Canada's Parliament swings into action this week, and Ottawa will come to life again.

Now it is hinted that it was a mouth-organ played by a newspaper man that frightened the Seymour ghost away. If he had chosen the bagpipes instead the spook would be gone for good.

Don't let George do it. Go and see "Leave It To Gloria" for yourself.

The Y.M.C.A. annual reports furnish convincing evidence of the service rendered by this institution to Peterborough's young men and boys.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 23 (Canadian Press).—With sales of corn to arrive here amounting to almost 1,000,000 bushels in the last 48 hours, corn prices on Saturday underwent a material setback. Cold weather favored country holding of corn but also tended to sustain wheat values, which however eased down at the last, sympathizing with corn.

Closing quotations on corn were heavy, ½ to ⅝c net lower, wheat ⅛ to ⅜ off, oats unchanged to ¼c down and provisions unchanged to 10c and 12c decline.

Wheat prices kept within narrow limits but had a firm undertone the greater part of the day. Traders were influenced in this respect by unfavorable reports as to the domestic winter crop outlook. On the other hand, export demand Saturday for wheat from North America was slow. Oats followed wheat Saturday, rather than corn.

Provisions averaged lower, affected by indications of larger arrivals of hogs next week.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Jan. 23 (Canadian Press).—Owing to the fact that foreign buyers did not respond to the higher prices asked, the export trade in Canadian grain here Saturday was quiet.

The local grain market was steady, but the volume of business was small.

There was some inquiry from United States buyers for Manitoba bran in the millfeed market and sales of five cars were made for shipment to Boston at $41 per ton, delivered. The domestic and country trade was active and prices were steady. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was dull but prices were unchanged.

A moderate amount of business was worked in all grades of eggs and prices were firmly maintained. The receipts were 778 cases.

The volume of business in butter continued of a very disappointing character, but values ruled steady. The receipts were 27 packages.

The trade in cheese was again slow and prices were unchanged. The receipts were 140 boxes.

MISSION WORKER TELLS ABOUT CHINA

Miss Northcott Addresses Members of Missionary Societies.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 23.—The annual meeting of the W.A. of St. John's church was held in the Parish Hall on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 11, at 2.30, when officers were elected for the ensuing year and reports were given of the past year's work which showed a distinct advance.

The following officers were elected

Hon.-President—Mrs. W. J. Creighton.
President—Mrs. James Mahood.
Vice-Presidents—Mrs. Marling and Miss S. Hetherington.
Secretary—Miss Florence Atwood.
Treasurer—Mrs. Marling.
Dorcas Committee—Miss S. Hetherington, Mrs. Junkin, Mrs. Barker.

At three-thirty, a large number of women, representative of the Women's Missionary organizations of the churches of the village, came by invitation to hear Miss Fanny Northcott, missionary on furlough from China, speak on conditions in that war-ridden country. The attendance was large, more than one hundred women being present.

Rev. W. J. Creighton was in the chair and briefly introduced the speaker. The eyes of the world are fixed on China, and Miss Northcott has first-hand information to give. The unhappy divisions of Christendom have always hampered the work of the missionaries, and their baleful effect are more evident in the mission world than anywhere else. The Church of England, often regarded as standing aloof from others, is after all, the body which has begun all movements toward union even the movement which resulted in the formation of the United Church. Mr. Creighton hoped that a scheme would be worked out which would put forward the work of missions.

Miss Winnie Payne sang very sweetly—"Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me."

Miss Northcott then delivered her address which shed new light on a subject which is very much in the eyes of the world at the present time.

Miss Northcott, who was born and brought up in Lakefield, was a medical missionary in Swatow, S. China, for a number of years and returned to Lakefield two years and a half ago to nurse her mother, who was ill and who passed away six weeks ago.

Miss Northcott spoke of the changes in China in the past fifteen years. After centuries when there was practically no change, things have happened so rapidly that a few years make a great difference, greater than even the Chinese themselves realize. There is a great weight of responsibility resting on the Christian nations of the world, as a Christian Chinese nation would be a great power for good in the world, and a heathen China will be a world menace.

China is divided geographically by ancestral traditions and by language. Every sixty miles in China there is a different dialect and the similarity of the written language was discounted by the fact that up to a few years ago few Chinese could read and write. Local conditions foster strife and there is great need of a strong leader who might lead a united China. The clan system is a strong obstacle to a united China, for each clan is a community unto itself. The Chinese people as a whole are peace-loving and industrious and are content to plod along, not specially interested in politics which they leave to the official class. These latter are grafters and use their terms of office to line their own pockets.

Mission work is conducted in three ways—evangelical, educational and medical. Very often the two latter are used to gain a foothold and prepare the way for the evangelical side. These people want medicines long before they know of the gospel. In no country is there greater need for medical work than there is in China. In China the nurses' work is practically anything she is asked to do, superintend a hospital, train a class of nurses, do carpenters' or plumbers' work or, in fact, anything.

Much of the outside work devolves on the nurses and on these expeditions one always takes a native nurse along.

Miss Northcott related several personal experiences which illustrated clearly the need for medical work in China where cleanliness, ventilation and sanitation are unknown, where eight out of every ten women bear their children without the aid of a doctor and many of them without the aid of a midwife. There are hundreds and thousands of native doctors, but the people have no faith in them. The belief that all sickness results from evil spirits leads them into some strange habits. The natives of China are strongly addicted to patent medicines, most of which come from Japan and nearly all contain opium.

Chinese boys and girls are learning to read and write, and both native and Christian schools are fostering a spirit of patriotism which was unknown until within the past few years.

The Russian communists have played on the greed of the officials and have bought unusual privileges for themselves, and are responsible for ninety-nine and a half per cent. of the present unrest in Oriental countries.

If the communists could be driven out it would be the best thing that could happen. China needs a great moral and religious awakening, and a strong Christian leader who must be Chinese, who will lead them out into a strong self-governing country. China must eventually be taken in on an equality with other nations and it will mean great things.

Contrary to what one hears in some quarters, the missionaries are being asked back to China, and hundreds have gone during the past year. The Chinese are more and more taking a leading part in the work in China.

The denominational spirit is not emphasized in China and is practically nil. It looks now as if Christianity will be under one head, the Church of Christ in China which it is hoped will be self-supporting, although it may take years.

Mrs. Porter moved a vote of thanks to Miss Northcott on behalf of the W.M.S. of Knox United Church, which was seconded by Mrs. Burgess.

Mrs. (Rev.) S. A. Kemp moved that the vote of thanks be made general on behalf of Regent street United church W.M.S. and the societies of the Baptist and Presbyterian churches. This motion was seconded by Mrs. Harvey. This vote of thanks was heartily endorsed by all present.

Rev. W. J. Creighton, in thanking Miss Northcott for her address, and the ladies for their expression of appreciation, spoke of China's great age as a nation. It is said that the original Chinese left Mesopotamia for the East at the same time as Abraham went west to Palestine. Apropos of the old saying that "East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet," Mr. Creighton spoke of the progress of Christianity which left Palestine and spread to Greece and western Europe, then to America and back to the East.

The Christian movement in Greece spread northward as well as westward, and the Orthodox Greek Church resulted, which was the Church of Eastern Europe, which in its turn spread East through Asia and found root in a Russian Christian Mission in Japan, which was carried on by one man. Christianity has encircled the earth.

Following the meeting, afternoon tea was served by the members of the W.A.

CAUGHT BAD COLD WHILE OUT PLAYING NOT PROPERLY DRESSED

Mrs. L. Mantie, Millet, Alta., writes:—"My youngest child had a very bad cold which she got by going out playing in a strong, cold wind not properly dressed.

"She got so hoarse she could hardly speak, and her throat and chest were very sore.

"I used everything available, but she received no relief until, finally, I secured a bottle of and the first few doses certainly did her good. It is wonderful how it can help so quickly."

At first he was puzzled —now he understands

THE first time Mr. Russell was asked to "Hold the line, please" when he had placed a Long Distance call he was puzzled. He had not heard of our new high speed service.

In little more than a minute he was talking to his party two-hundred miles away. Of course, Mr. Russell had given the distant number to the long distance operator in placing his call. It is a great aid to announce the number — the operator then proceeds at once to establish the connection while you remain at the telephone.

We will be glad to prepare for you a special directory of distant numbers you frequently call. With such a list you will be assured, in the majority of cases, of prompt connection with the far-away telephone.

High Speed long distance service is essentially a number service. Ask us to prepare your list of distant numbers.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith knew that as long as she lived she would blush with shame at the memory of the scene that followed her "recognition" of Cherry's baby. But there was no other way out of the intricate, degrading tangle into which her unfounded jealousy of Cherry and Bob had involved her—and them.

She sat up in bed, little Hope clasped to her breast, her eyes roving with well-stimulated bewilderment from Cherry to Bob, to the nurse, about the hospital room that she would have to pretend was utterly strange to her, a woman miraculously and suddenly recovered from "amnesia."

"She knows us, Bob! Oh, Faith! Thank God, thank God!" Cherry shrilled, flinging her small body across the bed, her arms straining to embrace both Faith and the baby.

"Where am I? What's happened, Cherry—Bob?" Faith made her voice drag with amazement.

"You've been very ill, darling," Bob said huskily, dropping to his knees beside the bed. "But thank God, you're going to be all right now. You'd better let me take the baby. She's too heavy for you, and you're very weak."

"No, no! I want her!" Faith cried wildly, her arms straining so tightly about Hope that the baby grunted in protest. "Where am I, Bob? I had an awful dream. I dreamed Cherry was going to take Hope away from me—my baby! But—was it a dream? I can't remember—oh!" She shuddered and closed her eyes. "It wasn't a dream, was it? I heard Cherry say it today when I went to get the things for Fay. I—something funny happened to me. I felt queer, sick, I—I fainted, didn't I? I was going to Fay's bathroom to get something to make me feel better and I—I don't remember anything more."

She was thankful that George was not there to witness her shame, although he had arranged for just this scene to take place.

"Darling," Bob said pityingly, bending over her so that his cheek rubbed against hers. "That all happened Sunday. This is Wednesday. You're in a hospital in Darrow—"

"Darrow? How did I get here? Why, Darrow's fifty miles away. Why didn't you take me home?"

"You—you were so ill that you couldn't remember anything and George found you in Vine Street and brought you here. You asked him to bring you to Darrow," Bob explained. "He told Cherry where you were, because he thought there must be something wrong, and we came to find you. You'd registered at a hotel here under the name of Stella Pringle—"

"Stella Pringle?" Faith repeated in a wondering voice. "But I don't know any Stella Pringle, Bob."

"You see, dear, George had given you a suitcase of his sister's, with Selma's initials—S. P.—and because you couldn't remember your own name, you made up 'Stella Pringle' to fit the initials. You didn't recognize any of us, but George believed the sight of the baby might restore your memory, and it did, thank God. Now, you mustn't talk any more for a while, or you'll run your fever up."

"Oh, Faith, I won't take Hope away from you," Cherry sobbed. "I didn't know! Forgive me for making you sick, darling! I've been nearly crazy since Sunday. I didn't know I loved you so terribly much, but I know now, and I won't make you unhappy by taking Hope away."

It was then that Faith realized how involved and tragic the tangle was.

PRESENTATION MADE.

Past Mistress of Vimy Ridge Lodge Receives Jewel.

The regular meeting of Vimy Ridge L.O.B.A. was held on Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock. The meeting was well attended, but was made as brief as possible, as so many wished to attend the Conservative "At Home." The newly-elected Worthy Mistress, Sister Millard, was installed in office by Mr. George Porter, she being unable to be present at the regular installation of officers. After the necessary business had been transacted, Mrs. C. Wright, the retiring Worthy Mistress, was asked to come forward, and the following address was read to her by Mrs. Robert Wright, while Mr. George Porter, on behalf of Vimy Ridge Lodge No. 244 L.O.B.A., presented her with a beautiful Past Mistress' jewel:

"The officers and members of No. 244 wish this evening to congratulate you, at the end of a two-year term as Worthy Mistress of our Lodge, also to remember that it has been the second time you have served your lodge in this capacity.

"The work has advanced both socially and financially during your term of office. We will remember efforts put forth and the co-operation of you and the members for the purchase of a banner, of which we are all justly proud to possess.

"We trust you will long be spared to work in our midst, and ask you to accept this jewel, signifying the office you now hold among us.

"Signed on behalf of the Lodge."

Mrs. Wright, in a few well-chosen words, thanked the Lodge for the honor they had conferred upon her, saying it had been a real pleasure to work with the members of the Lodge.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

TUESDAY, JANUARY 24, 1928.

Good and evil stars conflict today, according to astrology, which finds the rule propitious for many lines of philanthropic work.

Reforms in penal institutions and in places where the young are supposed to be "corrected" are presaged by the stars.

A leader who preaches practical prevention of poverty is to gain attention in the year which will be marked by many efforts to encourage a higher civilization.

This is read as a lucky wedding day since it encourages blindness to faults and continued trust.

Women are especially well directed under this sway and even shopping expeditions are supposed to be subject to helpful planetary influences.

Theatres and places of amusements should benefit from th isrule which increases the desire for recreation.

One of the trends of the year will be toward reflection and serious endeavor that will be apparent in the young as well as the old.

College boys and girls are to be inspired by high ambition that promise much for the elimination of foolish pastimes.

This is a sway supposed to encourage flirtation and a desire to attract admiration girls are warned.

Coal, shipping and steel interest are all subject to planetary conditions that are most promising of profit.

Persons whose birthdate it is have a year in which they will have great latitude of action, and may attain real success. The young will court and marry.

Children born on this day probably will be fond of the sea and all the beauties of nature. Subjects of this sign are usually fond of travel and exceedingly charming in personality.

TODAY DENTISTS say keep teeth white and sparkling to keep them healthy. Miss Georgette Duval is advised to use the new-day dentifrice, Pepsodent.

It's Film on Teeth
that makes them lustreless, "off color"
You must remove it

RUN your tongue across your teeth and you will feel a film. This film, in the light of recent dental findings, is a menace to pretty teeth and gums.

Film absorbs stains and turns white teeth dull, "off color." It is the chief cause of the commoner tooth and gum disorders. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Film must be removed each day. Ordinary brushing fails to do it successfully. So dentists urge the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent.

No other will make teeth as sparkling white. Mail coupon or ask your druggist for Pepsodent.

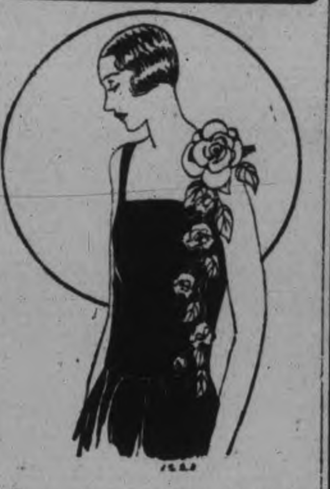
DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



For evening wear these close-fitting caps of white ostrich present the appearance of wigs. A number of the best-dressed women have adopted the mode.

I heard of a woman the other day who had—after all these years—just had her hair cut for the first time, and the reason given for this late-in-the-day visit to the barber was that she wanted to be able to let it grow again. Almost all the women she knew were in one stage or another of that hair-growing process and she felt rather out of it. And so it really seems that women have made the best of a bad bargain and have actually invested their awkward growing locks with a sort of interest all their own.

There are all sorts of ways of hiding the awkward stages if you really want to. Hair dressers have become quite adept at curling under short ends and arranging longer locks so that they hide the shorter ones. Many women keep their heads covered as much as possible during the first stages of the process, and that accounts of course for the immense popularity of evening headdresses this winter.

Close-fitting feather toques in white or light pastel shades, that give the aspect of a wig sometimes, are seen frequently among smart theater audiences, and there are little caps of net studded with pearls or rhinestones that are appropriate for balls or dances.

American women are not so willing to cover their short locks with chignons of artificial hair as are the French women, and the short-hair wigs that are sometimes worn abroad are hardly to the taste of most Americans.

Meantime the women whose hair has assumed length enough to be called actually long are beginning to wonder what they are going to do with it now they have got it. The rather closely rolled knot at the nape of the neck is smart for evening but such knots seldom look well showing beneath a hat. Doubtless the milliners will have some suggestions to make when spring comes.

The American Railway Express Company, dissatisfied with present schedules, asked the Commission to establish and maintain rates dependent upon the value of the animals or reptiles and the Commission announced that there appeared no cause for refusing the request.

SPLENDID YEAR IS INDICATED

St. Andrew's Church, Campbellford, Hold Annual Meeting.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 21.— The annual business meeting of the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was held in the Sunday school rooms of the church on Thursday evening. Owing to the stormy weather and slushy streets, there was not as large an attendance as might otherwise have been expected, but the business of the meeting was conducted in a brisk manner throughout. The financial statement of the church shows a surplus for the year ending December 31, 1927, of more than double the amount carried over from 1926. The matter of reports for the year called forth the greatest amount of discussion, but was finally settled in a manner which is expected to prove satisfactory to the majority of the church members.

The Rev. James Grier opened the meeting with devotional exercises in the form of a hymn, scripture reading, and a word of prayer. Then declaring the meeting open for the business he asked that a chairman be appointed and also a secretary. He was himself elected to occupy the chair and George Whitlaw was appointed secretary. The first report to be brought before the meeting was that of the Session. This was presented by Mr. Grier, with Dr. O. C. Watson occupying the chair during the reading. The Rev. Mr. Grier began his report by commenting on the fact that time flies and saying that it seemed but a few rounds of the clock since he had given a similar report a year ago. He also wished to acknowledge the providence of God during the past year. The church attendance during the year, he said, had been fairly good, but during the summer months, there had been the usual decrease in numbers. In the last twelve months there had been two co-operative services, July 2 and November 12, to commemorate the Jubilee of Confederation and the thanksgiving season respectively.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper had been dispensed four times during the year with the attendances, 243, 246, 221, and 192 at the different services. The numbers indicated, he thought, that the members needed to be reminded of the extremely high and sacred privilege which was theirs on these occasions. There were thirteen baptism ceremonies performed during the year, and it was a matter of regret that in some cases the parents of the children allowed several years to pass before presenting their children for baptism. Mr. Grier also expressed his pleasure found in the duties of the church and his appreciation of the open door which always welcomed him when visiting either as a minister of the gospel or as a mutual friend. Speaking for the session, he expressed their appreciation of the work of the different organizations of the church. Their records show an increase of four members over the number of last year. There had been fourteen removals, ten of these through death and eighteen new members added to the roll. The membership of the church now stands at 438.

Allan Watson presented the report of the board of trustees. They reported that they found the property in good condition with the exception of a section of the basement floor which is in need of repair. The amount of insurance carried is approximately $30,000.00.

Church Rewired.

The Board of Managers' report was the next one to be presented. Dr. O. C. Watson reported that the officers for 1928 would be the same as last year, but that their duties would be of a slightly different nature. During 1927, the manse had been painted outside. Beginning early this year, the church was being rewired. The labor was being given without charge and Dr. Watson, speaking for the board, thought that an expression of gratitude ought to be tendered Frank DeCarrol and his assistants for the very generous manner in which they were assisting the church.

The Board also took the opportunity to remark that they considered that there was not a warm enough welcome afforded strangers who attended the church. They thought it advisable that the congregation take steps to overcome this condition and thus do away with an age-old tradition. The choir, too, ought to be more appreciated, and the Board advised that the choir take steps to be friendly to a more marked degree with the new members who join them from time to time. Gowns for the junior choir were also suggested. The Board also paid fitting tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. William Hume for her devoted work for the welfare of the church. In closing, the doctor detailed the principle on which the circuits in the new wiring system were being installed, and also suggested that two new managers be added to the number already constituting the Board as well as an appointment to the vacancy left by the removal of Glenn Thompson to the Village of Bloomfield.

Mr. Grier, after the report had been laid on the table, took the opportunity to remark on the completness of the report and some of its details. He spoke very highly of the work of the late Mrs. Hume and also of the work of the electricians in wiring the church. J. A. Anderson corroborated the minister's remarks and put a motion expressing gratitude to the electricians, but the motion was laid over till all the reports had been received before being voted on.

The treasurer's report showed a total church revenue of $6,192.35, and an expenditure of $5,345.31, leaving a balance of $847.04, to carry over into the New Year. This report was satisfactory in every detail as several debts had been paid off during the years and the balance at the year's end was greater than at the end of 1926. The books had been audited and found correct by Dr. G. A. Hay. The contributions to missions during the year amount to $1,215.00.

Reports from the Ladies' Aid Society and the Women's Missionary Society followed and were of a most satisfactory nature. In fact, the reports of every branch and organization of the church showed exceptionally fine reports of a very successful year. These reports were from the Mission Circle, the Young Ladies' Mission Circle, the Young People's Society, the Mission Band, the Sunday School, Trail Rangers and Girl Guides.

After the reports had been duly accepted, the matter of a church year book came up for considerable discussion. Some of the members were in favor of the old system of names and amounts of donations. Others were for numbers and the amounts given to the church, while still another group favored only publishing names. The result will probably be discussed further in the near future. There being no further business, the meeting closed with the Benediction.

Les Canadiens' Record Broken In Maroon Game

LES CANADIENS LOSE 1-0 COUNT TO THE MAROONS

First Defeat Sustained By the Frenchmen in Eighteen Games.

SCORED IN SECOND.

Winners Now Tied With the Maple Leafs For Second Place.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 23. Canadian Press. — The seemingly impossible but the inevitable has happened. Canadiens were beaten by a 1 to 0 score by the Montreal Maroons at the Forum on Saturday night, and thus was brought to an end one of the most impressive records ever compiled by a team in the National Hockey League — the first defeat sustained by the flying Frenchmen in 19 straight games.

The break had to come, however, and it fell to the lot of the Canucks' intra-city rivals to rise to hockey heights and completely overshadow the Flying Frenchmen in as thrilling a professional hockey battle as has ever been seen on Montreal ice.

A lone goal in the second period by Ward, substitute Maroon right winger, was all that was needed to accomplish the downfall of the wonder team, which for 18 straight games had treated all teams alike, both at home and on the road.

The indentation made on Canadiens' at the top of the Canadian division of the National Hockey League, by the Maroons' victory was scarcely noticeable, but the win kept Maroons in the thick of the fight for second place with Toronto, who also won Saturday night.

Canadiens have 38 points while Maroons and Leafs each have 25. The Maroons, however, have played a game less than the Queen City sextette.

Saturday night's game was a typical Maroon-Canadien battle. It was marked by a lot of cautious hockey, and was featured by the superb defensive play of the winners. The contest was not without roughness, two major and 15 minor penalties, being meted out by the officials, who called the slightest infractions.

The contest also was not without its notable incidents. A fight started right after the final bell between Soliat and Phillips, and culminated in a fine of $50 for each combatant. The referees were without jurisdiction at the time, as the game was over, but President Frank Calder, who was in attendance, promptly slapped the fine on the pugnacious players. For a time it looked as if a general melee was going to take place, as the players of both teams, who were making their way to the dressing rooms turned back, and rushed for the scene of action. The majority of them, however, acted as peacemakers, and aided by the ushers, who swarmed the rink, put an end to the fisticuffs. Several spectators who attempted to get on the ice were promptly pulled or pushed back and a potential free-for-all riot was averted.

Another unique incident which caused disgruntled Canadien supporters to shower the ice with pennies took place in the first period when Morenz jumped on the ice from the penalty box before his time was up and scored a goal which was promptly disallowed. Morenz tripped a Montreal player and when he argued with Bobby Hewitson, the latter promptly raised the original minor to a major penalty. The penalty timekeeper failed to see the official on the ice signal the major penalty, and at the end of two minutes allowed Morenz to return to play. His return was apparently unnoticed until he flashed by the Maroon defence and beat Benedict with a fast backhand shot. The Maroons protested and after checking up with the timers, the officials disallowed the goal and sent Morenz back to complete his major penalty, which still had three minutes to run.

Leduc drew the other major penalty for hooking Dutton under the chin as the latter was attempting to crash the Canadien defence during the third period.

The Maroons thoroughly deserved their victory. It was no lucky win. They displayed the best hockey they have shown since they won the Stanley Cup two seasons ago. Their defensive play was superb but was hardly of the monotonous type expected. They tempered their play with an attack which was forever a threat to the opposing goal. Daring two and three man thrusts kept Hainsworth on the watch throughout and only several marvellous stops kept Montreal from winning by a larger margin.

On the other hand, Benedict, who was expected to have the busiest evening of his career, had no more work to do than did Hainsworth. The usually brilliant and elusive Canuck attacks were broken time after time by a solid Maroon four and five man defence at the blue line. Morenz, Joliat and Gagne found the going hard and were forever worried by the close checking of the Maroon forwards. In fact, Montreal poke-checked the Habitants "to death"

Young Jimmie Ward, Montreal recruit sub right winger, proved the hero of the game. He scored the only goal of the contest on a clever play with Red Dutton. Dutton rushed and drove at Hainsworth from the Canuck defence. The goalie stopped the puck but was hesitant when clearing. Ward rushed in and was at the side of the net when Hainsworth finally got rid of the puck. Ward was just in ttime, and he grabbed the disc, circled out in front again and before the Habitant defence could upset him, had banged the rubber between Hainsworth and the post. The goal, although it played the premier part in the victory, was not Ward's only contribution to his team's success. He was forever a threat to the opposing net on the offensive, while defensively he fitted in perfectly with the rest of the team.

Hooley Smith gave one of his best displays of the season for the Maroons at centre ice. His sweeping poke-check proved a worry to the Canuck speedsters throughout. Once Smith got to close to the ice in attempting to stop a Canadien rush and he received a kick in the head. He was knocked out but was not out, however, and he showed his gameness by returning to play after being revived on the bench.

The forum was jammed for the game, over 13,000 persons witnessing the battle. The teams:

BIRMINGHAM WINS FROM EVERTON

Heavy Scoring Features Saturday Games in English Soccer League.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 23. — Canadian Press Cable. — Soccer matches Saturday in England and Wales were played for the most part in rainy, gusty weather, with the pitches very soft. Considering conditions, the brand of football played was remarkably good. There were several fine scoring feats, however. Cookson of West Bromwich Albion and Waterton of Newport County each secured four goals, while Rodson, Preston North End, Turner, Torquay and Bell, Burnley, did the hat trick.

In the English league, first division, Everton were robbed of victory over Birmingham by the brilliant goal-minding of Taylor. In the midst of his fine display he was injured and had to retire. The Birmingham team were two up at the interval through the goals of Ellis and Briggs. With Taylor gone Everton were able to equalize through Irvine's two counters.

Huddersfield town led Tottenham Hotspurs by two goals to one at the interval. O'Callaghan scored for the 'Spurs, and then Brown equalized. Both counters were made in the first five minutes of play. Smith scored for Huddersfield just before half time. The 'Spurs had to play the second half without Thompson, who was hurt. Jackson and Smith scored against them. Osborne got the 'Spurs second goal just before time.

Leicester City had a field day at the expense of Derby County. The City's goals came from Chandler, twice Lochhead and Adcook. Sunderland at Liverpool played with fine assurance to carry off the victory. Hopkin and Reid scored for Liverpool while Halliday, twice, Hargreaves, Riley, through his own goal, and Marshall compiled Sunderland's total. Marshall and Wilks played a particularly brilliant game for Sunderland.

All goals of Bolton Wanderer-Bury match were made in three minutes after half an hour of play in the first half. Smith and Jack registered for Bolton, while Hawarth kicked the ball through his own goal to give Bury a point.

The Wednesday ran away from Blackburn Rovers in the first half. Hill scored twice and Hooper once before the interval. Hooper found the range again and Holland saved the Rovers from being blanked.

Newcastle United and Manchester United scored all the goals in their match before half time in a dashing game. For Newcastle Wilkinson deputizing at centre forward for Gallagher, suspended by the Football association for bad behavior in matches scored two clever goals and Seymour and McKay contributed the rest of the quartette of tallies. Partridge got Manchester's lone tally.

There was plenty of action in the Burnley-Sheffield United fixture. In addition to Beel's three goals Bruton got a couple for Burnley while three were registered for Sheffield United.

TIGERS-REDS TIE SCORE 3-3

Boston Plays Overtime Game With Providence in Canadian-American League.

NEW HAVEN WINS.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 23 (Canadian Press).—The Boston Tigers and the Providence Reds fought ten minutes overtime to a 3 to 3 tie in a fast and strenuous Canadian-American Hockey League game here Saturday night. Oatman put the Tigers one up in the first period, but Brophy of the Reds became the individual star of the game by tallying once and assisting in two other scores for his team.

Field, Boston centre, lost three teeth when he collided with Lauder of Providence at centre ice. Lauder had his head cut deeply. In the second period the game was held up for six minutes when Mendou of Providence claimed a goal. The claim was disallowed, but the goal umpire was removed.

New Haven Scores

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23 (Canadian Press).—Two quick shots by Andrews in the closing period gave New Haven a 3 to 1 victory over Philadelphia in a Canadian-American League hockey game Saturday night. Philadelphia led in the first period, but Cahill knotted the count in the second session of the rough battle, making it possible for Andrews to score twice and win when the locals had two men in the penalty box.

FOUR GAMES IN C.G.E. LEAGUE

Electric Boys Show Good Brand of Hockey On Saturday.

KEEN CONTESTS.

Eight teams were in action in the C.G.E. League on Saturday afternoon at the Brock street rink, and the brand of hockey dished up for the crowd was a treat. The four games were well contested and were productive of good hockey.

Mr. Newson handled the bell in the first game and Joe Jones for the other three and their work was very satisfactory.

In the first game the Office defeated Fitters No. 2 by 6 goals to 4. The game was very fast and both teams turned in a nice card. Beavis, Kitchen and Playford starred for the Office while Adamson, J. McDonough and Atkin were best for the Fitters.

The teams were:

Office—Goal, Beavis; defence, Kitchen and Northrop; centre, Lowder; wings, Playford and Saunders; subs, Whaley, Hall and Tuck.

Fitters No. 2—Goal, Adamson; defence, J. McDonough, Jones; centre, Jay; wings, Atkin; Griffin; subs, McDonough, Butler.

The second game, which the Drafting won from the Industrial Control 5-2 was easily the fastest game of the afternoon. Both teams played sterling hockey with Bill Jackson in goal, Walter Jackson on the defence and Thornton at left wing being the stars for the Drafting team. Griffin between the nets for Industrial Control made some good stops, while Wilson and Kennealley worked hard on the forward line.

The teams:

Drafting—Goal, Bill Jackson; defence, J. McCarney, Davis; centre, Allin; wings, Rooke, Thornton; subs, W. Jackson, E. Howe, L. Masterson.

Industrial Control—Goal, Griffin; defence, Simmons, Shields; wings, J. Wilson, Graham; centre, Kennealley; subs, O'Brien, Sage, Darling, LaPlante.

The Tool Room won handily in the third game, defeating the Engineers 4-1. The victors had a big advantage over the Engineers in speed and stickhandling and would have registered more goals had it not been for the stellar goal-keeping of Freddie Jones.

Stan Jones was net guardian for the Tool Room and had little to do. Swanger, Micky Williams and Hatton were the stars for the winners, Hatton getting two goals for his team. Fanjoy, Mackness and Wickwire showed up well for the Enfineers.

Line ups:

The last game was the tid-bit of the afternoon. This battle was between the Fitters and Punch Press and was won by the former 3-2. It was a real burlesque, players on both teams being a little unaccustomed to the game, at least it looked that way. Only good goal tending by Anderson and Millan kept the score down, also the inability of the players to get a shot on the nets. Miller and Chace were the stars for the Fitters, while Baxter and Bannon were best for the Punch Press.

Punch Press—Goal, Millan; defence, Baxter, Heasman; centre, Bannon; wings, McLean, McLennan; subs, Woods, Kerr.

SAINTS GOING GOOD AND HOPE TO WIN BATTLE

Lindsay and St. John's Meet at Brock Street Rink To-morrow.

A REAL FIGHT.

Last Game Between the Two Teams Was Fought Until Last Bell.

The St. John's Junior O.H.A. team who play Lindsay Midgets here tomorrow night in the fourth game of the series for section honors, have been showing steady improvement each time out and they are confident of their ability to beat the invaders in this important game.

In the last fixture at Lindsay the Saints were out-lucked rather than out-played, Lindsay winning 4 to 3 in a beautiful battle. Since then the St. John's outfit turned in their best game of the season at Lakefield the other night when they beat the Grove School reinforced by Hamilton and Loosemore of the Lakefield intermediates, by 9 goals to 6. They are in good shape for tomorrow night and hope to show their friends that they have shaken down into a strong team.

Lindsay Midgets expect to go far in the O.H.A. race this year and will have their strongest team in action against the Saints. It promises to be a memorable tilt between two well-matched teams.

The game will start at 8.15 sharp.

Popular prices will be charged, a 25c and 50c scale prevailing.

HOME TEAMS WIN GAMES ON SUNDAY

Detroit Beats Boston and the Rangers Defeat Pittsburgh.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 23. — Ten thousand Detroit hockey fans were angry throughout the major portion of last night's engagement with the Boston Bruins, but they went home smiling. They were angry because Referees Rodden and Romeril had to award a goal in the second period that wiped out Detroit's 1-0 lead. They were smiling because the Cougars finally downed the Bostonians in overtime, 3-2, and thereby ended their slump and tightened their hold on third place.

Rangers Win.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. — The New York Rangers defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates by 4 goals to 1 in a National Hockey League game here last night, and went into a tie with the Boston Bruins for first place in the American group, as the Hub sextette was on the losing end at Detroit. Ching Johnson and Bunny Cook tallied in the first period, and Frank Boucher and Paul Thomson added two more goals in the middle frame. Tex White saved the Pirates from a shut-out when he scored near the close of the contest. Capt. Bill Cook, of the Rangers, and Harold Cotton, of the visitors, traded punches in the final period. A major penalty was imposed on each.

GRADS WIN OUT IN TOWN LEAGUE

Tuxis Boys Win Juvenile Game in Campbellford Double Header.

OPENING MATCHES.

CAMPBELLFORD, January 23. — Davidson's Arena is in line for considerable credit for the hockey program that is being presented to patrons of the sport there this season. Friday night's fixture was a double-header, with the juvenile series game being used as a preliminary event before the Town League senior fixture. The juveniles are not by any means finished hockey players, but they show good form, and it looks as though there would be plenty of material to pick from as the season come along. The first game was between the Tuxis Boys and the High School, the former winning by a score of 2 to 0. From the beginning, the Tuxis team showed the best form and the High School did not seem to get much co-operation working. Their downfall was the inevitable result.

The senior league fixture was fast hockey from the beginning. The Trent Valley League team was split up between the High School Grads and the Outlaws. Of these players, the Grads had the larger number, and seemed to have the edge of the play from the beginning. Blue starred for the Outlaws, but his efforts were effectively blocked by his team mates who were opposing him in the local league. He and Horkins seemed to vie for the honors and were continually running foul of each other, an absolute case of Greek meeting Greek, and on one occasion, they were both penalized for mixing it in a friendly manner.

The Grads' forward line, Horkins, Ibey and Blute, was practically that which would have been seen in action as the Campbellford line in the Trent Valley League had not Horkins run foul of the powers that be and been forbidden to play in the league for the remainder of the season. This change put Blute in his position, and they played centre on the opposing teams. Their constant contact made the game much more interesting, and when the final gong sounded and the Grads chalked up a four-goal lead in a 6-2 victory, it was not because these two players had not turned in an excellent game.

In the first period Ibey drew first blood when he scored on a pass from Horkins. A few minutes later there was another rush on the Outlaws' goal and Iby poked in the second counter for the Grads. Things began to look interesting. Rannie got a trip to the bench for chopping. A moment later Sargison drew a trip to the penalty box for a trip, and the Outlaws resorted to long shots in an effort to gain time till their men should return to the ice. In his first rush with the forward line, Ibey cut his shot too fine, and the rubber glanced off the goal post. The next time he became prominent was when he was penalized for using the wrong end of his stick, and the bell rang before he came back again. The period ended with two counts for the Grads and the Outlaws still at zero.

Second Period.

In the second period, Lambert for the Outlaws sprang into prominence by scoring their first goal on a shot from centre ice. Ibey soon returned the compliment when the Grads rushed and he scored on a rebound. Rannie crowded one of the Grads into the boards, and was given a rest for it. A few minutes later Horkins got a rest for the same thing up in the corner. The play continued at a whirlwind pace till Horkins went off again for a trip. Ingram got caught jamming a player into the boards, and he drew a penalty. Sargison got a similar dose, and the ice looked rather bare for a minute.

Rannie drew another penalty for hustling a player into the boards. Blue and Horkins agreed to disagree about something about centre ice and they were obth penalized. Time was up with both of them in the penalty box and Grads still held their two goal lead with the score 3 to 1. The feature of the middle period was easily the number of penalties. As a fan remarked, it would require a Philadelphia lawyer to be a penalty time keeper.

Final Period.

The first play of note in the final spasm was when Horkins scored for the Grads after a very pretty combination rush, but Blue returned the compliment a few minutes later when he tallied for the Outlaws. Fox was called on to use all his skill for a brief period, but succeeded in saving a series of shots. Horkins managed to worm his way up the ice for another gaol for the Grads. Somebody rushed into Blue and he had to be helped off the ice. Colter subbed for him. A moment later, however, Blue came back out to relieve Sarginson. Shillinglaw made a beautiful one-man rushed the full length of the ice, but his shot was saved by Irwin. In record time the play was around the Outlaws' goal again and Fox had some desperate work to do. Blute remained outside the scrimmage and kept his eye open for a loose puck. His opportunity came when a rebound came his way and he scored on it. Six to 2 for the Grads.

Sarginson did his best to get a counter, but his shot was saved. Fox stopped a snappy shot from Horkins, and in the return rush, Lambert got his knee injured. It appeared that he got struck when he attempted to block a shot for the goal. Colter subbed for him, and the period and game ended with the score still 6-2 for the Grads. The teams:

ALASKAN DOG MUSHER LEADS ANNUAL DERBY

Seppala Captures Trophy Offered For Best Time in Day's Passage.

BREAKS RACEWAY.

Channing Disqualified When One of His Dogs Meets With Accident.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y., January 23 (Canadian Press). — Urging his seven Arctic huskies through deep snow in a temperature of 14 degrees below zero, Leonhard Seppala, of Nome, Alaska, won the sled dog derby here on Saturday. Mrs. E. P. Ricker, Jr., of Poland Springs, Me., was second.

The Alaskan not only won the derby, but he also captured the special trophy offered for the best time in yesterday's passage of the fifteen-mile course.

The order and times of Saturday's heat follows:

Leonhard Seppala, Nome, Alaska—1h. 21m. 11s.

Mrs. E. P. Ricker, Jr., Poland Springs, Me.—1h. 42m. 6s.

Hiram Mason, Jr., Tamworth, N.H., —1h. 58m. 30s.

H. W. Pendergast, North Conway, N.H.—2h. 22s.

Walter Channing, Boston—2h. 3m. 4s.

Jacques Suzanne, Lake Placid—3h. 10m. 20s.

Channing was disqualified as a derby contestant on Saturday when one of his dogs met with an accident and he did not finish the heat. Yesterday he was a contestant for the special trophy.

The stamina of Seppala's dogs and his ability as a driver became apparent when it was shown that although the Alaskan on Friday broke the trail through snow that was waist deep, his time was 15 minutes 48 seconds better than that made by any of his competitors when the weather was clear and the trail broken. Seppala's time on Saturday was slightly better than on Friday.

All dogs were reported in excellent condition at the finish.

DECEPTIVE EYES

There are no two people in the world who have very close to the same mental viewpoint. Life is increasingly interesting because of this, especially if we try to understand the different viewpoints of others and attempt to add their understanding of any subject to our store of knowledge.

Most of the misery of the world comes from being intolerant of the other fellow's point of view. The simple remedy is to understand that each one of us is in a different stage of mental evolution with varying degrees of mental strength and educational advantages.

The wise man tries to add to his store of knowledge by being tolerant of every one else's ideas and by trying to make them a part of his own mental material.

What holds good on what might be called this mental plane is not necessarily true as far as physical vision is concerned.

There are no two pairs of eyes exactly alike in the world, and optometrists tell us that only about twenty-five per cent of those who have their eyes examined are found to possess normal vision.

Most of these defects of vision can be entirely corrected through proper treatment to the eyes, improved health and, if need be, the wearing of properly fitted glasses.

It is a startling fact to realize that seventy-five per cent of the people in civilized countries suffer from defective eyesight, and that about thirty per cent of those examined have been found to be uncorrected. These figures are gathered from the compulsory examinations made of those in industrial pursuits, and, of course, the number found to have defective vision would be much larger if every one could be forced to have a careful eye examination.

Just think of the problem in this way. At least thirty out of every hundred people you meet on the street, work with, or meet driving automobiles, suffer from astigmatism, far-sightedness, short-sightedness, color-blindness, or some disease of the eye, and these troubles have not been corrected. It is impossible for such people to see objects in a normal way, and although some of them are able to struggle along by straining their eyes, most of the thirty per cent not only injure their own health and reduce their efficiency, but also endanger their own lives as well as the lives of those with whom they come in contact. Very few communities compel owners of automobiles to pass an eye examination, in spite of the fact that there is such a large number of people driving automobiles who actually cannot see exactly where they are going! Many automobile accidents which have been blamed upon carelessness, congested traffic and similar causes, upon investigation have been found to be the direct result of faulty vision.

The need for perfect eyesight was never as necessary in past centuries as it is today. Over six centuries ago, when the first crude spectacles were used, there was only a small percentage of people who could read and write. The people lived a large part of the time in the open, gaining their sustenance by hunting, fishing, and tilling the soil. Nature probably never intended that people should be herded into large cities to live in small apartments, work in ill-lighted offices and, when out of doors, to be closed in by tall buildings on every side. But here we are now, in the whirlpool of civilization, and not many of us could get out if we wished.

The science of optometry now gives us the opportunity of reading more, seeing more, and removing needless strain through proper treatment of the eyes and, when necessary, the wearing of scientifically fitted lenses to correct abnormal defects of vision.

Questions and Answers.

Question Jeanette asks "Is it possibe that a child will be deformed because of the mother harboring morbid thoughts about it being born without an arm or leg, or do not such thoughts have any effect on the child?"

Answer Most medical authorities agree that a mother cannot produce a deformity in her unborn child through harboring morbid thoughts. Most mothers will not believe this, and will tell you of birthmarks produced through fear, worry, anxiety, etc. I am personally convinced that the temperament and intelligence of the child is affected to some degree by the mental condition of the mother, but there is no evidence that physical abnormalities will develop from the effect of the mother's mind.

Question Mrs. A. E. asks "Is it possible that under-action of the suprarenal gland is the cause of varicose veins? Have taken a half grain of suprarenal extract every day for about three months but cannot see any improvement. I follow your diet and exercise."

Answer Varicose veins are produced by a breaking down of the walls of the veins. If the veins extend over both legs it is sure to be due to a lack of organic minerals in the body's food supply, or due to an acidosis which destroys the minerals after they are assimilated. If any of the ductless glands over-secrete or under-secrete it is bound to affect metabolism to some extent, but the use of glandular extracts will not correct the mineral deficiency from which the veins suffer in the trouble known as varicose veins.

5,000-Volt Shock Fails To Kill Boy

MAGNOLIA, N.J., Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press.) — Thanks to artificial resuscitative measures applied by firemen, Michael G. Hinch, eighteen, is alive to-day and suffering little ill effects from a five thousand volt electric shock. The youth came into contact with a high tension line while running to a fire on the outskirts of this place last night. He was knocked unconscious by the charge and was revived after thirty minutes' effort.

SLEW SON—WOUNDED WIFE

Picture above shows George Deignton, M.C., who slew his young son with a hatchet in Toronto and seriously injured his wife and daughter. He does not seem to realize the enormity of his crime as he is being escorted from the police station to the jail, where he is being held pending trial for murder.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE WEASEL'S NOSE.

(Copyright, 1928, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Why did you scream like that, Baby Bunty?" asked Uncle Wiggily twinkling his pink nose at the little orphan rabbit girl, while with one eye Uncle Wiggily watched Jingle and with the other eye he looked at Jingle. Either of those bunnies might play a trick.

"I screamed because I stepped in a puddle of water," answered Baby Bunty. She held up one little paw, and Uncle Wiggily saw that she was in her stocking feet. Bunty and the other bunties had taken off their rubber boots on coming into the bungalow after playing about in the snow when school was out.

"I stepped right in a puddle of cold water," said Bunty. "It was so cold it made me scream. Shall I scream again, Unkie Wig, to show you how I did it? I love to scream," and she opened her mouth.

"No! Don't! Once is enough," said Mr. Longears. "But I don't understand about this puddle of water. Some of you children must have brought in a snowball and it has melted, leaving a little pool of water on the floor. Bunty stepped in that."

All this time Tumble, the fall down little rabbit boy, was on the floor looking up the chimney. He was looking for the missing icicle which had been standing in the chimney corner to get warm. As I told you in the story before this, Uncle Wiggily found a cold icicle hanging from a stump in the woods. The poor thing was so frozen that the rabbit gentleman took pity and brought it home to the warm bungalow. But when Mr. Longears wanted to show his little bunnies the icicle it had disappeared.

"He isn't up the chimney," said Tumble.

Bunty was hopping around on one leg, holding up in the air her other foot with its wet stocking when, all of a sudden she screamed once more.

"Oh, I've stepped in the puddle again!" cried Bunty. "Now both my feet are wet! Oh, dear!"

"Show me that puddle!" said Uncle Wiggily. And then, all of a sudden, another voice said:

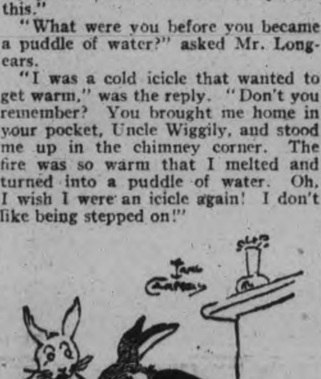
"I wish you would quit walking all over me!"

"Ha! Who are you?" asked Uncle Wiggily, for well he knew none of his little bunnies had spoken that way. "Who are you?"

"I am the puddle of water Baby Bunty has been dancing in," went on the voice, "And I wish she'd stop it. Even if I am a puddle of water, I have my pride. And I was not always like this."

"What were you before you became a puddle of water?" asked Mr. Longears.

"I was a cold icicle that wanted to get warm," was the reply. "Don't you remember? You brought me home in your pocket, Uncle Wiggily, and stood me up in the chimney corner. The fire was so warm that I melted and turned into a puddle of water. Oh, I wish I were an icicle again! I don't like being stepped on!"



The rabbit gentleman soaked up the puddle.

Then Uncle Wiggily knew what had happened. No wonder they could not find the icicle. He had melted away and Bunty had stepped in his puddle.

"So you want to turn back into an icicle, do you?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"If you please," answered the puddle of water around which the bunny children were standing. "But how can that be done?"

"Very easily," said Mrs. Longears. "Wait until I get a sponge."

With the sponge the rabbit gentleman soaked up the puddle of water from the floor. Then, putting the sponge filled with water in a pail, Uncle Wiggily started outside with it.

"What are you going to do, Daddicums?" asked the little bunnies.

"I am going to squeeze the water out of the sponge on top of another stump," was the answer. "The water will run off the top of the stump slowly, and, as it drops, it will freeze into another icicle. Then this puddle chap will be happy again."

"I surely will, thank you!" spoke the former icicle who was now drops of water soaked into the sponge.

Uncle Wiggily hopped outside where it was freezing cold. From the bungalow windows the children watched him. Mr. Longears was just going to squeeze the icicle water out of the sponge when, all of a sudden, he saw something thrust up out of a hole in the snow. It was something stubby and black.

"Ha! I know what that is!" whispered Mr. Longears. "It is the Weasel's nose! The hungry Weasel is after me again! What shall I do?"

AT THE REGENT.

R. H. MOTTRAM'S WAR BOOKS FILMED.

"Roses of Picardy" Treats War From New Viewpoint.

Although the latest Gaumont British production bears the title of the most famous of war-time ballads, the story was suggested by R. H. Mottram's "The Spanish Farm" and "Sixty-Four, Ninety-Four," two of the finest books written about the war—because they treated it from entirely new aspects. The former book won the Hawthornden prize of 1924, and both have been repeatedly reprinted and remain vivid memories in the minds of thousands of readers.

The Spanish Farm is one of those typical Flemish farms (originally Spanish strong posts built to protect Flanders from the French) which survives the tide of war ebbing and flowing about it, and never ceases to function in its application of peace-time pursuits to the necessities of Armageddon. But the farm simply serves as a means of expression for the indomitable, resentful spirit of woman in the war, embodied in the person of the competent, self-assured Madeleine, its virtual mistress to the very end. "As there was a Madeleine more or less, widowed and childless, bereaved and soured, in every farm in north-eastern France, she became a portent. For she was the Spanish Farm, the implacable spirit of that borderland so often fought over, never really conquered."

Madeleine, the mistress of the farm, has a lover who disappears into the mists of war. She seeks his elusive shadow and in the disappointment of the search finds solace in temporary contact with a British officer. And so a tear-compelling tale is told.

This picture starts a 4-day run Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, at the Regent Theatre.

"Roses of Picardy" is more than a 'war picture'. It is a psychological study of the interplay of emotions between four average human people who might have been you or I and our friends; it is a tense drama crowded with human-interest situations; it is characterization that is well-nigh perfect. More, it is a triumph of photography and artistic groupings, with the finesse and polish which only a British film achieves.

The picture is the best that has come to us from England. Simple enough in plot it attains the greatness only possible to simple things. It is the story of the varied reactions of four individuals, to the claims of war. The scene is laid in France, in the little village of Hondebecq. Madeline, a peasant girl, is mistress of the Spanish Farm where Lieutenant Skene is billeted with his platoon. Madeline begs him to obtain news of her soldier 'bon ami', Georges d'Archeville, son of a noble House whom Madeline loves but whose interest in her is merely perfunctory. Madeline's father, Jerome Vanderlynden, forms the remaining link in the little chain of humanity.

Georges fails to communicate with Madeline who is visited by Skene while in a state of shell-shock and desperate depression and the climax of the little slice of life is reached when Madeline eases the ache in her own heart by giving him the comfort he craves.

Very true to life is the finale. There are no heroics; the war is over and each one must take up the thread of his existence and go on as if nothing had happened. For Madeline after the Armistice life means self-sacrificing service to her 'children'; to her father and Georges it means helpless reliance on her care; to Skene the rest of life would be always colored by the experience through which he had passed. The final scene, 'There are those who will never forget' is impressive and of haunting beauty.

Aviator Loses Life; Lost In Blizzard

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 23 (Canadian Press).—Fred Hoyt, aviator, was found frozen to death Saturday night, a week after he became lost in a blizzard while flying his plane over a mountainous stretch between Salt Lake City and Boise.

A searcher on horseback found the body in an isolated spot in the Black Pine Mountains, about ten miles from the canyon where Hoyt's demolished plane was found by a rancher late yesterday.

A sleighing party, including Geo. C. Hoyt, brother of the late pilot, left Holbrook, Idaho, to return with the body. A distance of about thirty miles had to be covered.

It could not be determined whether Hoyt had been injured in a parachute leap from his aeroplane or whether he had lost his way after successfully leaving the plane.

Searchers based their belief that he had made a parachute leap on the fact that his parachute was not found in the

COUNTY COUNCIL BEGINS SESSIONS

Contest For Wardenship Expected at First Meeting To-morrow.

Peterborough County Council opens its January sessions to-morrow afternoon in the Council Chambers of the Court House. Practically the old Council of 1927 will be back and a lively contest is expected for the Wardenship.

M. Smithson, Reeve of Otonabee, and F. Breckenridge, Reeve of Belmont and Methuen, are in the running for the Warden's chair. Mr. Breckenridge has represented Belmont and Methuen for six years and Mr. Smithson, Otonabee for four years.

ANNIVERSARY IS

of the girl who complained to her rector that she would have to give up trying to be a Chritsian as none of the three hundred girls in her office was and her environment was too much for her. The rector, a man of great wisdom, suggested to her that she had been offered the place in the office because the Master had wanted someone in there as a witness for Him and had chosen her out of all London to do the work. She went back and when next she visited her rector she told him that six of the girls had declared themselves for Christ.

What is true in the individual may may be true in the church. They may be difficulties and troubles and the environment may seem against the church, but the Master says that that where He is concerned nothing is impossible. He can overcome past experience; He can overcome environment; He can bring forth a great harvest from a tiny source. This is the third lesson of the text. For the grain to bring forth a few stalks would be a miracle, but God is not only a God of miracles but a God of glorious exaggerations. Where He is King the smallest sowing shall produce the mightiest harvest. The text says that the grain on the mountain top shall be like Lebanon, the great tree-crowned hill in Northern Palestine.

"In the miracle of the feeding of the five thousand, Jesus received five small loaves and two little fishes, but in His hands they became sufficient to feed five thousand," said the speaker, referring to the lesson read at the service. "We may not have much wealth, or position, or intellect; in short may be just ordinary persons, but the secret of success is to bring the ordinary to Jesus and with Him in control the ordinary becomes extraordinary."

Professor Isherwood closed with an appeal to his hearers to install Christ as King and do His Will.

Special music was given by the choir under the leadership of George E. Chandler, with Mrs. W. A. Logan at the organ.

At the Sunday School session in the afternoon Professor Isherwood addressed the Bible classes, and at the evening service he preached another sermon suited to the occasion. After the evening service the A.Y.P.A. held a social hour to give the congregation an opportunity to meet him.

JAPANESE DIET IS DISSOLVED

Dissolution Has Been Expected Since Compromise Last Year.

NO CONFIDENCE MOVED.

TOKIO, Jan. 23 (Canadian Press)—The long threatened dissolution of the Japanese Diet took place on Saturday. In January of last year, a resolution of non-confidence in the Government was introduced by the opposition parties. It was withdrawn a week later in accordance with a compromise reached with the Government. At that time, however, it was said that dissolution was still a possibility.

PERTH, ONT.

When the radiant glories of Summer, were flown
And birds had all sought, a far Southern zone,
Decked in crimson, and gold, were the trees everywhere
An Autumnal crispness, and haze in the air.
From the City's loud clamor, I hied me away,
To charming old Perth, on the green banks of Tay.

Long, and lonely, the road was, that thitherward led,
All around, swamp and craggy rocks, endlessly spread
A wild sterile tract, where but scrubby shrubs grew
And dreary the prospect, which greeted, the view.
Yet welcome the dullest, monotonous way,
If it end up in Perth, on the green banks of Tay.

For where, in this wide world, may one hope to find,
All the best charms of Nature, so richly combined,
Like ten thousand gems in the Sun's golden gleam
Sparkling bright, flows the waters of Tay's crystal stream,
Many graces, and gifts, favoring Heaven bestowed
To make that fair spot Beauty's chosen abode.

But Nature, with all Her most enchanting train
Alone, to the spirit, appeal, but in vain
Yet, when these with the warm smiles of loved ones unite
Enrapt is the bosom, and gladdened the sight.
And fain would we lengthen, a most pleasant stay
With dear friends, in Perth, on the green banks of Tay.

O sweet t'were to linger, amid scenes, so fair,
Afar, from the city's vain tumult, and care,
Where a spirit of peace still, seems brooding abroad
Uplifting the soul to sweet converse with God,
But the stern call of duty, we needs must obey
So farewell to Perth, on the green banks of Tay.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 23.— Miss Florence Shannon, R.N., who has been a guest of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Diamond, Front street, returned to New York on Friday. She will visit friends in Cobourg and Toronto before resuming her duties in New York City.

The Campbellford Fire Department answered the first call of the year at 11.15 Sunday evening. The alarm was sent in by Thomas Brennan, Frank street, when his stove pipes became overheated and his chimney caught fire. The high wind that is prevailing made the situation appear grave for a few minutes, but the firemen found it necessary to remain on the scene only a few minutes before bringing the situation to normal.

Since the annual meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, there has been an increase in the revenue of the church for the past year. The figures now stand at $9,073.00 for total revenue and $1,256.00 for missions. These are the figures that will appear in The Record, the official magazine of the church.

To-night Campbellford meets Stirling in Stirling in a league fixture of the regular Trent Valley schedule. So far the "dope" is rather uncertain as teams that were picked in the beginning as losers have won and the reverse is also true. The Stirling-Campbellford game ought to be worth seeing.

FRANCE REPAIRING WAR ROADS

France has started its "Programmes des grands itineraires," the long awaited repairing of damages caused to national roads by destruction and neglect that began with the outbreak of the World War in 1914. A schedule covering 6,500 miles of main roads has been started, and it is expected that by the end of 1928 the first part of the postwar rehabilitation will have been completed. This will include improvements to highways between Paris and Dieppe; Paris and Cherbourg and Paris and Marseilles. Work on routes connecting Paris with the southwest of France and with the Belgian and Swiss frontiers will follow in a very short time.

PHOTOGRAPHING CANADA

During 1926 a total area of over 59,000 square miles was photographed for mapping purposes in Canada by the Royal Canadian Air Force, working in co-operation with the Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior. To date 152,560 square miles or approximately four per cent of Canada's total area has been photographed either vertically or obliquely by the R.C.A.F.

Lyrics of Life - By Douglas Malloch

JOY

We long for Joy,
Yet, even though
We met her, Joy
We would not know.
We think of Joy
As someone fair,
We think of Joy
With silks to wear,
Yet often Joy
Is garbed in gray,
And brings us Joy
Our saddest day.

We search for Joy
In marts of gold,
And think that Joy
A purse will hold;
We buy our Joy,
And buy in vain,
For purchased Joy
Brings want and pain,
And yet our Joy
Is near at hand,
If only Joy
We understand.

Oh, Look for Joy
In others' eyes,
And see the Joy
In woods and skies,
And feel the Joy
Of being kind,
The surest Joy
You'll ever find.
For, giving joy
And loving so,
You'll meet your Joy,
And Joy you'll know.

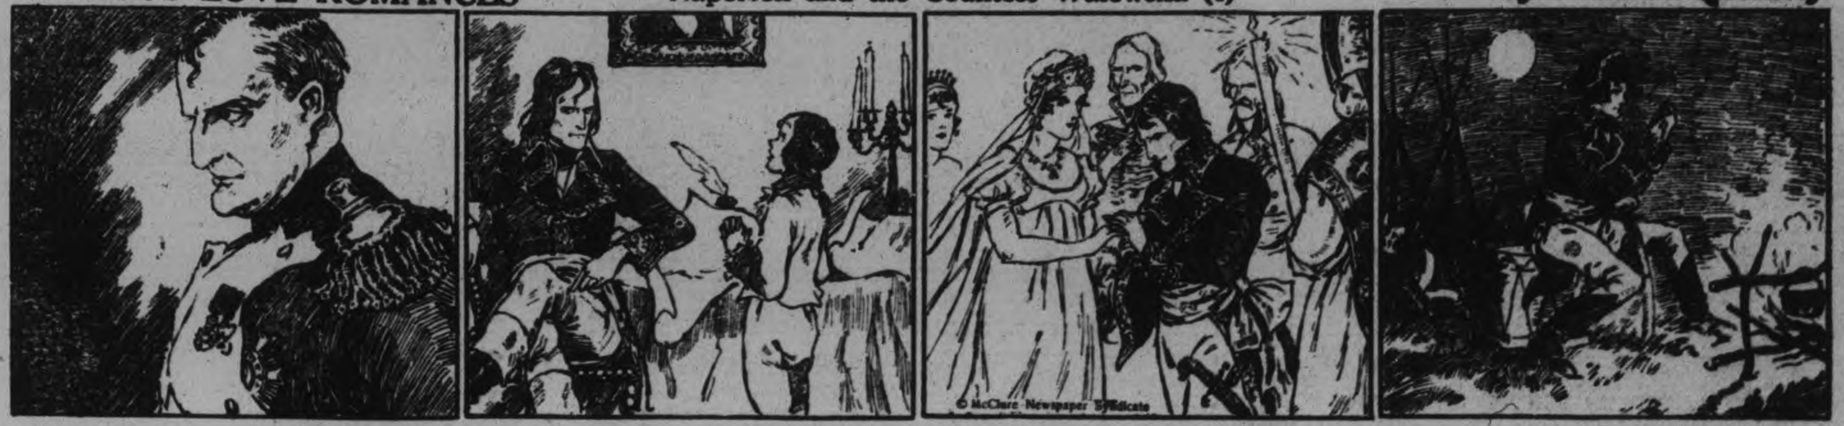
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES — Napoleon and the Countess Walewska (I) — By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Napoleon Bonaparte was perhaps never sincerely in love with any other women than his first wife, Josephine—and the lovely Polish countess Walewska. He met her ten years after his marriage, when his ardor for Josephine was cooling. Napoleon always loved Marie Walewska, and she was tenderly and faithfully devoted to him.

Josephine was six years older than Napoleon. He was already a successful soldier and statesman when he met her. He had issued a decree against bearing arms, and a charming twelve-year-old boy came begging for the return of his dead father's sword, which had been taken from his mother. This was Josephine, widow of a prominent royalist.

Josephine later came to thank Napoleon for the returned sword, and a friendship developed which ended in their marriage in 1796. Josephine put down her age as twenty-eight, cutting off six years. He put his down as the same, adding a year to his age. In the wedding ring he gave her are engraved the words, "To Destiny!"

Directly after his marriage, Napoleon rode off to head the French armies in Italy. He carried a miniature of Josephine, which he kissed a hundred times. Naturally ambitious, he was spurred on by his love of his wife. In 1804 he was declared hereditary emperor. The pope traveled from Rome to crown him. A little later he met Walewska.

Wheat Prices Fall As Weather Improves

CHICAGO, Jan. 23. — (Canadian Press.)—Wheat prices tended downward here early to-day, influenced by declines at Liverpool and by predictions of snow or rain over the domestic winter wheat territory. Favorable weather led also to the selling of corn. Opening unchanged to 3-8c. off, Chicago Wheat subsequently underwent some further sag. Corn started at 1-8c. to 5-8c. off and later held near to the initial range. Oats were easy. Provisions held steady.

Opening prices were: Wheat, March 130 5-8, May 131 3-8. Corn, March 87¾, May 90 7-8. Oats, March 54 7-8, May 56.

NEW YORK, January 23 (Canadian Press). — Stock prices gave an impressive demonstration of strength in to-day's market. The lowering of the call money renewal rate to 3½ per cent., the lowest opening charge since last November, and the favorable character of the week-end trade reviews, helped to create a bullish sentiment and inspired the resumption of pool activity on a large scale.

United States Steel Common crossed 149 to a new high on the current upswing. Motors responded to reports of increasing sales of new models, with Hupp again in the leadership of the advance. Some of the sharpest gains were recorded in the merchandising group, Woolworth, R. H. Macy, Christie Brown, National Biscuit, Cluett Peabody, and Abraham and Straus selling three to eight points higher.

Mine Market Firm Though Gains Small

TORONTO, Jan. 23. Canadian Press. — The mining market on the Standard exchange started the week firm, although there were no spectacular gains. Noranda was firm being up about a dollar from its lowest point last week, reaching 21.35 at noon. Amulet firmed to 4.00, about 2c higher, and Mining Corporation held up to 5.15, a decline of about 10c. Kirkland Lake issues were firmer, Kirkland gold selling over 2.40 for a gain of about two and Teck Hughes gaining ten at 9.75. Bidgood at 105, Harry Hollinger at 101 and Howey at 161 were all stronger. Premier continued firm, going over the 3.00 mark again for a five cent gain. Kootenay Florence sold up 2¾ at 44¾. The majority of issues closed at noon fractionally above Saturday's closing prices in heavy trading, the morning transactions just passing the million share mark.

MAGISTRATES MEET ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Working Out of Legislation Discussed at Conference To-day.

TORONTO, January 23. (Canadian Press). — Police Magistrates from all over met the Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, to-day, for the discussion of the way the latest legislation worked out in the Courts in the past year. "I have a meeting every year with different officers like this," Mr. Price commented after the meeting, "and it helps me to find out just what changes there should be and in what way some of the laws could be strengthened."

The procedure under which prisoners are escorted to institutions where they are to serve sentences has been tightened up, said Mr. Price. He also said that in future sheriffs would be required to treat all prisoners on the same basis. Hon. Mr. Price remarked that he had severely reprimanded Deputy-Sheriff Smith, of Barrie, Ont., for his alleged laxity while taking Joseph McDermott, convicted cattle rustler, from Barrie to Portsmouth Penitentiary last December.

CARDINALS BUY ROCHESTER CLUB

Sale of Lake Shore Team Terminates Trouble in International League.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., January 23 (Canadian Press). — The sale of the franchise and players of the Rochester Club of the International League to the St. Louis Cardinals, announced on Saturday, presages an end to the trouble through which the club has passed in the last few years.

The price was $120,000, according to John L. Hicks, one of the former owners. Thirty thousand dollars was paid in cash and the remainder will be paid as the obligations of the club are taken care of by Hicks and William Gilbert, his associate.

The troubles of the club were for the most part financial and were characterized by attempts of the several owners to put the club on a paying basis.

Gilbert and Hicks consummated the deal with Cardinals after Walter Hagen failed in a six weeks' attempt to raise $130,000 to complete the purchase of the club.

Hagen, who found his golf strategy of little avail in pulling a sick ball club "out of the routh," paid $20,000 for an option. He finally stepped out and Hicks and Gilbert then negotiated with the St. Louis men.

The Cardinals will transfer their farm for young players from Syracuse to Rochester, having sold the Syracuse franchise in the International League to the Donnelly brothers of Jersey City. The Rochester players will go with the Syracuse franchise.

A contract which George Mogridge, former major league pitcher, holds as manager of the Rochester club, will need to be adjusted. The contract calls for $10,000 a year, and has two more years to run.

Warren O. Giles and Branch Rickey, both of St. Louis, were named president and vice-president of U.F.O. Does Not Reflect Desire of Alberta Organization.

TORONTO, January 23 (Canadian Press). — The headquarters of the United Farmers of Ontario Co-operative Society do not reflect the desire, expressed by the United Farmers of Alberta, for the resumption of relations with Soviet Russia. The Ontario organization is not concerned with Russia, it is pointed out, while the Alberta organization is interested in the sale of horses to the Soviet Government. "I cannot recall that we have ever sold Russia any of our produce," J. J. Morrison, secretary of the U.F.O., said to-day.

LOCAL BAPTISTS REGRET PASSING

Letters To Church House Tell of Grief Over Loss of Dr. Farmer.

PASTORS FEEL LOSS.

Messages from three Peterboro laymen, friends of the late Dr J. H. Farmer, Dean of Theology at McMaster University and from two former pastors of Peterboro churches, are included among the many of the recently departed leader and teacher which have been received at the Baptist Church House in Toronto, headquarters of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec. The letters are from Dr. W. D. Scott, A. J. Madill, Joseph Wearing, Rev. W. E. Morrow of Dundas, a former pastor of Park street church, and Rev. J. R. Webb, a one time minister of Murray street church. Messrs. Madill, Wearing and Morrow are graduates of McMaster University and enjoyed the friendship of Dr. Farmer from their student days.

Dr. Scott.

Dr. Scott's message reads:

'It was our great privilege to know the late Dr. Jones H. Farmer for many years, and when under his splendid photograph in a Toronto newspaper we read the words: 'The best loved man in the Baptist denomination,' we thought how truly they expressed not only our own convictions, but those of all who knew him well.

"We had the joy of having Dr. Farmer in our home and in our church many times and with each coming and each address the conviction grew that here was a man with a great soul. And then at our conventions, what a tower of strength he was, especially when he delivered one of his masterly and inspiring addresses. Well do I remember one at Brantford, when after Dr. Farmer had delivered a powerful and uplifting message, the late Rev. B. D. Thomas D.D., rushed up and putting his great arms around him, congratulated him before the whole convention. When we think of him, the lines of Dr. Isaac Watts come to mind:

"'Were I so tall to reach the pole
Or mete the ocean with a span,
I must be measured by my soul,
The mind's the standard of the man.'"

A. J. Madill.

Mr. Madill says: "Dr. Farmer was ever a patient and thoughtful adviser a wise and trustworthy counsellor whose guidance was often sought, a true and consistent Christian, whose honesty of purpose and sincerity of belief was an inspiration to us all.

"His striking qualities of heart and mind made him the much loved friend of all who knew him."

Joseph Wearing, K. C.

Mr. Wearing writes as follows:—"Our Baptist history hardly contains a more pathetic figure than this frail old man, conservative in mind and peace loving in nature, becoming in the latter years of his life the very bulwark of those Baptist principles upon which our denomination was first established, and for which our forefathers were persecuted, imprisoned and put to death. What a privilege has been ours to have seen this saintly man standing firmly upon the verities of our faith and courageously holding our convention true to the line, while the storms of intolerance burst upon its ministers and churches. It may be said without fear of successful contradiction that to the very death he defended the vital priciple of reasonable liberty of thought, without which there could be no reason for the existence of the denomination to which we belong. The late Dean will be with us in our thoughts when we again sing—

"Thou wast their Rock their Fortress and their Guide, Thou, Lord, their Captain in the well fought fight."'

Rev. W. E. Morrow.

Rev. Mr. Morrow thus expressed himself:

"Dr. Farmer's higher call will be a distinct loss to the Dundas church. In him we had a great denomination pillar. His love for his Master and for the Word of God were expressed in his kindly sympathetic and Christion spirit. He has been called to higher service but memories of his fragrant life will ever be an inspiration to more consecrated lives and more practical service."

Rev. J. R. Webb.

Mr. Webb pays his tribute in these words:

"For over 30 years I have known him. I have seen him in the class room and in the convention. I have seen him at prayer and at play. I have seen him when receiving the honors of all his bretheren and I have seen him when stung by unexpected and undeserved reproof, but in Dr. Farmer I have never seen anything else than the Christian gentleman, the follower of the meek and lowly Jesus. Only the week before his death he sat at a table with three of us discussing missionary work for most of an hour and I felt it was wonderful that we still had him with us. It is no wonder that he is gone. The wonder is that he was with us during the last four years."

A proposal to establish a memorial to the late Dean is now under consideration at McMaster University.

GOOD JUNIOR GAME TO-NIGHT

Bowmanville and Peterborough Teams Clash at Brock Street.

MATCH MEANS MUCH.

It takes a good junior game to bring out the fans in Peterborough. They like to watch and note the progress of the young blood. That is the reason why there should be a large turn-out at the game between Bowmanville and Peterborough Juniors at Brock Street Rink to-night. The game means everything to both outfits, the ice is in good condition, and the time of starting has been set for 8.30 p.m.

LeBarr and Company have been more out-lucked than out-played in previous games, and they have every intention of taking a fall out of the fast travelling invaders.

BROOKS ON BAIL PENDING TRIAL

Toronto Youth Freed on Three Sureties Totalling $20,000.

BAIL OPPOSED.

TORONTO, Jan. 23 (Canadian Press).—Bail of $20,000 was granted Bartlett J. Brooks today by Mr. Justice Wright, pending the third trial of Brooks on a charge of attempting to procure an illegal operation in connection with the death of his fiancee, Ruth Dembner.

The accused gave recognizance for $10,000 and two other sureties of $5,000 each were accepted.

Edward Bailey, Deputy Attorney-General, suggested that His Lordship have the new trial held at the present Assizes, but Mr. Justice Wright said this was not the usual practice.

Mr. Bailey opposed the bail, pointing out that Brooks' father was now in the United States. Mr. Justice Wright returned that Brooks was out on bail with the prospect of being convicted, not long ago, and yet had returned. Mr. Bailey then said he would prefer bail on a substantial bond, suggesting $20,000, which amount was agreed to by His Lordship after spirited opposition by J. E. Cartwright, on behalf of the defendant. The first trial of Brooks when he was convicted and sentenced to five years was quashed by the Supreme Court of Canada, and the second trial ended last week in the disagreement of the jury.

LINER MAKES STORMY TRIP

Takes Ten Days For Anchor Liner Transylvania To Cross Atlantic.

NO DAMAGE DONE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.— (Canadian Press.)—The Anchor Liner Transylvania arrived here to-day after a crossing so stormy that it took ten days. Capt. David Bone, author of sea stories, and commander of the liner, said that the som raged from the moment the ship left Ireland. At times the wind and waves were so tumultous that he had to reduce the speed to six knots and tack the steamer like a sailing boat. The liner arrived coated with ice, but undamaged.

BROKE THROUGH ICE INTO RIVER

Skater Who Tried To Get Drink Has Cold Plunge.

Crawling out on the ice off Inverlea Park in order to get a drink from the river, Victor Johnson, son of George Johnson, 784 George street, broke through the ice and got a decidedly cold dip in the Otonabee on Saturday afternoon. He was rescued by a chum, Jack Clayton, son of Mrs. Florence Clayton, 690 George street, who pluckily entrusted his own life to the same treacherous ice, and by holding a hockey stick out to the boy in the water, succeeded in pulling him to safety, a gallant rescue indeed.

It has been a common practice for skaters at the civic ring in Inverlea to refresh themselves with a drink out of the river. They should be warned against such a practice, inasmuch as the water is not fit to drink in the first place and secondly the ice is far from being safe, as Saturday's mishap shows.

22 BRANCHES OF AIR LEAGUE ARE BEING FORMED IN CANADA

General McBrien Expects There Will Be 50 Within a Year.

LEAGUE BEING FORMED.

Work in Fostering Civil Aviation Commended By Governor General.

OTTAWA, Jan. 24. — (Canadian Press.)— Branches of the Aviation League of Canada are forming in twenty-two cities and "within a year we should have at least fifty branches," Major General McBrien, President of the League, informed the first annual meeting to-day. General McBrien read a cable message of good wishes from the Air League of the British Empire and it was agreed that the Canadan organization should apply for affiliation with the British

His Excellency the Governor General, as patron in chief, visited the League meeting. He expressed his "great pleasure and pride" on being offered the position and hoped that the League would do much to promote aviation in all its branches throughout the Dominion.

'General McBrien," he said, "has been conducting a sort of midlothian campaign across Canada in order to establish this league, which is of great importance in this country of great distances." He was sure that the government would be delighted to feel that an organization such as the league was being created to foster safe and efficient aviation. "Canada must not be left behind," he added.

"I hope before long you will find me flying over to spy out the land and observe your good work. I confess that as Governor-General I find long train trips rather tedious, and if you can organize a perfectly safe air service for the Governor General I shall be extremely grateful."

Chamberlain Off On Lecture Tour

CURTISS FIELD, N.Y., Jan. 24 —Canadian Press. — In a tiny eight year old plane that he had re-conditioned with his own hands, Clarence Chamberlin took off on a 30,000 mile lecture tour yesterday after conducting his test flights in a motor-clustered street.

The plane is a Sperry Messenger, a dwarf type with a three-cylinder engine, and a twenty-foot wing spread, formerly used by the army for short distance courier service. The Sperry Co. ceased making planes some years ago, and the army "outlawed" the ones they had left after a series of accidents.

Chamberlain found the old plane stowed away in corner of the Fairchild factory at Garden City and bought it. With the aid of a paid mechanic and a volunteer newspaperman, he went over it from stem to stern strengthening, shoving in replacements, patching where corrosion had done its work.

Exhaust Every Clue In Smith Girl Hunt

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 24. Canadian Press. — The investigation of the disappearance of Miss Frances St. John Smith, the 18 year old Smith College freshman, came to an abrupt standstill last night when the investigators reported that they had exhausted every clue.

During the day, State Detective Joseph V. Daley and five state policemen, searched every Smith college building from basement to attic without finding anything of value to them. Even the ash piles and waste paper bins were examined in the search, the third which has been about the college since the student disappeared on Friday, the 13th of this month.

At the same time large posses of boy scouts and volunteers were were searching the surrounding countryside and patrolling the Connecticut River but nothing was uncovered that could be used in clearing the mystery of the girl's fate

A denial of reports that Smith College authorities had not given full cooperation in the search, was made during the day by President William A Neilson. He said that nothing had been withheld from either the state or newspaper investigators.

Would Abolish Tax On Gasoline

QUEBEC, Que., January 24 (Canadian Press). — A delegation of the retail merchants of the Province of Quebec waited on Premier Taschereau yesterday, and suggested that the gasoline tax be abolished in the case of motor trucks which are not allowed on the provincial highways. It was asked that the provincial tax on poolrooms be cut down, since the municipalities tax such places at substantial rates. Peddlers should pay a higher rate, it was also urged. The Government was asked to create a Department of Commerce, with a Minister at its head.

M. SMITHSON NEW WARDEN

Reeve of Otonabee Township Chosen For Office By Acclamation.

FOUR YEARS IN COUNCIL.

Reeve Morley Smithson of the Township of Otonabee was the unanimous choice of the County Council at its opening session this afternoon in the Court House for the Wardenship of the County Council for the year 1928.

Mr. Smithson has served in the County Council for four years as Reeve of Otonabee, and is the seventh Warden to come from the banner township of the county since 1880. In 1918 William Anderson, M.P.P., who was then Reeve of Otonabee, was Warden of the County.

County Clerk E. M. Elliott, after nine months' leave of absence, was again in his seat at the clerk's desk. Mr. Elliott, in calling for nominations for Warden, thanked the members for their kind consideration of him during his illness and promised as a result of this kindness to strive to be more than ever a servant of the county.

Reeve John Clark of Galway and Cavendish, the veteran of the Council, who has been a member of the County Council since 1917 and was Warden in 1923, moved that Mr. Smithson be Warden. "Gentlemen, the County would be well satisfied with Mr. Smithson as Warden. He is a man of good judgment, he will deliberate carefully and is always willing to acknowledge it if he is wrong. Otonabee is a large township and since I came to this Council it has only been represented in the Warden's chair once; so with such a representative as Mr. Smithson coming from township I think he should be elected Warden," he said.

Reeve J. F. Breckenridge of Belmont and Methuen seconded the nomination.

E. A. Peck, M.P., County solicitor, administered the oath of office to the new Warden and then after he was gowned he was ushered to the warden's chair by his mover and seconder.

Warden Smithson in his address thanked the members for their kind expression, especially as he was elected by acclamation, and that there are other senior members in the council. He welcomed the new members and regretted that some of those in the council of 1927 had not been returned.

"This will be a difficult year for we are faced with a higher county rate on account of the cost of resurfacing the provincial highway through North Monaghan," said the Warden.

In 1927, Mr. Smithson was chairman of the Finance Commitee and the Good Roads Committee.

The county council for 1928 is composed of the following reeves and deputy reeves:

Asphodel—J. Scott.
Belmont and Methuen—F. Breckenridge.
Burleigh and Anstruther—V. Windsor.
Chandos—A. Caldwell.
Dummer—James Hawthorne.
Douro—John Leahy.
Ennismore—T. Cavanagh.
Galway and Cavendish — John Clark.
Harvey—H. B. Parker.
North Monaghan—H. B. Rye and W. Waterman.
Otonabee—M. Smithson and F. McIntyre.
Smith—J. A. Middleton and H. Coons.
Lakefield—C. Tanner.
Norwood—W. H. Montgomery.

Peterborough Loses Pioneer Merchant and Prominent Citizen.

WAS IN 85TH YEAR.

Born in Smith Township, Mr. Hall Had Lived in This District All His Life.

It is not given to all men to live among and serve their fellows as Richard Hall has done during nearly eighty-five years of residence in this district. A sense of distinct loss came to all who knew him as the word went about the city this morning of the death of this veteran citizen and business man.

Passing away at his home, 813 Water Street, after an illness of only four days, this citizen, whose business career goes back to the beginnings of the business activities of the city, leaves a legion of friends and acquaintances who mourn his loss. He was born in the Township of Smith on October 23, 1843, the son of John Hall, pioneer of the township, and was educated at the country rural schools. At the age of fifteen, he entered the general store of Nichols & Hall (Robert Nicholls and William Hall), and remained with the firm until in 1873 the business was divided by the owners, the dry goods and fabrics half being bought by Mr. Hall and Robert Innes, who carried it on for many years under the firm name of Hall, Innes & Co.

On the retirement of Mr. Innes, Mr. Hall at once associated himself with his son Dickson, and the firm was then and now is known as Richard Hall & Son. It is one of the leading establishments of its kind in the city.

While Mr. Hall took no part in Council or the Board of Education, his activities were in another field. As chairman of the Nicholls Hospital Board he has been in continuous touch with the institution since its beginning. Enjoying the confidence of the late Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls, he was consulted by her and had to do with the several benefactions made by the lady who has given to the city the magnificent hospital that bears her name, and a large part of the beautiful park allotments of the city. Mr. Hall was originator of the project to bring into operation the Nicholls Hospital, and worked assiduously to make it grow from modest beginnings into the fine establishment that it is at the present time. He was appointed one of the original Board of Trustees, and remained so until the time of his death, acting as chairman all those years, while as an executor of the Nicholls estate he has discharged his duties well.

Link With the Past.

In mentioning Richard Hall at the time of Confederation celebration here last summer, one writer has said, "Mr. Hall was twenty-four years old at the time of Confederation, a young business man, quite evidently popular else the firemen would hardly have chosen him secretary, and well regarded in the store where he was employed as a clerk. Richard Hall is a link with that glamorous past — the volunteer firemen, with their feeble hand lamps, their stout hearts and dashing spirit, of stage coaches, ten cent butter, coal oil lamps, and such agreeable companies as those which gathered at Cronn's and drank the health of Her Majesty the Queen. A pathetic few of his contemporaries have survived the sixty hurrying years since Confederation, but because of his business, political and civic activities and associations, Richard Hall deserves to be regarded by those who salute him and his generation, and their memories and labors, and the heritage they left us, as the leader of the remnant of the old guard."

Liberal Candidate.

Mr. Hall was twice nominated as Liberal candidate for the Federal seat of West Peterborough. In 1891 he was defeated by James Stevenson, and in 1896, the year of Wilfrid Laurier's ascendancy, he lost to James Kendry. He was also a member of the Peterborough Protestant Home, Board and president of the Peterborough Real Estate and Investment Company, which later merged into the Central Canada Loan Company.

Left to mourn are one daughter, Mrs. George W. Lundy, 421 Stewart Street, five sons, S. D. Hall of Peterborough, J. Herbert Hall, R. Hall, W. H. Hall of Toronto, and Wilfrid Hall of Gravenhurst. A brother, John Hall, of this city, also survives.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 813 Water Street, at 2.30 p.m., on Wednesday, January 25, 1928. Rev. William Allan, of St. Paul's Church, officiating at the house and at the graveside in Little Lake Cemetery. As an elder of St. Paul's, deceased and his pastor had become fast friends.

Bridesmaids who attempt to enter Burwell Parish Church, Nottingham, England, with heads uncovered, will be refused admission, according to a recent warning given by Rev. S. M. Wheeler, the rector.

UNIONS ASK FOR SAFE CROSSINGS

Railway Men Propose Legislation To Prevent Crossing Accidents.

ASK OTHER CHANGES.

OTTAWA, Jan. 24 (Canadian Press).—Consideration of representations made by the Legislative Committe of the Railway Unions was promised by the Government today. It was also arranged that the committee should take up the proposed legislative enactments respecting railway matters with the Hon. Chas. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals. The committee was received by Premier King and members of the Cabinet, and the Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery, British Secretary for the Dominions, was present during the brief conference.

Better protection of level crossings was urged on the Government. The committee also asked for amendments to the Immigration Act and Criminal Code along the lines of measures introduced in the House by the Government last session but defeated in the Senate. In this connection the committee urged that the British North America Act be so amended as to prevent the Senate from vetoing bills passed by the House of Commons more than twice.

With respect to level crossings, the memorandum presented to the Government urged that crossing should be protected "(a) by a watchman, (b) by gates, (c) by bell signals or other means which will require the drivers of all vehicles to stop at at least slow down before passing over level crossing unless absolutely sure of no danger threat." The committee was in favor of leaving highways unimproved within seven hundred feet of railway crossings to force traffic to slow up.

Lindbergh Returns From Hunting Trip

CRISTOBAL Canal Zone. — Jan. 24. — Canadian Press. — Back from his week's hunting and fishing trip in a remote district of Panama, Colonel Chas. A. Lindbergh yesterday took the air again in his beloved Spirit of St. Louis for an hour's test flight that carried him over several of the United States army posts in the Canal Zone.

Although there had been reports that the colonel would like to have a "social double" to relieve him of the strain of the many functions and receptions which await him everywhere there was no indication yesterday that the colonel had any desire for a "double" to handle his famous monoplane.

When he landed yesterday after performing a series of stunts to the delight of a crowd on the field, there was no doubt in the minds of the spectators that the air hero and his plane were both fit and ready to resume the colonel's good-will flight to Havana for the Pan-American Conference on Friday.

The colonel himself said that both he and his plane were fit after the test flight which he had made to determine whether the overhauling given the plane while he was on vacation, was satisfactory.

Investigating Death of Youth Killed By C.P.R. Passenger Train.

JUMPED FROM TRUCK.

Request Railway Company To Erect More Prominent Signals at Crossing.

The coroner's jury empanelled to enquire into the cause of the death of Ashley Rogers, 16 year old Norwood boy who jumped from a hydro truck in front of a C.P.R. passenger train on Tuesday last found that the deceased met his death accidently. The jury added a clause to their report asking that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company be requested to erect more prominent and effective signals at the Belmont street crossing in Norwood where the young lad met his death.

The inquest was held yesterday afternoon in the town hall, Norwood, before Coroner Dr. Carleton and Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C., conducted the case. From the evidence it was found that Ashley Rogers and Wilson, two boy chums, were taking a ride on a hyiro truck that was going from Norwood to Belmont Lake to get the construction gang working there. The truck narrowly escaped being hit by C.P.R. express No. 35 coming from the east to Norwood about 3.00 o'clock in the afternoon, when John Miles, the driver, failed to see the oncoming train. Rogers saw the train as the truck came on to the track and in making an effort to get off, he jumped into the path of the train and met instant death.

The jury was composed of Richard Dean (foreman), John McConnell, Richard Innis, Charles Copen, William Stares, William Parcels and William Beckett.

Witnesses who saw the accident said 'the engineer was blowing the whistle and the engine bell and automatic bell at the crossing were ringing at the time of the accident."

The Evidence.

John Miles, who for 14 years has driven trucks, and was driving the truck at the time of the accident, was the first witness called by Crown Attorney Hatton. Mr. Miles told the jury that at the time of the accident he was not aware that any person was on the back of his truck, and although he and George Irons, who was riding with him, got across in front of the train, they had a very narrow escape.

About 3.00 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon Miles and Irons left the Stewart garage in Norwood to go and get the men who were working at Belmont Lake constructing the new hydro line. "At the garage two boys asked me for a ride and I said, 'no, there is no room.' We proceeded east down over the railway crossing and when we were going over the track I saw the train upon us. I heard no whistle or bell and knew nothing of the accident until I got across the track and the other boy who had been on the truck yelled that Rogers had been killed," said the witness.

Coroner Dr. Carleton asked Miles if he had looked to see if a train was coming; he said he looked towards Norwood, but not in the other direction. He estimated his speed at the time at about eight miles an hour and the front wheels of the truck were on the track before he saw the train.

Asked by Mr. Lucas, representative of the Hydro Electric Commission, if he drove the truck in a manner that would knock the boy off, witness replied in the negative.

Edward George Irons, who was accompanying Mr. Miles in the cab of the truck at the time the accident occurred said he did not see the train until it was only a few feet away, as he was looking at his books and paying no attention to the road or the driver.

On being questioned by the coroner, he said he knew one of the boys was on the truck when they left the garage, but he thought he would jump off when they got started.

Was Riding With Rogers.

Wilson Webb was called and gave his age as 15 years. He said he got on the truck in the garage and Rogers jumped on when it backed on to the street. They had asked Irons in the garage where he was going and he said "for the men." The two boys took up a postion right behind the cab and failed to see the train coming. All he heard was Rogers shout, 'The Train,' and then he covered his eyes with his arm He did not see Rogers jump and had not heard the whistle or the bell of the engine. Asked by the corner if the driver could see the boys riding on the truck he said no, as the window was very high up.

Train Was Late.

John Hubert, engineer of the train, when called, said that his train was four minutes late, but they were gradually making up time but at this particular point they were going no faster than usual as he had to stop at Norwood station. He was on the

HIGH TARIFF DENOUNCED AT PAN-AMERICAN CONGRESS

Argentine Ambassador To U. S. Addresses Committee on Union Affairs.

VIOLATES CONGRESS.

Rates Prevent International Commerce and Hinder Pan-American Relations.

HAVANA, January 24 (Associated Press).—High tariffs were denounced by Honorio Pueyrredon, Argentine Ambassador to the United States, in addressing a meeting of the committee on Pan-American Union affairs here yesterday.

The principle underlying the determination of tariff schedules of the United States Tariff Act was criticized by Senator Pueyrredon who declared that this precluded international commerce and hindered Pan-American relations. He also protested against the erection of high or prohibitive tariff walls in inter-American commerce, asserting that this practice was in direct violation of the object for which the Pan-American Congress was first called—the formation of an American economic and commercial unit.

In another address, Charles E. Hughes, head of the United States delegation of the Pan-American Conference, expressed opposition to the projected Mexican amendment seeking new regulations to govern the selection of union membership, the presidency of the Union and the office of director-general.

Re-organization Proposals.

Senor Pueyrredon's specific proposals for the re-organization of the Pan-American Union were:

First, that the governments, members of the Pan-American Union should take immediate action to suppress or reduce exaggerated customs barriers now restricting freedom of inter-American commercial intercourse.

Second, suppression of restraint to free circulation and interchange of agricultural products in such cases where this action does not endanger the welfare of the countries and their workers.

Third, in the exercise of laws governing animal and plant sanitation, the signatory countries should adopt an organic system representing a guarantee that the methods employed shall never have an arbitrary character.

Because the Pan-American ideal was a collective ideal, Senor Pueyrredon declared that if any one country suffered from the commercial policy of any other, then all the countries in the Pan-American Union should declare their solidarity with the former, for although he believed in the sovereign rights of nations, he also held that too strict protection of individual rights was harmful to the collective ideal which Pan-American congresses were supposed to engender.

"If we are of one spirit in the Pan-American Union and of one accord in Pan-Americanism, united by the noble spirit voiced both by President Coolidge and Mr. Hughes," he said, "then each nation should be willing to suffer inconveniences for the benefit of the whole family of American nations."

Contrary to Spirit.

He attacked high tariffs as contrary to the spirit of Pan-Americanism, and as they do not affect equally all nations. As an example, he mentioned that tropical countries were able to dispose of their products much more easily than other nations, whose commodities are mainly the chief staple products of the world.

If the Pan-American Union, he argued, were really the embodiment of the ideals which President Coolidge mentioned and Mr. Hughes re-

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

Winter Fair Will Be Held As Usual Next Month—Honor to Record Cow.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 24. — The annual meeting of the Agricultual Society was held in the council chamber on Saturday, Jan. 21, at 2 p.m., President Harold Tate in the chair, and a good representation present.

The financial statement was presented by the treasurer J. N. McGill, and showed total receipts of $4,601.92; total expenditure of $4,454.73, leaving a balance approximating $150 in the bank. The gate receipts at last year's fall fair, $590, was less than half the amount usually taken in owing to the very unfavorable weather, which necessitated postponement of the event until the following day. There were 466 entries at the 1927 fair, and a total of $1825 had been offered in prize money; in repairs to buildings, etc., about $160 had been expended, and the Legislative grant because of the wet weather was $362.

The Spring Fair had been entirely successful with about $170 paid in prize money, the Legislative grant being $50, and $95 for the Field Crop competition.

The assets of the Society are valued at $10,690, itemized as follows: Grounds $2000; main building, $3500; horse stables $1200; cattle sheds $1000; poultry building $500 (this was not nearly large enough for the exhibits in 1927); ticket office $200; secretary's office $200; dining hall $300; grandstand $1500; with the amount that can be paid off the note against the property will be less than $1000. The society has 97 paid members.

Donaldson-McCamus: That the financial statement be accepted. — Carried.

Winter Fair to be Held.

Smith-Winslow: That the Society hold the annual winter fair on Feb. 17.—Carried.

The same concert company (the Brunswick Trio of London) which gave such general satisfaction here on the evening of fall fair day, nearly $200 being taken in at the door, has been promised for the winter fair date, and will probably be here for two nights, Thursday and Friday, Feb. 16 and 17 with special attention to the children in the first evening's program. The general admission of 50c for adults will be cut in half for children.

Donaldson - McCamus: That the Combined Field Crop and Threshed Grain Competition be carried under the Society's auspices again this year, provided the requisite number of entries can be secured.—Carried.

Smith-Fallis: That the usual number of Departmental judges (6) be employed at the fall fair in 1928. — Carried.

Henderson-Fair: That the annual membership fee of $2 be remitted to the treasurer of the Ontario Association of Fairs and Exhibitions.—Carried.

A communication was read from Superintendent J. Lockie Wilson asking that delegates be appointed to the annual convention of the Ontario Association, which will be held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on Feb. 1 and 2, and also from District Director William Knox of Peterboro, urging attention to the same matter. According to a recommendation in the minutes of the last annual meeting the delegates were to be the two officials or directors who sold the largest number of membership tickets in the drive put on last year to increase the enrollment; these were Messrs. H. Tate and R. J. McKnight. J. L. McCamus was appointed a third delegate in case either of the other two could not attend.

COATES OUTLINES FUTURE POLICY

New Zealand Government To Stick By Duty in Ruling Samoa.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Jan. 24. (Canadian Press cable via Reuter's.) — A vigorous assertion concerning New Zealand's future policy in regard to Samoa was made by the Hon. J. G. Coates, Prime Minister of New Zealand, in the course of a lengthy statement on the recent deportation of Europeans, namely O. F. Nelson, A. G. Smyth and E. W. Carr.

The Premier said the position was serious and that sufficient mischief had already been done to prejudice Samoa's prosperity for many years. He declared that the Europeans' discontent with the policy prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors was the root and cause of the agitation, and of the native unrest from 1920 to 1922, and to a certain extent of the more recent disorders. But the present movement might be ascribed to the menace to the business of the wealthy traders (of which Nelson, one of those deported was the largest and most influential) which the administration's experimental native copra-selling policy has provided.

Premier Coates claimed that the administration and the New Zealand Government in the past six months had shown limitless patience in the most difficult circumstances and had carried it to such an extent that it might be said New Zealand's administration of Samoa for that period had been ineffective. But now that the inquiry has been concluded and the administration completely vindicated the New Zealand government was determined that their authority must be enforced. As New Zealand holds a mandate over Samoa under the League of Nations, it was their duty to govern Samoa and from now on they intended to govern it.

It was advisable to promote the interests of a large number of natives rather than the interests of a handful of Europeans, said the Premier, and he was satisfied that the action of the New Zealand Government in deporting the agitators was correct, and would be justified by events.

NORWOOD FAIR SHOWS SURPLUS

Come Out On Right Side in Spite of Very Bad Weather Met With.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

NORWOOD, Jan. 24.—The annual meeting of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Council Chamber, Norwood, with the president, P. M. Grover, in the chair. The reports of the past year were presented and the officers and directors elected for the year 1928.

Secretary-Treasurer J. E. Roxburgh presented the financial statement, which showed total receipts of $3,474.19 with total expenditures amounting to $3,164.29, leaving a balance of $309.90. Expenditures for prizes amounted to $1,835.90. There were 543 more entries at the fair last October than in the previous year. Had it not been for the exceedingly inclement weather last year's fair would probably have been the best and biggest to date.

Messrs. J. E. Roxburgh and G. J. Elmhirst were appointed delegates to the Association of Fairs and Exhibitions, which meets in Toronto next month.

The officers for 1928 are:

Hon. Presidents — E. Hawthorne and P. M. Grover.

President—William Thompson.

First Vice-President—G. J. Elmhirst.

2nd Vice-President — Col. F. E. Birdsall.

Secretary-Treasurer—J. E. Roxburgh, Norwood.

The directors are: Andrew Knox, Col R. E. Birdsall, William Breckenridge, J. F. Elliott; Thomas Dunham, S. McGee, G. A. Brethen, J. A. Robb, William Barrie, William Knox, C. A. Calder, Wellington Burgess, J. Scott, J. P. Boland, W. J. McLaughlin, P. Gardner, A. Stinson, J. Hawthorne, Andrew Nelson, Samuel Buck, J. R. Baskin.

Honorary Directors: J. A. Sexsmith, E. N. McDonald, John Kelly, Dr. A. T. Embury, M.P.; William Anderson, M.P.P.

FAIR FINANCES ARE EXPLAINED

Loss On 1927 Exhibition at Campbellford Was Only $185.

NOTE PAID OFF.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 24. — In the account of the annual meeting of the Seymour Agricultural Society it was said the society "went in the hole" to the extent of $900. This was quoted from the remarks of the retiring president, Henry Watters, and it is feared by the Society that a wrong impression may be gained. The amount is made up of a note for three hundred dollars which was paid during 1927, and which was a loan from 1926. There was also two hundred and fifty dollars extra prize money awarded this year. Thus the society really did not go behind to such an extent. The May 24th celebration netted a loss of $165, which leaves an amount of only $185 to be accounted for. This makes the matter more clear for those who have understood it differently.

HAVE KIDNEYS EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers.

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

COBOURG W.M.S. PRESBYTERIAL IS NOW DIVIDED

Annual Meeting Held in Port Hope To Close Up 1927 Work.

ALLOCATION NOT MET.

Treasurer's Report Shows a Shortage of $400—More Required This Year.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 24.—The third annual meeting of the Cobourg Presbyterial Women's Missionary Society was held in the United Church, Port Hope, on Thursday, January 19, the President, Mrs. J. W. Roberts of Grafton, occupying the chair for the three sessions, the convention opening shortly after 9 a.m.

The nominating committee met in the church the previous afternoon and evening to prepare a slate to present to the convention, the members being: Mrs. G. Hammond, Campbellford; Mrs. E. B. Cooke, Newcastle; Mrs. E. Martyn, Port Hope; Mrs. T. Tod, Bowmanville; Mrs. J. C. Young, Oshawa, and Mrs. F. H. Howard, Millbrook. The finance committee also met, its personnel being: Mrs. J. Mears, Port Hope; Mrs. Chase, Bowmanville; Mrs. C. Crozier, Oshawa, and Mrs. Pringle, Whitby.

The mottoes which headed the convention program for the three sessions, and which embody the ideals toward which all W.M.S. work is directed, were "Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it"; "The World for Christ"; and the watchword: "Not by might nor by power, but my My Spirit, said the Lord of Hosts."

There was a good representation from the various auxiliaries of the Presbyterial, and an encouraging feature was the number of girls from the mission circles in the district covered by the organization.

The singing of the Doxology opened the morning session, followed by an invocation by Mrs. Maxwell of Oshawa, a hymn chosen by Mrs. Terrill of Wooler, a Scripture lesson, I Corinthians 13, by Mrs. Field of Cobourg, and prayer by Mrs. J. U. Robins of Bowmanville.

The resolutions and memorials were presented to the convention, including the one passed on from the Sectional Rally held at Bailieboro last fall which asked that the contributions from the Auxiliaries, Circles, and Bands be listed in a column on the church official schedule beside the other givings from the circuits, in order that the entire amount raised durng the year might be credited to each charge.

Greetings from Sister Societies were presented by a member from the Baptist church, and reply was made by Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones of Warkworth. Greetings from the Presbytery were presented by Rev. J. W. Anderson, pastor of the convention church, who based his remarks upon the W.M.S. watchword, and urged its adoption into the daily life of the members.

W.M.S. Gives Leadership

Mrs. E. B. Cooke, Newcastle, gave a helpful paper on "What should the Church expect from the W.M.S.?", stressing the thought that leadership is looked for along the lien of missionary enterprise, and education, the cultivation of a missionary atmosphere in the home so that the growing boys and girls have a desire to know of the needs of the fields, the work being done, and a share in the great adventure of the missionary task. Initiative in social and moral reform is also to be expected, and the practice of Christian Stewardship with a constant example and teaching that others may be led to recognize their obligation to bring 'the tithes and offerings' into the Lord's treasury.

The Presbyterial treasurer, Mrs. W. M. Pringle of Whitby, spoke on "Our

CONTINUE SEARCH FOR MISSING GIRL

Whole Countryside Interested in Hunt For Miss Francis Smith.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—A little college girl whose very existence was never known outside her own small circle until she mysteriously disappeared from the quiet campus of Smith College, had yesterday become a figure of almost national importance and one in whose welfare millions of people had become vitally interested.

The pathos of the waiting parents had caught the imagination of the people and to-day probably no face was better known or more watched for, at least, in the Eastern states, than that of the girl with the most common name in all the country.

Two governors have been drawn into the search, Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts, and Alfred E. Smith, of New York, both fathers themselves and so in position to sympathize with the missing girl's parents.

It was on Jan. 13—Friday the thirteenth—that Miss Frances St. John Smith was missed from college from which two years ago Miss Alice Corbett, another student, disappeared never to be heard from again.

Since then the searchlights of publicity have been trained all across the country and even across the ocean to foreign shores. No trace of her has been found, but unlike most disappearance cases, the hue and cry has not died down with the passing of time, but has instead steadily increased.

Many Clues Reported.

As a result reports have been poured in from many states of girls resembling Miss Smith on streets, in restaurants or passing conveyances. A thousand clues have been run down, even one that the missing girl was registered in a hotel in Paris and still the search continues, gathering impetus with every day.

Governor Fuller sent officials to Northampton to take charge of the search and Governor Smith yesterday issued an appeal to the missing girl through the press to communicate directly to him if for some reason she did not feel she could get in touch with her parents.

At first the theory of accident, drowning perhaps, was put forward, but for some reason it failed to 'take.' No one would believe that the girl was dead, there was a countryside 'hunch' that she was alive and the intensity of the search steadily increased and is increasing.

There is a $10,000 reward for the one who finds Miss Smith, but that in itself does not explain the maintained interest, which must lie somewhere deeper in the public's heart. For there was a $1,000 reward for Miss Corbett and that money is still on deposit in a bank at Northampton.

WOMAN FALLS INTO CISTERN

Mrs. Ervin Bateman Forced To Hold To Edge For Twenty Minutes.

FOUND BY DAUGHTER.

THOMASBURG, Jan. 24. — While dipping a pail of water out of the cistern on Wednesday, Mrs. Edwin Bateman fell into the cistern of about eight feet of water. Mrs. Bateman went down twice. The first time she came up her head hit the floor and she went down again. The second time she caught hold of the floor at the opening and held it until her little girl came in about twenty minutes later and brought aid. The doctor was called at once. Mrs. Bateman is doing as well as can be expected.

Having spent his life in repairing the clog shoes worn by miners and poor children, Thomas Myerseaugh, of Preston, England, died recently, leaving an estate valued at nearly $28,000.

THE SCOUT MOVEMENT.

The Peterborough Boy Scout Association is appealing to citizens of Peterborough to subscribe for membership in the Association, which requires funds to carry on its work in the city, and this year has additional expense to meet in view of the fact that the Provincial convention will be held here next month.

The budget for the year is a very modest one, amounting to $450 in all, of which $100 is allocated for convention expenses, rental of hall, printing and other similar items.

The balance is needed to cover the ordinary expenses of the year, which include the rent of rooms for troop headquarters, fuel, light, the expense of delegates to the training camp for leaders, and other expenditures.

Citizens are asked to pay $2.00 for membership, $5.00 giving one the status of active membership, or $10.00 which makes the subscriber a sustaining member.

Peterborough needs the Boy Scout movement and is fortunate in the number of citizens who have showed their willingness to serve as officers or executive members of the Association.

The training given young boys by the Scout troops makes for better citizenship, and the movement merits the support of all who are in a position to help in any way, financial or otherwise.

BUSINESS BEFORE PRINCIPLE.

There will be little sympathy throughout Canada with the attitude displayed by the United Farmers of Alberta toward the question of resuming diplomatic and trade relations with Soviet Russia.

While various arguments were advanced by different speakers in support of the resolution ultimately passed which called upon the Government to resume relations with the Soviet, it is difficult to form any other conclusion than that the majority of the United Farmers of Alberta place business interests before principle.

The break with Sovietism was long overdue.

Great Britain, with a display of patience that was remarkable under the circumstances, had endured the plotting and treachery of the Soviet in attempting, under the guise of friendly business relations, to disrupt the country and bring about revolution, until patience ceased to be a virtue.

Of the guilt of the Soviet there is not the slightest doubt.

Its conduct in regard to the British Empire has placed it beyond the pale, and there can be no justification for suggestions that Canada as a part of that Empire should allowed itself to be used as a base from which Soviet agents could plot against our own welfare and that of the rest of the Empire.

If the United Farmers of Alberta want to show their sympathy for perfidious Sovietism that is their privilege, but when they attempt to persuade the Government of this country to traffic with treachery, the majority of Canadians will protest vehemently and vigorously.

LEVEL CROSSING ACCIDENTS.

Evidence at the inquest into the death of a Norwood boy killed on a grade crossing when he jumped off a motor truck in front of a train was to the effect that, although the accident occurred in broad daylight at a crossing where it was possible to see an approaching train for some distance, and although the warning bell at the crossing was ringing and the locomotive's bell and whistle were sounding continuous warnings, the driver, with fourteen years' experience, claimed he neither saw the train nor heard the signals.

These circumstances justify the contention of those who urge that just as all drivers are compelled to come to a full stop before entering a Provincial highway they should also be forced to stop before going over a railway crossing.

Neither good visibility nor plenty of warning devices served to avert this Norwood accident, but with a law in effect compelling the driver to bring his machine to a stop the approaching train would have been seen in time to prevent the tragedy.

Against the introduction of such a regulation will be advanced the difficulty of enforcement, but that applies more or less to every traffic law, and if only a fraction of the motorists on the highways obeyed the stop order the risk of level crossing accidents would to that extent at least be eliminated.

If self-preservation will not prevent motorists from taking chances, perhaps the instinct to save their pocketbooks might be of some avail.

WHY NOT "CANADIAN"?

The Ottawa branch of the National Council of Women has unanimously passed a resolution to be forwarded to the Federal Government requesting that at the taking of the next decennial census authority be provided for the legal use of the word "Canadian" in designation of the people of Canada.

The Examiner believes that such a chance would have the heartiest approval of the majority of the residents in this country.

Under the present condition the term "Canadian" cannot legally be applied even to those of British extraction born in the Dominion whose official designation is simply "British citizens living in Canada."

It is high time this situation was remedied.

People whose ancestors for three or four generations back were Canadian have a right to be called by that name.

The Border Cities Star, which calls the present regulations stupid, puts it very effectively in the following paragraph:

> "Canada is a country. Canada has her own Government. No other country, no other Government, has anything to say regarding Canadian affairs, domestic or foreign. Canada has her own Minister to Washington. Canada is on the eve of appointing a Minister to France. Canada proposes to name her representative in London and in other capitals. Yet the word Canadian doesn't mean a thing in Canada's own official census regulations.
> "Stupid!"

THE RACE ISSUE ON THE PACIFIC.

"Well over one-fourth of the licensed business houses of the city of Vancouver are operated by Orientals." A. H. Fenwick, writing in the January 15 issue of MacLean's Magazine, under the heading of "For East is East," thinks that this statement of his may be startling. "It ought to be arresting," he adds. He then proceeds to give us facts still more startling and arresting. For example:

"It will probably astonish most Canadian business men to learn that nearly one-third of Vancouver's tailors are Orientals; that one-quarter of the grocers, jewellers and tobacconists and one-fifth of the hardware dealers are Orientals. Canadian women will be interested in the fact that one-sixth of the coast city's dressmakers, one-quarter of the dry goods trade, two-fifths of the cleaners and dyers, nine-tenths of the greengrocers, one-quarter of the candy and fruit dealers, three-fifths of the poulterers and nearly half the fish dealers, are Orientals.

"In the adjoining municipalities of South Vancouver and Burnaby over one-third of all trade licenses are held by Chinese, and in the near-by district municipality of Richmond nearly two-thirds of all trade licenses—eighty-seven out of a total of one hundred and twenty-two—are held by Japanese.

"In the city of Victoria Orientals hold 364 trade licenses, and the total for the Province is 3,231, of which 2,122 are held by Chinese, 1,034 by Japanese and seventy-five by Hindus.

"So much for the Oriental penetration to the heart of the trade of British Columbia. Here are some other pertinent facts:

"There are over 11,300 Orientals employed in industries in British Columbia and over thirty per cent. of the employes in saw and planing mills and approximately half the employes in shingle mills are Asiatics.

"Orientals own land and improved property in British Columbia to an aggregate value of well over $10,000,000 and hold on lease property valued at over a million dollars. The land under this control exceeds 27,000 acres.

"Of the British Columbia acreage in small fruits over thirty per cent. is held by Orientals (nearly all Japanese), while the Chinese have practically secured control of truck gardening and are the biggest producers of potatoes, beans, tomatoes and other field vegetables, beside being fairly well established in mixed farming.

"The Oriental is gradually increasing his hold on production under glass, and two years ago, when the last survey was made, he constituted thirteen per cent. of the growers and operated thirty-seven per cent. of the glass area.

"It is estimated that Asiatic residents in Canada now number approximately 65,000 of these, 46,500 being in British Columbia. According to the Dominion census of 1921 there were in Canada 39,587 Chinese, 15,868 Japanese and 1,016 Hindus—an Oriental total of 56,471; and of these there were in British Columbia 23,533 Chinese, 15,006 Japanese and 951 Hindus—an Oriental total of 39,490. It will be noted that nearly all the Japanese and Hindus were in the Coast Province. In British Columbia Orientals number approximately 82 in every 1,000 of population.

"The Oriental question presents a serious problem. Nobody desires to be unfair to the Asiatics who are living in this country. We accepted them as immigrants; we gave them certain citizenship rights; to the extent that their racial prejudices and native-country ties allow them they are, for the most part, good citizens. But our acceptance of them as citizens was a mistake. Their ways are not our ways; their living standard is not our standard; they are of yellow races and we are of white; they are Oriental and we are Occidental; there is no thought on either side of the advisability of an attempt at assimilation; they and their children will always be alien to us.

"But the Orientals are with us—a lot of them, 65,000 of them—and by their industry, intelligence and aggressiveness they are gaining for themselves a strong position in Canada—to the detriment of our own people. The question of how much further they will be permitted to penetrate the economic life of the Dominion depends upon the attitude of the people of Canada toward the problem."—St. Catharines Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Border Cities Star points out that there is no use Canada joining the Pan-American Union. We have no marines to send down there.

The rapidly approaching session of the Dominion Parliament is regarded with more than usual composure this year because of the time limit on speeches.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Jan. 24 (Canadian Press).—There was practically no demand from the United Kingdom and the Continent for grain here yesterday. There was some inquiry from local buyers for Canadian Western oats, and sales of a few cars were made for nearby shipment from Fort William. Spot prices were steady.

The flour market was without any new feature to note. Prices for Spring and Winter wheat grades being steady with a small trade passing.

A good trade was done in all lines of millfeed and prices were steady. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet but values were firm.

The egg trade was inactive but the undertone to the market was firm. The receipts were 427 cases.

A firm feeling prevailed in the market for imported beans under a good demand. Sales of odd cars of choice white hand-picked were made at $2.80 per bushel, ex-track, and broken lots at $2.90 per bushel, ex-store.

The trade in potatoes showed no improvement, the demand being still of a limited character, but the tone was steady. Sales of odd cars of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were made at $1.20 per bag of 90 lbs; Prince Edward Island White potatoes at $1.15 per bag of 90 lbs; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.10 per bag of 90 lbs. in bulk, New Brunswick White potatoes at $1.05 per bag of 90 lbs. in bulk, and Quebec varieties at 95c to $1 per bag of 90 lbs. in bulk, ex-track.

Despite the fact that the demand continued dull, the undertone to the butter market remained steady. The receipts were 42 packages.

Extreme dullness again marked the cheese trade, but values were unchanged. The receipts were 44 boxes.

BILL 149.

To the Editor of The Examiner.
Sir:—

It is to be hoped that Bill 149, which is spoken of as the Hawkers and Pedlars Bill will not be passed. It puts a penalty on one class of dealers for the benefit of another. It appears to be based on the assumption that the so-called retail merchants have a vested interest in the retail trade and that they must be protected from competition. The classes of dealers and merchants against which this bill is directed have as much right to sell as any other class of merchants, and they are entitled to the equal protection of the law. But this bill, if enacted, would result in most of them being actually prohibited from doing business. But the public would not be benefited—only the class of dealers or merchants who are seeking the enactment of this bill.

The public has a right to choose with whom it will spend its money—with whom it will trade. The so-called retail merchants do not own either the public or the retail trade. Every dealer, every merchant, has a right to seek to serve the public on equal terms with every other dealer or merchant. This bill would deny whole classes of traders and merchants that right.

The bill is called, "A bill respecting the licensing of hawkers, pedlars and transient traders." But it goes far beyond these classes of traders, and will put inequitable burdens on thousands and thousands of salespeople, men and women, who are not hawkers or pedlars. It will deny them the right to bring their goods to the attention of prospective buyers.

The bill is not only an infringement of these rights of citizens, but it is a short-sighted attempt to benefit one class at the expense of another class, and is against the best interests of the community. If it is passed, it will hurt a large class of people in the community who are seeking to make an honest living but who are not strong enough to fight the organization that is pressing for the passage of this bill. In the end, it will not even benefit the class who are seeking to have it passed.

Yours, etc.,

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Ills, Jan. 24 (Canadian Press).—Despite a good rally at one time, wheat values averaged lower yesterday, influenced by heavy increase of stocks afloat and by predicted moisture southwest and west. Curtailment, however, of wheat supplies made offerings of the March delivery scarce, and late transient upturns.

Wheat closed unsettled, ¼ cent to ⅝ cent net lower; corn at ¼ cent decline to ¼ cent advance; oats unchanged to ¼ down and provisions unchanged to a setback of 7 cents.

Although Chicago stocks of wheat yesterday showed 300,000 bushels decrease for the week and the United States visible supply a decrease of 2,587,000 bushels, the effect was more than counterbalanced by knowledge that the total domestic visible supply is still 22,000,000 bushels above last year and that the amount of wheat on ocean passage is 6,500,000 bushels, larger than a week ago. The fact that practically no wheat is coming into Chicago to replace outshipments caused some uneasiness on the part of traders who are short of wheat to deliver on March contracts, but price bulges that resulted failed to last in the face of profit-taking sales.

Predictions of snow or rain over domestic Winter wheat territory helped to relieve anxienty which in some quarters had been aroused by chances of drought damage throughout important sections. Slowness of export demand yesterday for wheat from North America tended also to weaken prices, actual supplies in sight in North America being estimated at 60,000,000 bushels larger than last year, and shipments from south of the Equater promising to be on a liberal scale for some time.

Corn prices were unsettled, easing down early on account of big receipts of corn at Kansas City, Omaha St. Louis and Chicago, but recovering later with wheat market bulges and as a result of predicted storms likely to interfere with the rural movement of corn. Some corn export business was noted, but quantities were not given. Oats averaged slightly lower, sympathizing with wheat.

Provisions were steadied by comparative steadiness of the hog market.

BEEKEEPERS DISCUSS LAWS

Intend To Press For More Rigid Inspection—Meet at Stirling.

ELECT OFFICERS.

STIRLING, Jan. 24.—The annual meeting of the Beekeepers' Association of Hastings County was held in the Agricultural Rooms on Saturday afternoon, January 21. B. O. Lott, of Holloway, the president, was in the chair, with nearly twenty ladies and gentlemen present. After the minutes had been confirmed, Mr. Lott spoke regarding a shipment of honey to Germany, on which there was a loss, due to not having been handled properly.

Both the Dominion and Provincial Governments have done considerable towards the system of inspection of apiaries and promised to make changes in this direction if necessary, to make the system in vogue more rigid, and thus protect the interests of this valuable industry.

Two delegates have been sent to California to learn more regarding beekeeping as that part of the United States is the greatest opponent Canada has in the production of honey.

The president urged upon those present the fact that all owners of bees register and notify the association of anyone owning bees, if only one hive. He also said that there should be some better way of finding out who owns bees, and with this end in view, Mr. Lott introduced a motion that the Provincial Government be asked to pass a law amending the present one in this respect and have it so the assessor could, in some such way as the dogs are enumerated now, find out who own bees, also that each of the three members of Parliament for Hastings be asked to co-operate in the matter of getting this law passed.

It was also stated that foul brood was pretty well cleaned up in this section.

A discussion followed, in which C. W. Clancy and others spoke regarding the deceptive way in which some beekeepers act in the matter of covering up disease in their apiaries, and each speaker emphasized the need for more rigid inspection. All those who register as owners of bees receive as a premium an Italian queen bee.

The election of officers followed and they are:

President—B. O. Lott, Holloway.

Vice President—Charles Hoard, of Stirling, R.R. 3.

Secretary-Treasurer—Wilbert Hagerman, Stirling, R.R. 3.

Directors—Ed. Palmer, Stirling, R.R. 3, and John Chisholm, Wallbridge—Sidney Township; G. W. Latta, Corbyville, and George Phillips, Foxboro — Thurlow Township; Milton Pringle and A. D. Allen—Tyendinaga Township; Dr. A. E. Tweedie, Stirling; Dr. R. E. Lumsden, Springbrook; Murray Meiklejohn and C. W. Clancy—Rawdon Township; Harry Thompson and Stanley Prest—Huntingdon Township; Mr. Allen and Mr. Marsh—Hungerford Township; Mr. Moore and Pat Kehoe—North Townships.

It was suggested by the president that instead of holding the annual meeting in Stirling continuously, a change be made, and that it be held at a more favorable season of the year. With this end in view, Murney Coulter of Thomasburg moved and Mr. Clancy seconded a resolution that the next annual meeting be held in Tweed, early in December, 1928. This carried unanimously. Mr. Coulter offered his premises as the place for holding the next field day and demonstration of the association. This was graciously accepted by the president. The matter of inspection couldn't be got away from and it was settled that all the hives in the apiary should be inspected and then there was no chance of the disease being overlooked. Mr. Lott spoke of the producing of section honey, and stated that in some parts of the province apiarists were devoting their efforts in this direction to as much as 50 per cent. of their product. A gentleman was present with a hive suitable for use in this way, and at the close of the meeting he gave a demonstration.

On account of the storm of Friday night some of the roads were badly blocked and traffic was held up. The motor bus running from Marmora to Belleville was three hours late reaching here on Saturday.

The Stirling Cheese Box and Basket Factory is closed for a while to make repairs and get ready for the coming season's work.

Mr. Alex. Reid has increased his equipment for boot and shoe repairing. Having installed a new power sewing machine and engaged a shoemaker, he is also prepared to manufacture footwear.

W. I. BASKET SOCIAL IS GREAT SUCCESS

Large Crowd Turns Out at Lakefield in Spite of Bad Weather.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 24.—The Women's Institute held a basket social in the Memorial Hall on Monday evening, January 16th with a large crowd present. The weather was evidently no obstacle as the people came from far and near, lured by the prospect of a night's pleasure. Their highest hopes were fulfilled, as it was a full evening of jollity and informal entertainment. The financial results surpassed all expectations and the baskets sold quickly and for good prices. Music, games, cards and dancing were on the programme, with a good proportion of the old-fashioned square dances which have an attraction even yet, in spite of the vogue of jazz, and which are enjoying a return of popularity in some of the larger centres. Music was supplied by Mr. and Mrs. John Northey, Mr. and Mrs. James Irwin and Miss Irwin and Mr. Simpson.

This was probably the jolliest party of the entire season.

DE HAVILAND PLANT TO BE AT TORONTO

Information Issued at Meeting of Air League of Canada.

TORONTO, Jan. 23 (Canadian Press).—A special despatch from Ottawa says that Controller Bert Kemp of Toronto, attending the convention of the Air League of Canada, has learned on good authority that the assembling plant of the De Haviland Airplane Company of Britain will be established at Toronto. A representative of the company some weeks ago examined possible sites in a great number of Eastern Canadian cities and towns. Some twenty machines have already been ordered for assembling at Toronto.

WEDDING BELLS

DOUPE—JONES.

MARMORA, Jan. 24.—On Wednesday afternoon, at St. Paul's Church, before a large congregation, a quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized by the rector, Rev. A. B. Caldwell, the contracting parties being William Frederick, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Doupe of Marmora, and Alice Velma, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Jones, of Marmora Township. Mrs. Litt, organist of the church, played Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus as the bridal couple proceeded to the altar. "O Perfect Love" was sung during the signing of the register, while Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played on their leaving the church. The bride was given away by her father, and was attended by her cousin, Miss Verna Rylott of Bowmanville. She was attired in pale yellow georgette, with hat to match, trimmed with silver. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaid wore beige georgette and hat trimmed with gold metallic. Mr. Douglas Jones, brother of the bride, supported the groom.

Following the ceremony, the wedding party and guests repaired to the home of the bride, where a delightful menu had been prepared. In the evening a well-attended reception was held. The young couple carry with them the best wishes of a large number of friends for a long and happy wedded life.

Nine hours after 2,200 volts of electricity coursed through the bodies of Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder and her paramour, Henry Judd Gray, in Sing Sing prison the law's exaction for the murder of the former's husband, the hangman's rope at Winnipeg on Friday, the thirteenth, snuffed out the life of Earl Nelson, convicted of the slaying by strangulation of 14-year-old Emily Patterson. ASHLEY ROGERS opposite side of the cab to the one the truck was on, but as he rounded the curve he saw the truck coming up the road. He expected it would stop and was rather surprised to see it cross immediately in front of the engine.

Engineer Hubert said that the bell on the engine rang continuously from Havelock to Norwood and that at the whistle board before he came to the crossing he blew the whistle and when he saw the truck he again continued to blow the whistle until he came to the crossing.

"The train was going between 30 and 35 miles an hour and the truck cleared the front of the engine by about 12 feet. The fireman asked me if the truck had got past and I said 'yes.' Then he was asked by the fireman how many boys were on the truck and I replied one, and the fireman replied, 'there were two when I saw it.'

Asked by the coroner if he, as an engineer, considered the crossing to be dangerous, he replied "No." The fireman, Herbert Cure, said he was the truck approaching at about 15 miles an hour and thought it would stop at the crossing, but could not see it from his position in the cab when they came within 100 feet of the crossing.

Fred Pearce, a resident of Norwood, presented several plans of the crossing. He said: "The body was found 99 feet from the centre of the crossing, and although there is a fairly good view of an approaching train from the direction the truck was coming, it is very poor in the opposite direction.

Saw the Accident.

Frank Bedore was standing about 150 yards south of the track when the accident occurred. He saw the truck approaching at about 15 miles an hour and at the same time the automatic bell and the engine bell were ringing, and the whistle was blowing. "Just as the truck cleared the track saw a boy jump into the path of the train and was hurled to one side."

George Woodcock, a section man on the C.P.R., also saw the accident. He corroborated the evidence of Bedore as to the ringing of the bells and the blowing of the whistle on the engine. "I was working about 400 yards east of the crossing when the accident occurred. I saw the truck coming down the road and one of the section men said to me, "That darned truck is going to get hit. I stood and watched until it cleared the track, and just as it crossed one of the boys jumped up, ran to the back and jumped right in front of the train," said the witness.

George W. Thornton, Claims Agent of the C.P.R., gave evidence that as a result of the injury caused to George Barrie, of Birdsall, last November, the Board of Railway Commissioners ordered that the speed at this crossing be 10 miles an hour until it was inspected by an inspector. This was done late in November, and as a result of the inspector's report the order was removed.

Mr. Hatton, in summing up the case before the jury said: "From the evidence the train crew did everything required of them to prevent the accident, and it also has been shown that Miles did not know the boys were on the truck, but you may come to the conclusion that he did not use proper judgment in crossing the track before the train, and is therefore guilty of a breach of the Highway Traffic Act," said Mr. Hatton.

MILLBROOK FAIR

The delegates will also attend the convention of the Canadian National Trotting and Pacing Harness Horse Association which meets in Toronto on Feb. 2; H. A. Fallis reporting that the new rulings do not meet with favor from a number of those who for years have been interested in horsemanship though personally he considered them an improvement on the ones which have been recently revised.

H. Tate Re-elected.

The election of officers resulted in the return of the slate for last year, the list being: President, H. Tate; vice-president G. A. Fair; 2nd vice-president, R. C Larmer; secretary-treasurer, J. N. McGill (elected at the directors' meeting afterward on motion of A. J. Henderson and G. A. Fair, this being the statutory requirement).

Hon. directors: John Tate, William Hannah; George Berry, F. W. Bowen, M.P., W. J. Bragg, M.P.P., Geo. Hootan, reeve of Cavan; W. T. Wood, reeve off Millbrook.

Lady directors — Mrs. Charles Thorndyke, Mrs. E. A. Fallis, Mrs. J. W. Hamilton, Mrs. G. F. Harrington, and Miss M. E. Needham.

Directors — W. T. Donaldson, L. W. Smith, I. W. Larmer, H. A. Fallis, A. J. Henderson, J. Whittington, R. I. Fallis, J. L. Fair, P. Stinson, L. C McNeil, L. H. Winslow, H. Seymour, R. McCamus, T. W. McCamus, J. W. Hamilton, J. A. Vance, V. R. Hunter, W. E. Ball, N. Belch, R. J. McKnight, J. L. McCamus, M. McDowell, D. Sheppard, A. Jeffrey, F. Lowery, and A. Scott, the last five names being new ones added this year. Auditors, [illegible]. Hampton and T. H. Collins.

W. T. Donaldson, the veteran member of the directorate, wished to retire, but to this the other members would not consent, claiming that his advice and activities were highly valued, and could not be dispensed with. There was an equal unwillingness to have Mr. Donaldson's name changed to the honorary list, and a number made mention of the fact that his presence was keenly missed at last year's fall fair, the very unfavorable weather preventing his attendance.

Committees Named.

Smith-McNeil—That the meeting adjourn. The directors' meeting immediately followed, and the business of appointing committees was proceeded with:

Executive Committee: A. J. Henderson, H. Tate, L. W. Smith, H. A. Fallis, R. J. McKnight, G. A. Fair, R. O. Larmer

Finance Committee: W. T. Donaldson, A. J. Henderson, J. L. McCamus, L. H. Winslow.

Grounds Committee: N. Belch (replacing as chairman A. J. Henderson, resigned), W. T. Donaldson, J. W. Hamilton, R. J. McKnight, I. W. Larmer, W. E. Ball, E. Tate, A. J. Henderson.

Dates Changed.

One of the outstanding features of the meeting was changing the date of the annual fall fair, the outcome of an exhaustive discussion on the part of the officials present. It was felt that the dates which have been claimed for years, the first Thursday and Friday in October, are rather too late in the season, and when bad weather is encountered the cold adds much to the discomfort experienced.

On motion of I. W. Larmer and P. Stinson, the dates for this year were chosen as Monday and Tuesday, September 17 to 18.

Committees were appointed to wait on the Cavan and Millbrook Councils asking the annual grant for the Winter Fair as follows: For the former, Messrs. T. Tate, G. A. Fair, and J. N. McGill; for the latter, Messrs. J. L. McCamus, J. H. Paul, A. J. Henderson, and the secretary.

The matter of a judge for the Winter Fair was discussed, and the secretary instructed to secure either D. D. Gray of Ottawa or J. M. Gardhouse of Toronto, the motion to employ a departmental judge having been sponsored by L. H. Winslow and F. P. Stinson. The prize-list will be the same as last year, and the committee for canvassing: R. I. Fallis, L. H. Winslow, I. W. Larmer, V. R. Hunter, with power to add to their numbers.

The matter of recognizing, in some fitting manner, the honor which has come to the entire community through having a world championship Holstein cow in the district came up for discussion, the matter being left in the hands of the following committee: L. H. Winslow (chairman), F. P. Stinson, R. I. Fallis, J. L. McCamus, T. W. Belch, W. Fred Fallis, R. Y. Kellougg, agricultural representative for Durham.

R. J. McKnight mentioned the fact that an oratorical contest in connection with the Junior Farmers' organization, of which Clarence Allen, of Newcastle, is president, is likely to be held in Millbrook within the next four weeks, the agricultural representative having this matter under arrangement. Should this materialize, the Agricultural Society should give it special recognition, since the first Junior Farmers' organization in the whole province originated here when R. S. Duncan was the county representative. Of this initial class Mr. McKnight was a member.

peated, then it would devolve upon the union to see that no one country suffered for purely local reasons in another.

In speaking on the question of personnel of the Pan-American Union, in opposition to the Mexican delegation's projected revisions, Mr. Hughes laid stress on the necessity of retention of a permanent director-general because of the need of able direction through long experience.

Similarly he opposed change in the composition of the governing board, which at present is composed of the diplomatic representatives of the American republics accredited to Washington and the secretary of state of the United Stats. He felt that the members of this board should be in touch at all times to answer a call to board meetings.

Mr. Hughes endorsed the spirit of Senor Pueyrredan's desire for a concrete economic understanding, but was of the opinion that this would be difficult while the Pan-American Union was inefficiently organized.

Regarding the presidency of the governing board, Mr Hughes asserted that the office had no advantage for the United States, because it carried no consciousness of personal direction, and added: "I never introduced a proposal by my government at a board meeting during the four years of my presidency."

Two Declarations.

Gustave Guerrero, chairman of the Salvadorean delegation, moved that in the preamble to the constitution of the Pan-American Union two declarations should be made—the first establishing juridical bases of the union, and the second defining Pan-Americanism. To that end he presented a resolution for incorporating in the convention constituting the Pan-Ameriecan Union, setting forth that the republics of America recognized two postulates:

First, autonomy, independence and political equality of all the American countries.

Second, that Pan-Americanism is a moral union of all the American countries, with reciprocal respect of the rights inherent in complete independence.

The Brazilian representative of the committee opposed the suggestion contained in the Mexican proposals to rotate the offices of director-general and president of the governing board. He declared that this was not in the best interests of the union.

The international private law committee held only a brief session today because the delegates having the problems at issue under consideration, were not able to report. Adjournment was taken until Wednesday.

Because of internal transportation troubles and excessive taxation in North China, American tobacco is replacing native tobacco in the manufacture of cigarettes in China.

Men who just fall short

because CONSTIPATION has kept their health below par

YOU meet them everywhere—men who just fail to reach their goal because they lack that last ounce of energy, that bounding health which is essential. Millions of them do not know they are below par. Millions of them do not know that constipation or a condition approaching constipation is the cause.

Yet doctors tell us that a high percentage of to-day's sickness is due to constipation. Insufficient roughage in the diet is one of the chief reasons for constipation.

Post's Bran Flakes is a roughage food in the most delicious, palatable form—and will relieve most of these cases.

Now You'll Like Bran

It is dangerous to experiment with patent medicines and drug laxatives. They bring only temporary relief and may make matters much worse. Ordinary cases of constipation brought about by too little roughage in the diet should yield to Post's Bran Flakes. If your case is abnormal, don't experiment. Consult a competent physician.

Make this two weeks' test and note the difference

Constipation must not be neglected. Start a two weeks' test now. Order a package of Post's Bran Flakes from your grocer.

Start by eating a dish of Post's Bran Flakes for breakfast. Eat it as a cereal with milk or cream. You will be delighted with the crispness and the delicious flavor. You will find it as good as any cereal you ever tasted.

Do this every day for two weeks. We predict you will find a real difference in the way you feel, and that you have been "regular" all the time.

But don't stop at the end of two weeks. Eat Post's Bran Flakes every morning for health and regularity.

Post's Bran Flakes is sold by all grocers in a wax-wrapped package. Ready to eat.

Latest Comment on Grain and Industrial Markets.

Closing Quotations on the Principal Active Stocks.

F. G. Oke and Company wires as follows:

MINES.

TORONTO, Jan. 24. —Shares of Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, Ltd., which owns Flin Flon and is capitalized at $2,500,000 shares of no par value, were called for trading on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange this morning, making their initial appearance at $19.40 and selling up to $20.00 by noon. This gives Mining Corporation shareholders already a book profit of $5.00 per share on the stock of Hudson Bay subscribed to at $15.00 per share.

Another promising copper company to make its initial appearance on the Standard Stock Exchange this morning was that of Coast Copper. Coast Copper is capitalized at 200,000 shares of $5.00 par value and has some important properties in British Columbia. The company is controlled by Consolidated Mining and Smelting and apparently there is very little floating supply of the stock on the street. It will be recalled that shares of Coast Copper created no small sensation in Montreal a little while back when the shares experienced an extraordinarily rapid advance.

Laval-Quebec showed consistent strength this morning, selling as high as 28½ per share. A reason is sought on street for this new interest and advance and the opinion is expressed that well informed authorities are buying the stock at what they believe are comparatively low prices. Some rumors are heard of a property being taken up in the Sudbury area but as yet this has not been officially confirmed.

Amulet strengthened considerably this morning which may be taken as an indication of the market trend.

Prices were patchy but underdying conditions appeared to be much firmer and higher prices are being talked of on street.

Development at the respective mines, almost without exception are quite favorable, and in view of this condition, it appears that as news of these mining operations are made public concurrently the market will strengthen to considerably higher levels.

Bad Weather Reports Send Wheat Prices Up

CHICAGO, Jan 24. Canadian ress. — Reports of high winds in Kansas and the persistent dearth of moisture in large areas in the southwest, rallied wheat values to-day, after initial downturns. Corn prices developed firmness, owing largely to unfavorable weather over the corn belt. Starting at 1-8 to ½c decline, wheat later rose in some cases to above yesterday's finish. Corn opened ¼c off to 3-8c up and subsequently advanced all around. Oats likewise tended to harden.

The opening prices were: Wheat, March 130½; May 131; March 88½, May 91 3-8; oats March 55; May 56.

Mine Shares Weak Losses Widespread

TORONTO, January 24 (Canadian Press).—Weakness was apparent in mining issues on the Standard Exchange to-day and losses outnumbered gains. The Kirkland Lakes were out of favor with Bidgood coming down around a dollar and Wright Hargreaves falling back to 5.80. Lake Shore Shore and Teck Hughes were slightly firmer at 25.85 and 9.70. Barry Hollinger weakened sharply to sell down around the 92 mark, a loss of about eight points.

The Quebec issues were a little firmer. Noranda and Amulet went up ten points at 21.65 and 4.12. Among the Porcupines, McIntyre was firm, closing at 28.50 asked. Dome was down to 12.60 bid. Mining Corporation was up five at 5.05 and Pioneer gained to 54. Western issues were firm. Coast Copper, Hudson Bay, Smelters and Ren O'Ouille appeared in the unlisted section for the first time, with Copper closing at 52 to 54. Smelters finished the morning at 20.40 and Ren D'Ouille at 10.25 to 50. Sherritt Gordon lost 25 cents at 6.00.

Vancouver Exchange Record Is Broken

VANCOUVER, January 24 (Canadian Press).—Smashing all records for a single day's trading on the Vancouver Stock Exchange and passing the million mark for the first time, 1,091,083 shares valued at $479,392, were turned over at two sessions yesterday.

Toronto Exchange Trend Is Irregular

TORONTO, January 24 (Canadian Press). — Irregularity developed during this morning's active session of the Toronto Stock Exchange, and while some recent strong leaders lost ground, the general undertone of firmness was evident. Page Hersey and Christie Brown were the chief losers, Page losing 2¼ at 102¾ and Christie three at 127. New leaders forged to the front in Zimmerknit, which advanced 2¼ at 27½, Smelters up four at 270, Sales Book up 4½ at 80, and Arnolds up 1¾ at 19½. Brompton continued firm at 63, and Massey-Harris and International Nickel were slightly higher at 46¼ and 96. Carlings led the active and firm liquors with a two point gain at 43. Oils were easy except for British-American firming an eighth at 38⅞. Photo Engraving was a strong feature around 40¾.

Business Outlook Good Hardware Men Report

"Hardware and Metal," Toronto, comments on hardware and the metal market movements as follows in issue of January 21st —

"Canada has reached a high and enviable position," is a quotation taken from the address of a bank official at the annual meeting held recently, and it would seem to indicate the general opinion throughout the industrial world, as well as in minerals, etc. Letters received by Hardware and Metal from leaders in various sections of the business world of Canada substantiate the above statement, in that practically all show increases in 1927 business over previous years, and are very optimistic about the outlook for the present period of twelve months.

The increased income from the natural resources, mines and crops, of Canada in 1927 will do much towards developing the business of 1928. By increased industrial activity, the people receive their share of the general prosperity and it is passed on by them to the merchants of the country. Because of the increase in building operations last year, hardware stores enjoyed greater activity in suitable hardware lines. Paints and paint materials were moved in larger quantities. The hardware dealer and wholesaler, in looking forward into this year, apparently are doing so with the expectation that their business will be equal, if not greater, than in the 12 months just completed.

The changing condition of public buying power is also changing the wants and demands from the hardware store. Dealers have noted the change conditions during 1928 with aggressiveness.

An official in the iron and steel industry of Canada made the statement to Hardware and Metal that although the business done last year was good, he believed that the present year's volume would exceed that. At present the industry is busy with every indication of continuing so for some time to come.

A few price changes have taken effect this week. In the Eastern part of the Dominion reductions are noted in wire. Ammunition discounts have been revised, with several changes shown. Other changes are pending, but have not yet been announced.

Manufacturers' Life Surpasses Records

The Forty-first Annual Report of the Manufacturers Life Insurance Company, as submitted to Policyholders and Shareholders at the Annual Meeting held on the 19th of January, indicates a year of marked expansion.

Another record in new assurances was established. The New Business for 1927 amounted to $77,576,008, bringing the Insurance in force at December 31st, 1927 to $402,554,431.

The assets of the company increased by eight and three quarters million dollars, and at the end of December reached the large sum of $76,483,181. Of this amount over twenty-seven million dollars is invested in government, government guaranteed and municipal bonds and more than twenty million dollars comprises first mortgages on improved real estate.

The payments to policyholders also constituted a record. Death claims amounted to $2,412,066; matured policies, annuities, etc., $3,219,065 and dividends to policyholders, $1,611,217. Payments to living policyholders totalled almost twice the sum paid beneficiaries under death claims. In addition to the above the company set aside $1,953,852, as dividends to policyholders to be paid during 1928.

Surplus earnings in 1927 were very satisfactory and have made possible an increase in the scale of dividends payable to policyholders for the fourth consecutive year.

CATCHY MUSIC IN COMEDY REVUE

"Leave It To Gloria" Contains Many Tuneful Song Numbers.

In this day of incessant jazz it is refreshing to the music lover to hear occasionally some music which while melodious and catchy is not written in the syncopated tempo of jazz. The score of "Leave It To Gloria," the musical comedy revue to be presented at the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday, is a pleasing, well-balanced combination of straight time music and the popular jazz type, and all of it is of that liltingly tuneful quality that delights the ear when it is heard and lingers there a long time afterward. It's the sort that's known as whistly.

The opening chorus is made up of five different melodies, all rollicking tunes in a nice variety of rhythms and tempos. Other catchy numbers are, "Tell Me, Pretty Daisy"; the fine ballad, "I Want You"; the attractive little story song, "The Tale of a Comet," with its delightfully swinging waltz refrain; the popular coon song, "I Want to See My Tennesee," to which the Pickaninnies romp through their darkey shuffles; the humorous patter song, "What Goes Up Must Come Down"; and the big ensemble number that closes the first act, 'Away to the Hotel."

In the second act the song hits are "Old-fashioned Rose," in which the old-fashioned Prim Roses appear with their luminous bouquets; the character song, "Hokey Pokey, Diddle Dee Rum," with the rube group in a characteristic dance; the Bowery number, "I Coitainly Must Be in Love"; the patter duet, "Gee-Whiz"; a real jazz number, "Down on Chesapeake Bay," with the Goldenglows in their gold costumes with the striking radium effect; the spook number, "Nightmare Blues," with its fast Yama dance; and the big finale, "Leave It To Gloria."

TRINITY CHURCH IS PROGRESSING

All Societies and Boards Report Success During Past Year.

ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED.

Sunday and Monday were days of great interest to Trinity Church and its congregation. The church was celebrating the day of beginnings. On Sunday morning and evening the large congregations were greatly inspired and profited by the scholarly and inspiring sermons of the distinguished preacher for the day, the Rev. Dr. H. Gandier, of Union Theological College, Toronto.

The music for the day was given by the choir, under the leadership of Miss Mabel Clarry. The choir has never appeared to better advantage, and the music of Sunday added greatly to the success of the day's services. Very particularly was the music appreciated when at the evening service the choir sang in almost faultless manner the great Hallelujah Chorus from "The Messiah." Sunday was the first appearance of Dr. Gandier in Trinity pulpit, and he was greeted by many of his friends in the city, who joined with the Trinity congregations to bid him welcome.

The sermon in the morning was based upon the story of "The Prodigal Son." In an entirely new way the preacher of the day presented a very striking and forceful sermon, on the wonderful possessions of the Child of God. In chaste language and close-fitting appeal he sought to show the wonderful heritage that belonged to the children of the Father.

The sermon closed with a word picture of the preacher's parental home on the banks of the Napanee River, and the boundless possessions that belonged to him in being permitted to live in God's world, enjoying all that had been provided in beauty and natural gifts that the Father had made possible for him.

The evening's message was a description of his recent visit to the Orient as one of the ambassadors of the United Church on a visit to the mission fields of the Church. For nearly an hour he held the rapt attention of the large congregation while he told the story of progress made in the field of missions in Japan and Korea. The problems faced, and the many yet to be met and solved, were graphically portrayed by the preacher.

A very deep impression was created and many were led to see in a new and very real way the great task before the Christian church in the Orient, and her great need of the Gospel of Jesus Christ The day was one of the best in the long record of anniversary days that belong to the memory of Trinity Church. Last night the Women's association was at home to the congregation and their friends. The congregation met in the auditorium of the church and was presided over by the pastor. It was the congregation's night to hear the report of the work of the church for the past nine months. The pastor conducted a brief devotional service after which the choir sang an anthem, and during the evening solos were given by Miss Stenson and Mr. N. Staples. All departments of the church reported progress.

The Woman's Missionary Society and Mission Circle have closed a remarkable year having gone beyond their objective and sent $1502 to the treasurer of the department. Every organization showed a fine healthy spirit and the church was never in better organized effort to do its task than it is to-day.

After all the reports had been presented Messrs. Brown, Campbell, Morrow and Smith spoke to them, on the work of the year, after which all adjourned to the basement of the chuch to enjoy refreshments and a social hour in conversation and fellowship.

This year's anniversary will be remembered as one of the best in the history of the church.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

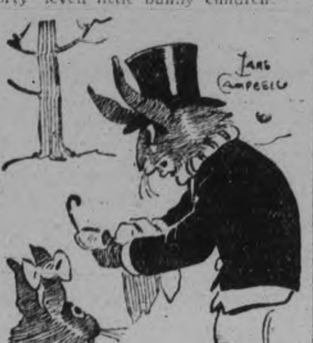
UNCLE WIGGILY'S GLASSES

"May I come with you today, Unkie Wig?" asked Baby Bunty one cold and frosty morning as the rabbit gentleman was getting ready to hop away from his hollow stump bungalow.

"I am not going any place special, Bunty," Mr. Longears answered with a pink twinkle of his nose.

"I know where you are going!" laughed Bunty, tying a blue ribbon on the back button of Uncle Wiggily's coat. "You are going adventuring and I should like to come with you. May I?" And Bunty tied a red ribbon on the other back button of the rabbit gentleman's coat where he couldn't see them. Oh, she was a little tyke, was Baby Bunty!

"Why, yes, you may come with me," said Uncle Wiggily. He had no idea how funny he appeared with those silly ribbons on the back of his coat. But he knew nothing of them. "Though wait! Hold on a minute!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "What about school? Why didn't you go to school with my forty 'leven little bunny children?"



Uncle Wiggily took off his glasses to wipe'm.

"Oh, I don't need to go today," Bunty answered. "The Lady Mouse teacher said I did my lessons so well yesterday that I needn't come today. So I am going adventuring with you. Hurray! Hurray! Hurray!" And Bunty clapped her tiny paws in delight.

"All right. Come along!" invited Uncle Wiggily and soon he and the little rabbit girl were hopping over the fields and through the woods. Uncle Wiggily peered through his glasses which he had to wear now and then, for he was getting old.

As Baby Bunty and Uncle Wiggily hopped along the Sly Weasel, who had been thawed from his cake of ice by the warm sun, saw them.

"There goes the rabbit who squeezed water on me from a sponge so that it froze!" snarled the Weasel. "I wish I could play him a trick!"

Just then Uncle Wiggily took off his glasses to wipe them clean, for the air was so frosty that a fog clouded the spectacles.

"Ha! I know what I can do!" whispered the Weasel.

"What can you do?" suddenly growled the Wolf, who slunk out of his den behind a big rock while the sly chap was watching Uncle Wiggily and Baby Bunty walking along the bottom of the hill. "Can you get me something to eat, Mr. Weasel?"

"Yes," snarled the Weasel, "I can. At the same time I can play a trick on that rabbit. Look! He has to wear glasses to see his way along, for he is getting old. Pretty soon he will sit down on a log to rest while Baby Bunty hops about. I know, for I have watched them many times before. And when Uncle Wiggily sits down to rest he always falls asleep. That is where I come in."

"What will you do?" asked the Wolf.

"I will creep slyly up while the rabbit sleeps," whispered the Weasel, "and I will take away his glasses. Then he can't see which way to walk. He will stumble around and fall down. You will be waiting and as soon as he falls you will rush up and catch him. Then you will have something to eat and I hope you will give me some for being so smart as to think of this trick. Will you?"

"I will," promised the Wolf. So the two bad chaps silently followed Mr. Longears and Baby Bunty until, just as the Weasel had said, the bunny gentleman became tired and sat down on a log to rest.

"I'll take a little nap, Bunty," he said. "You play about. I fear we shall have no adventures today."

Now while Uncle Wiggily slept and while Bunty played so far off she could not see what happened, the Sly Weasel tiptoed up and took Uncle Wiggily's glasses off the rabbit's nose. So softly did he do it that Mr. Longears never awakened.

"Now watch what happens!" whispered the Weasel to the hidden Wolf.

Bunty came back from her play, clapping her paws.

"Wake up, Uncle Wig! Wake up!" she shouted.

Up jumped Uncle Wiggily. He put his paws to his face.

"Why — why —" he murmured. "What has happened? I can't see! It is very dim and foggy before my eyes."

"Oh, you've dropped your glasses—that's all!" laughed Bunty. "I'll find them for you!" But though they both looked they could not find the glasses. And for a good reason—the Wesael had them.

"Dear me!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "I can't see to walk without my glasses. You will have to lead me, Bunty. But, even then I shall stumble and fall. Oh, what is going to happen?"

Just then the Weasel and Wolf came out of the bushes toward the two rabbits. But Bunty bravely said.

"Have no fear, Unkie Wig! I will save you! I will get you a new pair of glasses so you can see."

PROTEINS NEEDED IN YOUR DIET

All animal life requires a suitable amount of the various elements in order to maintain that life, and repair and build tissue. These elements are combined in different proportions and arrangements in the food adaptable for their use. One of these arrangements is a complicated combination of nitrogen, carbon, oxygen, hydrogen, and sulphur, so grouped in a form we designate by the name of "protein." The principal foods containing this special grouping of elements are meats, nuts, milk, cheese, fish, fowl, eggs, and the entire whole grains.

The largest amount of protein found without mixture with other food elements is that in the flesh foods. Of course, all organic life will be found to contain a varying amount of these protein compounds, but their mixture with other elements often makes them unsuitable for the best use by the digestive system of man and the animals.

The animals that obtain their proteins from the grains are forced to use also too large an amount of starch in combination in order to secure a sufficient amount of protein for their needs. They are, therefore, made sluggish and cumbersome because of the excessive amount of starch they are forced to use in order to get enough protein.

Animal life or human life could not long exist if denied this indispensable protein material requisite for cell growth and repair. Many experiments have been made by dietitians to prove the truth of this statement.

In the ordinary mixed diet no fear need be felt that not enough food containing protein will be used. About a quarter of a pound of meat daily will supply the average person with enough protein. The fault is that its mixture with other foodstuffs is such as to make it unfit for proper digestion and assimilation.

The usual course dinner often contains so many different proteins that three or four times as much is eaten as the body could possibly use in one day, no matter how large the body, or how active.

The urgent need is for everyone to learn how much of this kind of food the body can use, and how it should be combined with other foods to repair and build cell structure. This does not have to be measured in grams, and it is not necessary to carefully weigh each article of food for fear of using a dangerously large quantity. Nature is not so exacting in matters of diet, but allows for reasonable deviations from an approximate quantity.

The average person doing hard muscular work or taking a proportionate amount of physical culture exercise may with safety use as much protein in one day as that contained in two eggs and about a quarter of a pound of lean meat. In some cases a half pound of lean meat may be used without harm if the physical exercise is quite vigorous.

If there is a strong ethical objection to the use of flesh foods, nuts or whole grains may be substituted by those with strong digestive powers. Nevertheless, I have found that the most satisfactory results may be expected if the easily digestible flesh foods are depended upon to furnish the proteins, leaving more vital energy for other functional needs.

Questions and Answers.

Question M.A.A. asks "Will you please tell me if there is any way to fatten the neck without fattening the rest of my body?"

Answer The muscles of the neck may enlarged through exercise. A fat neck is not desirable, but a strong, graceful neck can be developed through certain tensing and other exercises which bring the neck muscles into more active use. An excellent exercise for developing the muscles of the neck is Place a pillow against the wall and, standing about two feet from the wall, lean over and press your face into the pillow, tensing the neck muscles while thus supporting some of your weight. Move the head slowly in all directions, at the same time pushing as if you were trying to push the pillow into the wall. Turn, with the back to the wall, and by pressing with the back of the head you can tense the muscles in the back of the neck.

Question Mary W. writes "The other day I read a recipe that called for tous-les-mois. Will you kindly tell me what this is?"

Answer Tous-les-mois closely resembles arrowroot. It is a starch obtained from the roots of various species of canna, especially the achira or canna edulis of West India and tropical America. It is used in the preparation of desserts such as blanc-manges, etc.

Question X. Y. Z. writes "I would be glad to know if psoriasis can be really cured. What should I eat, and what shouldn't I?"

Answer Psoriasis is easily cured through living on the proper diet I have written several special articles on this subject and will be glad to send them to you if you will send me your name and address.

HATED TO EAT BECAUSE OF STOMACH DISTRESS

If you can't eat, you can't keep up your strength, can't work, can't think, can't get any enjoyment out of life. In other words, you are in a dangerous condition; just ready to be attacked by some serious illness which you are not strong enough to resist. You are probably in the same distressing state that Mr. Frank Sprague, 110 Cathedral Ave., Winnipeg, was in when Tanlac came to his rescue.

"I had an attack of grippe", he writes, "which left me weak and thin. I lost my appetite and what little I ate caused such indigestion pains that I just hated to eat. I went to work, but seemed to have no strength and energy, and felt miserable and despondent. I took only three bottles of Tanlac; and now I am enjoying the best of health. Tanlac came to my rescue just in time and it did so much for me that I want to praise it all the time."

Tanlac relieves pain, gas, nausea, dizziness caused by indigestion—corrects constipation brings back sleep and appetite—puts you on your feet again. The cost is less than 2c a dose—less than 6c a day to be well.

Tanlac brings back appetite; helps you digest your food, gain in strength, increase in weight. Made of roots, barks and herbs—nature's own medicine for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today; your money back if it doesn't help you.

COME ON CANUCKS.

A recruiting song by Billy Breen, coach of the Electric Hockey club, Jan. 24, 1916:

Hark, hear the bugles calling once again,
And the air is filled with war and war's refrain.
From the broad St. Lawrence River to our far off Western plains,
The boys are proudly marching on their way.
See a soldier kiss his loved ones a fond good-bye,
See the sweethearts with a tear-drop in their eye,
Listen to the bands a-playing as the boys go marching by,
And this is what the music seems to say:

Come on Canucks and don't get left behind
For gallant sweethearts do not mind—do not mind;
Hearts every day must be aching,
But Johnnie hides a tear as he goes marching
Keeping step to martial time.
Marching proudly in his khaki gay,
The bands will play while we're marching away,
So come on Canucks and don't get left behind.

COBOURG W.M.S.

finances," stating that the allocation of $17,200 had not been fully met, the amount received being $16,800, and later when Mrs. Mears, the secretary of Church Stewardship and Finance, addressed the convention, she explained that $1,300 had not been arranged for in the allocations last year to the various Auxiliaries, the expectation being that some would go over the top, and thus the total would be met. The allocation this year for the entire branch is $100,000 an increase of $3,000 over that of 1927, and this will include the amount needed for supply work. The allocation to the Cobourg Presbyterial is $12,675, the membership in the Auxiliaries being 5,240; to the Oshawa Presbyterial the amount is $12,226. The ten cents per member for Presbyterial expenses was paid by most of the Auxiliaries last year, and will be expected again for 1928. One Auxiliary at Vernonville, was mentioned which carries on with only four members who really attend, with all the offices filled, and the full amount of its allocation raised.

Raising Funds Discussed

Some suggestions contributed to the convention for the raising of the funds were a Life Members' Club, that is a number of members joining together each to contribute one dollar or more as circumstances would permit, and this money to be used in making perhaps some shut-in one, or associate helper, or faithful officer, a life member; a house to house canvass had brought good results in more than one instance; one rural Auxiliary reported meeting in the morning at 10.30, working on a quilt, the groups taking turns at serving lunch at the noon hour, for which a small charge was made, having the regular meeting at 2.30 p.m., and so home later in the afternoon in time for the duties awaiting their return. An efficient treasurer who made it a point of honor to have the section of the allocation for each quarter alweays ready and remitted to the Presbyterial treasurer, was another working suggestion, and systematic giving was particularly stressed, for with this generally adopted none of the church funds could possibly fall behind.

Seventeen circles were reported in the Presbyterial, forty-two mission bands, 11 baby bands, and Mrs. V. Spargo of Bowmanville, secretary for the Young Women's Department, reported four of these organizations, and ten C.G.I.T. groups in affiliation, with a money contribution of substantial proportions.

Reporting for the Associate Helpers, Mrs. S. Wilson of Colborne, said that 154 of these are enrolled, $63.00 had been contributed through miteboxes, and eighty-five copies of the Missionary Monthly were subscribed for. The monthly envelopes were used for giving, and leaflets were distributed after they had been used at the regular W.M.S. meetings. As a result of a visitation at fifteen homes four new associate helpers had been secured on one charge.

The Supply Secretary, Mrs. James McKinnon of Cobourg had an encouraging report of well-filled bales sent last fall, and has still on hand hospital supplies, valued at $71.50, which will be used this year; she suggested valuing quilts (new) at $5.00 each, and noted that the requirements this year is for 50 quilts, 20 layettes, and generous contributions of knitted articles such as scarves, mittens, and sweaters.

The Strangers' Secretary, Mrs. Beal of Whitby, said: "I have three helpers who assist me in seeing that no one in our town is neglected. I believe this department should look after the Home boys in the community, the young people, such as school teachers, who leave for other places of residence and employment, laborers moving to other towns and neighborhoods, and that the sick ones should be regularly visited."

Suggestions Offered

Miss Alice Henwood of Port Hope, Literature Secretary, had a sheaf of valuable suggestions including the formation of a missionary reading club in which each member should buy one book, and these to be passed on, with a librarian to see that the resulting "library" is properly listed, and to know the location of the books at all times. Each group might choose literature on one particular field of missionary work, in place of a book, and pass this along. Slides may be obtained for merely the return express, and books for the postage only, the librarian to look after these if this plan is followed. Missionary Monthly magazines to the number of 1,411 are taken in the Presbyterial.

The Quiet Half Hour was in charge of Mrs. Ashton of Campbellford, but was curtailed owing to the late hour of starting the session. Separation into departmental conferences, with subsequent reports, and the Benediction brought the morning gathering to a close.

Mrs. Landour of Gore's Landing had the In Memoriam service with which the afternoon session opened, and afterward the reports of the conveners of conferences and a profitable discussion, was the order of procedure.

Mission Band Work

A very inspiring address on Mission Band Work was given by Mrs. George Kingston of Campbellford; among its leading points being the importance of forming Baby Bands so that the children grow up within the area of missionary education and endeavor. Unselfish Christian citizenship will thus be developed, and a world-wide outlook acquired. To illustrate to the children the tenth which the Lord requires the speaker said she had taken an orange, divided it into ten pieces and given these to one little boy, who immediately offered her a share; taking one slice she explained, "Now I have my tenth, and this is the way you give to God His portion."

Auxiliaries should remember the Band and its leader in prayer, should keep in mind the day of meeting, and occasionally visit the Band session, for it is the duty of the church to complete the work which Christ began, and we will never do this unless we win the children. Some hymns were suggested as suitable for use with the boys and girls, and visitation in the homes recommended.

The division of the Presbyterial into two sections—Cobourg and Oshawa—was formally announced, and arrangements for this necessary action completed following the president's address late in the afternoon's proceedings. Mrs. J. T. Daley, Branch President, took charge of this feature of the program.

The worship service for the evening gathering was in charge of Rev. Mr. Anderson, and the installation of officers was then proceeded with, Mr. Anderson being assisted by Rev. E. B. Cooke for this impressive ceremony. The list is: Honorary President, Mrs. Hellagh, Cobourg; president, Mrs. J. W. Roberts, Grafton; vice-president, Mrs. J. T. Field, Cobourg; second vice-president, Mrs. S. L. Terrill, Wooler; secording secretary, Mrs. George Hammond, Campbellford; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Rose Maitland, Brighton; secretary Mission Bands and Circles, Mrs. McKee, Baltimore; secretary Young Women, Mrs. H. Neal, Wooler; secretary Associate Helpers, Mrs. J. H. George, Millbrooke; secretary Missionary Monthly, Mrs. James McKinnon, Cobourg; supply secretary, Mrs. W. H. Harper, Warkworth; Christian finance and stewardship, Mrs. J. Mears, Port Hope.

Remove

Blackheads

this easy way

Don't let unsightly blackheads mar your complexion and worry you. Here is a new way of removing them—painless, simple and effective.

Simply fill a cup with comfortably hot water and tip into it a teaspoonful of Radox Salts. Dab on the part of the face affected. After a few minutes' treatment wipe your face dry and those ugly blackheads will have vanished. Lastly apply a little cold cream. Read this letter:

"I suffered from blackheads in the chin. I treated them as directed with Radox Bath Salts, and to my great delight found that I could rub the blackheads out with a rough towel. Now I have not a single blackhead left." E.B.

The Radox way eliminates all painful "squeezing out." Your skin is left free of red blotches—smooth and healthy. To-day ask your druggist for the economical ½-lb. pink package of Radox. It costs only 60c.—and to-night you'll be rid of bothersome blackheads. 11

ECZEMA LASTED TEN YEARS

On Knees, Would Itch and Burn. Cuticura Heals.

"From the time I was a small child I was troubled with eczema on my knees. It broke out in a rash and would itch and burn so that I would scratch it and cause eruptions. My stockings aggravated the breaking out, and I lost my rest at night on account of the irritation. Later it broke out on my arms. The trouble lasted about ten years.

"A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some, and after using one box of Cuticura Ointment and two cakes of Cuticura Soap I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Kathleen O'Connell, Port Dufferin, N. S.

MAIN SOURCE OF ASBESTOS SUPPLY

The famous asbestos deposits of the Thetford mining district, Quebec, have for many years been the main source of this mineral and still account for a very great proportion of the world's supply. More than $10,000,000 worth of asbestos, about 85 per cent of the world's supply, was produced in Canada during 1926.

IN MEMORIAM.

GRAHAM.—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Gunner Henry Graham, who died January 24th, 1927.

"Yes, dear Garnie, how we miss you;
But you're gone to happy rest,
Where the angels throng around you
And they'll crown you with the blest.

You have gone to be with loved ones
Who have gone on long before;
They are waiting, watching for you
Over on that golden shore.

Though your place on earth is vacant
And you'll come to us no more,
Yet we hope again to meet you
When our time on earth is o'er.

And in that land of song and beauty
Parting hands are clasped no more,
When we meet again, dear Garnie,
'Twill be where parting all is o'er.

All your days of pain and sorrow,
All your weary nights are past,
All earth's toils for you are ended,
You are safe in Heaven at last."

GEORGE STREET UNITED

Rev. R. T. Richards, M.A., B.D., of Port Perry United Church accupied the pulpit of George Street United church on Sunday and delivered very thoughtful and impressive discourses to the large congregations at both the morning and evening services.

At the morning service the text was taken from Matthew 6, chapter. 33 verse —'But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you.'

"Some people think that Jesus lived in a spiritual world and have visions of him with a halo around His head' but if any great teacher ever lived who was interested in the affairs and problems of the times, it was Jesus. We have some of the same problems confronting us in modern times as the ancient Jews had. We have the problem of food supply, sufficient fuel, the everlasting problem of raiment. These problems concern both individuals and churches.

"Jesus understood what a great problem the food supply was. As a boy He no doubt knew the scarcity of food in His own home, and other homes. One thing that Jews taught was that people should never be hungry and at this time there was great scarcity of food in Jerusalem and Samaria and a sufficient food supply was a great problem, but Jesus, with keen insight said, 'Seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and his righteousness and all things shall be added unto you.'

"Do you believe Him? For centuries we have been putting other things first. Is it any wonder people have said, Christianity has failed? Have we tried it? Everybody knows, who has studied the history of the world or the history of the Church, that we have not done so. We have tried to solve the problems in our own way from the viewpoint of developing our wheat fields, coal mines, textile industries, cotton fields we have made other thing s uppermost in our thoughts and relegated the Kingdom of God to the background. God refuses to allow men and women to ignore Him for He has put Himself in the centre of the universe.

"We have tried to establish this kingdom of righteousness, but first—we were concerned about the everlasting supply of good things of this world. These things do not satisfy. There is something in us that calls out to the Divine. Evening the worldling and sensualist is not satisfied, and when he has come to himself, as the prodigal did, Jesus says, 'Seek first the kingdom of God.'

"It is a long way from Babylon to Berlin, but both these great cities put other things first and thought of material greatness became all important. It has been a great struggle all down through the ages for food and clothing and material things have been the principal causes of wars.

"Even at the peace conference at Geneva when they come together to consider the reduction of armaments, Britain was afraid to reduce her navy for fear that her food supply might be cut off.

"I have a vision that before peace is firmly and everlastingly established in this world some great nation must throw themselves in the inferno and say 'I will do as Jesus did and trust God.'

"Jesus said His kingdom was in this world, but not of the world. When He stood before Pilate He said, 'I am going to be King.' Pilate understood Him in terms of material things, and Jesus meant the kingdom must be love in the hearts of men.

"Give us vision of this kingdom and instead of making us masters of scientific principles of mechanical inventions, make us first—make us masters of the eternal principles for which Jesus lived. Give us the vision, the perspective of things great. The message of Jesus Christ, that we may seek first the eternal things and so help on the kingdom of Jesus Christ."

At the evening service Mr. Richards took his text from the 13th chapter of Numbers, verses 30 and 31—"And Caleb stilled the people before Moses, and said, 'Let us go up at once and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it.' But the men who went up with him said, We be not able to go up, against the people; for they are stronger than we."

"Moses had sent out men to search out the land of Canaan and bring back a report to the Israelite people. The report said it was a rich agricultural land, a land flowing with milk and honey. It must have been a great hour in the lives of those people, after having suffered, as slaves in Egypt and enduring all the privations of their journey through the wilderness to have this land of promise of beauty and fertility within their reach, but they listened to the majority of those who had gone to search it out and were afraid to go up and possess it.

"Moses had led them out of Egypt and persuaded Pharaoh, after strange things had happened in Egypt, to let his people go and he had led them thus far on their journey to the promised land, but now they refused to listen to him; so, for forty years they remained in the wilderness with their problems, afraid to go up and possess the land of promise.

"It always seems easy to follow the majority, but this is not always the right way. God is continually marking off some lands of promise, of possession. Has He not done it down through the ages?

"Canada, sixty years ago was a land of danger, of difficulties for the intrepid pioneers who came to search out the land. But it was a land of promise, and what visions those early pioneers must have had of the future when they planned a vast railroad from the Atlantic to the Pacific and marked off our provinces and our highways.

"God is always marking off lands of promise. Mother sees great opportunities for her son or daughter, lands of promise. Mary, the Mother of Jesus, had these visions for her Son. Mary treasured all these things in her heart, marked off lands of promise for her First-born. Mothers create bounds of activities and mark off areas of service for their children.

"It was a wonderful hour in the experience of the Israelites when they saw the promised land. How their imagination must have been kindled and their hopes of the future raised, The Pilgrim Fathers held a similar experience when they first saw the shores of America, and the Cabots and Jacques Cartier, when they reached Canada—a land of opportunity, of promise, of liberty. Abraham Lincoln caught the vision of the emancipation of the slaves and said if he ever had an opportunity he would work to set these people free. It is a great hour in any man's life when he decides to what great cause he is going to dedicate his services. It is his Canaan of service, of usefulness.

"We also have the Canaan of spiritual things. Jesus has His in the hour when He gave Himself fully to the Father.

"Remember your opportunity is at hand. It is yours for the seeking. Go and possess this land. This life will bring responsibility in relation to spiritual things. We must dominate ourselves and say 'I am captain of my soul.' May we have the strength and courage to go forth and possess this spiritual Kingdom."

The music at both services was of a high quality. At the morning service Mr. Douglas Carlisle sang a baritone solo, and at the evening service, Miss Daisy Murray delighted the large congregation with a soprano solo.

A miscellaneous shower was held last evening at the home of Misses Jean and Marion McCannan, by the Volunteer Bible Class of Knox United Church, in honor of Mrs. Fisher (nee Dorothy Gillespie). A very delightful and happy evening was spent by all. One of the most outstanding features of the evening was a mock wedding, when Jean McCannan (bridegroom) and Marion Hill (bride) entered the living-room to the strains of the Wedding March, played by Miss Mildred Heatherington, with Miss Jean Ingram acting as a parochial minister. The garb worn was of the most ridiculous type, and caused much laughter and excitement from the onlookers. On Saturday afternoon a number of Badminton players from Port Hope motored to Peterboro to engage in a friendly contest with the local club. On the arrival of the players afternoon tea was served in the Recreation room of the Armouries. A large bowl of yellow daffodils decorated the table where tea was poured by Mrs. Robert Harstone. In the evening, before the departure of the players refreshments were again served, coffee being poured by Mrs. Arthur Stevenson. The management of this part of the day's program was in the capable hands of the Refreshment committee consisting of Miss Grace Reinhardt, Miss Effie Munro, Mrs. G. M. Lyons, Miss Marjorie Hatton, Mrs. C. D. Hewett and Miss Marion Harstone.

At six-thirty o'clock dinner was served at the Empress Hotel to the players and other members of the Badminton Club. Covers were laid for seventy. Dr. A. G. Howson, the captain of the Peterboro team, made a short speech welcoming the Port Hope players, and was replied to by Mr. Ryan, captain of the Port Hope team.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1928.

Astrologers read this as rather an uncertain day in which good and evil planetary aspects counterbalance.

This should be a fairly lucky day for seeking employment and opportunities and opportunities in foreign lands appear to beckon to Americans.

Engineers continue under the most favorable rule making for connection with important projects. Mexico will present contracts to many, if the stars are rightly read.

This may not be a lucky date for starting on an ocean voyage. Storms and even disasters are presaged by the stars.

Conjunction of Jupiter and Uranus today is held to be of far-reaching importance since it is believed to affect world finance.

Over Great Britain Mars sheds an influence held to be threatening and there will be much military excitement.

The rise of renewed faith in armed forces will be apparent all over the world, according to astrologers.

Russia, Poland, Roumania and Egypt are to be scenes of great peril from international misunderstandings.

Military dictatorship in China is prophesied by the seers who foretell Facist influences or at least a government on Fascistic patterns.

The south is to triumph over the north in China and the year is to bring problems even more serious than those of recent years, if the stars are rightly read.

While other countries suffer from the throes of revolution the United States is to prosper mightily and to gain in world power.

Unfortunately, nature is likely to reflect human unrest and hurricanes, cyclones and frightful storms will devastate countries in various parts of the globe.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a happy year in which new work as well as new social experiences are indicated.

Children born on this day probably will be of sunny nature and keen minds. Many artists are born under this sign.

Hints on Etiquette

1. What is one of the best ways to show your appreciation of a gift?
2. How much grace does the social law allow one in which to write Yuletide "thank you" letters?
3. Is it necessary to write long letters?

The Answers.

1. Acknowledge it at the earliest possible moment.
2. Two weeks after the holidays end.
3. No. A short note now and a letter later is the best rule.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith wondered as she lay in her hospital bed, with tears slowly trickling down her cheeks from between her closed eyelids, if any sinner had ever been more terribly punished than she was. Cherry, Bob, Fay, Rhoda and George, all of whom had clustered about her bed to celebrate her supposed cure from "amnesia," had gone off jubilantly for lunch.

And so Faith was alone with the terrible realization of the consequences of her sins of suspicion and jealousy. Cherry's self-sacrificing promise rang in her ears: "I won't take Hope away from you." That meant, of course, that Cherry would not marry Nils. The very solution of her own marriage problems which Faith had prayed for and schemed for had been on the very verge of accomplishment. Bob had persuaded Cherry to have the courage to face this tremendous new love which had come into her life. If she, Faith, had not stumbled into the situation, blinded by jealousy and suspicion, Cherry would have written Nils by this time, accepting his proposal of marriage. And now—now! All was spoiled. To protect Cherry and Bob from the shock of finding out the truth about her, she had seized upon their own explanation of her amazing collapse, had pretended, with the skill of a superb actress, that it had been her desperate grief over the prospect of losing baby Hope that had prostrated her. She was trapped. Nothing she could say now could possibly convince Cherry that her sister would be resigned to giving Hope up.

Her thoughts scurried frantically, like mice in a trap, seeking a loop-hole of escape. But she could find none. Cherry, the unaccountable, could be relied upon to make a supreme sacrifice, however selfish she might be in small matters. Undoubtedly the impulsive girl had already written Nils that a marriage between them would be impossible, because of Faith's passionate devotion to the baby. Certainly if she had not done so she would now, for she had given her promise to Faith that her sister and her baby should never be separated.

But there her scurrying, escape-seeking thoughts hit upon a tiny gleam of hope. Nils understood. Nils knew that Faith was on his side, that she desired the marriage. Thank God, Nils had taken her into his confidence He would scoff, to himself at least, at the idea of Faith's balking the marriage on those grounds. But—could he convince Cherry without casting suspicion upon Faith herself?

Maybe—Faith seized at a straw—maybe Cherry would be willing to leave Hope with her, and go alone to Nils' far-away farm. But she knew even as she grasped at it that it was a straw. Cherry, although she had not been a model mother, adored Hope. She would give up Nils rather than abandon her baby.

Faith was weeping agonizedly when George opened the door softly, his little black eyes beaming at her triumphantly, until they took in the fact of her bitter grief.

"Oh, George!" she cried brokenly. "You've got to help me again. I can't have Cherry's life spoiled. There must be some way out!"

CANADA'S WINTER SPORTS

Canada has always been noted for its winter sports. From the earliest times skating, tobogganing, and snowshoeing have had their devotees, and, with the increase in the urban population and the greater need for outdoor exercise to offset the strain of the close application to indoor pursuits, these forms of sport have been supplemented by ski-ing, curling, ice-boating and hockey.

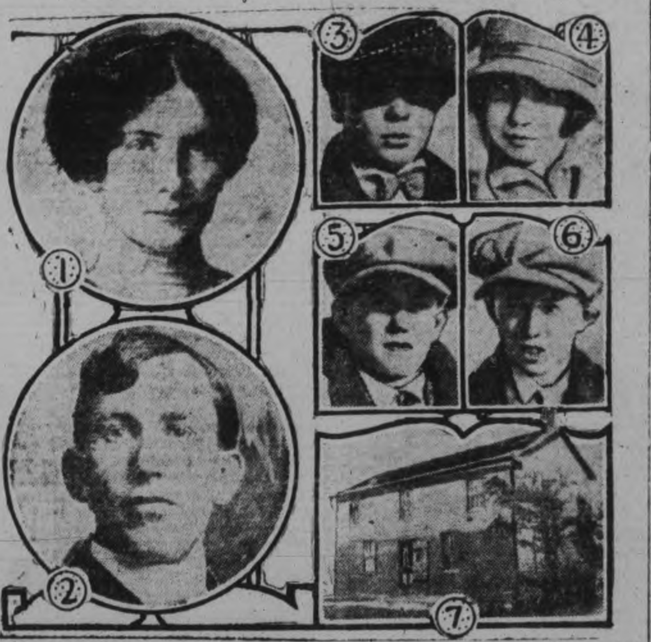
WOMAN CHARGED WITH MURDER



Mrs. Eleanor Howe, of Appin, Ontario, is being held by the authorities on a charge of murder following the discovery by her husband in a crib of the dead body of their three and a half year old daughter, Eleanor, an imbecile since birth. It was indicated the child had been strangled. Also revealed was the fact that the mother had been discharged from a mental hospital where she had been treated for "maniacal depression," induced, it was said, by the condition of the dead child. (1) shows Mrs. Howe, the accused woman; (2) her husband; (3) Jack Howe, 14, the eldest of four other healthy children; (4) Irene, 12; (5) Harold, 7; (6) Tom, 10; (7) the Howe home, where the tragedy occurred, which was once the Commercial Hotel.

MAPPING CANADA WORK OF INTEREST

Methods Different To Those Used in Surveying New Country.

In a new country such as Canada where pioneering conditions have been and still are accepted as part of our national life, the surveyor stands out as one of our romantic figures. His place in the popular mind is in the vanguard of progress, along with the discoverer and explorer, the fur-trader and all those whose efforts go toward the initial development of our unopened lands. In the colonization period after Confederation he played a major part. During these formative years of our country's growth he was entrusted with the distinctly important task of subdividing the untracked expanses of Canada's West into farm units, a work, which was carried out by the organization now known as the Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior. He was ever crowded by the increasing waves of settlement behind him and ever alive to the necessity of keeping ahead of them.

Occupied with such an urgent task wherein time counted for so much, he could not allow himself to be delayed in his work by attempting much beyond the actual immediate requirements. Thus it was, for instance, that he could not take time to record topographical data except in so far as the main purpose at hand was affected. That would have to wait until some more opportune time.

Now that opportune time is at hand. The surveyor has not yet given up the role of pioneer explorer, indeed for many years to come he must still play that role, but some of the effort that formerly went toward surveying farms for incoming settlers can now be turned to the equally important work of providing detailed topographical maps of settled areas as a necessary element in our national development.

The collection of the field information preliminary to the issue of such maps is a work of an admittedly different order from that of land subdivision. The camp of a surveyor engaged upon such work in settled country would present a different atmosphere to that of the subdivision survey camp on the frontier. Just as the farmer in the older districts no longer wends his slow way with oxen or in prairie schooners, so also the surveyor in mapping the same localities has eliminated from his camp the pack-horses or train-dogs and other features that distinctly belong to frontier surveying.

Your modern surveyor, engaged in mapping the countryside makes use of the motor car—he can speed up his work thereby—and he has found it convenient to include in his outfit such items as folding stoves, folding beds, folding tables, and folding seats. Indeed, everything that can be is carefully folded and reduced to the ultimate limit of its "collapsibility." Yet with all these elaborations of modern science and invention, the shelters of the survey parties still remain as mobile as the sheepskin tents of the nomad Israelites in the days of Abraham.

The usual equipment of the mapping party includes a chief's tent, a cook-tent which would probably also be a dining tent, perhaps another for stores, a number of sleeping tents and an office tent. In this unit, next to the chief himself it is commonly stated that the cook is the most important personage. Certainly he possesses capabilities far beyond those of any other member of the party for rendering camp life a pleasure or the reverse.

It is the office staff, however, who have made the greatest change in converting the primitiveness of the former survey camp to its present state. Their canvas office is not the less efficient in that its folding standing desk may be homemade, and that perhaps an oblong case, somewhat resembling a coffin on legs, which carries the instruments when the camp is on the trek, may do service as a bench. As a rule two draftsmen comprise the office staff. Their duty is to check up the work of the topographers and make the necessary computations so that when the field work is completed the actual process of compiling and plotting the finished map at Ottawa will not be delayed by unnecessary checking of field data. Their equipment usually comprises plotting machines, mathematical tables, slide rules and other drafting appurtenances, with possibly a typewriter, a stereoscopic drawing board for use in the interpretation of aerial photographs, and a high-powered gasolene lamp, the latter an invaluable aid for working at night. There are filing racks for field notes, correspondence, and aerial photographs (a modern aid in mapping, largely developed in Canada).

When it is remembered that camp must be moved far and frequently, without undue loss of time, the necessity for an orderly and business like system must be apparent. This system permeates every detail of the camp life from the disposal of refuse to the care of delicate instruments; from the cook's "roll out" at five in the morning, often until the "wee sma' hours" when all calculations on the field notes for the previous day have been completed and checked.

Since we are past the days when the only knowledge considered necessary about land was the location of its boundaries, the value of these surveys can scarcely be over-estimated. The resulting maps showing topographical features, particularly in a young country such as Canada, can enter into so many phases of its development that the wonder often is that they are not used more. And though these maps may not appear to have in them much that lies beyond the realms of the matter-of-fact, the data therefor has not been gathered without interesting incidents of all kinds in the "moving accidents of flood and field."

LINDY TRIES OUT OVERHAULED PLANE

Both Fit, He Announces, After Performing Many Stunts.

FRANCE FIELD, Cristobal, Canal Zone, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Col. Charles Lindbergh and his Spirit of St. Louis yesterday gave a convincing demonstration that they are both fit.

Lindy said so himself after giving his plane a test during which he did many stunts, much to the delight of a crowd which had gathered at the field to see the famous team of "we" back in the air again. The plane had been overhauled during the Colonel's hunting and fishing trip last week and the mechanics found that only a set of new exhaust valves were needed.

Boys Work On Dog While House Burns

KENOSHA, Wis., Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—While firemen battled to save their home Sunday night, George and Guy Cleary, brothers, were vainly using artificial respiration methods on a year-old Beagle hound, owned by George. The firemen found the dog overcome by smoke. They turned him over to the brothers, who gave up carrying furniture from the house in an unsuccessful effort to save the dog.

A surgical operation was one of the prizes offered in the recent London Stock Exchange "Help Yourself" Society competition.

D. E. Bell Will Head Marmora Board For Ensuing Year.

COMMUNITY DANCE HELD.

MARMORA, Jan. 24. — Marmora Public Library Board for the ensuing year will comprise the following: Chairman, Mr. D. E. Bell; Secretary, Mrs. W. F. Bowen; Treasurer, Mr. T. W. Rhind. Board Members—Mrs. C. A. Bleecker, Mrs. (Dr.) D. Thomson, Mrs. F. N. Marett, Messrs. H. Dunlay, F. S. Pearce, E. C. Prentice, and H. W. Sabine. Librarian—Miss Jennie Connor.

Dance Held.

Despite the blustery weather on Friday evening, good patronage was accorded the dance in the town hall under the auspices of Marmora Community Band. This evidenced the place which that aggregation fills in the affections of the townsfolk. Delmara orchestra, in playing for both square and round dances, fulfilled their second engagement since their formation in a manner provoking most favorable comment. Mr. Charles Jones acted as floor manager. A delicious lunch was served on prettily decorated tables.

YEAR OF ACTIVITY REPORTED AT CAVAN

Congregation Hears Reports of Officers of Church and Societies.

CAVAN, Jan. 24.—Cavan United Church annual congregational meeting was held in the basement of the church on Wednesday evening. There was a good attendance.

The pastor, the Rev. J. O. Totten, had charge of the meeting, which opened by all joining in singing the hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers," which was followed by prayer by the pastor.

R. S. Staples was appointed chairman for the meeting.

The first business of the evening was the reorganization of Cavan Sunday School for the year 1928, and the reading of the report of the school for 1927.

Clifford Elliott, secretary-treasurer of the school, read an itemized report of the receipts and expenditures, showing a balance on hand of $14.75. After a motion had been passed to contribute $10 to the maintenance and extension fund, the report was adopted.

The election of officers was as follows: Superintendent, H. Seymour; Assistant Superintendent, J. Douglas; Secretary-Treasurer, C. Elliott; Assistant, E. Snyder; Organist, Miss A. Tinney; Class No. 1, Primary—Teacher, Mrs. J. Douglas; Class No. 2, Juniors, Mrs. A. Kennedy; Class No. 3, Senior Girls, Mrs. J. Swain; Class No. 4, Senior Boys, R. Sutton; Bible Class, James Douglas; Assistant Teachers, Mrs. R. Syer, Mrs. A. Tinney, Mr. and Mrs. Will White; Cradle Roll Superintendent, Mrs. James Douglas; Missionary Superintendent, Mrs. Snyder.

The choir then sang "Volunteers are Wanted." Mr. Totten read two beautiful poems, "On Showing Appreciation."

The report of Cavan Centre Sunday School was given by Mrs. R. Matchett, showing that the school was making progress and had a balance in the treasury.

The financial report of Cavan Ladies' Aid was given by the treasurer, Mrs. James Douglas. This showed a splendid year's work on the part of the ladies of the church. Over five hundred dollars had been raised. At the end of December, when the books were closed, there was a balance on hand of $316.85.

Mrs. R. Syer gave the secretary's report of the aid, reporting a membership of thirty-two, with nine meetings held, besides the fowl dinner, pot-luck dinners and other social gatherings.

Mrs. J. Swain gave the report of the W.M.S., which has only been carrying on for a year.

There were seventeen members last year and eight meetings were held. Also, in July, the Society visited the Millbrook W.M.S. at its meeting held at the home of Mrs. T. Douglas.

In September it entertained the Bethany W.M.S. at the home of Mrs. R. S. Staples, the Bethany branch giving the program on that occasion.

She also reported that the Society had reached its allocation of $35.

The choir then sang "Keep the Heart Singing."

The ushers for 1928 are: Messrs. Ray Staples, Archie Matchett, Ralph Staples, Leslie Pritchard, Will Swain, Eldred Snyder, Norman Braithwaite, and Milford Byers.

Mrs. A. Kennedy was reappointed organist and choir leader.

A splendid report of the year's work was given by the treasurer, James Douglas, showing a balance on hand of $115. Mr. Douglas has acted in this capacity for a number of years and his report is always presented in good form.

After a hearty vote of thanks, Mr. Douglas was appointed treasurer for the ensuing year, and $20 was voted him for his services during the past year.

A vote of thanks was also tendered the choir for the efficient service which they had given.

The stewards appointed were: Messrs. William Tinney, R. Sutton, J. W. Perrin, H. Snyder, James Douglas, William Pritchard, H. Seymour, A. Kennedy, W. White, and S. Boyle.

Messrs. Ralph Staples and S. Boyle were appointed auditors.

Mr. Totten reported that there are 109 members on the church roll.

At the conclusion of the business, lunch was served by the ladies and a social time enjoyed.

LAKEFIELD CHURCH REPORTS PROGRESS

Presbyterian Congregation Has Growing Membership and Balance in Treasury.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 24.—The annual meeting of the Lakefield Presbyterian Church was held on Monday evening, January 16, in the Queen Street theatre, with a good attendance present. Rev. J. Ross was appointed to the chair. The meeting opened with singing a hymn, "O God of Bethel," and prayer, with a Bible reading following.

Andrew Fairbairn, session clerk, presented his annual report, briefly touching on the history of the Presbyterian Church in Lakefield following church union.

The first service was held in the Baptist Church on the afternoon of October 4, 1925, and these services were held every Sunday afternoon till May 16, 1926, when the congregation moved to the Queen Street theatre, and services have been held twice each Sunday since. The congregation had two elders Messrs. A. Fairbairn and R. White, and the following were appointed as Board of Management Dr. J. C. Smith, Messrs. J. W. Ridpath, J. M. Simpson, R. Duff, and R. Garbutt.

The first communion service was held November 14, 1926, with forty-two persons present.

On January 16, 1927, the duplex envelopes were adopted, and on January 2, 1927, a Sunday School was organized. On January 27, 1927, after the morning service, a meeting was held and the annual report read, which showed all debts paid and a working balance on hand.

On April 17, 1927, communion service was held with 62 present.

On May 22, 1927, two elders were elected, Messrs. J. W. Simpson and Alex Graham, to act with the two already serving. On June 5, an ordination service was held and these two gentlemen were ordained to their high calling.

Twenty-one persons have joined the church at the last two communions, some by certificate and a number by conviction.

On October 9 the Duff family presented a beautiful silver communion service to the church.

The Sunday School held its first annual tree on December 19, which was very successful and encouraging to the teachers of the school.

Rev. J. Ross reported twenty-five families in the congregation and eighty-two individuals under pastoral care, four elders, five members of the Board of Management, and twenty-five in the Sunday School.

Miss Lula Smith read the treasurer's report of the Sunday School, which showed a creditable balance on hand.

Mr. Fairbairn gave the treasurer's report, which showed a distinct advance over the previous year, and promised well for the future. The allocation of $50 for the General Assembly Missionary Budget had been paid. The balance carried over from last year was $17.55, and the amount received from all sources $1072. This year the balance is well over $100. The giving had been generous and voluntary.

The report of the W.M.S. was given by Miss Tanner, the treasurer and showed receipts of $133.86. The contributions are voluntary and a splendid bale was sent to the supply secretary, valued at $37.48. The amount of $75 was sent to the Presbyterian treasurer.

J. W. Simpson gave the report of the Board of Management, which showed advance along each line of work. Great progress has been made during the past year and the little group of Presbyterians have become a congregation.

The ladies of the church have an autograph quilt which they hope to make one hundred dollars, and of this Miss McKibbin reports $79.39 already received.

Mr. Duff and Mr. Fairbairn moved a hearty vote of thanks to Rev. and Mrs. Ross, who have labored so faithfully in the congregation, always ready to help in any way and giving unsparingly of their strength and talents to help the church forward.

Following the meeting, the ladies served refreshments and a social hour was spent.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 24.—The annual meeting of the Sunday School executive of the United Church was held on Wednesday evening, Rev. F. H. Howard being in the chair.

Smith, president of the Men's Organized Class, stated that there were 35 names on the roll, following a careful revision, and an average attendance of 20. Mrs. (Dr.) Rae is the popular teacher, and genuine appreciation of her faithful and efficient services was warmly expressed. The class contributed over $30 to the school funds, and assisted with the purchase of new hymn slides in December; they had taken charge of one afternoon's service at the Carmel church, and had brought the leader, orchestra, and a number of members of the Men's Bible Class from Uxbridge to take the evening service here on Rally Day.

That there is a real interest in better living on the part of the men was evident and this was considered the finest part of the good work being accomplished.

The Home Department has 37 members, and is now in charge of J. H. George, Rev. Joseph Wilks having recently been obliged to resign. The C.G.I.T., Tuxis Square, Trail Rangers, etc., were all reported, and plans discussed for the current year's work.

The matter of having a Decision Day in the school was fully discussed, and left in charge of the pastor and teachers. The next reception service for church membership will be in connection with the observance of the Sacrament, and the decision day in the school will be before that date.

The treasurer was authorized to pay last year's account at the book rooms, and the pastor dismissed the meeting with the benediction.

UNITED W.M.S. HEARS REPORTS

All the Societies at Millbrook Church Have Met Their

OTHER MEETINGS HELD.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 24.—The first meeting of the New Year of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the United Church was held at the Parsonage on Wednesday afternoon, the second vice-president, Mrs. H. E Smith, taking the chair. The president, Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Howard, was in Port Hope attending a meeting of the nominating committee, in preparation for the Presbyterial meeting to convene in the United Church in that town the following day.

Reports were received from the treasurer, Miss M. E. Hetherington, showing that $234.00 had been remitted to the Presbyterial treasurer at the conclusion of the nine months' year, from April to December 1926. The mission circle was reported by the past president, Mrs. J. McKnight, their allocation of $75.00 having been fully met, and the additional ten cents per member tax, $3.00 having also been sent.

Mrs. W. West read the report from the Sunshine Mission Band, in the absence of the superintendent, Mrs. G. W. Sayles. Thirty-eight annual members are enrolled. One new life member, Venner Lambert, was added in December, and the autumn thank-offering was $15.85. The course of study was "Two Little Arabs," and the average attendance was 17. The full allocation of $75.00 had been forwarded to the branch treasurer.

The secretary, Mrs. C. W. Richards, presented the Auxiliary report showing 65 annual members; 22 life members; nine meetings held in the nine months, with an average attendance of 40. A bale was sent in September, valued at $35.00. One member, Mrs. James Donaldson, had been lost by death, and one by removal, Mrs. Lambert, senior. The envelope system of giving each month had been adopted with a substantial increase in the funds thereby.

Reports from the nine groups were received, group D, Mrs. T. H. Aiken, convener, having the highest number of points, ninety-three. Some of the conveners were absent and there may be a corrected list presented at the next meeting which will be in charge of Group A, Mrs. F. H. Smith, leader.

Mrs. Rae read the devotional leaflet, "Courage for the Task," based upon Joshus 1:9—"Be strong and of good courage: be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest." The third chapter in the study book, "New Paths for Old Purposes" was taken up by Mrs. F. P. Stinson, Mrs. R. H. Edmunds, Mrs. T. H. Aiken, and Miss Burnham.

Mite boxes for the current year were distributed, and the group leaders were invited to meet at the parsonage on Wednesday to revise the membership for another twelve months. Mrs. Smith dismissed the gathering with prayer.

Bible Study Service.

A Bible study service is being conducted every Tuesday evening at 7.45 in the United Church Sunday School room, the subject for the next three months being "The Teaching Values of the New Testament," as outlined in the Standard Leadership Training Course. This is a regular department of Sunday School work for all denominations and any in the community who are interested are made welcome.

The average attendance so far has been 18, but there is no doubt that many more would find the study both profitable and enjoyable. Two certificates have been received on the section just completed, "The Teaching Values of the Old Testament," the recipients being Misses Margaret Luxon and Estelle Hetherington. Acts, chapters 1 to 12 is the assigned Bible reading for next week's lesson.

Auxiliary Meets.

The Junior Missionary Auxiliary of Saint Thomas' church held its annual meeting in the Sunday School hall last week, Mrs. (Rev.) P. C. Howard being in the chair.

The reports for the year showed many helpful activities, including a bale sent to the Diocesan W. A. House, Toronto, at Christmas time, a bale last spring prepared for a mission field, and a quilt which the children helped to make and which was also for missionary purposes.

The officers for 1928 are
Superintendent—Miss Muriel Smith.
Secretary—Eva Howson.
Treasurer—Mary Vance.
Pianist—Kate Donnelly.

The Junior W.A. meets once each month with work and study suited to the ages of the members. Keen regret was felt on account of the illness of one interested, and active little member, Henrietta Grassett, who was not able to be present, but was remembered in the closing prayer.

Y.P.L. MEMBERS HEAR FINE PAPER

World Brotherhood is Topic Discussed at Bailieboro Meeting.

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 24.—The Y.P League met in the church on Tuesday evening under the direction of the third vice-President, Archie Deyell.

Eric Earnshaw had charge of the devotional exercises, after which the vice-President of the Citizenship Department gave an excellent paper on "World Brotherhood." At the close of the paper an interesting discussion was held on the subject and many splendid points were brought to light. The young men especially had some interesting arguments over this topic.

Aylmer Dawson gave a humorous reading, while Messrs. Fred and Charlie Barnard and Herb. Dean gave an outline of the proceedings at the Cobourg winter school which they attended as delegates last week.

Among the ladies of the church who attended the W.M.S. convention in St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough this week are Mrs. H. W. Foley, Mrs. Hadiel Dawson, Mrs. W. H. Barnard.

Since Sunday's snow-storm, the sleighing has been excellent on the Provincial highway as far south as Bewdley.

Mount Pleasant

MOUNT PLEASANT, Jan. 24.—Mr. T. Harkness, of Cavan, spent a few hours in the village on Wednesday.

Farmers are busy getting out their yearly supply of wood. The continued mild weather is not good for this work as there is comparatively no frost in the swamps, making it very difficult to get the wood out.

Mr. Payne, of North Monaghan was in the village on Wednesday on business.

Mrs. Winslow, of Cavan, was in the village on Thursday and resumed teaching her class of music. Mrs. Winslow has not been able to teach for a number of weeks owing to the illness of her father, Canon Allen in Millbrook. Rev. Mr. Allen's condition is much improved.

Mr. T. Donaldson, of Millbrook was in the village on Wednesday.

Friends of Mrs. A. Tully will be pleased to hear that she is improving after her recent illness.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Rutherford opened her home to the January meeting of the Women's Institute. In the absence of the President, Mrs. Ira Lowe, the vice-President, Mrs. Thos. Graham, took the chair. The meeting opened with the singing of the Institute Ode, followed by all repeating the Lord's Prayer.

The roll call—"A Good Book to Read" was answered by Mrs. G. Shield, Mrs. T. Graham and Mrs. G. Jamieson.

The Sick Committee reported having remembered the sick and shut-ins with fruit and flowers at Christmas.

It was moved by Mrs. Graham, seconded by Mrs. Jamieson, that the members meet the following Wednesday to quilt and finish the quilt, which has been made for a needy family by the members contributing blocks.

Members reported having received the Blue Books sent out by the Department.

Readings were given by Mrs. Shield and Mrs. Jamieson.

Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Jamieson and Mrs. McLean, while a social half hour was spent together.

Those present included: Mrs. R Graham, Mrs. McLean, Mrs. G. Shield, Mrs. Josiah Best, Mrs. T. Graham, Mrs. Rosenburg, Mrs. C. Morden, Mrs. Rutherford, Miss Easton and Miss Juan Shield.

ST. ANDREW'S HAS YEAR OF PROGRESS

Warkworth Congregation Hears Good Reports at Annual Meeting.

WARKWORTH, Jan. 23.—St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church annual congregational meeting was held on Wednesday evening, January 18. Rev. D. A. Thomson, of Hastings, Interim Moderator of the session, occupied the chair. The several reports received showed the year 1927 to have been one of the best in the history of the church. Votes of thanks were moved by the congregation to the different executives and to the Session and Board of Managers, for their services of the year. James Runciman was elected as a new member to the Board of Managers, J. Andrew Weatherson was re-elected secretary and J. W. Mowat was elected Treasurer. Robert Walker, retiring as treasurer, after a service of over twenty-five years, received a very cordial vote of thanks. The congregation also expressed its thanks to Mr. Thomson for his interest in the church, and his presence at the meeting.

A unanimous vote of appreciation was extended to Louis Fowler, B.A., of Knox College, who continues as student-minister of the congregation. At the close of the business meeting a musical program was provided and refreshments were served.

LONDON WINS AT RAVINA RINK

Defeats Home Team 2-0—Stratford Wins at Falls 2-0.

LEADERS BOTH WIN.

TORONTO, Jan 24. — London did not have much trouble changing its losing ways at the West Toronto Arena last night, beating the Ravinas 2 to 0, in the most uninteresting fixture of the local Canadian Professional hockey schedule. Ravinas seemed to have lost all the punch and power that made them a winning combination early in the season, and in defeat at the hands of London's Panthers they sustained their third shut out of the season—all on home ice. Whether it is loss of material or the prospect of playing before barren benches is the cause of the Ravinas' downfall is doubtful, but both can be blamed a little

Stratford 2; Niagara Falls 0

NIAGARA FALLS, Jan 24.—Stratford Nationals stepped in here last night and carried off a 2 to 0 victory in a Canpro game with Niagara Falls Cataracts. The game which was witnessed by some 1550 fans, was speedy and interesting throughout. Though the homesters had some bad breaks when Falls' goals appeared in the offing the Nationals had an edge on the play and their victory was well earned.

Olympics Hold Lead.

DETROIT Jan. 24. — The Detroit Olympics with a hard attack in the first two periods against Hamilton here last night, tallied the goals that were enough to ensure a win despite the Tigers' strafing offensive in the final session and protected their lead in the Canpro loop, the final score reading 2 to 1. Hamilton notched its lone goal in the closing session.

Jack Arbour opened an evening of sensational attacking when he slipped through the Tiger front line, cut a sweeping circle around the defence, and shot a pass to Bernie Morris who swept into the goal mouth and dented the twine. Roth and Brydson engineered an attack at Stuart but could not gain entrance within the Detroit defence, with Brydge and Arbour using the body check with lavish generosity.

Retain Position.

KITCHENER, Jan. 24. — The Kitchener Millionaires defeated the Windsor Hornets 4 to 1 in a Canpro fixture here last night, strengthening their hold on second place. The Windsor club played far better hockey than on their last appearance, but as the game progressed they bowed to the more polished play of the Oke team.

It was a fair game of hockey with the interest and speed increasing as the game progressed. the contest pepping up as they went along, although there was not any rough play. In the final period Connelly, who had played a hard game, was given a penalty, and when he argued the point with Referee Munro, it was increased to a major, with a $10 fine tacked on.

LEADS ATTACK ON U.S. FORCES

General Augusto C. Sandino, leader of the Nicaraguan rebel forces, who is directing the efforts of the insurgent Nicaraguans in their pitched battle with the United States marines at Quilal. According to Major-General John A. Lejune, marine corps commander, Sandino is a "bandit and murderer." Efforts are being made to eliminate him before the presidential elections. Sandino is part Indian and calls his men "The wild beasts of the mountains." Their flag is a skull and cross bones.

ONE-MINUTE INTERVIEWS

TY COBB SAYS:

Now it seems I am to pass from the picture as a big leaguer after 22 years of service. I draw these conclusions in making a comparison of baseball as played in 1905 and the years that followed with the brand of 1927.

In only one respect do I think the modern game has it on the game of 20 years ago, batting. And I feel that this decision calls for certain explanations.

The improvement in batting must largely be confined to slugging. Yet, I don't believe the modern day sluggers such as Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and men of that stamp were so much greater than Sam Crawford, "Buck" Freeman, "Gavvy" Cravath and Frank Baker. If the last four named had the same lively ball that is now in use, I feel any one of them might have rivaled the slugging feats of the first two.

The pitching isn't nearly so good. In the early days of my career most clubs had at least four stars on their pitching staffs; now, few clubs boast more than two outstanding hurlers.

Since I have given the lively ball as my explanation of the improvement in batting, I probably should also offer it as the reason for the decline in pitching, if I am to be consistent.

Of one thing I am positive; there has been a marked decline in smart baseball. A one-run system requires strategy, skill on the bases, aided by effective work by the batsman through the medium of the bunt or hit and run. Getting runs in clusters, the common custom these days, largely calls for brute strength.

Yet, with all its faults, it's still the greatest of games.

SPORT BITS

MAHARAJAH TAKES FALL.

MELTON NEWBRAY, Eng., Jan 24.—(Canadian Press).—The young Maharajah of Cooch Behar (India), had a fall while hunting with the Quorn Hounds yesterday, but was not hurt. The Prince of Wales hunted with the same party.

On Saturday the Maharance of Cooch Behar was unmounted when a horse collided with her mount and was quite seriously injured.

MAKE FINAL ATTEMPT.

TANGIER, Morocco, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Miss Mercedes Gleitz, London typist, who has made several attempts to swim the Strait of Gibraltar, expects to make a final attempt from Cape Spartel at 1.30 a.m. today. Sea conditions were good last night with a slight mist over the water.

WIRES ENTRY.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Dr. Otto Peltzer, famous German runner, yesterday wired his entry for a half-mile race in the Millrose A.A. indoor meet, February 2, at Madison Square Garden, conditional upon approval from the National Amateur Athletic Union. The A.A.U. already has under consideration a request to sanction three competitive appearances by Peltzer in this country and expects to reach a decision today.

WILL FIGHT FEBRUARY 6.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Jack Delaney will not fight again until February 6, the former light heavyweight champion announced last night, upon his return from a visit to his parents in Holyoke. "I was never matched to meet Battling Levinsky in Pittsburgh on Friday night", he declared, "and my bout with Jack Warren in Elizabeth, N.J., on February 3 is also off."

Who Delaney's opponent will be February 6, and where the fight would be staged, could not be learned.

Committees of Fair and Other Directors To Hold Meeting.

The members of the Livestock committees of the Peterborough Exhibition and other directors interested in livestock, will meet on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in Mayor Denne's store, Water street.

STANLEY CUP FIGHT REACHES HALFWAY MARK

Les Canadiens So Far Ahead They Figure to Win Championship.

RACE WELL SETTLED

New York Rangers Certain of Place in Hockey Play-Off.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—They are beyond the half-way mark now in the chase for a place in the Stanley Cup playoff, or the world series of hockey. Most of the clubs went bounding over the mark during the past week, and while some changes in relative standing are likely during the closing half of the race, one may get a fairly accurate line now on some sure survivors for the playoff series.

Race Well Settled.

In the American division, which includes the New York Rangers and the teams representing Boston, Detroit, Pittsburgh and Chicago, the line between survivors and also-rans is fairly well drawn at this stage of the race. Both the Pirates and the Blackhawks, representing Pittsburgh and Chicago, respectively, have been big disappointments, and only a phenomenal spurt will carry either of these teams into the play-off series.

There is a keener battle for positions in the International group, which includes the four Canadian teams and the New York Americans. Les Canadiens, of Montreal, have stood out to date so far above the field that their closest neighbors are miles away.

In Morenz, Gagne and Joliat, the team has the outstanding forward trio of the game today.

Montreal Maroons and the Toronto and Ottawa teams are putting up a stirring struggle for second place, and they are so close that the standing is changing frequently. The New York Americans, though more successful than the Pirates and the Blackhawks of the other group, have been taking too many setbacks to hope for a place in the play-offs. They are not distanced, it is true, but they have been losing too frequently and their scoring power has been anything but impressive. It will take a tremendous spurt to carry them high in the race and keep them there.

Six Teams Eligible.

Three teams in each division will have an opportunity to figure in the series for the Stanley Cup. Second and third place teams in each group will play for the privilege of meeting the group's leading team, and the ultimate winner in this three-cornered fight will qualify for the final of the cup series. The two survivors will then engage in a series for the championship and the cup.

Last season the New York Rangers qualified in the play-offs, but were eliminated before the finals. The Ottawa Senators won the top honors then. The rule changes have not helped the Senators, and this year they are well down in the race, far behind Les Canadiens.

It is several weeks to the Stanley Cup play, but it will be no surprise if the series final brings together Les Canadiens and the Boston Bruins. And on present form, the Canadiens should win.

ARNOTT GIVES PRESTON LEAD

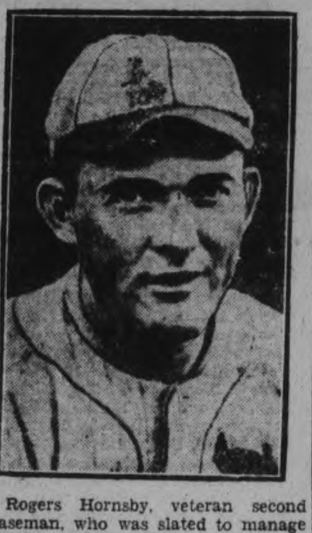
Scores Three Goals Against Varsity To Win Game in Toronto.

TEAM LEADS SERIES.

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—"Gunner" Arnott's fusilade of shots, which resulted in three goals, sent Preston Riversides over the top in the O.H.A. Senior standing and defeated Varsity last night at U. of T. rink by 4 to 3. The ancient marksman also figured in his team's other goal by giving Wade the pass which preceded the score in the early minutes of the game. But Arnott's performance was rivalled by that of the youthful Mel Harley, who holds the right flank salient for the Blue. Harley registered all of his team's goals, two of them on clever individual attacks and the other from a well-executed play by McMullen.

Preston's feat in invading the Blue stronghold and winning augurs ill for Varsity championship hopes. Previous to this engagement the Blue had swept serenely through four championship contests winning them all in handy style. Riversides had won two straight games and their trio of victories sends them to the top of the standing, and Varsity with four wins and one loss is relegated to the second position.

TRADE IS SURPRISE.



Rogers Hornsby, veteran second baseman, who was slated to manage the Giants and who was valued at $200,000, but instead has been traded to Boston for Francis Hogan, a catcher, and Jimmy Welch, an outfielder. Hornsby was one of the batting leaders during the 1927 campaign, he was voted the third most valuable player in the National League, and it was generally believed that since he had proved himself a brilliant field general he would succeed John J. McGraw whenever the "Little Napoleon" chose to step aside.

BOYS ENTERTAINED.

Girls' Class of St. George's Sunday School Serves Banquet.

A very enjoyable party was held in St. George's Church basement Friday evening, when the Senior Girls of the Sunday School, with their teacher, Mrs. Andrews, entertained the Senior Boys at a banquet. Mr. Tucker, teacher of the boys' class, with Mrs. Tucker, and Rev. J. L. and Mrs. Hughes, were also present. The guests were received by the girls, who promptly took charge of coats, etc., making everyone feel at home. The shaped tables, prettily decorated with paper runners and candles in silver holders, were laden with good things when all sat down at 6.30. The girls made very efficient waitresses, the whole being supervised by Mrs. Andrews, who was ably assisted by her daughter, Mrs. R. Arnott. Phyllis Simmons, in a few well chosen words, welcomed the guests, and was supported by Chrissie Milby. At the conclusion of the meal George Houghton, on behalf of the boys' class, proposed a vote of thanks to the girls, this being seconded by Clarence Hopkins. The rector and Mr. Tucker both expressed their appreciation and thanks for the happy time spent, and hopes were expressed that this would not be the last gathering of this nature. The remainder of the evening was spent in music and games.

MUST ACCEPT LOWER SALARY

Speaker Must Voluntarily Reduce Own Salary, Says Clark Griffith.

HAS NEW FIELDER

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Tris Speaker will not perform in the role of a Washington outfielder this season unless he voluntarily reduces his own salary, Clark Griffith, president of the Senators Club, said here yesterday.

Griffith, whose club holds Spring training here, declared the first move is "up to Tris", adding that he had a likely recruit in Sammy West, secured from Birmingham, of Southern Association, who would probably appear in the centre garden if Speaker failed to come to terms.

MAKE NO OVERTURES.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Tris Speaker will make no overtures to the Washington Baseball Club in regard to a reduction in his salary. Neither has he considered any offers from minor league clubs.

The Senator centre fielder stated his position to the Associated Press yesterday when he passed through Birmingham en route from his home in Texas to Georgetown, S.C., where he will do some hunting and conditioning prior to the opening of the baseball season.

Replying to a statement made in Tampa yesterday by Clark Griffith, president of the Senators, that he must voluntarily reduce his own salary or give up his berth with the Senators, Speaker said it was not his place to offer terms to the Washington owner.

Products made by pupils of the professional night school of Buenos Aires, Argentina, were sold at the close of the term recently for the benefit of the pupils and the school.

Claiming that her husband assaulted her with a frying pan because she had her hair bobbed, a woman recently applied for government relief at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England.

WILSON'S BACHELOR

BOWMANVILLE RALLY IN THIRD GIVES THEM 6-1 WIN OVER PETES

Visitors Score Four Goals in the Last Period, Breaking Up Close Game.

PLAY MORE HOCKEY.

Without Outstanding Players, Visitors Work Well Together Petes Outlucked.

After being held to a one goal lead for two periods, the Bowmanville Juniors stepped out in the final twenty minutes of their engagement with the Peterborough Juniors at Brock Street Rink last night. The final count stood 6—1 in their favor.

Such a count might lead one to think that the Petes were badly outplayed but any of the fairly large crowd of fans will say that such was far from being the case. The locals had their share of the play throughout, but inability to get a passing game under way and over-anxiety to get the man proved their downfall. They failed to register in the first session, while the visitors got one; both outfits counted once in the second stanza, and in the third the Bows registered a quartette while the home town lads had to be content with giving the invaders' citadel plenty of bombarding. Certainly there were several breaks that should have come their way when, on occasions, Calladine, Kennealley and LeBarr climbed right through.

The Bowmanville team deserved their win. They played more hockey and less Cowboy and Indian, serving but three penalties to the Petes' five. Calladine, the bad man of the night, had four sentences in the cooler.

As for the star—there weren't any. The visitors' forward line worked hard, shot often and checked hard while their defence teamed up well. Hooper, in the nets, turned in a nice job, the goal that beat him being of the hot variety. His little tiff with Calladine proved interesting while it lasted.

As for the Petes, they were all good while they were playing hockey. Bob Allen, as clean a player as they have, worked nicely on his own rail while Kennealley got in some real hornet work and was right through on several occasions. LeBarr, usually a strong attacker, confined most of his efforts to breaking up rushes, while his partner, Calladine, was capable of turning in a very useful performance, as he showed on several neat solo efforts. Gillespie worked well in back and could not be blamed for some of the shots that beat him.

First Period.

Referee McCarthy sent the boys into action sharp at 8.30. At the face-off the visitors struck out with a rush that came to naught and back came the Petes in an equally fruitless start that left the puck in mid-ice. Close checking and weak attempts at combination saved the goalies any effort whatever until, after five minutes of jockeying, Ted LeBarr took a jaunt down the right rail and eventually got a shot in. Hooper turned it aside and both teams settled into position. Nevertheless, passes didn't carry through and play became slow. At this stage, the invaders were particularly wary until Bob Allan went to the cooler for cross checking, then the Bows tried to capitalize. They got in three or four shots, two of them of the close-in variety. Allan came back on and it looked as though the Petes might come out of retirement but Calladine took his first trip to the box soon after and the homesters were again in the minority. Play opened up slightly, though still around the centre ice and in a spill Williams was hurt. He went to the rest room, being replaced by Jackman.

Fourteen minutes had passed and a break was bound to come. Calladine looked dangerous on a rush that afforded him two shots but Hooper cleared nicely. Flash Rundle was chased for throwing his stick; Williams came back on after being doctored up and between he and Osborne they gave Gillespie a few anxious moments. Then it happened: Calladine and Shields went down together and while they were away from home, Osborne cleared with the rubber, picked up Rundle half way up the stretch and together they went in. Rundle took the pass inside the blue line and gave Gillespie little chance. It was the first score of the evening, coming nineteen minutes after hostilities opened. The Petes threatened immediately after but the going left them without a counter.

Second Period.

Individual play was even more prominent in the second period than in the opening stanza. The close checking that broke up the first Bowmanville rush was handed right back with interest by the visitors and only occasionally did the goalies have any close-in shots to handle. Cripps and Allan featured in one of these attacks but Lady Luck wasn't with them. Rather she smiled upon a teammate, Kennealley by name, who recovered the disc near centre ice, after the opposing forwards had gone down. He went over to the left rail, passing the defence en route—then doubled back and drove it past Hooper without the slightest compunction. That was five minutes after the period opened.

With the count knotted, both outfits began to forget their manners and for a few minutes the fans saw some real tidy performing. Both goalies were given a chance to show with long heaves quite numerous.

Osborne took a rest for slashing and Jackman, fresh in the battle, went down the left side and shot from the blue line. Gillespie lost track of the rubber and it landed in the twine. Calladine found the going not to his liking and proceeded to show a streak of bad temper that brought him two penalties in quick succession. The second one was the result of a run in with Hooper. The Petes' defenceman carried the rubber up and shot at the Bows' goalie after the bell had rung for an offside and Hooper resented it. Teammates nipped the fray before it got nicely under way and both players were put off. Yet try as they might, the Petes were unable to get in a single shot at Osborne who guarded the visitors' doorstep while Hooper was off.

Playing six men each, both outfits stepped pretty fast toward the finish but no further score resulted and they left the ice with the count standing 2-1 for the invaders.

Third Period.

The final session was far from gentle. Calladine came out with a chip on his shoulder and his teammates were not slow to follow his example. Neither were some of the opposition. Out of a resultant spill that left LeBarr far from home, came the count that put the Petes two goals down, Osborne rushing and handing McMullen a nice pass. The score came two minutes after starting. Three minutes later, Rundle covered himself with glory with two quick goals. He picked up the puck at the face-off after an offside and shot from the blue line. Just to show it wasn't accidental, he repeated the process half a minute later, this time skating right in on Gillespie before driving.

The Petes, though getting a bunch of bad breaks, nevertheless, put up a hard fight and Calladine led another rush, this time in the opposite direction. He and Cripps went down together and he shot. Hooper held the puck and the fiery Irishman bumped him back into the nets but apparently it didn't register with the officials and play shifted back to centre ice. Allin, Osborne and LeBarr figured in a spill and Osborne was hurt but he stuck gamely to his task and helped hold out the Petes who swarmed up in fours. Calladine got another rest for trying to renew acquaintance with Hooper and while he was off McMullen took a lift that went in off Gillespie's skate. Half a minute later, the game was over.

Referee—McCarthy.

SPEEDY, CLEAN HOCKEY ORDER IN LINDSAY TILT

Midgets and St. John's Tie Into Each Other at Brock St. Tonight.

BOTH CONFIDENT

Two Junior Outfits at Full Strength for Important Game.

The Junior O.H.A. battle at Brock street rink tonight should provide the fans with plenty of excitement and an hour's fast clean hockey. The Lindsay and St. John's teams in their series this season have been paying strict attention to the game itself and the result has been a very small number of penalties and no deliberate rough stuff, making each game the kind of battle the average fan enjoys.

The Saints came within an ace of beating the Midgets on Lindsay ice last week and they are confident of their ability to turn the trick tonight and put over their first O.H.A. victory of the year. They have benefitted by the games already played and many of the rough spots have been ironed out making the new Peterborough entry a much more formidable team than they were three weeks ago when inexperience and lack of practice together were big handicaps to them.

Both teams expect to be at full strength tonight and they will give all they have to put over a win. There should be plenty of action ever minute of the battle which gets under way at 8.15 o'clock.

The prices are 25 and 50c and the crowd should be the largest of the season for a junior fixture.

CAMPBELLFORD BEATS STIRLING IN EXTRA TIME

Twenty Minutes Overtime Needed to Settle Game at Stirling.

FINAL SCORE 3-2.

Homesters Score First Goal in Fast, Hard Fought Trent Valley League Match.

CAMPBELLFORD, January 24. — There were more people in the Stirling Arena to witness the Trent Valley League fixture last night between the home team and Campbellford, which the visitors won, 3-2, in 20 minutes' overtime, than have displayed that amount of interest on any other similar occasion. The solution lies in the fact that the Stirling fans had every confidence in their players and there were a good many people from Campbellford whose convictions were of sufficient strength to journey to Stirling to witness the struggle. From the first minute of the play, till the last of the twenty minutes' overtime, the crowd was literally on its toes with eager excitement. Stirling scored the first goal, and held the visitors scoreless for the first period. In the second period, the tables were reversed and the score a tie with one goal all round. In the final period each team got a count and overtime was necessary. In the first ten minute overtime period, neither side tallied, and when Cowell scored after four minutes of the second period had gone, the game was practically won, since Stirling failed to score in spite of their desperate scientific and concentrated efforts.

Of the five goals scored, Cowell for the visitors scored three and the local players divided their honors between J. Ackers and Wallace. Ross Burtt, referee from Trenton, had a man size job on his hands. The game was one of the fastest yet played in the league and his eagle eye needed to be everywhere at once. Fans from both camps gave him credit for his fairness and efficient manner.

First Period.

About a minute after the face off, Ingram, Campbellford, was penalized for bodying his brother into the boards in the corner of Campbellford defence area. Fox saved a fast shot from the blue line, and a minute later Cowell got a penalty for tripping just as Ingram came back on the ice. J. Ackers scored for Stirling on a three-man combination which carried the local forward line well into the visitors' defence area. The Stirling supporters were wild with delight, and a moment later Thompson missed an open shot which looked like another counter for the Stirling team. Ibey worked his way out and all the way down, but Hulen managed to save his shot. The game stayed in the Stirling area for a few moments. Then Stirling rushed and shot, followed in for the rebound, and missed both shots. Fox won his spurs by his stonewall defence in the brief period. Hulen for Stirling came in for the honors a moment later, and then it was Fox's turn again. Campbellford's three-man combination failed to score even when they got a neat shot on a rebound, but they were going strong. An offside on the visitors' blue line saved an open shot on their goal. Ibey was going top speed, and for a moment the play was dangerously near the Campbellford goal.

McArthur took a shot from the Stirling defence line, but Stirling managed to work it out and take a long shot on the Campbellford goal which Fox saved. Then the struggle centred around the Campbellford goal till Cowell broke away for a one-man rush and shot on the Stirling goal which was blocked. A moment later Ackers was in the penalty box for bodying into the boards. Whitty, manager for the Stirling team, took occasion to call Burtt and tell him to watch "that seven-man stuff," but the referee seemed to have his own ideas as to what was what as far as the play was concerned. Blue tried a long shot and Cowell followed in for a backhand try at the rebound.

For a time the play was close around the Stirling net till Maurice, Stirling defence, got his eye cut and had to be relieved for medical attention. He was back in ten minutes and the game proceeded with five minutes to go, and Campbellford still pressing the play in the Stirling area. For a time the speed of play slackened noticeably, and Ingram tried a long shot from centre ice. Stirling retaliated with a snappy three-man combination, but missed their shot on the Campbellford goal. Hoard went on for Maurice, whose eye was practically swelled shut and still bleeding a little. Then the play was pressed into the Campbellford defence area, and J. Ackers got a penalty for a trip when he upset Blue. The time gong sounded with the game pretty well in the centre of the ice, and left the local team with one goal to the visitors' nothing.

Second Period.

From the first pass of the puck, Campbellford pressed hard in the Stirling territory and Ibey got a fast shot, but Stirling worked ther way out till Cowell checked and slid in for a shot. J. Ackers came back on and the game still continued in the Stirling defense area. Fox saved a long shot on the Campbellford net and Stirling began to speed up a little. Johnson managed to break up a combination and rush alone, but his shot was saved by Hulen. Cowell managed to get his eye on a loose puck behind the melee but Hulen saved that attempt as well. The third shot was stopped by the Stirling defense and Johnston tried another at their net. It looked dangerous for a while but Stirling broke away and Ingram came into play at the Campbellford defense line. After making a snappy check, he rushed too far up the side to shoot. Stirling slowed the furious pace for a brief minute and Cowell scored the first goal for the visitors. There were just seven minutes of the second period gone and the Campbellford supporters cheered their team to the echo. The score realy was made when the puck caught in the goalie's pads and he did not managed to clear it properly.

Stirling tried a shot from the Campbellford blue line, but Fox was on the job. McArthur rushed and shot wide from fairly close range, and once more Stirling called on some extra speed. Ingram for Stirling made a spectacular rush, but Fox stopped his shot. Another offside and Cowell followed the face-off as far as the Stirling blue line. The game began to threaten the Stirling net, so tried a long shot from their defense line, but Fox saved and Campbellford rushed. The rush was short lived till Johnston took it alone, but his shot was stopped. Fox got a little more practice and then it was Hulen's turn in the Stirling net. The game stayed in the Stirling territory for a minute or so, then Blute got a shot which resulted in the Stirling defense rushing the game into the Campbellford camp. A minute later it was back around the Stirling danger line. Cowell got a shot at the Stirling goal, but the goal was disputed and not counted. Several fans of both sides who were almost directly behind the net were certain that it was a genuine goal.

Ibey got a minute for slugging and the Stirling goalie made a spectacular save. Then the game went up and down from one end of the ice to the other, finally settling around the Stirling goal. Blue got a rest on the bench for hooking, and the play pressed hard in the visitors' area. Desperately they worked their way out and Fox only had to stop a slow one along the ice. The period ended with the game at centre ice and the score tied with one goal each.

Third Period.

Stirling went right out after a count and forced the play into the Campbellford territory, but the visitors worked back and pressed on the local net. The Stirling line retaliated with a combination rush, but their shot went wide and for a minute the game was pretty much in centre ice. Cowell and H. Ackers let their tempers flare a little and Burrt advised them both to try five minutes' rest as a cooling agent. McArthur rushed alone but his shot was wide of the net. Fox stopped a fast one from a Stirling rush and with five men on each side, the pace was killing but fascinating to the spectators. There was a struggle near the Campbellford goal and Fox got hit on the head with the puck. Burtt did not see it till the goalie was getting to his feet again. The result was that only about a minute was lost. Blue rushed the full length but his shot went high. Stirling worked their way out but Ingram got a shot from the corner. With six men aside again, the ice did not look so deserted and the Stirling goalie made a nice save on a shot from the defense line.

The play began to look real dangerous around the Campbellford net and Fox could not regain his position after rushing from his goal. Ingram replaced him and as soon as he got the puck made a beautiful rush. He was checked but Cowell caught the wandering rubber and scored the second goal for Campbellford. That put the visitors in the lead by one goal, and they seemed to have a little the edge when J. Ackers got three minutes for chopping. Cowell tried for another counter when he got the puck at the Stirling blue line. Ingram got a trip to the bench for bodying to the boards and Ibey rushed but Hulen saved. With five men a side again Campbellford pressed hard into the Stirling territory. Then back came the play to the Campbellford end and Cowell broke away for a rush. Ingram was let out ten seconds too soon from serving his penalty and was granted another minute to rest. Wallace scored on a there man combination for the count that tied the score. With only about four minutes left to play, the game went at a furious pace. Cowell shot from long range and followed in. Stirling managed to work their way out a little but the visitors got control and the Stirling goalie had his work cut out for him for a moment. Followed a fast two minutes and Fox got the opportunity to stop a couple of fast ones.

Blue and Blute for Campbellford came on for Ibey and Johnston, while Hoard for Stirling relieved Thompson. Campbellford tried to force an opening at the Stirling gaol and the goalie was forced to rush out to save a shot. Then the danger went to the other end and the gong rang with the play in the Campbellford terrtiory and both teams going strong. With the score a tie, 2-2, there was nothing for it but overtime and the game still open to the winners who might easily have been either team at that time.

First Overtime Period.

Johnston for Campbellford bored into the Stirling camp right after the face off. His shot was blocked, but the play remained in the Stirling end till Hoard broke away and Fox saved his shot. There was a second call immediately for Fox's services and then Cowell got the puck, rushed, shot and followed in. The play was still in the Stirling end. Then it drifted toward the Campbellford net and returned to the opposite end again. Stirling brought out a three man combination but Hoard missed the pass directly in front of the Campbellford net and the play returned to the local end.

When the time came to change ends the Stirling crowd were being hard pressed. Cowell shot a long one that went wide and they pressed Stirling again. Ingram broke loose, and Fox was called on to stop two in quick succession. They returned the compliment, but his shot was saved as was also Ingram's light after. Cowell got a trip to the bench for slugging. There were two offsides in the Campbellford area. Then Blue rushed the full length of the ice but failed to get a chance to shoot. Thompson, Stirling, got injured when he fell and there was a minute lost. Time, and the score still a tie with on count for either side during the period.

Second Over-Time Period.

The last period of overtime was undoubtedly the fastest hockey of the entire game. Both sides went right after the lonely count that meant so much to the one who would get it. The Stirling goalie had the opportunity to block the first shot. Both goalies were called upon frequently during the period, and four minutes passed before Cowell scored a neat one in the corner of the Stirling net with a backhand shot. Five minutes, and change ends. Time and again the Stirling combination got as far as the blue line and once they got over it. McArthur stepped into the breach, and saved an open shot on the Campbellford goal. The play was hot in the Campbellford territory till Cowell managed to break away. Two minutes to go and Stirling pressing hard with Campbellford on their toes waiting for a break for another count. They shot but the Stirling goalie was not letting any more past him. Then there was an exchange of long shots and the gong sounded while they were still at it, with Stirling rushing into the Campbellford territory.

WOULD EXPEL BILLY COUTU

For Assault on Tiger Player During New Haven-Boston Game.

UNDER SUSPENSION

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 24—President George V. Brown of the Boston Canadian American Hockey League Club, yesterday requested that Billy Coutu, New Haven defense player, be expelled from the League for his assault on George Redding of the Tigers in the New Haven-Boston game at New Haven last Sunday.

Coutu, who knocked the Boston player unconscious with his stick, drew a match penalty and a $25 fine from Referee Wiggett. He is now under suspension until full reports of the incident from both clubs and the referee have been received by Charles C. Clapp, president of the League.

President Brown's statement to Clapp urged the removal of Coutu "in the interest and salvation of professional hockey and for the safety of the other players."

"Coutu is a menace to hockey. I don't hesitate to say that if this player, whose past record in hockey is none too good, is permitted to play, a fatality might occur."

The Boston clubowner added that from all he had been able to gather there was no cause for the assault other than the fact that Redding got away from Coutu on a dash up the ice with the puck and that Coutu struck when the Boston player's back was turned. Coutu's actions have been protested by Springfield and Quebec, President Brown pointed out, adding that the National League "came to the conclusion that Coutu was dangerous to the best interests of the game."

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"THE MAGIC FLAME."

This is one of the romantic stories of the screen that intrigues the fancy of young and old alike, and it has two magnificent actors, in Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky.

It is a picture that demonstrates a remarkable dual role, the scene in which the two men (really one and the same actor) fight with swords, being an extraordinary demonstration of trick photography. The setting, too, is all that could be desired by the most romantic, in the circus atmosphere that changes momentarily to court surroundings.

Ronald Colman plays two roles: that of a clown and of a count, and he is superb in both, with adequate support from the lovely Vilma Banky. The circus scenes include a balloon ascension and a parachute jump, with a murder and an abduction of the heroine by the count. Colman is the clown, Tito, and also the count, Carlo Casati, and Vilma Banky has the part of Bianca, an aerial artist in the circus, who attracts the fancy of both men.

Bianca is abducted by the libertine nobleman, and Tito, when she fails to return that afternoon, goes to the Count's hotel and fights a duel with him. The Count tries to trick Tito and then falls through a window, to be drowned in the sea below. Tito is then mistaken for the nobleman by the latter's valet, and dresses in Casati's clothes. He receives a message that his father, the King of Illyria, is dead, and that he is the reigning monarch. Further complications ensue and the affair becomes tangled. Finally, all is smoothed out and Tito and Bianca are re-united in their beloved circus.

AT THE GRAND.

Try to give a brief summary of the reasons why F. Stuart-Whyte's first pantomime since 1921, "Dick Whittington and His Cat" jumped into the hit class on the night it opened and has stayed there ever since and you are confronted with an impossibility.

The now-celebrated entertainment smash among successes comes here to the Grand on Thursday for a limited engagement of one performance only and the only sure way of finding out is for local theatregoers to go and draw their own conclusions.

There are those who insist the success must be largely ascribed to its comedy and comedians. It has a battery of the latter and a seemingly inexhaustible supply of the former. Grand opera, Tex Rickard, bargain sales, high finance, Big Bill Thompson, shipwrecks, political oratory, fruit and clumsy feet are all utilized as sources of laughter.

Others insisit the dancing should get a large share of the credit. Mr. Whyte has a sensational swiftly-stepping aggregaton of beautiful young terpsichorean soloists in his "Palace Girls" who are responsible for an enormous amount of nightly applause. There are those who elaborate at length on the all-round excellence of the productions London cast with its hand-picked Anglo-Canadian supporting stars, making particular reference to the singing voices and the unusual harmony effects and orchestrations which Mr. Whyte has introduced in making the musical program a long-to-be-remembered one.

But everywhere and anywhere, the enthusiasm over the remarkable scenic and costume effects which make the production a veritable spectacle of gorgeousness from curtain to curtain, is unfailing. Finally, and among the most important items, there is the fact that, in the program, the words "under the personal direction of" when coupled with Mr. Whyte's name invariably means smoothness, swiftness and speed and a production with a never-failing zip.

AT THE REGENT.

"ROSES OF PICARDY."

There was a packed house at the Regent Theatre last night for the first evening presentation of the picture, "Roses of Picardy," which is being offered during the first four days of this week, under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League, with an augmented orchestra that gives an additional interest to the picture, and features the well known song, "Roses of Picardy," as the main musical theme.

The picture is essentially a British production, even the language of the characters having an English touch to what is really a French environment, for the setting is placed in Hondebecq in war days. A prologue beginning shows an English lieutenant, Skene, coming back to the little town and its rows of white crosses in 1927. Then the picture shifts to the days of 1914 and progresses through to the ending of the great conflict.

As a war picture, it is quite out of the ordinary. Seldom have the producers of episodes in the last Great War been able to get such realistic effects. The hand to hand fighting, with rifles clubbed and bayonets at work, in the last bit, where the men build sand-bag ramparts and then meet the enemy face to face above them, is an extraordinarily savage presentation of war at it most brutal height.

The picture, unlike the majority of British films, gives a curious impression of theatricalism. Possibly this is because it has been ruthlessly censored. And the continuity is very bad. The pictures merge confusingly, one into another. At times, four or five scenes overlap at one time, so quick is the change. The photography, however, is wonderfully done, outside of this peculiar element, and a lack of explanatory sub-titles, which would be welcome in a production of this type.

Madeline, mistress of the Spanish Farm, a typical Flemish stronghold, is infatuated with Georges d'Archeville, son of the seigneur of Hondebecq. She is an unusual type, rather mysterious and white-faced, with inscrutable eyes. While Georges is absent, Lieutenant Skene, overcome with nerve shock from his participation in actual trench warfare, comes to her for comfort. Later, she goes to Paris, where she hears that d'Archeville is wounded, and the scene shifts back, confusingly again, to Hondebecq and the war. Madeline comes and dons an apron, to try and remedy conditions at the chateau, where the enemy's shells have done terrible damage, and one scene shows her ineffectual efforts to stop the British soldiers from converting it into a barricade.

As a final episode in a picture whose story may be guessed at, but never completely discovered, in its present state, Lieutenant Skene returns in 1927 to find Madeline mothering her "two children," her aged, broken father and the blinded d'Archville. Posibly one element in "Roses of Picardy" that contributes to its somewhat puzzling atmosphere, is the fact that none of the main characters are likeable. Madeline is too inscrutable, d'Archeville is too careless, the old father is too strange and even the British general, with his walrus moustache and his liking for food, is non-attractive. Skene is likeable, however, and the picture, on the whole is well worth seeing.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

THE STORY THUS FAR

The key to the closet door was always kept on the outside, Margaret Odell's maid told police the morning her mistress' strangled body was found in the apartment. But this day the key was on the inside. The "Canary" had gone out early in the evening with a man. The next morning when the maid came to work Margaret Odell was dead. A baffling mystery. Vance declares, a devilish one—"And, Markham, those finger-prints you found have nothing whatever to do with the murder."

CHAPTER VIII.

Heath shot Vance a curious look. Then, after a moment's frowning contemplation of the knob, he waved his hand to the detective who had brought the maid in.

"Take her back to the reception-room, Snitkin, and get a detailed description from her of all the Odell jewelry. . . . And keep her outside; I'll want her again."

When Snitkin and the maid had gone out, Vance lay back lazily on the davenport, where he had sat during the interview, and sent a spiral of cigaret smoke toward the ceiling.

"Rather illuminatin,' what?" he remarked. "The dusky demoiselle got us considerably forrader. Now we know that the closet key is on the wrong side of the door, and that our lady of joy went to the theater with one of her favorite lovers, who presumably brought her home shortly before she took her departure from this wicked world."

"You think that's helpful, do you?" Heath's tone was contemptuously triumphant. "Wait till you hear the crazy story the telephone operator's got to tell."

"All right, Sergeant," put in Markham, impatiently. "Suppose we get on with the ordeal."

"I'm going to suggest, Mr. Markham, that we question the janitor first. And I'll show you why." Heath went to the entrance door of the apartment, and opened it. "Look here for just a minute, sir."

He stepped out into the main hall, and pointed down the little passageway on the left. It was about ten feet in length, and ran between the Odell apartment and the blank rear wall of the reception-room. At the end of it was a solid oak door which gave on the court at the side of the house.

"That door," explained Heath, "is the only side or rear entrance to this building; and when that door is bolted nobody can get into the house except by the front entrance. You can't even get into the building through the other apartments, for every window on this floor is barred. I checked up on that point as soon as I got here."

He led the way back into the living-room.

"Now, after I'd looked over the situation this morning," he went on, "I figured that our man had entered through that side door at the end of the passageway and had slipped into this apartment without the night operator seeing him. So I tried the side door to see if it was open. But it was bolted on the inside—not locked, mind you, but bolted.

"And it wasn't a slip-bolt, either, that could have been jimmied or worked open from the outside, but a tough old-fashioned turn-bolt of solid brass. . . . And now I want you to hear what the janitor's got to say about it."

Markham nodded acquiescence, and Heath called an order to one of the officers in the hall. A moment later a stolid, middle-aged man, with sullen features and high cheek-bones, stood before us. His jaw was clamped tight, and he shifted his eyes from one to the other of us suspiciously.

Heath straightway assumed the role of inquisitor.

"What time do you leave here at night?" He had, for some reason, assumed a belligerent manner.

"Six o'clock—sometimes earlier,—sometimes later." The man spoke in a surly monotone. He was obviously resentful at this unexpected intrusion upon his orderly routine.

"And what time do you get here in the morning?"

"Eight o'clock, regular."

"What time did you go home last night?"

"About six—maybe quarter past."

Heath paused and finally lighted the cigar on which he had been chewing at intervals during the past hour.

"Now, tell me about that side door," he went on, with undiminished aggressiveness. "You told me you lock it every night before you leave—is that right?"

"Ja—t'u t's right." The man nodded his head affirmatively several times. "Only I don't lock it—I bolt it."

"All right, you bolt it, then." As Heath talked his cigar bobbed up and down between his lips smoke and words came simultaneously from his mouth. "And last night you bolted it as usual about six o'clock?"

"Maybe a quarter past," the janitor amended, with Germanic precision.

"You're sure you bolted it last night?" The question was almost ferocious.

"Ja, ja. Sure I am. I do it every night. I never miss."

The man's earnestness left no doubt that the door in question had indeed been bolted on the inside at about six o'clock of the previous evening. Heath, however, belabored the point for several minutes, only to be reassured doggedly that the door had been bolted. At last the janitor was dismissed.

"Really, y' know, Sergeant," remarked Vance with an amused smile, "that honest Rheinlander bolted the door."

"Sure, he did," sputtered Heath; "and I found it still bolted this morning at quarter of eight. That's just what messes things up so nice and pretty. If that door was bolted from six o'clock last evening until eight o'clock this morning, I'd appreciate having some one drive up in a hearse and tell me how the Canary's little playmate got in here last night. And I'd also like to know how he got out."

"Why not through the main entrance?" asked Markham. "It seems the only logical way left, according to your own findings."

"That's how I had it figured out, sir," returned Heath. "But wait till you hear what the phone operator has to say."

"And the phone operator's post," mused Vance, "is in the main hall half-way between the front door and this apartment. Therefore, the gentleman who caused all the disturbance hereabouts last night would have had to pass within a few feet of the operator both on arriving and departing—eh, what?"

"That's it," snapped Heath. "And, according to the operator, no such person came or went."

Markham seemed to have absorbed some of Heath's irritability.

"Get the fellow in here, and let me question him," he ordered. Heath obeyed with a kind of malicious alacrity.

(Tuesday, September 11, 11 a.m.)

Jessup made a good impression from the moment he entered the room. He was a serious, determined-looking man in his early thirties, rugged and well built; and there was a squareness to his shoulders that carried a suggestion of military training. He walked with a decided limp—his right foot dragged perceptibly—and I noted that his left arm had been stiffened into a permanent arc, as if by an unreduced fracture of the elbow.

He was quiet and reserved, and his eyes were steady and intelligent. Markham at once motioned him to a wicker chair beside the closet door, but he declined it, and stood before the district attorney in a soldierly attitude of respectful attention. Markham opened the interrogation with several personal questions. It transpired that Jessup had been a sergeant in the World War,[*] had twice been seriously wounded, and had been invalided home shortly before the Armistice. He had held his present post of telephone operator for over a year.

"Now, Jessup," continued Markham, "there are things connected with last night's tragedy that you can tell us."

"Yes, sir." There was no doubt that this ex-soldier would tell us accurately anything he knew, and also that, if he had any doubt as to the correctness of his information, he would frankly say so. He possessed all the qualities of a careful and well-trained witness.

"First of all, what time did you come on duty last night?"

"At ten o'clock, sir." There was no qualification to this blunt statement; one felt that Jessup would arrive punctually at whatever hour he was due. "It was my short shift. The day man and myself alternate in long and short shifts."

"And did you see Miss Odell come in last night after the theater?"

"Yes, sir. Every one who comes in has to pass the switchboard."

"What time did she arrive?"

"It couldn't have been more than a few minutes after eleven."

"Was she alone?"

"No, sir. There was a gentleman with her."

"Do you know who he was?"

"I don't know his name, sir. But I have seen him several times before when he has called on Miss Odell."

"You could describe him, I suppose."

"Yes, sir. He's tall and clean-shaven except for a very short gray mustache, and is about forty-five, I should say. He looks—if you understand me, sir—like a man of wealth and position."

Markham nodded. "And now, tell me; did he accompany Miss Odell into her apartment, or did he go immediately away?"

(To be continued.)

PRE-LENT SEASON IS STARTING SOON

Will Be Brightened This Year By Visits of Royalty to London.

LONDON, Jan. 23. — (Canadian Press.) — The pre-Lenten season, which greatly brightens English society folks after winter drabness, will be in full swing by the first week in Februaray, when King George and Queen Mary return from their rest at Sandringham palace. The usual society functions of this early season will be somewhat extended and brightened by the visit to London of the King and Queen of Afghanistan and possibly by the presence of Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium and his pretty wife, former Princess Astrid of Sweden.

Falls Through School Skylight While Preparing For Lecture on Radio.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Jan. 23 (Canadian Press).—William Burrows, Science teacher at the Technical School, is in hospital with a broken arm and possible internal injuries, as a result of an accident on Saturday. He was preparing equipment on the school's roof ready for a lecture on Radio, when he fell through a skylight, falling thirty feet to the floor of the assembly hall.

Elusive Island Is Sinking Again

NORTH WILDWOOD, N.J., January 23 (Canadian Press). — Swept by swirling currents, Champagne Island is slowly sinking, as elusive as the bubbles of the wine with which its mysterious rising from the sea was celebrated a score of years ago. This was revealed to-day by a survey which has led engineers to believe that the isle may later reappear off North Wildwood, and thus necessitate recourse to riparian laws two centuries and a half old to determine the new ownership.

The now vanishing island received its name through the quantity of wine opened when it made its appearance, and the title to the new land was obtained by Charles Mace.

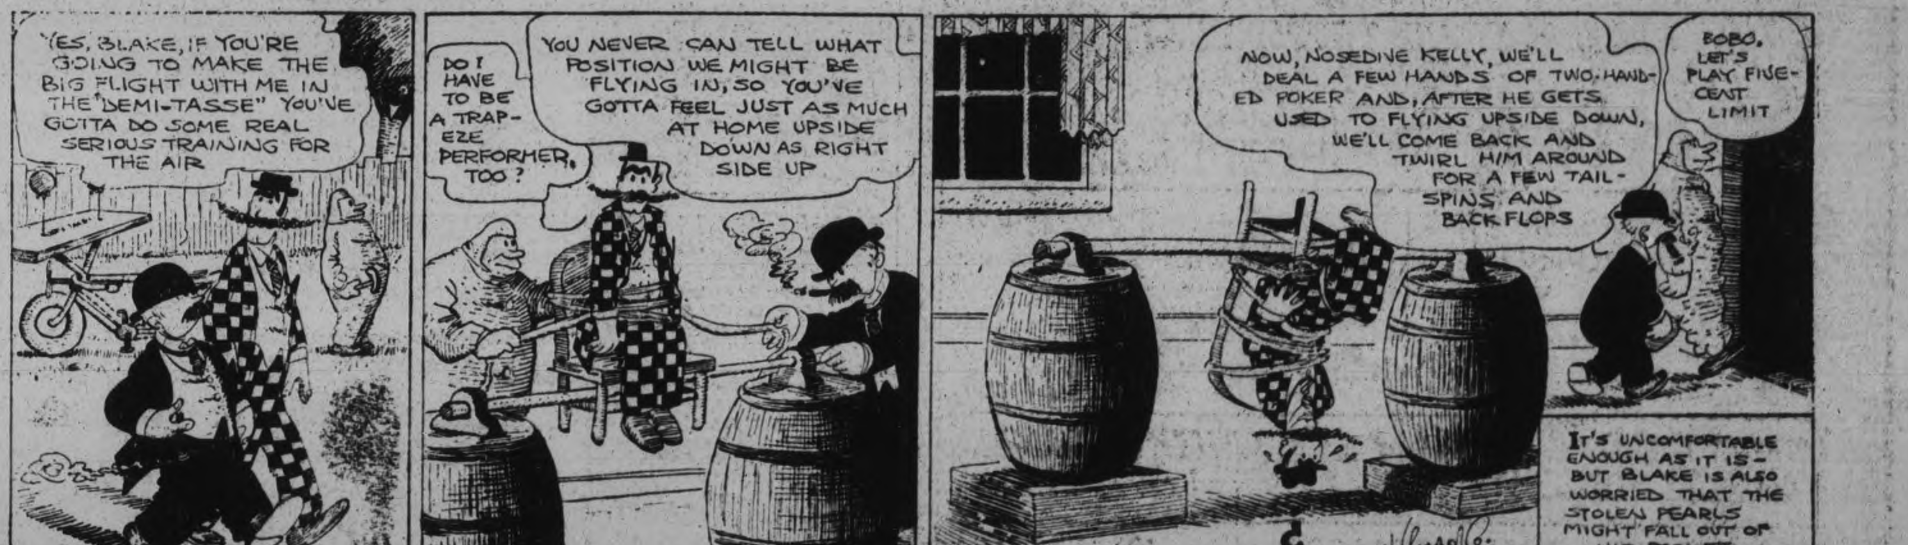
Bobo Baxter—Indoor Flying Practice By Rube Goldberg



YES, BLAKE, IF YOU'RE GOING TO MAKE THE BIG FLIGHT WITH ME IN THE "DEMI-TASSE" YOU'VE GOTTA DO SOME REAL SERIOUS TRAINING FOR THE AIR
DO I HAVE TO BE A TRAPEZE PERFORMER, TOO?
YOU NEVER CAN TELL WHAT POSITION WE MIGHT BE FLYING IN, SO YOU'VE GOTTA FEEL JUST AS MUCH AT HOME UPSIDE DOWN AS RIGHT SIDE UP
NOW, NOSEDIVE KELLY, WE'LL DEAL A FEW HANDS OF TWO-HANDED POKER AND, AFTER HE GETS USED TO FLYING UPSIDE DOWN, WE'LL COME BACK AND TWIRL HIM AROUND FOR A FEW TAIL-SPINS AND BACK FLOPS
BOBO, LET'S PLAY FIVE-CENT LIMIT
IT'S UNCOMFORTABLE ENOUGH AS IT IS — BUT BLAKE IS ALSO WORRIED THAT THE STOLEN PEARLS MIGHT FALL OUT OF HIS POCKET.

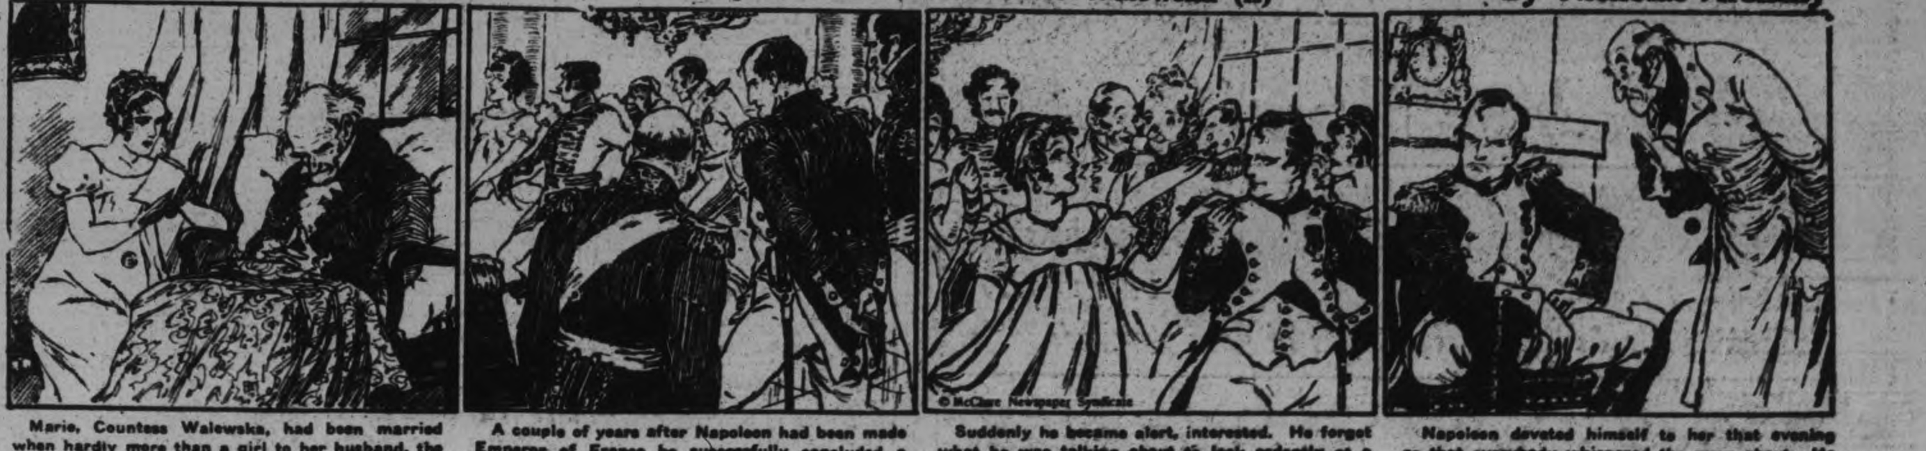
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES Napoleon and the Countess Walewska (II) By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Marie, Countess Walewska, had been married when hardly more than a girl to her husband, the count, a proud Polish aristocrat old enough to be her grandfather. He seems to have loved her tenderly, but her feeling for him was rather one of respect and affection than love.

A couple of years after Napoleon had been made Emperor of France he successfully concluded a campaign in Poland. To honor him a ball was held in the old royal palace at Warsaw. Napoleon watched the dancers listlessly. He had just written his wife. "For me there is only one woman."

Suddenly he became alert, interested. He forgot what he was talking about to look ardently at a beautiful young woman—fair, small, blue-eyed, gentle, not more than eighteen. He asked for her name. "The Countess Walewska." He immediately chose her for a partner in the next dance.

Napoleon devoted himself to her that evening so that everybody whispered the news about. He was delighted with her broken French, her simplicity of manner. Next morning he sent a messenger to tell of his admiration for her. But the messenger returned without an answer.

GRADS SAIL FROM HALIFAX

Canadian Olympic United Sports Team Gets Rousing Send-Off.

DEFEAT CRACK PLAYERS

HALIFAX, Jan 24.—The Canadian Olympic winter sports team for St. Moritz, Switzerland, embarked on Sunday afternoon for Antwerp on the Red Star liner Arabic. The party included the University of Toronto Grads hockey team, three speed skaters, including the present champion, Charlie Gorman, five figure skaters and four skiiers. It is expected that all the representatives of the Maple Leaf will do credit to Canada in the various competitions.

If good wishes mean anything Canada will cut a large figure at St. Moritz as dozens of messages from all parts of Canada were received wishing the party every success in their trip.

The whole-souled and generous send-off given to the Varsity Grads team by the citizens of Halifax will not soon be forgotten by the champion hockeyists. Seven thousand enthusiasts from all parts of Nova Scotia gathered in the magnificent new Forum on Saturday night and with rare patience awaited the belated arrival of the Grads whose train was several hours late owing to the heavy snowstorms. The vast throng had been attracted by the brilliant performances of the Canadian champions in what the Maritimes calls "Upper Canada" and "Western Canada." They wanted to see for themselves to verify what they had read.

The Grads did not disappoint them. Seventeen crack players, the pick of Nova Scotia from Halifax, Amherst, New Glasgow, Truro, Oxford and Sydney were arraigned against them and the team that carried "Canada" and the red maple leaf on their breast gave them as brilliant an exhibition of scientific hockey as has ever been their privilege to witness.

The Nova Scotia rooters were not slow to appreciate the worth and value of this great hockey team and they evidenced it by their spontaneous and enthusiastic cheering of the magnificent work of the Grads. They not only did this, but they gave them cheers during the intermissions and a rousing and tumultous send-off after hostilities had ceased. It was a great climax for the Grads as it marked their last appearance in a game before competing for world's honors in Switzerland.

The Grads excelled in combination, speed and stickhandling and every other requisite of a good hockey team.

Dave Trottier, the left wing star, and Hugh Plaxton, centre player extraordinary, were the scoring aces. Trottier got five goals and Plaxton four, usually as the results of combined effort in which they both mystified the defense as they dashed in on the nets. Trottier also won the puck carrying contest and a cigaret case. Frank Sullivan played his best game of the season and scored two goals. Jack Porter and Ross Taylor, the defense pair, each scored a goal by brilliant individual effort. Grant Gordon and Hugh Plaxton played defense in the final period and the former scored a goal. All the players were on their "toes" and Bert Plaxton, Charlie Delahey and Rogers Plaxton had speed to burn and were most effective when on the ice.

COUNTY ASKED FOR DONATION FOR MEMORIAL

Committee Expects War Memorial Here To Be Finished This Year.

SESSIONS BEGIN.

County Council Appoints Chairmen and Takes Up Regular Business.

A deputation, consisting of His Honor Judge Huycke, His Worship Mayor Denne, G. A. Macdonald, W. G. Morrow, and G. H. Thompson, appeared before the County Council at its first meeting yesterday afternoon, and suggested a grant of $5000 towards the war memorial that is to be erected early this summer in the city of Peterborough.

His Honour congratulated Warden Smithson on being elected to his high office, and then he told the members of the plans that have been laid by the Citizens' Committee for the erection of a war memorial in this city. "W. S. Allward, a famous sculptor, was engaged some years ago to make a memorial for the city and county of Peterborough, but soon after he had our contract he received one from the Government to build the Vimy Ridge memorial, and the building of the latter had delayed the work on the Peterborough one; but I am informed by Mr. Allward that the bronze statues will be here the end of May and the granite work is well under way, so this very striking and beautiful memorial should be unveiled early in the summer. The contract price is $30,000, and I am sure the cost will not exceed $35,000. The name of every soldier from the city and county will be put on the memorial, and to this fund the city has granted $5,000." In conclusion, Judge Huycke suggested that the county grant a like amount.

Mayor Denne, after congratulating the Warden, asked that the Council appoint representatives to the Citizens' Committee. W. G. Morrow said he was not aware when he was appointed to the committee that it would take so long to erect the memorial, but he found that when dealing with an artist one is dealing with a class of men that take their time.

Warden Smithson promised the delegation that the Council would give due consideration to their request, but he also reminded the members that many of the municipalities had erected war memorials, and that in the case of Otonabee it had cost $4,000.

A communication was received from the County of Simcoe that the County of Peterborough memorialize the Government and ask it to reduce the time limit on shooting deer from thirty to fifteen days. Reeves Clark and Parker thought that it was a good idea, and suggested that something be done, as the game was getting scarce. Reeve Clark thought that the bounty ought to be increased on wolves, as they were making inroad amongst the deer. "Just 50 rods from my home the wolves killed a deer and devoured it last Friday night," said Reeve Clark. Reeve Tanner said he had seen the remains of as many as five dead deer on the ice on one of the back lakes.

B. W. Squires of Norwood and Rae Williams of Havelock were appointed auditors of the county books.

The standing committees appointed were:

County Property — Composed of all members, with Reeve W. T. Curtis as chairman.

Roads and Bridges — Composed of all the members, with Reeve H. B. Parker as chairman.

Schools—Composed of all the members, with Reeve Windsor as chairman.

Petitions — Composed of all the members, with Reeve Tanner as chairman.

Finance — All the members, with Reeve Breckenridge as chairman.

Equalization and Assessment — All members, with Reeve Middleton as chairman.

Joint and Legislative — All the members, with Deputy-Reeve Waterman as chairman.

House of Refuge — Reeves Hawthorn and Tanner and the Warden, with Reeve Tanner as chairman.

Appointments — All the members, with Reeve Leahy as chairman.

J. B. Nelson, agricultural representative for the county, was present, and asked that the Council appoint from its members an agricultural committee instead of the old agricultural Advisory Board. The matter was left with the Committee on Appointments.

Burns' Birthday Is Honored To-Day

TORONTO, Jan. 25 (Canadian Press).—In various ways the 169th birthday of Robert Burns, Scotland's beloved poet, is being celebrated here today, but the chief ceremony is a banquet to be held tonight by the Robert Burns Society of Toronto.

The anniversary is made the occasion of a strong defense of Burns by Dr. James Hughes, veteran educationist, who has made a study of the life and works of the bard. Dr. Hughes said today that "Burns was the best educated man in Scotland in his time. Not the best schooled man, but the best educated."

NO ASSISTANCE FOR HOSPITAL

Government Takes Away Grants From All Isolation Institutions.

TO END DISCRIMINATION.

All hope of government assistance for Peterborough Isolation Hospital was dispelled yesterday by a statement given to The Examiner from Hon. Lincoln Goldie, Provincial Secretary in the Ferguson administration, who declared that grants being at present made to several of these institutions in the province will be cut off, placing all on the same basis.

The local isolation hospital at no time was one of the fortunate few in receipt of government aid. This fact did not escape the notice of Peterborough aldermen and responsible citizens and from to time, protests on behalf of this city were conveyed to the Minister, pointing out the anomaly, that the isolation hospital here received no government grant while similar institution in several other cities, with no more substantial claims to Provincial support were accorded annual grants. During the session of the Legislative Assembly in the earlier part of last year, a deputation consisting of Dr. W. T. Holloway, then Mayor of the city and Aldermen Roland Denne and J. O. Fife, visiting Toronto on civic business, took advantage of the opportunity to confer with Hon. Mr. Goldie with regard to the attitude of the Ministry towards the isolation hospitals of the province.

Mr. Goldie agreed with the deputation in the statement that there was no reason why favors extended to other hospitals should be withheld from the Peterborough institution, and he declared that all would be placed on an equal basis. Later in the year, former Mayor J. J. Turner, in conversation with Mr. Goldie at the opening of Kiwanis Cottage at the Boys' Farm at Bowmanville, reminded the Minister of the still-existing discrimination, and Mr. Goldie reiterated his determinaton not to permit the continuance of an arrangement that made fish of one city and fowl of another. Either one of two courses were open to him to end the disparity of treatment— to extend the grant to Peterborough or to stop those given to the other hospitals.

Mr. Goldie's announcement of yesterday indicated that the latter alternative had been decided upon.

"The isolation hospitals" are civic institutions," said Mr. Goldie, "and according to the statute are not entitled to the grant which some of them were receiving. The fact that a few hospitals have been in receipt of government aid, is due entirely to the mistake of a clerk." Soon after coming into office, said Mr. Goldie, he discovered this fact, and he made up his mind to rectify the error. In no case was the amount large that was received by any hospital, said Mr. Goldie, but naturally the fact that any discrimination existed at all was resented by the cities not reciving the aid, and he had no hesitation whatever in assuring the visitors from Peterborough that all would be placed an equal footing. Some cities, he said, were able to effect certain measure of economy, in view of the fact that the general hospital and the isolation hospital were in close proximity. In his own home town, the two institutions were heated from the same central furnaces. He also pointed out that there were often long stretches of time when the isolation hospitals of the various were entirely without patients.

Under present circumstances, the Government could with perfect fairness leave the question of financing the hospitals to the local authorities. "Of course," observed the honorable gentleman, "if an epidemic should break out, different methods might have to be followed, but fortunately, we do not have them every year."

CHARLES H. DAVIDSON

Deputy Reeve of Campbellford, whose election to the Wardenship of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham required eighteen ballots.

Keen Contest Ensues For Presidency of United Counties Council.

THREE NOMINATIONS.

Ex-Wardens Address Council in Long Session—Much Correspondence Read.

COBOURG, Jan. 25.—The Wardenship for 1928 goes to Campbellford, but it required eighteen ballots to decide it when the Council of the United Counties met in their Council chambers in the Cobourg Court-House building at 7 o'clock last night. C. H. Davidson of Campbellford was the successful candidate, with W. J. Jibb of Hamilton a close second. On the first nomination Mr. Jibb had an edge by a small majority, and the same was true of the second nomination. On the third series of ballots, Davidson won out with twenty-one votes on the sixth and final ballot of the nomination, a lead of four over Jibb. This gave him the required vote, and he was declared Warden for 1928.

On the first nomination, there were three contestants, Davidson, Jibb and Reeve Elliott of Murray. Judging from the vote, Davidson and Jibb were favorites from the beginning. The second nomination was a four-cornered struggle, with Davidson, Jibb, Elliott and Reeve Nelson of Percy contesting the honors. This failed to bring a majority, so Mr. Elliott dropped out and left a three-cornered contest for the third nomination, which ended in Davidson's election.

Mr. Davidson is a business man of the town of Campbellford, and has had considerable experience in municipal and county affairs. For the past 24 years he has been on the Town Council with the exception of four intervening years, when he was either not elected or did not stand for election. Of these twenty-four years, sixteen have been served as councillor, five as Reeve, and three as Deputy-Reeve. He is beginning his eighth year on the County Council. Though twice defeated in his attempt for the Warden's chair, Mr. Davidson tried a third time, and after a stiff struggle was successful. His colleagues, when his election was declared by the clerk, made it unanimous by virtue of a motion.

Mr. Jibb cannot lay claim to so wide experience. Interviewed by The Examiner, he said he had had six years' municipal experience, two as councillor, two as Deputy-Reeve, and two as Reeve, with the third term as Reeve beginning. In the Counties Council, this is his fifth year. He was among the first to offer his sincere congratulations to Warden-elect Davidson.

The Vote.

First nomination—

C. H. Davidson—by J. M. Bygott and J. H. Ross.

W. F. Elliott—by H. Morrow and Wilson.

W. J. Jibb—by T. A. Davidson and Thompson.

Davidson	16	19	18	17	17	17
Elliott	5	6	4	5	5	3
Jibb	19	15	18	18	18	20

No one of the candidates got a majority of the Council, though Jibb had two votes more than Davidson, with Elliott far in the rear. The second nomination was brought in by the same movers and seconders, with the exception that J. A. Sykes and G. H. Hooten, nominated W. H. Nelson, Percy, as a fourth candidate. The vote:

Davidson	13	16	17	12	18	16
Elliott	3	2	2	3	2	2
Jibb.	17	15	17	18	16	16
Nelson.	7	7	4	7	4	6

This vote increased Jibb's lead over Davidson to seven votes, with Nelson and Elliott third and fourth respectively, but still there had been no majority of the Council.

After a ten-minute recess a third nomination was called for. This nomination reverted to a three-cornered fight, with Davidson, Jibb and Nelson still in the running.

Davidson	19	18	18	19	18	21
Jibb.	17	16	18	17	16	17
Nelson	4	6	4	4	6	2

The final ballot gave Davidson the Wardenship, and a great burst of applause greeted the announcement to that effect made by the County Clerk, Col. N. MacNachton, who was the first to shake hands with and congratulate the Warden-elect.

With the opening of the session, Col. N. F. McNachtan, county clerk, welcomed the new council for the year and detailed several rules and orders of the council for their benefit. The Rev. W. R. Tanton, Trinity United Church, and representative of the Cobourg Ministerial Association, officially opened the session with a passage of Scripture and a brief prayer. A motion expressing gratitude and appreciation of the kindness of the clerk also preceded the elections. Immediately following the vote, Messrs. Elliott and Nelson moved that the election be declared unanimous and there were no contrary votes.

When he had been declared Warden, Mr. Davidson briefly thanked those who had opposed as well as those who had supported him. He mentioned that this was his third trial for the Wardenship and hoped that he would have the support of the

'GHOST' MAY BRING WEALTH

Might Be Caused By Gas Leaking Into Cellar, Says Prof. Miller.

GOOD AS GOLD MINE.

TORONTO, Jan. 25. (Special.) — The possibility that oil or gas may be the sole cause of the mysterious occurrences at the Keating homestead in Campbellford was revived in a suggestion to-day by Dr. W. L. Miller, professor in charge of the Bio-chemistry department of the University of Toronto in an interview which he accorded The Examiner during a few moments of leisure at the conclusion of a lecture period.

Dr Miller dismissed as nonsense, any suggestion that the water was affected by unearthly visitors. "As to the possibility of the place being haunted by ghosts," he remarked humorousy. "I shall have to refer you to the Faculty of Theology."

Dr. Miller asked if it were not possible that the Keatings, wearied with the importunity of the reporters, investigators and the merely curious, were keeping back some information in the hope of diminishing the amount of unwelcome attention their home was receiving but he was informed that the dwellers exhibited every indication of a desire to see the matter probed to the bottom and welcomed any effort that promised to clear up the mystery.

"I was called up on the phone yesterday," said Dr. Miller, "and was informed that it has been discovered that gas had been observed coming up through a fissure in the cellar. It should be an easy enough matter to determine the correctness of that belief. The local Science master ought to be able to secure samples of the water and to bottle some of the gas if there is any, and send it on for analysis. There should be no difficulty about that. With a man in the neighborhood having the necessary appliances and the needed knowledge, the thing could be done easy enough. It is not as if the solution of the matter called for a long journey with travelling expenses and hotel bills to be incurred."

It was well known that there was oil in the district, continued Dr. Miller and although it had not yet been found in large quantities there might easily be sufficient to account for the phenomena observed in the Keating home. It was even possi-

Prince Tells Boy He Likes Adventure Stories; Exchanges Views With Lads In Catholic Club

LONDON, Jan. 25 (Canadian Press). — The Prince of Wales likes nothing better to read than a good adventure story. He so informed a boy engrossed in such literature in the library of a Roman Catholic club in East London last night. The Prince made one of his incognito excursions into the East side laborite districts, visiting Catholic clubs for boys. Hs advent was not known except to Father Rawlinson, who escorted him. The Prince toured the library, asking many of the youngsters what they were reading and exchanging views on books with them.

PARLIAMENT OPENS TO-MORROW WITH CUSTOMARY CEREMONIES

Historic Ritual Will Be Carried Out With Usual Colorful Scenes.

SPEECH BEGINS BUSINESS.

Commons Asserts Right to Deal With Other Business First, However.

OTTAWA, Jan. 25. Canadian Press —Two days of drifting snow with the forecast of colder weather promise to give a realistic January background for the ceremonials of the opening of parliament to-morrow afternoon. The historic ritual will be carried out as in the past, with perhaps some additions to the color of the occasion.

Her Excellency Lady Willingdon, will arrive at the parliament buildings first and enter by the Senate door shortly before three o'clock.

Her procession will form on the grand staircase of the Senate entrance. Escorted by Senator Dandurand and accompanied by aides de camp, ladies in waiting and pages, she will enter the Senate Chamber and take her place at the left of the Throne.

His Excellency the Governor General will arrive with an escort of Lancers at the main door of the Parliament Buildings at three p. m., and will proceed to the Hall of Fame through the north corridor, to the apartments of the Speaker of the Senate, which serves as a robing room. He will then enter the Senate Chamber by the main door, and take his place on the Thorne.

As usual, the floor of the Senate will be occupied by members of the Upper House and ladies; latter in accordance with custom wearing evening dress thcugh the ceremonies take place in the middle of the afternoon.

With the summoning of the Commoners the actual business of opening Parliament commences. The Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod is despatched as official messenger, and the speaker instructs the Sergeant-at-arms to "admit messenger." The Commons procession, then forms with the mace borne by the Sergeant-at-arms leading and the Speaker and Clerks of the House following. The Commoners fall in loosely behind.

In the Upper House, the Speaker stands at the Bar, a brass bar drawn across the entrance. The members crowd in behind. The Speech from the Throne is read by His Excellency seated. The Speaker of the Commons and his followers stand and Mr. Speaker wears his tri-cornered hat throughout, though it is lifted in salutation.

The Commoners then return to their chamber, and Bill number one, an ancient dummy bill, is read for the first time, simply as a gesture of the Lower House demonstrating its historic right to proceed, if it wishes, with other matters than the Speech from the Throne. Parliament is opened.

Chile Would Send Envoy To Dominion

HAVANA, Jan. 25 (Canadian Press).—Chile would welcome an exchange of diplomatic representatives with Canada, Carlos Silva Vildosola, delegates from Chile to the Pan American Congress here, stated yesterday. The establishment of direct communications with Latin-American countries is the logical development of Canada's new policy in diplomacy, Senor Vildosola thinks. "I am expressing my own opinion at the moment," he told the Canadian Press, "but I feel sure that popular opinion in Chile will be strongly in favor of an exchange of diplomatic ministers between our country and yours. The question has already been discussed in our newspapers and the attitude has been invariably favorable.

"We are keen for closer relationships with Canada in trade and commerce, in education and in all things in which we may work for our mutual benefit. This development is bound to come and I hope it will be in the near future."

Senor Vildosola is editor of "El Mercurio," one of the leading newspapers of Santiago. His newspaper has been strongly in support of closer relationships between Canada and Chile and has advocated Canadian membership in the Pan-American Union.

MANY TURN OUT DESPITE STORM

Dollar Day Well Patronized To-day—Continues To-morrow.

INCREASES IN INTEREST.

In spite of the near-blizzard that swept the city to-day, there were hundreds up town to take advantage of the values offered in the stores on the first day of the annual Dollar Day event. In truth, the offers made this January are sufficient to attract buyers in almost any kind of weather.

"Dollar Day" has been running now these many years, and it continues to increase in interest and worth with every new appearance. Not only are the stores offering more phenomenal values every year, but the prizes that are offered in co-operation with The Examiner make it very much worth while to do shopping on this day. And 1928, a leap year, is giving shoppers an extra day in which to attempt to win one of the prizes.

"We don't hold this Dollar Day so much to clear out old stock," one merchant told The Examiner to-day, "as to bring people to the store where they may see what we have to offer, and thus make them customers. Many of the special offers are really sold at a loss, but we believe that it is worth the effort to gain new friends."

In other towns these annual "bargain" events are used to clear the way for new stock. While the sale may have that effect in Peterborough, it is noticeable here that many of the latest acquisitions to the stock of the stores are offered in the Dollar Day sales. This makes the buying on the special days very attractive.

It will pay any housewife to look over yesterday's paper and pick out of the advertisements her needs for the year—then take advantage of the second day of the sale to stock up at the wonderfully low prices asked.

DOLLAR DAY TO-MORROW SECOND OF TWIN DAYS

Every Article in the List of Values on Sale To-morrow as To-day.

One would almost think the merchants of Peterborough had suspected Dollar Day to turn out as unfavorable so far as weather is concerned as it has, and their provision to hold a twin Dollar Day had anticipated the storm. As it happens, it was very fortunate that Twin Dollar Days was decided upon, as the shopping to-day is not nearly up to the mark. Every article is on sale again to-morrow at Dollar Day prices, and there are some wonderful values, and both the merchants' and Examiner contests will be in full swing again to-morrow.

Estimates for the merchants' prize list is for the number of coupons returned during the two days, and the box for estimates will be open until 10 o'clock to-morrow night.

McBrien Elected Chairman At Close Of First Meeting of Aviation League

OTTAWA, Ont., January 25 (Canadian Press). — The first annual meeting of the Aviation League of Canada concluded here yesterday after the election of Major-General J. H. McBrien as chairman had been confirmed, and Colonel R. H. Mulock, of Montreal, had been elected vice-president. The president was given power to appoint an honorary treasurer and secretary.

Captain P. Gonthie, representing the International League of Aviators, told the meeting of the work of that body throughout the world with its membership of qualified pilots. The League, he said, was giving bronze trophies in each country to the aviator who had accomplished the work most in the interests of flying. It was known as the Harmon Trophy. At his suggestion the meeting appointed a committee, consisting of Colonel Mulock, Captain Mulvey, and General McBrien to review the work of Canadian airmen during the past year, and select the pilot to receive the trophy. The presentation will probably be made by His Excellency the Governor-General some time during February.

Jubilee Celebration Has Court Aftermath

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 25 (Canadian Press).—As an aftermath to Kingston's part in the Jubilee celebration last July, Edward Burnside, of Barriefield, has entered suit of $3,000 against R. J. Reid and James Halliday for damages for the loss of his dwelling house, and the case will be heard in the Supreme Court before Justice Fisher next week. Messrs. Reid and Halliday were in charge of the displays of fireworks on the night of July 1, and the display was made from the Barriefield hill. Mr. Burnside's house was burned to the ground and his claim is that fireworks alighted on the roof and started the conflagration.

INSURANCE MAN SELLING THRIFT

Everything But Soft Job, J. J. Moore Tells Confederation Agents.

AT CONFERENCE HERE.

Selling the idea of thrift is J. J. Moore's conception of a job that is anything but soft.

Mr. Moore is the representative at Barrie of the Confederation Life Association, whose divisional conference was held at the Empress Hotel to-day with William Boulton, divisional manager, Peterborough, presiding and warming up the enthusiasm and ambitions of his staff for another big year in the Central Ontario field.

Selling the thrift idea is primarily the life insurance salesman's problem, said Mr. Moore in his address on this subject. Unlike the bee with its honey, the ant with its grain, and the squirrel with its acorns, mankind does not take eagerly and kindly to saving. As a child his first thought of money is something to spend. He asks for a cent for candy, five cents for ice-cream, or a quarter for the movies, and the impression cast upon his mind is that money is for spending rather than saving.

Spending considers the present; saving looks to the future. The present has always the strongest urge because of the appeal of needs or desires. In this day of modern advertising the salesman's job is becoming more and more strenuous.

"Advertising to-day has become a fine art. It makes every appeal to the eye, ear, touch, and mind, persuading the individual to buy and buy more.

"Advertising to-day studies psychology; it paints pictures; it writes literature; it coins epigrams, and uses every seductive method to attract and to encourage spending. The facilities for spending are made numerous and easy. The tremendous growth of buying on the instalment plan is a pertinent illustration.

"Against the whole trend of modern business, against the great chorus of encouragement to spend, comparatively few voices are raised to urge the cause of saving. Among these, the greatest forces are the life insurance companies, the bankers, and bond salesmen. It is, therefore, peculiarly appropriate that these three great forces in the cause of thrift should heartily co-operate in developing and encouraging thrift by the American people.

Thrift and Character.

"The dissipation of accumulated capital, whether through extravagance or incompetence, is always injurious to the character of the individual. It tends to unsettling his sense of duty toward organized society and so weakens the foundations of civilization.

"The argument for the creation and conservation of capital is not based upon pure materialism. The moral obligation rests upon the individual to provide where it is possible, for his own future, that he shall not become a charge upon others when age or infirmity cuts off his earning power. It is a moral responsibility to make provision for the weak or helpless, his higher and deeper obligation to community, city, state, and nation.

Insurance Aids Thrift.

"The greatest aid to thrift is unquestionably the sale of an endowment contract. Endowment contracts are issued to cover a period of years, such as ten, fifteen, twenty, twenty-five, thirty and forty years. The period of years does not in any way affect the contract with the exception that the premium is either higher or lower, and the dividends are either larger or smaller accordingly. For example, a ten-year endowment premium is considerably higher than a twenty-five year endowment premium. The reason for this being that it matures for the face value fifteen years sooner. Consequently the dividends are smaller because the investment period is shorter.

"It is the unanimous opinion of life insurance salesmen that endowment contracts are the best and the easiest to sell. When a man buys

BRITISH ISLES AGAIN SWEPT BY FIERCE GALES

Reports Indicate Considerable Damage Been Done By Sudden Squalls.

70 MILE WIND.

Swollen By Heavy Rain, Thames Overflows Banks—Floods Wide Area.

LONDON, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Scarcely recovered from floods that followed holiday bad weather, the British Isles were again swept by fierce gales yesterday. Heavy rain, squalls and a sudden drop in temperature with snowstorms in Scotland gave many places the wildest weather so far this winter.

The wind at times approached 70 miles velocity and reports last night indicated that considerable damage had been done by sudden squalls.

One man was killed and a great deal of damage done by an extraordinary storm which struck London and lasted only fifteen minutes. A huge landslide blocked the railway line between Harlech and Llanbedrog in Merionethshire, Wales. Another landslide near Crosskeys in Monmouthshire, where part of a mountainside collapsed, encroached on the railway there.

More rain is predicted and there are fears of renewed inundations.

Thames Overflows

Heavy rains during the past 24 hours have again caused floods in many districts of England. The Thames is rising and above Teddington was in full flood yesterday, running bank high and in many places overflowing the banks. The Thames conservancy commission has issued a warning to those living in the low-lying section of London to take precautions against a possible recurrence of the flood several weeks ago which caused loss of life and heavy property damage.

Large tracts of low-lying land near the River Trent in the neighborhood of Nottingham are submerged and the river has risen eight feet above normal in some places. The roadway leading to the farm of the Prince of Wales at Lenton has again been heavily flooded but the farm itself thus far is free from water.

In other parts of the country the roads are covered with water and the floods are widening.

REPORTERS—GHOSTS Which Are Most Annoying

Dear Editor:

Will you please spare me a small space in your valuable paper regarding the Ghost at the Keating farm in Seymour. Well, as it happens we expect to have discovered that wild demon which has caused so much commotion to newspaper men and others not concerned. There has been found a crevice in the cellar floor through which gas and other similar explosives penetrates and forms a ball which floats along, thumping on the floor, until it finds a place to escape, which then explodes and causes a loud report.

Now, dear friends, please do not get so excited over those so-called Ghost stories and exaggerated nonsense, and here's hoping the reporters return again and want to sit in the haunted east wing on those creaky chairs, around the iron box stove heaped with welcome wood, beside the "old" organ, watching the brooding pheasants, the stuffed partridge and squirrel peering through the shadows from that broken mirror which must have given the dozing spectators a severe shock as one fellow had forgotten his socks in the flight and has never returned for the well-mended articles.

Also many thanks to the lady of feminine humanity for the advice given for her scientific knowledge. As we are not of medium nature and nerves are quite normal again we do not need any of this lady's doctoring. Perhaps if she would have a reliable psychist's investigation she could get that silly feeling of her announcement relieved.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, and hoping to see this on the first page of your daily Examiner.

AYRSHIRE MEN HOLD MEETING

Central Ontario Club Would Have Royal Fair Prize List Increased.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The Central Ontario Ayrshire Club held its annual meeting at Campbellford.

Robert Little of Campbellford, the president of the club, gave a very able address and during the course of his remarks said that the field day which was held at J. Gordon Mann and Sons' farm this summer, was a decided success. He also remarked that K. A. Hay (the Ayrshire fieldman) did good work in organizing the Heifer club in the Peterboro district.

Mr. Hay also addressed the meeting and in the course of his remarks said that he was especially pleased to be present at the meeting inasmuch as his first start off in field work was made in the Central Ontario Club district. He said there was a big movement of pure bred Ayrshires in the west and all through the provinces and that the west will be looking for a lot of cows in the near future.

Alex. Hume, president of the parent Association, also gave a brief address, which was well received.

William Stewart, the veteran Ayrshire breeder of Campbellford, remarked that as a result of the forthcoming retirement of Mr. Hume, as an officer, the parent association would lose a good man. He also said that the Ayrshire exhibit at the Royal was of good quality and all considered, the best exhibit he had ever seen in Canada. He was of the opinion that the prizes given were not only rather small but that considering the number shown there were not enough of them.

Mr. Stewart moved and Thomas Kerr seconded the following resolutions:

"That this club recommend that the Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association increase their grant to the Royal Winter Fair Association duplicate this increase, in order to increase and extend the prize list for Ayrshire cattle; and that a suggestion be made that a class for bulls that are three years and under four years be added."—Carried.

Charles Macoun, Campbellford, was re-elected president for the coming year; J. Gordon Mann, of Peterborough, was made vice-president, and John Locke of Campbellbellford was re-elected Secretary-Treasurer.

Canadian Farmers Arrive At London

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press Cable.)— After a week-end during which they combined sight-seeing and inspection of marketing conditions, the party of 80 Canadian farmers who are touring Great Britain reached London last night. Saturday and Sunday they spent in and around Birmingham, from where they made a road journey to Warwick, calling en route at Kenilworth Castle. From there they went to Stratford-on-Avon, where at Shakespeare's birthplace the mayor gave them a personal welcome. Calls also were made at the parish church and Anne Hathaway's cottage.

Monday evening they spent at Oxford but their schedule permitted only a rapid inspection of the university city. They came by road yesterday to Windsor Castle where the state apartments were inspected. A short drive took the visitors to King George's farms and two hours were spent there. The King's farmer showed the party around the farm and entertained them at tea. Several spokesmen voiced their respectful thanks to His Majesty and everybody sang the National Anthem.

The Prince of Wales will receive the Canadian farmers at St. James' Palace to-day.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO CANADIANS

Baldwin Gives Address at Luncheon Connection With Launching of C.P.R. Vessel.

"DUCHESS OF BEDFORD."

GLASGOW, Jan. 25 (Canadian Press Cable).—Rt. Hon. Stanley, Baldwin, Premier of Great Britain, in speaking yesterday at the luncheon held in connection with the launching of the Canadian Pacific steamship services 20,000-ton liner "Duchess of Bedford," which was christened by Mrs. Baldwin, wife of the Premier, paid tribute to the hospitality of Canadians and to the prominent part which Scottish people had played in the exploration and development of the Dominion.

"The hospitality of Canadians is boundless," said Mr. Baldwin, "but I warn you to be in good health and strength before you put yourselves into their hands as guests. The moment you get there you will feel absolutely at home for close links bind Canada and Scotland and in the eastern part of the Dominion you will find that no people did more to lay the foundations of the Maritime Provinces than did the Scot. You will find the Scot again in Ontario and also in the newer lands and you will become conscious of how much they did to explore and develop the country. I can think of quite a number of chief constables in the smaller towns of Canada who received their training in Glasgow and they all gave me to understand that this training had been invaluable to them in their present life, which was simple and easy compared with what they had been used to in Scotland.

"We may take great encouragement from the fact that shipping companies are inaugurating a third-class tourist traffic," said the Premeir, "as ordinary people, who are the backbone of every country, will be able to go backwards and forwards between the old home and the new. Nobody in going to the new world need feel that the hardest task was to sever the link with the old people."

In briefly alluding to trade prospects, Mr. Baldwin said, amid cheers, that "all the best men of today are optimists."

Coolidge Scores Army And Navy Officials Over Predictions That U.S. Will Go To War

WASHINGTON, D.C., January 25 (Canadian Press). — In the opinion of President Coolidge, no one need take seriously the sanguinary predictions of United States Army and Navy officials that the United States is about to go to war with its commercial rivals.

This announcement of the President's view, made at the White House yesterday, came in reply to a statement attributed to Rear-Admiral Charles T. Plunkett, commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, in which he warned that an outbreak of hostilities was not far distant.

Such a stir was created in European newspapers that the White House felt impelled to explain that declarations of this nature are the usual way in which officers of the national defence attempt to work up domestic sentiment at a time when Army and Navy Appropriation Bills are about to be considered in Congress.

Although willing to concede that it is the duty of defence officers to work for the best interests of the elements they serve, Mr. Coolidge is displeased with the turn their warlike statements sometimes take, but so far as he can see, there is nothing to be done.

If he should publicly point out the inadvisability of their statements, he feels that he would only be accused of muzzling free speech. He believes that he can simply recommend to the Navy and Army officers that they consider the welfare of their country in a larger sense.

This latest White House gesture towards allaying suspicion of United States aggressiveness comes as a prologue to possible further airing of the position of the United States defences when Congress takes up shortly the administration's proposal for a $740,000,000 rounding out of the Navy.

DENY RANSOM DEMAND MADE

Investigators Deny Letter Received Demanding Money From Smith Girl's Parents.

FOLLOW MANY CLUES.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 25 (Canadian Press).—A report that a $4,000 ransom demand had been made on the parents of Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith College student, was denied yesterday by State Detective Joseph V. Daley, who has been directing the 11-day search for the girl.

The detective said, however, that St. John Smith, father of the girl, received a "crank" letter from Detroit which stated that she was in that city. Daley said the investigators were convinced immediately that the letter was the work of a "crank," but asked Detroit police to investigate because the writer had signed his name as "Mitchell R. Spring," and gave his address.

The Detroit police, Daley was informed yesterday, found no person by that name at the given address, but a detective was assigned to watch the house as a precautionary measure.

Daley said that no ransom was mentioned in the letter, which was similar to scores which St. John Smith has received since he arrived here to assist in the search for his daughter.

During the day, another clue, which seemed to point to a former Cornell University athlete, was eliminated by the investigators.

CHILD AND MOTHER DIE FROM BURNS

Woman Loses Life in Attempt To Save Baby From Death.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Jan. 25— (Canadian Press).—Suffering from terrible burns received in a vain attempt to save her eighteen months old baby, when its clothing caught fire in her home, Mrs. Frank Shelton died early yesterday in Woodstock Hospital. The baby died Monday. Her husband and seven children survive.

The tragedy occurred about 11.30 Monday when the child was playing in the dining-room, where a stove was burning. Whether the door of the stove was open, or whether the child opened it, it is not known, but a burst of fire caught the child's clothing and enveloped it in flames. The mother, hearing the child's cries, tried to smother the flames, but her own clothing immediately caught fire, too, as well as a pile of other clothing in the room, and Mrs. Shelton was unable to put them out.

When all her efforts had failed, she ran outside with the baby and rolled in the snow to extinguish her own flaming clothing, but not before she had been severely burned. The fire meanwhile raged in the room, causing considerable damage before it was extinguished by neighbors. Mrs. Shelton was working at LaSalette for the day. Medical aid was summoned, and Mrs. Shelton was rushed to the Woodstock General Hospital, but the child was already past all help.

NEARLY DROWNED SWIMMING STRAIT

Miss Mercedes Gleitz Caught in Whirlpool at Gibraltar To-day.

TANGIER, Morocco, Jan. 24 (Canadian Press.)—Mercedes Gleitz, London typist, was almost drowned in a futile attempt to swim the Straits of Gibraltar today. She entered the water at 18.08 a.m. and after swimming for five hours was caught in a whirlpool and nearly drowned. She abandoned the swim.

On reaching land, Miss Gleitz, who seemed greatly distressed at her failure, said she would abandon all further attempts to swim the 27-mile stretch of water. She showed no signs of exhaustion.

SAYS WOMEN PLAY IMPORTANT PART

Amery Tells Ottawa Women's Canadian Club Regarding Migration Movement.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 25. —Canadian Press. — Right Hon. L. C. Amery, the British Secretary for Dominion Affairs, told the Ottawa Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon that the ordinary citizen, and above all the women of the Dominion, can play a most important part in the great migration movement. Since the great war Britain has realized the importance of aiding in the buiding up of nations which both in peace and war are linked with her a way no other nations are, Col. Amery said, and a measure introduced by himself was passed by parliament devoting $15,000,000 towards joining with the other parts of the Empire in schemes for sending out settlers.

Mrs. Amery, who accompanied her husband to the Women's Club luncheon, was the recipient of a bouquet of roses, presented by former pupils of St. Hilda's School at Whitby, Ont., which Mrs. Amery attended.

In a brief address, Mrs. Amery spoke of the part women of Canada may take in making the British settlers "at home" in their new surroundings. A kind reception during his first few weeks in the new land was of inestimable benefit to the newcomer.

Speaking of the important role which British settlers might take in the future of this Dominion, Col. Amery said: "No element in the world on the whole can give better material for citizenship than that same stock from which most of you come." Although expressing doubt that Canada should adopt a policy of narrow excluusiveness the secretary for the Dominions believed she should give preference to British settlers.

FLYING TO MIAMI IN FLIVVER PLANE

Detroit Aviator Leaves To-day in Tiny Machine For Long Journey.

DETROIT, Jan. 25.—Harry Brooks, piloting a flivver plane, took off at seven fifteen yesterday on a projected non-stop flight to Miama, Fla. The plane carried 48 gallons of gasoline in the wing tanks. Brooks said he planned to get 24 miles to the gallon and to complete the flight in fourteen hours. He carried no food and only one quart of drinking water. With a wing spread of less than twenty feet, the plane is believed by its designers to be capable of negotiating the fourteen hundred mile journey on half its gas load. Tests of the ship have showed a gasoline consumption of only a fraction more than two gallons per hundred miles. The plane is powered by a tiny two cylinder motor.

That cold may turn into "Flu", Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Would Abolish Tax On Gasoline

QUEBEC, Que., January 24 (Canadian Press). — A delegation of the retail merchants of the Province of Quebec waited on Premier Taschereau yesterday, and suggested that the gasoline tax be abolished in the case of motor trucks which are not allowed on the provincial highways. It was asked that the provincial tax on poolrooms be cut down, since the municipalities tax such places at substantial rates. Peddlers should pay a higher rate, it was also urged. The Government was asked to create a Department of Commerce, with a Minister at its head.

MINES.

F. G. Oke wires as follows:

Toronto, Ont., January 25.—Shares of Hudson Bay featured this morning's market, selling as high at 22.50 per share, and later easing off to 21.40 under considerable profit-taking. Otherwise the market did not show any great change over yesterday's prices. Underlying market conditions are considered sound and in view of the optimism prevailing on Street, higher prices are to be anticipated.

A letter to Laval shareholders gives some reason for the consistent strength shown in the stock during the past few days. Apparently an option has been taken on a group of claims in the Serpent Basin area about 60 miles west of Sudbury.

A subsidiary company has been formed called "The Serpent Basin Mines, Limited," with a capital of five million shares of one dollar par value. The Laval-Quebec has under option three million shares or sixty per cent. of the whole. The shares are optioned over a period of six years, and the entire proceeds from these shares is to be spent on development work on the property with the exception of $3,000, as evidence of good faith to cover the expenses of incorporating the subsidiary company and a small consideration for 250,000 of the vendors' shares at the expiration of the option. As the development proceeds the Laval-Quebec will receive shares in the Serpent Basin Mines, Ltd., in proportion to the money spent. With the exception of a limited number of shares to be released from Pool from time to time, the vendors' shares are "pooled" for three years and placed with the chartered Trust and Executor Company, of Toronto. The titles have been investigated by our Toronto counsel and reported in good standing.

This property was examined last summer by Maurice W. Summerhayes, on the strength of whose report the preliminary drilling is to be done. The geology and structure is similar to that of Sudbury, and surface sampling shows fair values in copper. One diamond drill is to be sent in immediately and as soon as the ground is clear of snow a detailed survey of the structure will be started.

Mine Market Easy With Few Advances

TORONTO, Jan. 25.— (Canadian Press.)—The market on the standard mining exchange continued easy today with just a few strong spots showing. Coast Copper, Hudson Bay, and Pen Dioreille were all weak, closing at noon away below yesterday's prices. Copper was very lightly dealt in, but Hudson Bay on a big turnover lost fifty at 21.40 and Pen lost fifty at 10.00. Bidgood closed at noon at 94½, off 5½ points. Howey lost three at 1.55, Central Manitoba three at 1.75, and Sylvanite and Teck Hughes each eased five cents. The firmer issues included Dome, up twenty at 12.80, and Nipissing five higher at 5.75. Lake Shore firmed ten and Ajax, Keeley and West Dome were each twop oints higher.

Grain Prices Go Down As Weather Improves

CHICAGO, Jan. 25 (Canadian Press).—Something of a setback in wheat values resulted early today from the weakness of the New York stock market and unexpected declines of wheat quotations at Liverpool. Corn declined with wheat and, on account of favorable weather, starting at ¼c to ⅜c off, wheat later held near to the initial range. Corn opened ¼ to ⅜ to ½c lower and subsequently declined a little more. Oats were easy. Opening prices were: wheat, March 129⅝, May 130⅞. Corn, March 88⅜, May 91. Oats, March 54¾, May 55¾.

Toronto Trend Irregular Despite Heavy Trading

TORONTO, Jan. 25. Canadian Press. — Market irregularity continued on the Toronto stock exchange in heavy trading to-day with further recessions in recent leaders of the advance. International Nickel reacted 1 7-8 at 95 1-8 and Massey-Harris lost 1¾ at 45 after selling above 47. Zimmerknit eased back 3 at 25 and Christie Brown lost 2½ at 125½. Brompton lost 1¼ at 62¼. The oils were also easier, British-American losing a fraction at 38½, and Petroleum nearly 2 points at 39 7-8. The liquors were generally steady, a strong feature being Carling's which sold up 3¼ at 39¾. Seagrams was a strong point in the regular list with a gain of 1¼ at 26¾. Alberta Pacific Grain sold up to 63 1-2, and Laura Secord strengthened 3 at 45. Another 3 point gain was shown in Smelters at 274½.

Sharp Reaction To-day Caused By Higher Rate

NEW YORK, January 25 (Canadian Press). — The stock market experienced a sharp reaction to-day as a result of heavy liquidation inspired by an unexpected increase in the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank re-discount rate. Prices broke two to seven points at the opening, rallied moderately, sagged again before midday, and turned upward in early afternoon when heavy buying developed in the Public Utilities, several of which advanced to new high records. Trading started off at a terriffic pace, but slowed up on the rallies.

The market, having advanced rather steadily for five consecutive days, was in a vulnerable position for selling attacks. Several "pools" which had been operating in specialties hastily withdrew their support, but others resumed aggressive operations as soon as the first outbreak of selling had spent its force.

FORMER CITIZEN TO GIVE ADDRESS

A. J. Grant, Now of Welland Canal, Visits City To-morrow.

A regular meeting of the Peterborough Branch, E.I.C., will be held on Thursday evening next, January 26th, in the Chamber of Commerce.

The speaker, A. J. Grant, M.E.-I.C., will be well known to a number of Peterborough residents, as he was in charge of the construction of the Trent Canal for many years. He subsequently became Engineer in Charge of the new Welland ship canal and it is on the subject of this canal that he will speak on Thursday evening. The Welland Canal project is the equal both in physical dimensions and in financial cost of the Panama Canal and Mr. Grant is obviously well qualified to give a most interesting address on this subject. Visitors will, as usual, be most welcome.

FARMERS MAY HAVE HOG POOL

Fair Trial Will Be Given Plan in Several Ontario Counties.

UNDER U.F.O. AUSPICES.

William Knox of this city attended the meeting in Toronto yesterday at which delegates were present from practically every county in the province to discuss the formation of a hog pool under the direction of the United Farmers' Co-operative Company. Mr. Knox told The Examiner today that organization in this county would commence in the near future after it has been given a fair trial in seven designated counties. Mr. Knox was appointed by the farmers as their representative.

Details Later

Details have yet to be worked out, but it is expected will be completed today. It is quite probable that the proposal of some weeks ago will be adopted. This called for pooling all the hogs under a five-year legal contract. The policy of a weekly pool, that is prices averaged up for every week, will likely be in force, though in the future the pool may be placed on a monthly basis.

Present Situation Unsatisfactory

The general opinion of the delegates gathered at the U.F.O. yesterday favored a change from the present system of marketing, under which the price sometimes fluctuates from day to day. Provided enough contracts can be secured which will give the new pool control of the hog production in Ontario, marketing will be directed from one body, the members of which will probably be appointed by the meeting today. This authority would route shipments to what they consider the best market, would attempt to prevent local gluts and order shipments held back or exported if the marketing situation at the time warranted.

GHOST MAY

ble that it might yet be discovered in paying quantities in that district, although naturally, he would not hazard any definite opinion with the meagre details available.

Gas and ghosts were commonly associated together, in fact the two words had a common derivation. Here Dr. Miller took an ancient volume from the well stacked shelves of his library. "That," he said, "is the book in which the word 'gas' is first used."

The book to which he referred was the first English translation dated 1862 of a German work by John Baptist Vanhelmont, the English title being "Oviatrike or Physicke Refined." "There is," said the professor, the word gas, derived from geist, meaning spirit, so that possibly the popular interpretation of the disturbances may have a certain scientific foundation, if we accept the term ghost as meaning spirit."

Operators Ordered Give False Reports

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 25 (Canadian Press).—Testimony in support of the Government's charge that officials of the Burns Detective Agency ordered operatives to prepare false reports regarding jurors in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial was introduced yesterday at the criminal contempt proceedings against Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns and their four associates.

William J. McMullin, who worked as a Burns agent under the name of William V. Long, testified he was one of the detectives who shadowed the oil jury in the employment of Sinclair. He swore that Charles G. Ruddy, Burns' Philadelphia manager, in charge of the jury surveillance squad, instructed him to prepare false reports. Don. K. King, a reporter, also was on the stand again, repeating his charge that Juror Edward J. Kidwell had said he expected to profit from his jury service, precipitating another bitter conflict between the opposing attorneys.

OBITUARY

JOHN SULLIVAN.

On January 18 1928, at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, John Sullivan, dearly beloved husband of Christina Wardrop, formerly of Peterborough.

Funeral on Saturday to St. Anthony's church, for 9 a. m., mass. Interment at Mount Hope cemetery.

MRS. H. J. KEITH.

The death occurred in Winnipeg yesterday of Mrs. H. J. Keith, wife of Rev. Henry J. Keith, former minister of Knox Church, Peterborough. The news is received in this city with the greatest sorrow, Mrs. Keith having endeared herself to a large circle during her long residence here.

Mrs. Keither came with her husband on his being called as first pastor of the newly organized Knox Presbyterian Church on March 3, 1907, and remained here until failing health compelled her removal to Winnipeg. Previously, Mr. and Mrs. Keither had served at Smith's Falls. They also worked for two years in India, organizing Bible class work and teaching the scriptures under the auspices of the International committee of the Y.M.C.A. After a very successful period of labor among the Hindus, they were compelled to return to Canada because of the bad effect of the Indian climate on Mrs. Keith's health.

JACOB HENRY BRUMWELL.

The funeral of the late Jacob Henry Brumwell took place this afternoon from the funeral home of D. Belleghem and Sons. Service at 3 o'clock in charge of the Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe, pastor of the Murray street Baptist church. Interment in the Little Lake cemetery.

Around the City

The fire brigade has answered three calls within the last twenty-four hours. At 12.14 p.m. on Tuesday there was a chimney fire at 438 George Street South and it was necessary to bring the chemicals into action to extinguish the blaze.

This morning, at 8.05, troublesome stove pipes gave cause for alarm at 455 Stewart Street, and a run at 8.33 a.m. had as its cause, overheated pipes at 565 Harvey Street.

INSURANCE MAN SELLING THRIFT

endowment insurance he is purchasing something for himself as well as buying protection for his dependents. Men like to buy things for themselves, so do women. The old adage, 'Man is primarily a selfish animal,' is only too true. But even this is of value to the alert salesman. When you present a proposition like the endowment contract you appeal to two of your prospect's buying motives, which are interrelated, namely: His 'love of self' and his 'love of kin.' The very fact that there is a protective provision in case of his death allows him to hide his 'love of self' which is that he will be materially benefited if he lives to its maturity. For it furnishes the most satisfactory method of steadily and continually saving money which has ever been devised. It guarantees a definite sum at a specified time to his beneficiary should he die.

"The endowment contract is far removed from the 'die to win' idea, and consequently appeals to a young man or young woman who is looking for a definite and systematic saving plan.

A Criterion of Success.

"Most young people have read the now famous statement of James J. Hill: 'If you want to know if you are destined to be a success or not you can easily find out—the test is simple and infallible. Are you Able to Save Money? If not, drop out, you will lose; for the seed of success is not in you,' and similar statements by other men of world repute. No young man or young woman expects to be a failure. Youth is the age of optimism and ambition. Every young person with red blood in his veins is scouting about for a definite, systematic and sometimes compulsory saving plan. The endowment contract is the only piece of commercial and financial machinery that meets the requirements.

"Professor Huebner in his text book on 'Life Insurance,' epitomizes the function of the endowment contract in a paragraph as follows:

"The real function of endowment insurance is not to yield a large investment return, but rather to furnish a means of inculcating the saving instinct and to afford a sure method of providing against old-age or some other specific contingency by accumulating a definite sum of money within a definite time. Briefly stated, endowment insurance may be definite—

"(a) As an incentive to save.

"(b) As a means of providing for old age.

"(c) As a means of safeguarding against the possibility of the saving period being cut short by death.

"(d) As a means of accumulating a fund for specific purposes.'

"The endowment contract has rightly been called the thrift policy.

The Saving Habit.

"'The saving habit,' says Griffin M. Lovelace, in his recent book, 'Analyzing Life Situations for Insurance Needs,' 'will do much more than merely make it possible to accumulate money. It will help as much as anything to give a new angle of life. People who are thrifty in their saving habit, are likely to be thrifty in other habits.'

"Mr. George E. Roberts, a New York banker, made the statement that 'One of the greatest achievements of thrift is in the development of character.'

"The acid test, then, of character is to be found in one's ability to save, because thrift involves self-mastery, and no one can win success without self-control.

"In view of these statements by outstanding and distinguished men, fully endorsed by your own commonsense and observation, when you are presenting an endowment contract to a prospect, do it with the full consciousness that you are rendering him a most invaluable service, one which will pay dividends in cash and character, and at the same time you are making your quota towards civic and national development, for he who conserves the wealth of a nation is as great if not greater than he who creates it, and incidentally you are adding to your own income considerably."

From Coast to Coast

Today's conference was the fourth of a series which during the next two months will be extended from coast to coast. Head office of the company in Toronto was represented by C. D. Devlin, superintendent of agencies for Canada, and William Wallace, inspector and manager of sales service. The following managers and salesmen were present: Messrs. T. H. Gillespie, district manager, Peterborough; George Benor, Peterborough; Malcolm C. Burgess, district manager, Belleville; H. G. Davidson, Orillia; J. J. Moore, Barrie; J. R. Myles, Thornbury; F. C. Bonnycastle, Campbellford; H. L. Robson, Lindsay; J. W. Davidson, Belleville; A. J. Adams, Bowmanville; A. G. Bogart, Deseronto; W. T. Linton, Marmora; Ed. Irwin; Buckhorn; H. P. Steinburg, Wooler; T. Tweed, Port Hope.

The day's program included addresses on "Salesmanship" and "Group and Wholesale Insurance" by Mr. Devlin; "Thought—the Bedrock of Salesmanship," by Mr. Boulton; "Selling Old Policyholders," by Mr. Gillespie; "Head Office Co-operation" and "Round Table Discussion," led by Mr. Wallace, and addresses by Mr. Davison, M. C. Burgess and "Salesmen's Guide—the Rate Book'," by Miss I. B. Giles, M.A.

Special compliments were paid to Mr. Boulton upon his exposition of the psychological factors and basis of salesmanship, especially upon the theme of mental attraction.

"That's the best address we have ever heard from Mr. Boulton," said Malcolm Burgess, "and one of the best we have ever had at a Confederation Life conference."

"There is no place we go that we hear better men than Mr. Boulton," was the commendation of Mr. Devlin,(which was supplemented by Mr. Wallace.

It was also pointed out that this division has been raised from the 42nd to 8th place in the Confederation Life divisions in Canada within the last five years. For 1927, the Central Ontario Division was third highest in the rating on the basis of percentage of paid-for business to allotment.

Mr. Gillespie's Address

In his address on "Selling the Old Policyholder," Mr. Gillespie said he had found that his policy holders liked to have him call, and he believed that regular contacts maintained goodwill and kept the underwriter in touch with the policyholder's needs.

We should manifest our interest in them by showing particular attention and taking special care to persuade them of the extreme importance for them to reinstate their policies which may have lapsed, in other companies as well as in our own," Mr. Gillespie said. "The lapse of a policy, however, is often the result of negligence, or of a lack of foresight, which in the majority of cases is easily combated.

Our worst adversaries are those who for some reason or other have dsicontinued their policies, and who instead of blaming themselves for their egoism in regard to their families or for their lack of foresight for their own future, try to place the responsibility on the insuring companies or on insurance itself. These are the spoiled fruits whose numbers it is our duty to diminish by our very particular attention.

If his policy does not carry the disability or double indemnity features and he is eligible for one or both of these, discuss them with him and give him an opportunity of availing himself of this added service.

If his insurance is made payable to his beneficiary in a lump sum and you are convinced a monthly income would more adequately meet the needs, tell him of this provision which can be arranged.

If an agent believes in himself, the organization he is representing, and the contracts he is selling, he cannot help feeling that he has a much better chance with old policyholders. They know him and are familiar with what he does for them in the way of personal service. Old policy-holders never have to hesitate about the character of the salesman who comes around to sell them again. They know their man. Of course, a salesman should be getting new accounts on his books all of the time and enlarging his circle, but there is a very large amount of business to be written among old members. When you come right down to it the man who is actually over-insured is a rare bird indeed."

Insuring the Wife.

Do not overlook your policy-holder's wife. Since women are fond of having a little banking account of their own, and after all it is a most natural thing, to a woman of this type, I would suggest that you sell your policy-holder's wife a policy, making herself the beneficiary.

Where the wife puts confidence in her husband and seems to rely on him for advice, it might be a good time to suggest that the husband be made beneficiary, but in the majority of cases the children as beneficiary appeal most to the women.

Women should not forget that when left with a family of young children the father often is even more helpless than would be the mother herself. With his business or work to take him away from them, with the living to make, with debts and unpaid bills to face, and—worst of all—with a heavy heart and broken spirit, he is the exception if he can hold the family together and care for the children without the assistance which Life Insurance guarantees as such a time. All will agree that the loss of the mother, under any circumstances, is the greatest that can come to young children; but when to this must be added the father's lack of means to properly care for them, it is a tragedy such as any mother would do her utmost to prevent.

Suppose that the wife is taken first. Her insurance would do for the children everything that the husband's insurance would do for her if he should be the first to go.

Husband and wife are partners as well as companions. They live for a common purpose. Their ambitions, their hopes, their pride, their happiness and their greatest obligations centre in their children and in each other. Whatever is for the benefit of one, is for the benefit of all. If the husband is the head of the family, truly indeed is the wife and mother the heart and soul of the family. If the husband is the house builder, the mother is the home builder. If the father's death would be a loss to the children, the mother's death would be as great, if not a greater loss to them. If the husband's insurance would keep the family together and the children in school after he is gone, certainly the wife's insurance would do the same.

On The Red, Red Road to Hooge

You on parade, go get your spade,
Fall in the pick and shovel brigade
There's a carrying fatigue for half a league
And work to do with the spade.
This is the dust and ruins of Ypres towns,
The seventeen inch still battering down
Strewing death in a fiery breath
On the red, red road to Hooge!

No need for the papers to write,
No glorious charge in the dawning light.
The daily mail won't tell a tale,
Of the night work done at Hooge.
But our General knows and his praise we have won
And he's pleased with the work the Canucks have done,
Through shot and shell, at the mouth of hell,
On the red, red road to Hooge.

After the young couple, the minister and all the guests had arrived for a wedding ceremony in Arniston, Scotland, recently, the groom found that he had forgo tten the license, and he, the minister and the best man dashed five miles to a license clerk to get the document.

THE NEW WARDEN.

Congratulations are in order for Morley Smithson, well-known Reeve of Otonabee Township, upon the honor conferred on him by the County Council in electing him Warden of the county for 1928.

Mr. Smithson has been a useful and able member of the county body, and there is not the slightest doubt of his ability to give good service and leadership in the responsible position to which he has been elected by his colleagues.

Peterborough's County Council, a little parliament in itself, with representatives from all the townships of this large county, has a large amount of business to transact each year, and business ability, judgment and shrewdness are required if the best interests of the rural taxpayers are to be maintained.

Mr. Smithson possesses the necessary qualities, and his term in office should be marked by a businesslike and progressive administration of public affairs.

To be elected to the wardenship is the highest honor that can be obtained in the municipal life of the county, and the Reeve of Otonabee will receive congratulations from all sides upon his promotion from the ranks .

PETERBOROUGH'S RECORD.

The reports of the annual meetings of many Ontario agricultural societies indicate that in a large number of cases last year fall fairs were operated at a loss, the receipts being less than the expenditures.

The showing made by the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, which is able to report the largest operating surplus in its history as a result of last September's record-breaking fair, are proof that in this department, as in others, Peterborough's Exhibition has reached a class by itself.

Its progress has been steady and sure, each year seeing substantial additions to the plant and accommodation, larger prize lists, more extensive and higher grade amusement features, and at the same time increased entries and larger receipts.

Such a record has not been the result of accident; it represents enthusiastic and painstaking efforts by the officers and by the members of the various committees, who have pooled their best efforts in the interests of the whole organization.

The financial success of the 1927 Exhibition appears all the more satisfactory in view of the evidence that many fair boards found the sailing last autumn far from smooth.

THE LATE RICHARD HALL.

Peterborough is the poorer because of the passing of Richard Hall, truly described by a writer at the time of the local Diamond Jubilee celebration as "the leader of the remnant of the old guard."

Mr. Hall was born in the township of Smith, came into the city at the age of fifteen years, and for nearly seventy years had been a useful and worthy resident of this community.

He was one of Peterborough's pioneer merchants, his name having been associated with the city's business world for well over half a century.

But prominent as was his connection with Peterborough's business life, it was overshadowed perhaps by the splendid record of unbroken service contributed by Mr. Hall as Chairman of the Nicholls' Hospital Board, of which he was one of the original trustees.

No one in Peterborough took a greater interest in Nicholls' Hospital, an institution for the establishment of which he was responsible, inasmuch as this splendid benefaction was made possible through his advice to the late Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls.

Throughout the years his anxiety that this hospital should improve in efficiency and accommodation never lessened, and the present fine institution remains as a monument to the interest displayed by Mr. Hall in its welfare.

The death of such men is distinctly a community loss.

WINTER SLAUGHTER OF FISH.

The Port Hope Guide calls attention to a practice about which The Examiner has also had some complaints recently, that is the catching of pickerel—and doubtless bass and maskinonge—through the ice at Rice Lake and their widespread sale throughout the district.

According to The Guide, these fish are being "sold by the ton."

That may be an exaggerated picture of the present conditions, but The Examiner has reason to believe that the sale of Rice Lake pickerel in Peterborough this winter is reaching large proportions, at least large enough to invite official investigation of the situation.

There seems some doubt as to the law in regard to the killing of pickerel, but surely it was never the intention that these fish should be taken through the ice in such quantities as to very seriously menace the supply.

The game laws are supposed to prevent the extinction of our fish, and if they do not definitely and emphatically prohibit the winter slaughter of pickerel and the development of a big traffic in these fish that will ultimately lead to their disappearance, it is time that a change was made.

Rice Lake fishing is bound to suffer if the killing is allowed to continue.

The sale of these fish should be made an expensive game for those who try to engage in it.

Undoubtedly the taking of pickerel is accompanied by the killing of bass and maskinonge.

The majority of the hundreds of tourists who come to Rice Lake each summer are attracted there by the prospects of excellent fishing.

How long will those prospects exist if we are going to shut our eyes to a traffic that will quickly and effectively kill Rice Lake as a fisherman's resort?

COSGRAVE AND DE VALERA.

The present visit of W. T. Cosgrave, President of the Irish Free State, to the United States coincides with that of Eamon de Valera, the evil genius of Irish political life. Whether these visits, occurring at the same time, are the result of coincidence or design, each must determine for himself. The purpose of Mr. Cosgrave's visit is said to be a "mission of thanks to the American people." There is little doubt, however, that behind this "mission" there is the purpose of offsetting the mischievous calumny and misrepresentation of Ireland that Mr. de Valera exudes wherever he goes.

What strength the Republican party has in Ireland today and the success it attained in the last election were due almost entirely to the power exerted by American dollars. This is clearly revealed by the annual report of the Fianna Fail Executive Committee, which shows that at the last election $150,000 was spent by the de Valera party, of which $5,000 was raised in Ireland and the remaining $145,000 in the United States and Australia. Mr. Cosgrave's Free State loan, on the other hand, which amounted to $30,000,000, was taken up immediately and underwritten, half of it in England and Ireland and the other half in America. Mr. Cosgrave has come to America to "give thanks"; Mr. de Valera has come to see if he can induce the American goose to lay another golden egg to further his obstructionist policy in Ireland.

It is not expected that Mr. Cosgrave will reply to any of the attacks that Mr. de Valera is almost certain to launch against the President of the Irish Free State and the conditions prevailing there. Mr. Cosgrave will content himself with clearing up misapprehensions that exist in America regarding conditions in Ireland, and will present the convincing argument of what has been and is being done to set Erin in her rightful place in the British Commonwealth of Nations. He will leave it to the good sense of the American people to judge who are today the friends or the foes of Ireland. The visit of President Cosgrave is timely and well planned. It will, without doubt, be productive of much good to the Free State and the rehabilitation of Ireland.—The Globe.

ROBERT BURNS.

This week has brought the annual spate of speculations over the secret of the remarkable hold which the works of Robert Burns have upon mankind. No poet evokes more spontaneous and widespread homage. Scotsmen naturally acclaim his genius, but wherever the English tongue is spoken, and even where our language is strange, poems of Burns are known and loved. It was an English poet and dramatist who declared a day or two ago that Burns was perhaps the most popular and the most actually read of the really great British poets. When so much has already been said and written, proposers of "The Immortal Memory" do not find it easy to say anything that is new, but it is noticeable nowadays that in the orations which celebrate the anniversary of the poet's birth the fervour of the blind idol worshipper and the mud of the Pharisaic detractor are generally absent. That is all to the good. The man and his message are being seen in their proper perspective. There is ample justification for describing Burns as the best beloved of all our British poets. No poet, it has been truly said, goes straighter to the heart, and it is his universal sympathy, his willing pity, expressed as only high genius can express it, that makes him, next to Shakespeare, the poet of mankind. Superb beauty and dignified simplicity are magically blended in the best of his verse. It is that note of simplicity and human understanding which has made Burns universally esteemed. From his life and poetry we can gather much of the lovable personality of the man, of his compelling desire to cheer the poor and the depressed, to put hope into their hearts, and to assess honest toil at its true worth, and nearly 170 years after his birth, it is well that we should show our gratitude for his message.

Yet, despite the assertion that he is probably the most actually read of the great British poets, there must be a doubt in many minds as to whether Burns' poems are now as familiar to the Scottish people as they should be. Does the tuneful dialect in which he penned his graceful lines not present difficulties even to Scots men and women, which may lead to neglect? It is a saddening reflection, but our fine old Scottish vernacular is falling on evil days, and if it is allowed to drop in disuse as a manner of speech fit only for the vulgar, then despite the lip service at recurring anniversary celebrations, the vitality of Burns' noble works will be endangered. Professor Rait has just reminded us that the Scots vernacular was to all appearance absolutely doomed—in fact, it was almost dead—when Robert Burns was born. Our national bard once again made Scots the vehicle of what the world admitted as great poetry. For the first time for many decades he forced people to quote the Scots again. Surely a practical way in which to honour Burns is to try to arrest the decay of the braid Scots in which he weaved his magic verses, and to keep in vigorous life the distinctive traditions of Scots literature. It is at least of good omen that Vernacular Associations are extending their activities in Scotland. In some quarters this has been hailed as a definite Scottish literary renaissance. Not Burns alone, but the whole range of vernacular literature will come within the scope of their interests, and lovers of Burns should be among the first to assist in such an important movement. The Vernacular Associations are not trying to achieve the impossible. It is recognized that braid Scots can only have a limited place in the conduct of everyday affairs, but it is a very definite place, of great cultural value, and it is a hopeful sign that an encouraging response to the lead which the vernacular movement has given is coming from the schools of Scotland. It would be a sad day if Burns and those in his line were to be neglected by a generation that had come to regard the homely old dialect as something hopelessly archaic.—The Falkirk (Scot) Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Soon we'll be listening to the ground-hog's song, "Me and My Shadow."

J. J. Morrison says the United Farmers of Ontario are not concerned with Soviet Russia because they don't "sell the Russians anything." Surely that is not the only reason.

"Leave It To Gloria" should materially increase the funds of the Women's Patriotic League. It is capital entertainment in aid of a capital object.

Parliament opens tomorrow. Even with the 40-minute limit there will be plenty of words distributed during the next few months.

Mr. Bennett will doubtless be glad that he can do all his speaking in one place instead of having to make addresses all over the country.

Every member of Parliament is expected to land his constituency a new public building this session, according to Ottawa advices. Mr. Robb had better keep a vigilant eye upon the treasury.

All the nonsense talked in the United States cannot be credited to Big Bill Thompson. Rear-Admiral Plunkett must be given credit for contributing his share.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 25 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in Canadian grain here yesterday was extremely dull. There was some demand from local and country buyers for car lots of coarse grains, but the turnover on the whole was small and prices were unchanged.

The trade in Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour continued of a very disappointing character, but prices ruled steady.

A feature of the market for standard grades of rolled oats was the weaker feeling that developed and prices were reduced ten cents per bag. This was attributed to the limited demand of late.

Prices for all lines of millfeed were well maintained under a moderate demand.

The egg trade continued inactive, but prices were firm. The receipts were 1,568 cases.

The market for potatoes was without any new feature to note, prices being steady with a fair passing. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were offered at $1.20 per bag of 90 lbs., Prince Edward Island White potatoes at $1.15 per bag of 90 lbs, New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.10 per bag of 90 lbs in bulk, New Brunswick White potatoes at $1.05 per bag of 90 lbs in bulk, Quebec varieties at 95c to $1 per bag of 90 lbs in bulk, ex-track.

The trade in imported beans was steady and the tone of the market was firm. Sales of odd cars of choice white hand-picked were made at $2.80 per bushel, ex-track, and smaller quantities at $2.90 per bushel, ex-store.

The cheese market was dull and featureless. The receipts were 134 boxes.

Extreme dullness again marked the trade in butter, but values ruled firm.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 25 (Canadian Press).—With the Canadian government's final crop report due today and indications of 50,000,000 bushels more wheat in Canada than last year, wheat yesterday averaged lower. It was also pointed out that the United States visible supply is 22,000 bushels larger than a year ago.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at ¼ cent to ⅝ cent net decline. Corn finished unchanged to ⅝ cent higher; oats unchanged to ⅝ and ¼ cent off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 17 cents.

Notwithstanding official advices that probable European import wheat requirements this year will be so large as to result in only the same world carry-over as last year despite a total world crop 125,000,000 bushels larger than last year, the fact remained that export demand yesterday for wheat from North America was slow. At times, yesterday, however, especially in the earlier dealings, the market developed a good deal of firmness on account of high winds reported in Kansas and because of persistent dearth of moisture in large areas southwest, circumstances adverse for domestic Winter wheat.

On the other hand, prices bulges yesterday in the wheat market led to increased selling pressure from the Northwest and so likewise did announcement that near the end of the day, the world available supply of wheat showed 3,444,000 bushels enlargement, making the total now 299,000,000 bushels against 245,000,000 bushels a year ago. Besides, December exports of domestic wheat and flour were rather disappointing, with the season's total but 10,000,000 bushels greater than the year before.

Wet weather over the corn belt and decreased country offerings of corn did a good deal to make corn prices yesterday average higher. Nevertheless, the corn export basis at the Gulf of Mexico was easier, five cents over Chicago May. Oats demand slackened a little, although available supplies increased 90,000 bushels this week.

Provisions received good support from commission houses, offsetting to a considerable extent easiness shown by hog values.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

For the first time since Faith had known George Pruitt, he failed her. To her agonized cry, "I can't have Cherry's life spoiled. There must be some way out!" he could return no satisfactory answer.

Faith was furious with him, then abjectly remorseful. "Please don't be angry with me, George. You've always been so wonderful to me. I don't know what I'd do without your friendship and help. Oh, George, there's nothing left for me to do but to tell Cherry the truth—that I went insane with jealousy of her and Bob and wanted to kill myself, that I've been shamming about this amnesia business—"

"No, Faith!" George stopped her sternly. "You can't do that! Don't you realize that your goodness is more real to Cherry than God's, that it is your influence that has been her only hope in her headlong, selfish career? If you show Cherry your clay feet, confess what you call your baseness to her, you'll destroy that influence. Cherry would be more deeply hurt than you could guess. She talks to me about you, like an adoring child about a saintlike mother—"

"Oh, does she?" Faith's eyes misted with tears. "I've thought sometimes that she has no respect for me because I've always allowed her to impose on me. Of course I don't want to destroy her illusions. I know how terrible it is to lose faith in those you love. I couldn't bear the idea of living when I thought Cherry and Bob were—but I mustn't talk about that any more. I can never make up to them for my awful mistake—"

"Then don't begin trying to do so by telling Cherry that you thought she had vamped your husband away from you," George cut in sternly.

"But how can the whole wretched tangle into which I've gotten poor Cherry be unraveled otherwise?" Faith pleaded despairingly.

"I simply don't know," George confessed ruefully.

"I don't deserve to get happiness out of all my suspicion and craziness and lying," Faith told him. "But, oh, George, I am happy! If it weren't for this wrong that I've done Cherry, I'd be ecstatic. For Bob loves me, George, and I—I adore him!"

"Then forget everything else but those two big facts," George advised gently, but Faith saw that he winced with pain.

"It isn't right for me to take so much from you and—give you nothing," she said pityingly, her hand tightening over his.

"You've given me your friendship and you've let me help you. That's more than I have a right to expect," George said gruffly, turning away from the bed. "Don't bother about me. Just get well as fast as you can."

Faith had every intention of obeying him, for she was consumed with a desire to get back into her own home and to begin her new life as a beloved wife, gloriously cured of the disease of jealousy. But a day, two days, three days dragged on and still the doctor would not release her from the hospital. She admitted to herself that she was strangely weak, that the sight and odor of food was more apt to nauseate her than to arouse her appetite. Dr. King, beset with Bob's anxious questions, was frankly puzzled, and then on the fourth day light seemed to pour in upon the problem and he abruptly ordered her to be taken to the operating room for an examination.

THE VALUE OF MEAT

New patients who come to me so often say, "I don't know why I am sick—I almost never eat any meat." Thus they show that they think the only important dietetic problem is answered when they say they do not use meat.

Yesterday I told you the proper value of meat as a most important and necessary item of food when used correctly.

While much has been written on this subject from the standpoint of the vegetarian, my firm conviction is that we need to study the uses of starches, sugars and other foods equally as well as to understand about the proper and improper uses of meats and other proteins. The Physical Culture Magazine and others of a similar nature are doing a great good in giving readers information regarding food values, etc.

It may be well to point out certain theories to account for the fact that meat has been given such a "bad reputation."

About one fourth of a pound each day is enough to satisfy the body's requirements. Those doing hard manual labor may be able to use as much as a half pound of meat daily.

As in the use of all other vital foods the use of meat must be well regulated. The reason why meat is often considered harmful is because it is almost always used in improper combination with other foods. Meat should be combined only with the non-starchy vegetables, and an overacidity of the stomach is produced whenever bread or potatoes are used with meat. This hyperacidity lowers the blood's alkalinity and produces various types of acidosis. I want to tell you how to correctly use meat so that it can properly be included in your menus.

The one who likes meat but has not used it because of bad results will be surprised to notice the difference between the effects produced by eating a meal of meat, spinach, celery and bread, and after eating the same meal with the bread left out!

One cannot be a fair judge of whether meat will agree with him or not if he uses only fried meats, as even the healthy man must take twice as long and use twice as much energy to digest fried meats compared to those which are broiled or roasted.

Many people are vegetarians because they do not care for the flavor of meat, and it is easy for them to believe it is bad for them if they eat it only in bad mixtures, or prepared in such a manner as to disguise the natural flavor. Many who will not eat a steak may eat hash or chop suey and enjoy the taste of these dishes. Then, when they suffer from indigestion the fault is laid on the meat, and many do not stop to think that the trouble has come from insulting the digestive organs with such bad mixtures.

Good cuts of fresh meat should supply the body with excellent protein material with which to build cells and repair wastes. When too much meat is used, or in improper mixtures with other food, or when prepared improperly, it may serve as a source of trouble to the system and prove as harmful as excessive use of the carbohydrates.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. F. Mac. asks: "Do the food colorings, sold in paste and liquid form for household use, contain anything that would be harmful to one's health?"

Answer: The various color extracts now on the market are made mostly from harmless vegetable and other color extracts, supplemented by a number of coal tar, or aniline, dyes approved by the Government after painstaking investigation and analysis. As long as their use is solely to enhance the enjoyment of foods and not to conceal their inferiority, I do not consider these colorings particularly harmful, especially since they are used in such limited quantities.

Question: W. G. asks: "What causes pellagra?"

Answer: Pellagra is a disorder caused partly by the absence of organic minerals in your food, and partly because of the acidosis produced from using an excess of over-refined starch—taking or example such devitalized food as cornmeal from which the hull has been entirely removed.

MARK STREET BOYS' CLUB HAS BANQUET

Members Spend Enjoyable Evening—Prizes Presented For Ticket Selling.

The Boys' Athletic Club of Mark Street United Church had a very enjoyable meeting last evening, which took the form of a banquet. Present at the meeting were K. Throop, secretary of the Sunday school, and Rev. A. E. Thornley, minister, who both gave very interesting addresses. There were also addresses given by Henry Shepperd, president, and Jack Smith, vice-president of the club. L. Agnew, club leader, then presented John Hunter and John Hill with books. These weer given for selling the most tickets for the concert held last Friday, at which over thirty dollars was raised, twenty of which is to be handed to the treasurer of the Building committee for the new church. The minister, Mr. Thornley, then congratulated the club as being the first to make the first year's payment to the fund. After the banquet a contest was given, in which John Hunter and Merton Pearce won the prizes.

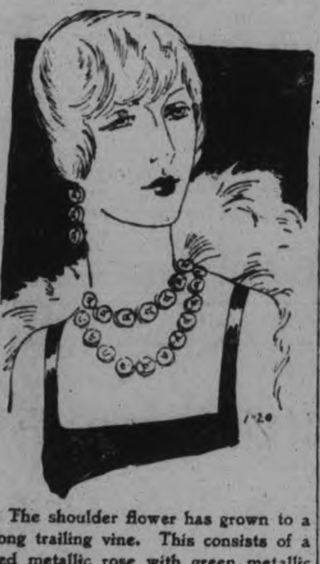
DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



The shoulder flower has grown to a long trailing vine. This consists of a red metallic rose with green metallic leaves trailing down the side of the bodice.

A recent fashion observation received from Paris—which seems to me to be of more specific than general application—is that shoulder flowers are no longer being worn. The fact is that jeweled shoulder brooches have come into prominence and that at some gatherings of well-dressed women they are worn almost to the exclusion of the artificial shoulder flower. These jeweled and metal ornaments have the distinct advantage of not being mussed—and for theater or restaurant wear are therefore preferable.

So far from having actually gone out of fashion, however, the shoulder flower has grown until it is no longer a mere blossom but a veritable vine, hanging down from the shoulder to the waist and sometimes down the back as well.

An interesting shoulder ornament recently worn by a French actress of note consisted of a diamond-studded bowknot perhaps three inches across placed on the left shoulder with an identical ornament placed at the left hip.

These jeweled pins in pairs are very much admired at the present time. One clever jewelry set I saw the other day consisted of a pair of twin bracelets, a pair of earrings, and two identical brooches. You may wear both bracelets on one arm or one on either arm and the brooches you may wear one on either shoulder, one on the shoulder and the other four or five inches below it. For an afternoon frock the matching brooches may be worn one on the shoulder and the other as a hat ornament.

Jeweled or enameled buttons are among the new accessories and collectors of antique jewelry in Paris have recently had a brisk demand for all sorts of fine old jeweled or metal buttons. On some of the new frocks all the buttons in a row do not match One jeweled button may head the line of plain gold ones or a single enamel button may appear in a row of plain ones.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

THURSDAY, JANUARY 26, 1928.

Astrologers find this rather an uncertain day, but adverse aspects appear to be strong.

It is wise to postpone important business until a more auspicious rule prevails since there may be a tendency to be exacting and to conform to outworn standards.

This may be a depressing day to the aged and to all who are inclined to look upon the serious side of life.

Recreation should be sought by young and old alike, for the too sensitive the sway is most disturbing.

There is today a benefic aspect governing financial matters which have been previously arranged.

Banks and bankers are well directed, but there is an unfavorable sway for those who would borrow money.

The stars presage among the other reactionary tendencies a change in regard to instalment purchases and time contracts.

Sound business methods that safeguard the family are to be widely preached and taught.

Although the average man and woman will become more and more interested in saving, those who possess wealth will become magnificently extravagant, it is prognosticated.

This is not a lucky rule for love affairs and it is wise to delay the pledging of any sort of troth.

Persons whose birthdate it is may be tempted to romantic adventures in the coming year which will be of vital importance.

Children born on this day may be too meek to make the most of their talents and should be trained to project themselves.

Hints on Etiquette

1. If a hostess knows her guest is reducing, is it necessary for her to plan her whole table fare accordingly?
2. What is considerate of her?
3. What care should the hostess who is a dainty, small eater take?

The Answers.

1. No, but she may try to provide some dieting dish each day.
2. Avoiding forcing food upon her guest when she does not want to eat.
3. She should strive to provide her guest with plenty.

If you use diced apples along with celery when making chicken salad you will discover they make an admirable filler and give tang.

REPAIR AULD BRIG O' DOON

Suffered to Some Extent at the Hands of Souvenir Hunters.

Second only in importance to the Auld Brig of Ayre, and better known in some respects, the Auld Brig o' Doon has been the subject of inspection within recent times by the Inspector of Ancient Monuments, who has reported to the County Council of Ayr that the condition of the brig appears to be unsatisfactory. It is stated that the parapets have suffered to some extent at the hands of souvenir hunters.

The Law Committee of the County Council had the matter under consideration, and at a recent meeting of the County Council the Clerk was authorized to obtain a report and estimates.

This decision should give the utmost satisfaction to Burnsians as it would be nothing short of a national calamity to have anything happen that would injure this historic fabric, around which Burns has thrown the glamour of undying romance in Tam o' Shanter.

TRENT RIVER, Jan. 25.—The cottage prayer meeting held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Lawson on Tuesday night was well attended by neighbors and other members of the congregation.

Mr. and Mrs. John Nevan., Norwood, were visitors with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Redden on Wednesday.

Mr. Thomas Tyler is moving to the farm known as the Hutchinson farm north of the place on which he has been residing.

The annual congregational meeting which was to have been held on Friday night, Jan. 20, was postponed for one week on account of the weather, and will take place Friday night, Jan. 27, instead.

The severe weather Friday interfered with the card party and dance which was to have been held under the auspices of the L.O.L. at "Cedar Isle" that night. The members and their friends from the south were unable to come, owing to the drifted condition of the roads, so the event was attended locally by about thirty.

SINCLAIR NAMED BY EVERHART AS SOURCE OF $230,000 PAID IN LIBERTY BONDS TO FALL

Former Interior Secretary's Son-in-law Testifies Before Lands Committee.

RECEIVED LOANS.

Will Seek To Find Out What Became of Continental Company's Profits.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press.)—Harry E. Sinclair was named to-day before the Senate lands committee as the source of $230,000 in Liberty bonds received by Albert B. Fall, after he had leased the Teapot Dome naval reserve to the wealthy New York oil operator in April, 1922.

This testimony, twice withheld from the Federal courts, was given freely by the man who handled the bonds, H. T. Everhart, of Pueblo, Col., son-in-law of the former interior secretary. He declared that besides this sum, for which Sinclair was to get an interest in Fall's New Mexico ranch, Fall received $2,500 in Liberty bonds and $86,000 in cash as "loans" from Sinclair. The witness said he did not know whether these were repaid.

As at its original inquiry four years ago, which was revived yesterday, the committee received testimony that Sinclair also advanced 25,000 in Liberty bonds to Fall after the latter had retired from the Cabinet and before he made a trip to Russia as the oil operator's representative in negotiations with the Soviet government.

Received Two Sums.

Thus the record now stands that the former interior secretary received a sum total of $294,000 from Sinclair and $100,000 from Edward L. Doheny after the lease of the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills, California, naval oil lands, which since have been recovered by the government.

Testimony at the Fall-Sinclair criminal conspiracy trial here, which was halted abruptly last November after Burns' detectives shadowed the jury, was that the $230,000 in bonds which Everhart says Sinclair personally paid over to him were part of a block of such securities which the Continental Trading Company, Limited, a now extinct Canadian corporation, bought in New York out of its profits on the purchase and resale of oil in this country.

The committee will set out now to ascertain if it can find out what became of the remainder of the $3,000,000 in profits which the Continental company is alleged to have made by buying oil from the late A. E. Humphreys of Denver, and reselling it to the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company, and the Midwest Refining Company and the Prairie Oil & Gas Company.

Examine Bank Records.

As the first step in that direction, it called A. O. Downing, of the New York Trust Company, who produced the records of the bank showing transactions in Liberty bonds totalling more than $1,000,000 by Henry M. Blackmer, former chairman of the board of the Midwest, who now is in France and has refused to return to testify in the Fall-Sinclair case.

[illegible] testimony in the District of Columbia Supreme Court here is that Blackmer, James J. O'Neill, former president of the Prairie Company; Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil of Indiana, and Sinclair guaranteed the performance of Continental contract with Humphreys.

The committee wants to know who got the remainder of the company's profits and what disposition was made of them. In that connection, it is hinted that several former directors of political campaigns will be called upon to say whether any of the alleged slush fund went to pay off campaign deficits.

Sinclair at Washington

Sinclair, now in Washington on account of his hearing in the local courts of a contempt charge growing out of his joint trial with Fall on a criminal conspiracy charge, refused last night to make any comment on Everhart's testimony. He is under summons to go before the committee and may appear today or Thursday.

Until yesterday, Everhart had consistently refused to tell what he knew about any transactions between Fall and Sinclair on the ground of self-incrimination. That barrier recently was removed by a special act of Congress and after he had made it clear to the commission that he was testifying under compulsion and not voluntarily, he told the details volubly, apparently happy that at last he could tell his story without fear of criminal prosecution.

Upon leaving the witness stand after being questioned for more than an hour, Everhart said he did not know whether Fall was aware of his plan to tell the details of the bond transaction.

"I had to tell my part," he said, "in fairness to my family. I could not keep still any longer, because it was never any more to me than an ordinary ranch deal. If it was anything more, I did not know about it."

Everhart told a somewhat vague and involved account of a re-financing of New Mexico ranch properties held by himself and his father-in-law, the details of which he said had been arranged by Fall and Sinclair before Everhart was brought into the deal.

Briefly, the story was that the ranch properties were to be lumped and a one-third interest to be sold to Sinclair, the money to be used in paying off the indebtedness of the Tres Ritos Land and Cattle Company, Fall's personal debts and the balance due on the Harris Ranch, adjoining Tres Ritos, which Fall had taken over.

In the picture was a scheme by which a part of Tres Ritos would be converted into a hunting and riding club and it appeared to Everhart that Sinclair's interest of one-third in the newly-organized ranch company was on account of the prospective organization of the club, which, however, never was materialized.

Birmingham Company Gets Big Contract

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press Cable, via Reuter's.)—It is understood that a contract for 50 railway coaches costing £170,000 has been awarded to a Birmingham, England, firm in the face of keen competition from continental companies.

The succession of important railway contracts recently given to Germany and the resultant statements from London that continuance of such a policy would be likely to react unfavorably against sales of South African products in Great Britain, accentuated unusual interest in the railway administration's latest call for tenders for the supplying of railway equipment.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a tablespoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

entire council. He considered that he had a very capable Warden to follow, Mr. Elliott, and also previous men who had held the office.

Much Correspondence.

Applause greeted his remarks and the next item of business was the adoption of the minutes as printed in the official record. The matter of correspondence followed and Reeve Wood, South Monaghan, wanted it read by the Clerk. Col. MacNachtan, proceeded to read the mountain of letters before him. They were a series of accounts rendered, payments made, requests, reports, announcemetns, and all sorts of things. He continued till 9.45 p.m., when Reeve Thompson, Cobourg, suggested that the remainder be left over till morning and committees named, but it was the pleasure of the council to continue and E. L. MacNachtan relived the Colonel.

When the tedious procedure ended and the communications had been properly dealt with, the motion was made by Reeves Wood and Giddy to appoint a committee to name the various committees for the council. They retired for a brief period and appointed W. C. Wood, of South Monaghan, their chairman. He announced that the council would meet at 10.00 a.m. to appoint the various committees.

On motion of Reeves Bygott and Wood, the account of $122,769.90 was passed in order to secure the government rebate of fifty per cent. On motion of Reeves Holdman and Grills, the next regular meeting hour was set for 2.30 p.m. Wednesday.

Asks For Power.

There being no further general business, Warden Davidson announced that Major Belford, Codrington, was present and wished to address the council. Such was the council's pleasure and Mr. Belford entered upon an eloquent appeal for the influence of the council in obtaining Hydro light for his community. He compared town and rural taxes and thought the farmer entitled to electricity as well as town folk. He enumerated the hazards of lanterns and lamps around farm buildings. He said he was "getting darn sick of the whole thing" and thought the farmer entitled to the same privileges that a resident on the back streets of any concession town enjoyed. He pointed out that a line could be run off the transformer where the Warkworth line came off the main and if this council managed to get the power he would see that a pole was erected in Codrington bearing the names of the entire council. He also touched on the suggested paved highway north from Brighton via Campbellford and Havelock.

Ex-Wardens Speak.

Ex-Warden Elliott was the first of the ex-Wardens to speak. He congratulated Mr. Davidson and remarked on the "long drawn-out" election. He felt certain that the council would prosper and believed that Mr. Davidson had always been a faithful member. During the six years Mr. Elliott had sat in the council, he said he had not noticed as many new faces as this year. He had been very much pleased with his year as Warden and had enjoyed the support and co-operation of the council. Mr. Davidson he thought, would enjoy the same during 1928.

John MacCubbin, a genuine Scot from "Auld Ayr whom ne'er a town surpasses for honest men and bonnie lassies," congratulated the new Warden most sincerely. He mentioned the fact that they had been appointed on a previous occasion, but that they had fought fairly as gentlemen and friends. He was pleased to see Mr. Davidson given the highest honor of which the United Counties were capable. McCubbin also expressed his pleasure at having heard Major Belford's remarks, and humorously suggested a paved road along a different route from that suggested by the Major. He appreciated Mr. Belford's stand and also his ideas concerning the electricity for farmers. The Hydro passed over and through farm properties, but in many cases was not for the farmer's use. Applause followed his remarks as it had to others.

J. L. McCamus, ex-Warden and retired from the counties council since 1925, spoke very highly of his valuable experience gained while a member of the council. His story of the two Irishmen and the wild cat illustrated his point wonderfully well. He stated that he had greatly enjoyed the fraternal society of the council and appreciated their problems. They had the largest mileage of any of the adjacent counties and he was not surprised that the road superintendent was gray-haired and the county clerk as well. In conclusion he expressed the wish that 1928 would be the banner year for the council and included his compliments to the newly-elected Warden, C. H. Davidson.

At 10.49 p.m. the session adjourned.

Obituary

JOHN ROSS LILLICO.

The death occurred on Tuesday, Jan. 24, of John Ross Lillico, in his 18th year. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lillico, of North Monaghan.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, Provincial Highway, on Thursday, at 3.00 o'clock, to Little Lake Cemetery, the Rev. Mr. Allan officiating.

ISAAC PANNENT.

St. Andrew's United Church lost a valued member and the firm of J. J. Turner & Sons lost an employee of worth in the sudden passing on Tuesday afternoon of Isaac Pannent, a life-long resident of this district. It was while driving along Weller Street about 4 p.m., that Mr. Pannent was suddenly overcome, having been in his usual good health right up to the occurrence.

Isaac Pannent was born in South Monaghan about forty-seven years ago, and on growing to manhood followed the trade of blacksmith. For the past ten years he has been employed by the J. J. Turner Company, first as a blacksmith and latterly as an erector of awnings.

His membership in the Canadian Order of Foresters at Bensfort was an honorable one, and as a worker in the Union Sunday School at Coldsprings he was esteemed by young and old alike.

The funeral will take place from his home in Otonabee on Thursday, January 26, at 2 p.m., Rev. J. W. Gordon conducting services at the house and at the graveside in Little Lake Cemetery.

Left to mourn are his sorrowing widow, one son Ray at home, a brother William, residing in South Monaghan, a sister Mrs. Ayotte, of Peterborough, and a sister in the West.

HER KIDNEY TROUBLE QUICKLY DISAPPEARED

Ontario Lady Tells of Benefits Derived From Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Miss E. Hannah Always Keeps Dodd's Kidney Pills in the House

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Jan. 24.—(Special)—"I had terrible backache", writes Miss E. Hannah, 100 South John St., Belleville. "I went to my Drug Store and got a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before I had taken the whole box my back was better. From now on I keep a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house. I find they help me wonderfully."

The reason Dodd's Kidney Pills have come to occupy such a prominent place in the home is that so many ordinary everyday ills come from sick kidneys.

Rheumatism, urinary troubles, backache and heart disease can be traced directly or indirectly to sick kidneys. To be assured of good health the kidneys must be kept in good working order all the time.

Dodd's Kidney Pills can be obtained from Druggists everywhere, or The Dodds Medicine Co., Ltd., Toronto 2, Ont.

Thermogene: the warmth that heals—

Neuritis

In combating, relieving and defeating Neuritis, Thermogene is soothing, comforting and persuasive. But it is also definitely commanding.

The action of Thermogene is that of assured authority, of complete confidence in superior force. The Neuritis pain may shift its position from limb to limb, but Thermogene will follow it. It may vary its attack, but Thermogene will circumvent it. It may take refuge in a muscle or a joint, but Thermogene will hunt it out. There's only one end to this conflict. Neuritis must capitulate, Thermogene must win.

And when its healing warmth has done its work, Thermogene may be removed layer by layer—safely and comfortably.

MALINES REPORT ENDS PRAYER BOOK

All Parties To Controversy Admit Rejection May Be Expected.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—All parties to the controversy in the Church of England privately admit that publication of the accounts of the Malines conversations looking to Roman Catholic and Anglican reunion, has insured rejection of the new revised prayer book by the House of Commons and has made disestablishment of the Church of England highly probable in the near future.

Malines is the chief topic of conversation in both political and church circles. In general, the press, which hopes to avoid a religious war by adoption of the revised prayer book, attempts to minimize the importance of the conversations.

It is pointed out that the Pope's recent encyclical removes the reunion issue from the sphere of practical church politics.

The Evangelicals, however, have immediately seized upon the fact that the Archbishop of Canterbury gave his support to negotiations in which Anglicans recognized the "primacy" of the Pope in Christendom.

The Times in a cautious leading article says the Church of England "is charged alternately with being stubbornly Catholic and ineradicably Protestant," and it adds:

"Much evidence can be offered in support of the charge of disputants on either side. But if the spirit of fellowship is to be preserved and the manifold aspects of truth are remembered, what appears a source of weakness may be regarded as justification of the hope that the Church of England is called to discharge a special office to the whole Church in restoration of unity and preservation of truth and charity."

Despite the vagueness of this language, the evangelicals are charging the Times with preparing the way for advocating reunion with Rome.

Deals More Frankly.

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard deals more frankly with the issues raised, recognizing the profound importance of the Malines conversations report and saying:

"There can be no doubt this will prove a serious obstacle to the success of a further appeal to Parliament unless the deposited prayer book is altered so as to omit most of the concessions to the Anglo-Catholics."

Since this is not being done, the Standard inferentially admits the prayer book is beaten. All authorities agree this would mean disruption of the Church.

The most prominent ecclestiastics today declined to discuss for publication the Malines report. Privately the moderate element is discouraged, while Anglo-Catholics who wish dis-establishment with ultimate reunion with Rome, are jubilant. Henry Fowler, secretary of the Protestant Alliance, said:

"We demand the whole truth in the Malines report. There is only half the truth. We have got what are called agreements, but we demand to hear the disagreements. The Archbishop of Canterbury's cognizance of these discussions was a blunder of the greatest magnitude."

The Rev. Arnold Pinchard, secretary of the English Church Union, commented:

Ground for Thankfulness.

"There is every ground for profound thankfulness in contemplating the result of the conferences, but we must remember there are other vital points of difference—the validity of Anglican orders and the question of the kind of primacy which is to be accorded the Bishop of Rome."

Captain Barron, secretary of the Church Association, remarked:

"The Malines conferences were entirely unrepresentative, the Anglican representatives with the solitary exception of the Dean of Wells, were extreme ritualists who had been notorious during their whole public careers for their championship of Romish errors."

Summing up the situation, it appears evangelical opinion condemns the Malines concessions to Rome intensely; reunion is not considered a practical issue, however, because of the Pope's encyclical; but the Archbishop of Canterbury, to the evangelical mind, has lost the confidence of the evangelical section of the church because of his identification with the Malines discussions. This section includes many members of Parliament who voted for the Prayer Book last month and will vote against it when it is again presented.

ADVANCES MADE BY CHEMICAL ENGINEER

Greater Economy Results From Efforts in Past Few Years.

Looking about him today, the individual may well gasp at the changes in his life which have resulted from the enormous strides the world over in chemical engineering. New materials, new products, new processes for making existing products, always tending to less waste, and greater economy have changed not only man's way of living but his methods of thought. In a few years, the chemical engineer has changed the entire face of industry, and it is to him that the world's industries look in future.

Undoubtedly unprecedented strides are also being made in Canadian chemical engineering as is evidenced by the efforts of the leading Canadian chemical companies.

To help inform the public as to the part Canadian Industries Limited is playing, Arthur B. Purvis, its President and Managing Director, announces that an extensive campaign will be launched throughout the Canadian press, defining more clearly the reasons for the progress made by Canadian Industries Limited—one of the leading manufacturing enterprises of Canada.

The various products of Canadian Industries Limited, such as Commercial Explosives, Duco, Fabrikoid, Pyralin, etc., Mr. Purvis says, have all been developed from the same basic materials, which augurs well for still further developments in the future, redounding to the advantage of the Canadian consuming public and of the manufacturing industry which serves it.

CAVAN INSTITUTE WILL SEND BALE

Will Also Engage in Relief Work in Township—Business Session Held.

CAVAN, Jan. 25.—Cavan Women's Institute met at Mrs. Richard Matchett's home on Thursday afternoon. In spite of the stormy afternoon, there were twenty ladies present.

The President, Mrs. D. J. Hunter, conducted the meeting, which opened with the singing of the Institute Ode.

As there had been no December meeting, there was an accumulation of correspondence and business to be dealt with.

Three letters were read by the Secretary thanking the Institute for flowers sent at the Christmas season.

A communication was also read from a public school inspector in Haliburton, asking for a donation of clothing for school children between the ages of five and fifteen in schools in his inspectorate. He stated that unless these children received outside help many of them could not attend school for want of warm clothing.

It was decided to have a special sewing bee at Mrs. J. W. Perrin's home next week to prepare clothing for a bale to be sent. It was arranged to purchase new stockings, flannelette and underwear and batting for two quilts, which will be pieced by the Institute.

Some local relief was also planned, a committee being named to find out what was needed and purchase the same.

A resolution was passed that the Institute, in May, will have a bazaar, supper and play, each member to contribute one article to the bazaar.

It was also decided to ask for a summer delegate to address an afternoon meeting in May, or whenever the department arranges for these meetings.

Another resolution passed was to invite Millbrook, Bethany and Mount Pleasant Institutes to join with Cavan in this meeting, lunch to be served by Cavan Institute, and a collection taken. The meeting would be held in Cavan Community Hall.

The afternoon was entirely taken up with business, the program being carried over until the February meeting, which will be held at Mrs. D. J. Hunter's home.

A social hour and the serving of refreshments brought the afternoon meeting to a close.

Among those present were: Mrs. D. J. Hunter, Mrs. M. Matchett, Mrs. Rowen, Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Swain, Mrs. R. Syer, Mrs. White, Mrs. J. Armstrong, Mrs. E. Syer, Miss L. Syer, Miss E. Hunter, Mrs. C. Carr, Mrs. L. Sutton, Mrs. L. McNeil, Mrs. R. S. Staples, Miss N. Sutton, Mrs. J. W. Perrin, Mrs. J. Sutton, Mrs. R. Matchett, Miss D. Pudsy, and Mrs. F. M. Staples.

ST. JOHN'S LOSE FINAL GAME OF SERIES 3-2

LINDSAY MIDGETS WIN SECTION HONORS, BEATING ST. JOHN'S IN FINAL GAME OF SERIES BY 3 -2

Peterborough Crew Set Up An Early Lead, But Invaders Come From Behind.

A CLOSE BATTLE.

Cuthbertson and Payne Shine For Petes in Hard Fight With Lindsay Rivals.

(By F. D. C.)

It looked for a while in last night's Junior O.H.A. battle between the Lindsay Midgets and the St. John's crew at Brock Street Rink as if the Saints were going to shake the jinx that has pursued all Peterborough's teams this season and turn in the first victory of the campaign, but old John B. Defeat bobbed up as usual before the end of the battle, and the Midgets skated off victors by a score of 3 to 2.

The Peterborough youngsters outplayed their rivals in the first period to lead 2 to 0 at the first rest, and they continued to carry the pressure to them until the second session was more than half over. Then very loose defensive work threw away the whole fruits of the aggressive offensive the Saints had carried on from the beginning, and the Midgets bagged three goals in a row before the period ended. All three of these counters were the result of men being left unchecked in front of the Peterborough nets, and Spratt, who scored the winning marker, was camped all by himself in front of Payne for fully fifteen seconds before he received a pass and converted it into Lindsay's winning margin.

The Midgets were hard pressed all through the last period to protect their slender lead, but they managed to hold the Saints off the score sheet and hang up their fourth win of the series.

The Lindsay crew have had the edge throughout the section race, and deserved to win, although not by such a margin as eleven goals on the round. They won the first fixture in Lindsay by seven goals, the Saints blowing up badly at one stage, but the last three games have been real battles that showed very little difference in the calibre of the two teams. Tme Midgets won because they had more punch to their attack and more particularly perhaps because their defence was steadier and more effective than the Petes' rearguard.

This difference stood out in last night's game, and was probably the most prominent factor in deciding the issue. Woods and Rich were a hard-hitting defence, slipping into the Peterborough attackers with a will, and they gave McClory plenty of protection. On the other hand the Saints were shaky defensively, and their weakness here would have hurt them worse had not Payne played a stellar game in the nets, making a lot of clever saves in the pinches. In fact, had the goalie been given the assistance his work merited, the St. John's two goals in the first period would have been enough to have given them a victory. When Lindsay's first goal was scored, Payne had already stopped two hard drives in rapid succession and another Lindsay attacked was allowed to coast in and grab the loose puck off the second rebound for an easy goal. And the other two counters were netted in much the same way.

It was a nice battle, however, fast all the way, and the crowd appreciated the effort made by the local crew to pull the game out of the fire.

Gordon Cuthbertson, sixteen-year-old centre ice player, was the outstanding star for the Saints. The youngest and lightest player on the ice, Cuthbertson never stopped trying, was the most dangerous and successful puck carrier on his team, and his fast back checking was a big help. The youngster received many a hard jolt from the husky Lindsay defence, but they could not stop him from boring in, and had the whole local crew showed the same determination, Peterborough would have had a game in the win column for the first time this season. Cuthbertson and Payne in the nets were the Saints' best assets on the night's play, some of the others failing to reach their usual standard. Both Carroll and Johnston were more successful offensively than they were as a defence pair, and Jarvis, whose work was a feature of the last game in Lindsay, failed to hit his stride in last night's battle, showing his real form only in flashes. Terry Hall's best contribution was some effective snap shots from the side, one of which gave the Saints their second goal.

Althought Woods marred his usefulness to his team by drawing four penalties, he and his defence partner Rich were a big source but Payne and McClory beat the at-fact kept them in the hunt. The Midget attacking squads were not as effective as in other games this season, but the defence started many plays for them. Forbert was perhaps the pick of the forward line, although Hogan and Spratt were both of much service.

The teams:

Lindsay.

Goal—McClory.
Defence—Woods, Rich.
Centre—Forbert.
Right wing—Hogan.
Left wing—Spratt.
Subs.—Gerster and Bain.

St. John's.

Goal—Payne.
Defence—Carroll and Johnston.
Centre—Cuthbertson.
Right wing—Terry Hall.
Left wing—Jarvis.
Subs.—Hartley, Jack Hall.
Referee—D. Lowry, Toronto.

The first period saw a lot of fast, even hockey, with both teams showing plenty of speed. The result was considerable work for both goalers, but Payne and McClork beat the attackers consistently for some time. The Petes' defence opened up wide on two Lindsay combination attacks, but the play went wrong, and down at the other end of the rink Terry Hall almost scored when he snapped a hard drive from the boards. Jarvis drew the first penalty, but no damage was done while he was off. Finally, after nearly fourteen minutes had elapsed, the Petes took the lead for the first time in the series when Cuthbertson went in alone and drifted a high one past McClory. It was a neat play by the little centre man.

The Saints kept coming, and although they failed on several close plays, they were not to be denied, and Terry Hall put them two goals up when he took a pass from Jack Hall and drove a beauty from the side that completely beat McClory.

Woods drew the first of his four penalties shortly before the period ended, and was still an absentee when the second session started.

The Saints were on the attack almost continuously in the early part of the middle stanza, materially assisted by the fact that Woods drew two more penalties in rapid succession. However, although they came close a dozen times they could not drive home another counter, and suddenly the tide turned. A combined rush gave Forbert a chance close in, but Payne blocked the spot and also saved when the rebound was batted at him. Hogan, unchecked, grabbed the loose puck and slammed in Lindsay's first goal. Gerster tied the score two minutes after in much the same way. He was left unchecked out in front, and picked up a loose puck to score easily. Right on top of this marker Spratt won the game for the Midgets when he took a pass from behind the net by Forbert. He had all the time in the world to get set and score.

Then the Saints came to life again and battled desperately to pull up on even terms. The period bell found them still a goal down, and although they moved four men up on the firing line for most of the final twenty minutes, they did not succeed in breaking through for the counter that meant a tie. Jarvis had the best chance in the period when he stickhandled in on top of McClory, only to be beaten by the goaler. The Saints were the aggressors all through the last dash, and toward the finish had the Midgets shooting the rubber down the rink to relieve the pressure. The visitors held the fort successfully, however, and protected their one goal margin until the finish.

As a result of their victory the Lindsay team will meet the winners of the Markham-Stouffville-Uxbridge section in a home-and-home series for the group title.

LAKEFIELD WINS SECOND GAME

Defeat Bobcaygeon 4-1 in Second Game of Home and Home Series.

LEADING ROUND.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 25.—Playing before the largest crowd that has witnessed an O.H.A. fixture here this season, Lakefield Intermediates defeated Bobcaygeon by a 4—1 count in the second game of home and home series at the local rink last night. Victors now leading the round, having played three games and won three games. The last game of this series is to be played Friday night in Peterborough against Havelock.

Both suffered casualties during the game, Stabler, Lakefield left wing man, being knocked out by getting hit on the head in first period, and Read for Bobcaygeon was crushed into boards in second frame by Louis Sabatino. He was badly shaken up while Sabatino was sent to box to take a rest.

Bobcaygeon, by Wright, scored tally in initial period, 2 minutes after play began, on a long shot from centre ice; 13 minutes later Wannamaker evened the count by sinking the puck for Lakefield, leaving score standing 1—1 at end of first period. During this frame very little combination was played with back checking keen, while goalies for both sides played extra good game.

In second period most of the play was centred around the Bobcaygeon goal, and Stabler broke the tie by scoring for locals fifteen minutes after period opened; 3 minutes later Northey tallied for Lakefield with the frame ending 3—1 for homesters. While play was close in this period, ice was very soft and going heavy, both teams having a hard time in making the grade.

With players up on their toes, prepared for a fight to the finish, Loosemore scored the only goal of the third period by tallying counter three minutes after play started. Penalties were numerous during this frame: Northey, Blewett and Sabatino of locals were told to take a rest with Wright and Edgar being the "bad boys" for the visitors. There were only two penalties in the other frames, one for each period.

Both teams were well balanced and play even, clean stickwork being one of the features of the match. John Sabatino and Blewett starred for Lakefield, while Johnson carried honors for the losers.

Gordon Hill, Bobcaygeon centreman, who plafed for Lakefield two years ago and won the Dr. Kennedy's cup for all-around sportsmanship, played in his usual style, being one of the star players of opposing team.

Line-up:

Lakefield—Junkin and Moore, goal; J. Sabatino and B. Blewett, defence; L. Sabatino, centre; Loosemore and Stabler; wings; Northey and Wannamaker.

Bobcayeon.—Joe Nicholas, goal; L. Johnson and K. Read, defence; Gordon Hill, centre; L. Wright and N. Edgar, wings; L. Nichols and L. Kelso, subs.

Referee—Bill Jackson of Peterborough.

FRENCHY BELANGER SUSPENDED BY NEW YORK BOXING MOGULS

Toronto Boy Did Not Appear Before Commission For Questioning.

FOR ALLEGED FOULING.

May Affect Title Bout Between Canadian and Izzy Schwartz.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 — Canadian Press. — Albert "Frenchy" Belanger of Toronto, recognized by the National Boxing Association as the flyweight champion of the world, was indefinitely suspended by the New York State Athletic Commission here yesterday for failure to appear before the board when summoned.

Belanger was called before the commission for questioning in regard to his alleged fouling of Frisco Grande, the young Filipino, in a bout at Buffalo, N.Y., on Jan. 16. The summary action was taken when neither Belanger nor any representative of the boxer appeared.

Action of the commission probably will hamper efforts of Jess McMahon, matchmaker of Madison Square Garden to bring together Belanger and Corporal Izzy Scwartz, recognized in New York State as the flyweight champion, in a 15 round title match here this winter. Negotiations for the match have been under way for some time.

Must Post Forfeit.

NEW YORK Jan. 25. Canadian Press. — Headline battlers who attempt to "run out" of matches in New York in the future will not escape without receiving at least one blow.

The State Athletic Commission decided yesterday to leave a $5000 "sock" in the form of an appearance forfeit at the treasury of any fighter who desires to leave himself unable to go through with a match on the scheduled date. The fistic fathers announced that legitimate cases of illness or injury, substantiated by its own physicians, will be dealt with "leniently."

This action followed the appearance of Charley Harvey, manager of Tom Heeney, before the commission, protesting against Jack Delaney risking injury in bouts scheduled before the French-Canadian battles the New Zealand champion in a 15-round match at Madison Square Garden, March 1. Heeney complained that a two weeks' postponement of his recent draw engagement with Jack Sharkey impaired his fighting form.

The commission refused to hamper Delaney in his avowed purpose of fighting himself into peak condition, but expressed the opinion through William Muldoon, 82 year old member, that postponement such as the Sharkey-Heeney affair must be prevented in the future. The board believes that Sharkey, who complained of an injury to his left hand, could have fought Heeney in December instead of demanding and obtaining postponement until Jan. 13.

Two Champs. Suspended.

NEW YORK Jan. 25. Canadian Press. — Two champions of the National Boxing Association, New York, —"Frenchy" Belanger of the flyweights and Benny Bass, the feather weight star—came under the ban of the New York state commission yesterday.

Bass storm centre for many months in the controversy between two of boxing ruling powers over leadership of the 126 pound division, was indefinitely suspended along with Phil Glassman, his manager, and the pilot's entire stable of boxers for "running out" of a match with Tony Canzoneri in Madison Square Garden next Friday night.

Belanger, Canadian youngster, suffered the same punishment for failure to answer a summons to appear before the commission.

The commission's decision probably will hamper further the efforts of local promoters to bring together Belanger and Corporal Izzy Schwartz—recognized in New York state as flyweight champion

Peltzer To Make Three Appearances

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press.)—The Amateur Athletic Union, through its foreign relations committee, yesterday cleared the way for three American competitive appearances by Dr. Otto Peltzer, ace of Canadian middle distance runners—two in New York and one in Chicago.

To gain formal sanction for these games, Peltzer needs only to comply with the usual A.A.U. regulations governing amateur competition and agree to make no exhibition appearances.

The German, who conquered Paavo Nurmi and Ervin Wide in Europe, already has filed his entry in the Millrose A.A. games at Madison Square Garden February 2 and in the Illinois Athletic Club's track and the field carnival at Chicago February 10. His third appearance, provided he complies with a request of the foreign relations committee, will be in the National A.A.U. indoor championships at the Garden, February 25.

MARMORA PLAYS TO GOALLESS TIE

Clash With Stirling in Hard Fought Game in Interscholastic Schedule.

MARMORA, Jan. 25.—A hard-fought game of hockey extending three periods to then result in a goalless tie was witnessed on the Marmora rink on Monday evening, the homesters playing Stirling in the Interscholastic schedule. In the initial period Marmora outplayed their rivals, but poor shooting oft-times and sterling play of Morton in the nets kept a score away. Play in the second period was a trifle faster and more even, each goal being visited in turns, with both goalies on their job. In the third, Marshall and Narrie were particularly aggressive for Stirling, but Burns in the Marmora goal turned them back, time after time. Towards the end of the period the whole of the Marmora team kept up a peppering of shots on Morton, but his star was still in the ascendant. The nearest approach to a score was seen in the last overtime period, when Brady worked his way through, but meeting Morton, shot wide. The large crowd present were delighted with the standard of play shown by both teams. The ice was in fine condition.

Teams:

Marmora—F. Burns, goal; W. Shannon, right defence; C. McCoy, left defence; H. Brady, centre; W. Flynn, right wing; E. Hughes, left wing; M Finnegan, M. Sanderson, J. Auger subs.

G. Haslett, T. Cousins, goal umpires.

SHARKEY SIGNS FOR RISKO BOUT

Comes To Terms With McMahon After 24-Hour Deadlock.

WINNER MEETS TUNNEY.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 25 (Canadian Press).—In a deal that shuffled an entirely new aspect into Tex Rickard's heavyweight elimination tournament, Jack Sharkey of Boston was signed here late yesterday to meet Johnny Risko of Cleveland at Madison Square Garden on March 12, the winner to meet Gene Tunney in a title bout sometime next summer.

Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, came to terms with Jess McMahon, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, after a deadlock of almost 24 hours on the matter of a Sharkey-Risko bout under any terms.

McMahon came to Boston Monday to sign Sharkey for the Risko bout with the understanding that the winner would meet the victor of the impending Jack Delaney - Tom Heeney fight on March 1 to determine Tunney's first 1928 opponent. Buckley flatly refused to consider Delaney or Heeney as prospective opponents and the conference broke up about dawn yesterday.

McMahon telegraphed Rickard at Miami, Fla., for instructions, and received the reply that Tunney would be willing to meet Sharkey on condition that the Boston ex-sailor decisively whipped Risko in a bout to run nothing short of 15 rounds. When Tunney's views were conveyed to Buckley at a second conference yesterday, the Boston manager agreed to the bout and the contract was signed.

What disposition is to be made of Delaney and Heeney was not mentioned by Rickard in his telegram to McMahon here. The wire said:

"I have talked with Tunney and he agrees to accept Sharkey as an opponent if Jack wins over Risko in decisive style. The distance of the bout must be 15 rounds. Tunney wouldn't agree to Delaney because of his (Delaney's) refusal to meet Risko at more than 10 rounds. Sharkey must abide by same decision.

"Tunney thinks highly of Risko in view of his decisive victories over Delaney and Paulino."

Jim Johnston, of New York, Sharkey's chief second and adviser to Buckley, accompanied McMahon from New York and announced the results of the conference late yesterday a few minutes before boarding a return train with the matchmaker. We had nothing to say on the Delaney-Heeney angle of the matter and would not set a more definite date on the title bout than "sometime next summer, probably June or July."

Buckley, explaining his capitulation, said that Sharkey's record was full of decisions over good men, but he wants to prove that he's the best contender there is."

"If he can't win over Risko, then he doesn't want to fight Tunney. But he's already met Heeney, and that 'draw' went against the decision of 22 out of 24 sports writers there.

"As for Delaney, he's yet to meet a first-class heavyweight. He has lost to Maloney. He's lost to Risko and he has refused to meet Risko again in anything but a ten-round bout. I wouldn't be surprised if some of the humane societies acted to prevent some of the bouts he has planned on his barnstorming tour."

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE COLD PUMPKIN

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

"How dark it is getting all of a sudden!" whispered Uncle Wiggily to himself one afternoon as he was hopping across a field. He looked back over his shoulder at the woods through which he had just run. And he had run fast, too, had the rabbit gentleman. For in the woods, after dark, often the Fox or the Bob Cat roamed around, looking for good things to eat.

"And those bad chaps think rabbits are extra good to eat," said Uncle Wiggily to himself as he kept on hopping across the field.

Mr. Longears had gone to the store for Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy. He had bought the muskrat lady housekeeper a pound of sugar and some tallow candles.

"Why do you need candles when we have electric lightning bugs in our house to chase away the darkness?" Uncle Wiggily said when the muskrat lady housekeeper asked him to bring the candles.

"Oh, you never can tell," answered Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "The electric lightning bugs might fly away and then we would be in the dark. It is well to have a few candles in the bungalow."

So Uncle Wiggily had them in his pocket, and some matches, too, as he hopped through the woods and over the fields. He had looked for an adventure after buying the sugar and candles, and that is what made him so late.

"I had forgotten that it gets dark early now," said the rabbit gentleman to himself. "But I think everything will be all right. The Fox and the Bob Cat seem to be far away. They will not chase me and I shall soon be safely home."

But just as Uncle Wiggily said this to himself he heard, at the edge of the field, down in a fence corner, a voice speaking.

"Oh, how cold I am!" said the voice. "Oh, how I shiver in this snow!" There was a little snow on the ground near the fence. "Oh, if I could only get warm!" sighed the voice.

"I wonder who that is?" whispered Uncle Wiggily, crouching down to hide behind a stump. "It can't be the Fox, the Wolf or the Bob Cat. They aren't cold with their warm fur coats. I wonder who it is?"

Again the voice called

"Oh, how cold and shivery I am!"

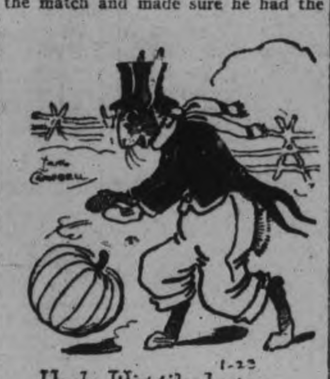
"Well, if you aren't one of the bad chaps, and if you will tell me who you are, perhaps I can make you warm, or at least take you to my warm bungalow," said Uncle Wiggily. "Who are you?"

"I am a cold pumpkin," was the answer. "When the farmer gathered the other pumpkins which grew with me in the field, he forgot, and left me behind. I have been here ever since, all alone and cold—Oh, so cold!" and the pumpkin's voice shivered.

"Poor thing," said Uncle Wiggily, striking a match to look for the cold pumpkin. He found the big, yellow vegetable down in the fence corner, with its vine all dried up. "You are too big for me to carry," Mr. Longears said to the yellow pumpkin, "but I can roll you along the ground and soon we shall be at my bungalow. Once there you will be warm, I am sure, for Nurse Jane will have a crackling hot fire burning, to warm my forty 'leven little bunny boys and girls."

"Oh, how wonderful it will be to feel warm again!" sighed the cold pumpkin. "Thank you, Uncle Wiggily. Roll me along as fast and as soon as you please. I shall be frozen solid if I stay here much longer. Roll me along!"

So the rabbit gentleman blew out the match and made sure he had the pound of sugar in one pocket and the tallow candles in the other pocket. After that Uncle Wiggily began rolling the cold pumpkin along the ground toward the hollow stump bungalow.



Uncle Wiggily began rolling the cold pumpkin.

"I feel better already," said the pumpkin. "I was so cold there, and lonesome. I wish you had come along earlier, Uncle Wiggily."

"I have been looking for adventures," said the rabbit gentleman. "I did not find any until I heard you calling. Now I am having a nice adventure, I think," and he gave the pumpkin another shove to roll it along the ground.

Just then, all of a sudden, there was a noise in the bushes beside the path, and a voice growled

"Speaking of adventures, you are going to have another one right away, Uncle Wiggily! And it isn't going to be a jolly one, either!"

"Who is that?" whispered the cold pumpkin.

"It—it sounds like the Bob Cat!" sighed Uncle Wiggily. "Yes, it is the Bob Cat," he added as he saw the short-tailed creature. "And he is after my ears, I am afraid."

"Don't be afraid," whispered the cold pumpkin, "I will save you!"

Lyrics of Life - By Douglas Malloch

THE WORLD HAS GROWN TOO GREAT

The world has grown too great, too rich,
To care for common things.
Like lilies growing in a ditch,
Or songs the robin sings.
And I have such a selfish thought,
When people hurry through;
I think a thing I never ought—
I'm rather glad they do!

The world has grown too great, too proud,
To keep the common touch;
I'm just a fellow in the crowd,
And don't amount to much.
I'm just a fellow with a patch
Of garden, and a hoe,
And great men never lift my latch—
I'm rather glad it's so.

The world has grown too big, too great,
To bother much with me,
Or birds, or roses by a gate,
Or blossoms on a tree.
Folks hurry on, the town to find,
Top speed they travel through,
And leave the common things behind—
I'm rather glad they do.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

COMPLETE VILLAGE BUILT FOR "ROSES OF PICARDY." Now Playing.

For the war scenes of "Roses of Picardy," a Gaumont British film, based on stories by R. H. Mottram, the director, Maurice Elvey, built a complete replica of the village of Hondebecq at Nice. The village covered an area of 640,000 square feet, and was the largest and probably the most cleverly planned "set" yet erected for a British film. Seven roads debouched on a quaint market place surrounded by a church, several typical shops and houses. It was constructed especially to obtain the greatest number of vistas or long shots, of which there are at least fourteen, while the number of camera angles run into hundreds.

The village was filmed in three phases, 1914, 1918 and 1926. It may be deemed topsy-turvy but the 1926 phase of the village and built and filmed first in order that the 1914 period could be destroyed last.

After the post-war and pre-war periods had been filmed, an army of workmen put shell holes in houses and roads, knocked tops of chimneys, corners off the church belfry, smashed the bells and devastated the place so thoroughly that nothing but general configuration remained as identification.

The scene was a memorable one. Hondebecq was being evacuated under shell fire. Men, women and children and carts swaying under loads off household furniture and chattels formed a confused mass hurrying towards the roads that led to safety, while a perspiring young British officer stood in the midst and deftly sorted them out, as it were, from the marching columns of British troops retreating before the big Boche push of 1918. Loud explosions occurred. Horse shied and film "supers" put every ounce of zest into getting away from the "falling shells" which were, in fact, land mines being exploded to the producer's orders. A whirr of a plane and the next moment it was sweeping six feet above the house tops and almost simultaneously the roadway belched fire, thunder and smoke, and the whole front of a house toppled into the hole left by the explosion which for the moment at any rate was as near real war as any producer is likely to create.

AT THE GRAND.

Added to the cast of the F. Stuart-Whyte hit, "Dick Whittington and His Cat" when it went into final rehearsal on this side of the Atlantic was a young Canadian ballet star, who, only a few months ago, figured on the front pages of America's newspapers as a central figure in one of the most unusual of romances.

She was playing in revue in Toronto when there suddenly appeared on the scene an Oriental gentleman, obviously the possessor of much wealth but a limited knowledge of the English language. He announced himself as a Persian potentate, Prince Farid, and declared that he had come to wed a young Canadian dancer, Hilda Palmer, whom he had met originally in Victoria, B.C.

He followed this declaration by visits to that city's leading jewellers, purchasing several precious stones, a valuable ring and a necklace of pearls. At the theatre where Miss Palmer was playing, he appeared in a box surrounded by his retinue. He took the Canadian girl on shopping expedition to shower her with gowns. He took her to dinner and distributed ten dollar tips among the waiters.

Following conferences with Miss Palmer's parents, the romance between the Oriental aristocrat and the Canadian danseuse faded, due to religious differences and the fact that Prince Fadrid would not consent to Miss Palmer's periodic return from Persia to Canada to visit her family.

The dancer, renouncing any ambitions she may have had to the title of Princess, went back to concentrate on her efforts toward making a career for herself on the stage. When the final casting for "Dick Whittington" was being done in Canada—with a few vacancies only to fill—Miss Palmer was selected from scores of applicants for one of them. It was not, however, till Mr. Whyte happened to ask Miss Palmer at one of the rehearsals whether she had any training in Oriental dance numbers that he gathered, from the amused smile which followed the request, that she was the heroine of the famous romance.

"Dick Whittington" with Miss Palmer in the cast, comes here to the Grand tomorrow.

Da Vinci's "The Last Supper" Among Great Paintings Re-created for Film

The first opportunity to view in motion and color the magnificent Lew Wallace classic of "Ben-Hur" comes to the Grand Theatre patrons where Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's $4,000,000 picturization in arrangement with A. L. Erlanger, C. B. Dillingham and F. Ziegfeld, Jr., will be presented on Monday. The novel, sub-titled "A Tale of the Christ", was the world's most popular book; the stage spectacle toured America for twenty-two years. Now, in the greater art of the motion picture, are offered the famous Sea Fight and Chariot Race as thrilling out-of-doors events; the lovely romance of Judah, Prince of Hur, and Esther; and replicas of Old World masterpieces, often in color. We see the beautiful Procession of Palms; da-Vinci's "The Last Supper", a marvelous color replica; "The Pool of Siloam," and the Vale of Hinnom, the Via Dolorosa, the miracle of Christ's healing, the mob and Pontius Pilate; the terrific cataclysm of Nature that toppled towers and palaces at the death of the Saviour. The final scene with Roman soldiers casting lots for the garments and the women kneeling at the foot of the Crosses is said to be the most reverent and beautiful ever staged.

"Ben-Hur" is presented with a magnificent cast that includes such stars of the picture firmament as Ramon Novarro, Betty Bronson, May McAvoy, Francis X. Bushman, Carmel Myers and 150,000 others in support. Novarro's performance as Ben-Hur is a surprisingly vigorous and dramatic portrayal, even to his most ardent admirers. Bushman is an excellent Messala, and May McAvoy as Esther is wholly delightful. Of equal excellence is the entire cast.

Czechoslovakia, with a population of 14,000,000 now has six automobile factories.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

THE STORY THUS FAR

The bolt to the side door of the building had been secured at six o'clock the evening before and was still locked the next morning. The janitor of the apartment where Margaret Odell was found strangled that morning was very positive. So the murderer, declared Heath, must have used the front entrance and passed the telephone operator. The operator relates that the "Canary" had come in with a gentleman a few minutes past eleven of the night before. "Now wait till you hear the rest of his story," says Heath.

CHAPTER IX

"He went in with Miss Odell, and stayed about half an hour," Jessup said.

Markham's eyes brightened, and there was a suppressed eagerness in his next words.

"Then he arrived about eleven, and was alone with Miss Odell in her apartment until about half past eleven. You're sure of these facts?"

"Yes, sir, that's correct," the man affirmed.

Markham paused and leaned forward.

"Now, Jessup, think carefully before answering: did any one else call on Miss Odell at any time last night?"

"No one, sir," was the unhesitating reply.

"[illegible] can you be so sure?"

"I [illegible]ld have seen them, sir. They would [illegible]e had to pass the switchboard in order to reach this apartment."

"And don't you ever leave the switchboard?" asked Markham.

"No, sir," the man assured him vigorously, as if protesting against the implication that he would desert a post of duty. "When I want a drink of water, or go to the toilet, I use the little lavatory in the reception-room; but I always hold the door open and keep my eye on the switchboard in case the pilot-light should show up for a telephone call. Nobody could walk down the hall, even if I was in the lavatory, without my seeing them."

One could well believe that the conscientious Jessup kept his eye at all times on the switchboard lest a call should flash and go unanswered. The man's earnestness and reliability were obvious; and there was no doubt in any of our minds, I think, that if Miss Odell had had another visitor that night, Jessup would have known of it.

But Heath, with the thoroughness of his nature, rose quickly and stepped out into the main hall. In a moment he returned, looking troubled but satisfied.

"Right!" he nodded to Markham. "The lavatory door's on a direct, unobstructed line with the switchboard."

Jessup took no notice of this verification of his statement, and stood, his eyes attentively on the district attorney, awaiting any further questions that might be asked him. There was something both admirable and confidence-inspiring in his unruffled demeanor.

"What about last night?" resumed Markham. "Did you leave the switchboard often, or for long?"

"Just once, sir; and then only to go to the lavatory for a minute or two. But I watched the board the whole time."

"And you'd be willing to state on oath that no one else called on Miss Odell from ten o'clock on, and that no one, except her escort, left her apartment after that hour?"

"Yes, sir, I would."

He was plainly telling the truth, and Markham pondered several moments before proceeding.

"What about the side door?"

"That's kept locked all night, sir. The janitor bolts it when he leaves, and unbolts it in the morning. I never touch it."

Markham leaned back and turned to Heath.

"The testimony of the janitor and Jessup here," he said, "seems to limit the situation pretty narrowly to Miss Odell's escort. If, as seems reasonable to assume, the side door was bolted all night, and if no other caller came or went through the front door, it looks as if the man we wanted to find was the one who brought her home."

Heath gave a short, mirthless laugh.

"That would be fine, sir, if something else hadn't happened around here last night." Then, to Jessup: "Tell the district attorney the rest of the story about this man."

Markham looked toward the operator with expectant interest; and Vance, lifting himself on one elbow, listened attentively.

Jessup spoke in a level voice, with the alert and careful manner of a soldier reporting to his superior officer.

"It was just this, sir." When the gentleman came out of Miss Odell's apartment at about half past eleven, he stopped at the switchboard and asked me to get him a Yellow taxicab. I put the call through, and while he was waiting for the car, Miss Odell screamed and called for help.

"The gentleman turned and rushed to the apartment door, and I followed quickly behind him. He knocked; but at first there was no answer. Then he knocked again, and at the same time called out to Miss Odell and asked her what was the matter. This time she answered. She said everything was all right, and told him to go home and not worry. Then he walked back with me to the switchboard, remarking that he guessed Miss Odell must have fallen asleep and had a nightmare.

"We talked for a few minutes about the war, and then the taxi-cab came. He said good night, and went out, and I heard the car drive away."

It was plain to see that this epilogue of the departure of Miss Odell's anonymous escort completely upset Markham's theory of the case. He looked down at the floor with a baffled expression, and smoked vigorously for several moments. At last he asked:

"How long was it after this man came out of the apartment that you heard Miss Odell scream? And just what did she say when she called for help?"

"She screamed twice, and then cried, 'Help! Help!'"

"And when the man knocked on the door the second time, what did he says?"

"As near as I can recollect, sir, he said: 'Open the door, Margaret! What's the trouble?'"

"And can you remember her exact words when she answered him?"

Jessup hesitated, and frowned reflectively.

"As I recall, she said: 'There's nothing the matter. I'm sorry I screamed. Everything's all right, so please go home, and don't worry.' . . . Of course, that may not be exactly what she said, but it was something very close to it."

"You could hear her plainly through the door, then?"

"Oh, yes. These doors are not very thick."

Markham rose, and began pacing, meditatively. At length, halting in front of the operator, he asked another question:

"Did you hear any other suspicious sounds in this apartment after the man left?"

"Not a sound of any kind, sir," Jessup declared. "Some one from outside the building, however, telephoned Miss Odell about ten minutes later, and a man's voice answered from her apartment."

"What's this!" Markham spun round, and Heath sat up at attention, his eyes wide. "Tell me every detail of that call."

Jessup complied unemotionally.

"About twenty minutes to twelve a trunk-light flashed on the board, and when I answered it, a man asked for Miss Odell. I plugged the connection through, and after a short wait the receiver was lifted from her phone—you can tell when a receiver's taken off the hook, because the guide-light on the board goes out—and a man's voice answered 'Hello.' I pulled the listening-in key over, and, of course, didn't hear any more."

There was silence in the apartment for several minutes. Then Vance, who had been watching Jessup closely during the interview, spoke.

"By the bye, Mr. Jessup," he asked carelessly, "were you yourself, by any chance, a bit fascinated—let us say—by the charming Miss Odell?"

For the first time since entering the room the man appeared ill at ease. A dull flush overspread his cheeks.

"I thought she was a very beautiful lady," he answered resolutely.

Markham gave Vance a look of disapproval, and then addressed himself to the operator.

"That will be all for the moment, Jessup."

The man bowed stiffly and limped out.

"This case is becoming positively 'ascinatin'," murmured Vance, relaxing once more upon the davenport.

"It's comforting to know that some one's enjoying it." Markham's tone was irritable. "And what, may I ask, was the object of your question concerning Jessup's sentiments toward the dead woman?"

"Oh, just a vagrant notion struggling in my brain," returned Vance.

Heath, rousing himself from gloomy abstraction, spoke up.

"We've still got the finger-prints, Mr. Markham. And I'm thinking that they're going to locate our man for us."

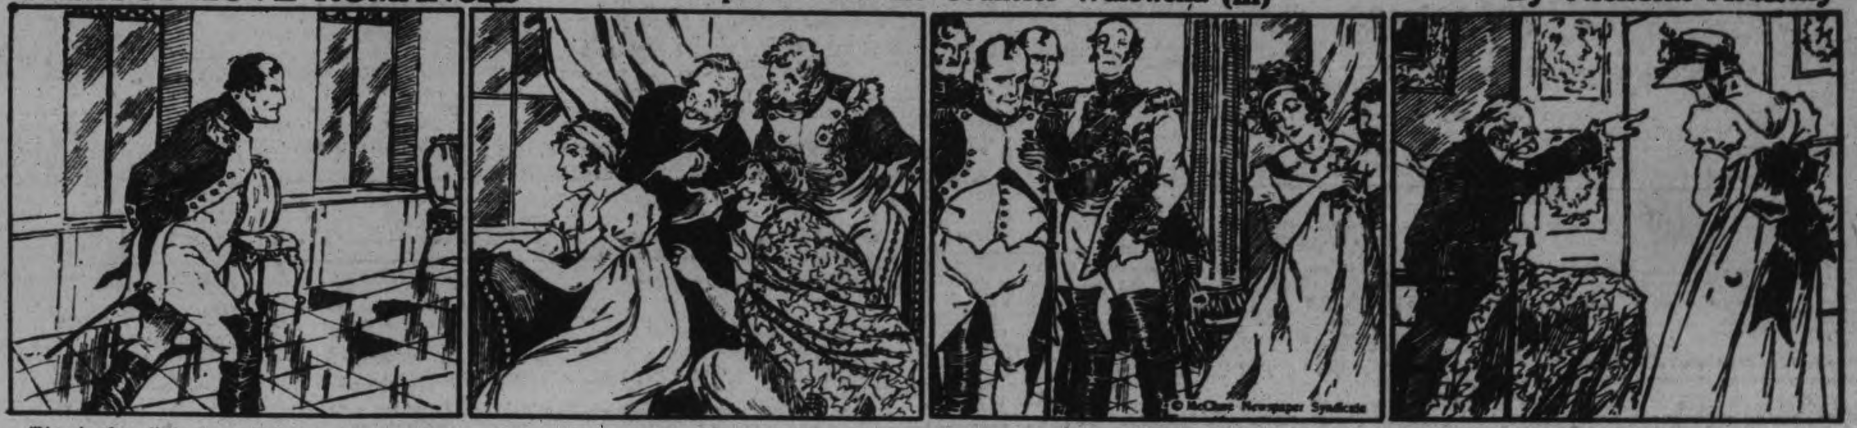
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES

Napoleon and the Countess Walewska (III)

By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

"Vouchsafe a little joy, a little happiness, to the poor heart that would fain worship you," read part of Napoleon's second letter to the Countess Walewska. Like the first, it remained unanswered. He paced the palace halls, arms locked behind him, thinking only of the lovely girl who ignored him.

Meanwhile, the young Countess was tearfully listening to her influential friends, who surrounded her and urged upon her the duty of making the most of the Emperor's infatuation for her. It was her patriotic duty, they said. Napoleon would, for her sake, look well after the future of Poland.

So Napoleon's next letter was answered. The Emperor sent the Countess flowers. "Please wear the nosegay I send; it will be the secret messenger of our feelings amid the crowd. If I lay my hand on my heart, you will know it is wholly yours; for answer, press my flowers to your bosom."

When her jealous old husband realized that the Emperor was in love with the lovely young Maria, he sent her out of his house, commanding her never to return. Napoleon had an apartment near him fitted up for her, and there she spent her time, at music, embroidery, reading.

THE WOMEN'S PATRIOTIC LEAGUE OF ASHBURNHAM

The Work It Is Now Carrying On Is a Most Patriotic One.

The Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham, composed of ladies residing in the eastern section of the city, is and has been one of the best working organizations in Peterborough. During the war they measured up with all others as being very practical and efficient in their efforts. After war activities ceased, they looked around for a work to do that would be pleasing to the citizens at large and be a recognition of the sacrifice of the men who went overseas from this city and district.

As a consequence, several years ago they bought Armour's Hill, the outstanding elevation overlooking the city, and have cared for it and planted thousands of tree of different kinds which are growing rapidly and in a reasonable time it will be heavily wooded and will be the Memorial Park of real beauty that it is intended to be.

Thousands of citizens and visitors have viewed the scenery all around Peterborough from the top of Armour's Hill and there is hardly anything more beautiful on a bright Summer's day.

The work of the organization is carried on financially by the proceeds of an annual event in the Grand Opera House which has always been of real merit. On Friday and Saturday of this week, "Leave It To Gloria," a Musical Comedy Revue, will be presented and it is expected with the same degree of satisfaction to its patrons.

When approaching London from Cologne, recently, Captain W. Armstrong, an Imperial Airways pilot, ran into daytime fog so thick, he said, that it seemed as though a huge black curtain had been drawn across the sky, shutting London out completely.

'AULD HAUNTED KIRK' IS SAVED FROM DECAY

Brither Scots on the Vernacular—Children Being Taught in Scottish Schools.

BURNS' ANNIVERSARY.

Burns' Country Editor's Comment on Visitors Pilfering on Sacred Shrines.

(By S. L., Auld Ayr.)

Again another year has come around to that great day of all Scotia's sons, the anniversary of Robert Burns, when the local chiels and lassies celebrate the occasion fittingly as the maist important event in auld Scotland's grand history. A' ower the warld his memory will be perpetuated in sang and speel

Scots' Vernacular.

Recently "twa brither Scots" met in the city here and delving into the vernacular o' the hame o' heather, the elder let forth his feelings in sincere conversation thus: "Man, I'm awa' frae oor guid auld Scots' tongue." "The bairns dinna understand it noo, an' soon it'll be deid as Queen Anne or the proverbial red herrin'. At this rate oor weans 'll no be able to read Rabbie Burns. Man, whit's tae be dune?"

My friend took the pessimistic view of the fate of the Scottish vernacular but, "My laddie, it fills ma he'rt as I hear yer tongue in land o' oor adoption."

It is true that one does not hear the dialect as much as in previous years before the war, and being absent from auld Scotia for a long while, the speech has shown many changes, but it endures in most places for all that, just as Gaelic does in many parts of Ontario; vigorous efforts are veing made to preserve it, in fact, Toronto now claims to have a Gaelic association. There are many modern Scottish poets, who write the Doric admirably.

Children Taught in Scotland."

Five years ago the London Burns Club formed a "Vernacular Circle" and the Burns' Federation has also taken action to promote the study of the Scots' dialect, and in the schools in auld Scotia the children are taught to read and understand Scottish poetry and prose, with the result that there is a new interest in Robert Burns, Fergusson and Allan Ramsay, and the Scottish langauge is in a fair way to being preserved.

Take Stone and Wood.

Through the efforts of Captain Edward P. Gaston, an American of Scottish descent, residing in London, England, His Majesty King George has placed Burns' "Auld Haunted Kirk," Alloway, near Ayr under the category of the British Government and will be preserved in perpetuity as a memorial to Scotia's greatest poet and most widely loved son.

No wonder the government has acquired the ancient edifice, so associated with "Tam o' Shanter," and other writings of the poet.

"'Oculeus," editor of the local paper in Burns' country, writes his editorial as follows:

"Fancy! Visitors running off with the Auld Brig o' Doon piece-meal. The American visitors are the worst for they are not content with piecemeal, but they take it in chunks. It is very flattering both to the ancient bridge and also to our poet. There is no way of stopping that sort of business except to procure a bit of sandstone of the same strata as that of the Brig, say it was taken from the Brig at recent alterations, and sell it in nut portions at, say $1.25 per nut. That would I am sure, keep the vandals off The nuts could be done up in tinsel paper and "From Brig o' Doon" printed on a slip of paper on the outside, and "Caution, not to be taken inwardly.' There might also be sold a few grains of the granules of the sandstone done up in small paper skiffs, to be taken as a sort of philter, guaranteed to make the partaker able to write poetry by the yard. This demand should be met in a proper business-like manner."

"Visiting Haunted Kirk."

As the years roll on, and the writer, a son of Auld Ayr, "where ne'er a town surpasses for honest men and bonnie lassies," recollects the thousands of visitors to Burns' shrine, but never once visiting the places of note until a few years absent, no doubt never giving it a thought because I passed it sometimes once or thrice in a day, but no worshipper at the shrines nearby, the famous banks and braes considers a visit there complete without entering the hallowed acre where "the rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep." Every time I was near the "Auld Kirk" my presence was always known, because that was my object in view when walking in that district. Many a time have I gazed in wonderment into the interior of the old church, visualized auld Nick in shape o' beast in the winnock-bunker in the east, then proceeded to the Auld Brig o' Doon, and forthwith explained that it was here "Maggie left behind her ain grey tail" with that conviction of the truth of the affair that is the best tribute to the genius of Burns.

Then again, few who enter the gateway of the kirkyard but are arrested by the plain monumental stone, erected at the cost of the poet, and inscribed with a tender and touching epitaph, the effusion of his nicely discriminating pen. It is a wonderful token of filial affection and regard,

"Oh, ye whose cheek the tear of pity stains,
Draw near with pious reverance and attend!
Here lie the loving husband's dear remains,
The tender father, and the generous friend.

"The pitying heart that felt for human woe,
The dauntless heart that feared no human pride,
The friend of man, to vice alone a foe,
For even his failings leaned to virtue's side."

Used As a Schoolroom.

On ceasing to be used as a place of worship, Alloway Kirk became the barony schoolhouse and continued so till an advance period in the 18th century. It was here probably where Murdock, Burns' early preceptor, taught, and the poet's familiarity as a schoolhouse, and with the superstitions that in his day attached to kirks and kirkyards, may in some measure account for the position he assigns to Kirk Alloway in his famous poem.

Whaur e'er ye be, brither Scot, never forget the mither tongue—Scot vernacular—

"Some Scots o' every rank and trade
In Canada guid hames hae made;
Land o' their choice they lo'e fu' dear,
Still, Scotland to their heart is dear."

"High Rigger" Knocked Out By Extremely Painful Back

Gin Pills Saved Him Pain and Money

Mr. J. F. Miller's letter contains priceless advice to people who suffer from backache, and shows clearly the value of Gin Pills as a prompt relief for ailing kidneys:

> "In the woods last Fall I was soaked to the skin for days. Cold got me in the back. I was so bad the woods boss wanted to send me to the city for medical treatment. One of the boys advised Gin Pills. In four days I was back on the job. Nearly all of the boys carry Gin Pills in their pack."

Neglect of kidney trouble is very dangerous. Backache is not the only symptom — dizziness, brick dust in urine, spots before the eyes, headaches, swollen joints, painful, scanty or too frequent urination are others. Take Gin Pills immediately and prevent Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, acute Bladder trouble. All druggists carry Gin Pills. 50c a box. Her Secret Beautifier Envy of Her Friends

Miss C. Delano, Washington, writes: —"About two years ago I was bothered a great deal with a muddy, sallow and pimply skin. I found I could cover the blemishes with cosmetics, but this was only a temporary relief. "My druggist recommended your purely vegetable laxative, and suggested my trouble might be constipation. After taking a short while I noticed a wonderful difference. My complexion has improved, also headaches, indigestion and biliousness never bothered me any more."

PETERBOROUGH SCOTS HONOR MEMORY OF SCOTIA'S BARD; ANNUAL BURNS SUPPER HELD

George Wilkie, K.C., of Toronto, Responds to Principal Toast.

HAGGIS DULY HONORED

Traditional Supper and Program Mark Celebration of Poet's Birthday Anniversary.

The Immortal Memory of Robert Burns, Scotland's famous poet, was duly honored by Peterborough Scots last night at the annual Burns' Night supper of the Peterborough Caledonian Club. The W.O.W. Hall was filled with lovers of the bard and of the land of which he sung. Some of them had been born there; others claimed with pride that their fathers and mothers, or grandfathers and grandmothers, had lived there. A few there were who could not claim Scottish blood, but all united to do honor to the poet, whose songs are popular wherever the English language is spoken, on the one hundred and sixty-ninth anniversary of his birth.

Robert Veitch, recently elected as President of the club, presided, while the most important task of addressing "The Haggis" was performed in traditional style by Joseph Grierson. The dinner was prepared by the ladies of the club and by Hooper's, and the "great chieftain o' the pudding race" formed an important part in the menu, with its usual accompaniment of steak pie. The haggis was played in by Jack Smith and borne by J. O. Wyllie.

The Immortal Memory.

The response to the principal toast, "The Immortal Memory," was in capable hands. George Wilkie, K.C., of Toronto, who said that he was a Canadian and that his parents were not Scotch—"They came from Fife"—was charged with this duty.

"There is no greater subject, there is no man who deserves more eloquent treatment than the great poet —I didn't say Scotch—the great poet," declared Mr. Wilkie in commencing his address. "We are sitting here tonight to honor the birthday of a little boy, who became a great poet. He was born in humble circumstances, none more humble, but of all the children who were born in that year there is none now more honored.

"We are sitting here to honor him. What one of you can name another one born the same year? He is truly immortal. All down the years the memory of those who were great at that time or who were born with more wealth and advantages has faded.

"There are other poets who shared his genius, but none is so loved," continued Mr. Wilkie. "He was a Scottish poet, but also a world poet. It was an old-fashioned world into which Burns was born. The great changes which were to come at the end of the century, the American War of Independence, the French Revolution, and others, had not even been started. Literature had been unchanged for generations. It didn't touch the common people, but was for the rich and educated. Burns made exquisite poetry for common men and effected a revolution by himself. His poem, "A Man's a Man for a' That," was ahead of his time. We haven't got there yet, but we are getting there.

"I have mentioned Burns' disadvantages, but he also had advantages. One was that his mother tongue was the most beautiful of all languages. Ruskin said that the modern Scottish dialect was the most beautiful of modern tongues. I hope those born in the Old Country will preserve their tongue, especially the difference in the sound of the vowels. Burns had an excellent medium for his poems; he also had excellent subjects. He had Scottish men. They are nothing; there are lots of others as good. But he had the Scottish women, the lassies. How many outside of those he wrote about are remembered now?"

Mr. Wilkie enlarged upon the poet's faculty for turning the most common, everyday occurrences into poetry. When his plow turned up a daisy he made a poem. His poem written when he disturbed a field mouse's nest is still quoted in part: "The best laid plans of mice and men gang aft a-gley." The death of a pet lamb is immortalized.

The poet is known as a poet of democracy. His poems are familiar to men of all classes, from laborers to college professors, and appeal to every man who has red blood in his veins.

Burns Unchanged.

The world has changed since the days of Burns, continued the speaker, pointing out that the ground here belonged to France when he was born. France has lost its land and its king and the world has gone through two tremendous wars. When Burns was alive artisans produced goods in their homes by hand-power; now they are

Officials Believe Lost Fliers Safe

QUEBEC, Jan 26. — Canadian Press. — The Fairchild officials are confident that the crews of both planes are safe at Lake Chamachouan, and it is presumed that the pilot of the second plane on making a landing there found it impossible to take off again on account of the stormy weather. Apart from the protection afforded by the post of the Hudson Bay Company, the rescue ship carried ample provisions for use in case of an emergency, and while the head officers of the company are naturally anxious for news, they are not inclined to believe that the expedition met with disaster.

The whole situation is aggravated by the fact that the scene of the first plane's landing on the lake is about 80 miles from Roberval.

O'CONNOR LEADS FIGHT FOR MEN

Famous M. P. Trying To Get Reprieve For Two Convicted of Murder.

JURORS SIGN PETITION.

LONDON, Jan. 26 (Canadian Press).—T. P. O'Connor, veteran Member of Parliament, figured prominently in the newspapers today as the leader of a movement to obtain a reprieve for Daniel Driscoll and Edward Rowlings, recently sentenced to death at Cardiff, Wales, for the murder of David Lewis, a boxer. John Rowlands, who was also sentenced for the crime, has been declared insane since the trial. The movement, however, has been unsuccessful so far.

A sensation was caused by a statement of the defence lawyer that eight of the jurymen in the cast were so impressed by evidence disclosed after they had convicted the men that they signed a petition for a reprieve and said they had regretted they had voted for conviction. Unless something intervenes, Driscoll and Rowlings will be hanged at Cardiff tomorrow. The charge against the men stated that two of them held Lewis while the other cut his throat.

UNTRIED LAWS GOVERN CASE

California Legislation on Insanity Defence Recently Changed.

HICKMAN ON TRIAL.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press).—California justice yesterday set out on a voyage through unchartered legal seas as it undertook to determine the punishment of William Hickman, confessed kidnapper and slayer of Marion Parker. The trial, which will determine the sanity of the murderer, will follow the new and untested state laws governing insanity defense. Hickman has pleaded 'not guilty by reason of insanity", a tacit admission that he committed the offenses charged but was not legally responsible. The defense hopes to save the young criminal from hanging by having him declared criminally insane and lodged in a state asylum, while the State expects to send Hickman to his death on the gallows.

Presentation To W. Boulton From Staff Features Underwriters' Meeting.

GOOD ADDRESSES GIVEN.

Speaker Points Out That Most Insurance Money Is Paid Before Death.

"Of the money paid by insurance companies in one year, two-thirds is paid to living policy-holders and one-third to the beneficiaries of dead policy holders. So, gentlemen, let it be emphasized that you are selling life insurance, not death insurance. The majority live and get the proceeds of their saving."

This affirmation by William Wallace, of Toronto, Inspector and Director of Sales with the Confederation Life Association, in his address at the Peterborough Life Underwriters' Association' dinner at the Empress last night, was directed against the evasion of some men who would dismiss life insurance with the sophism, "You have to die to win."

"You say to a man," Mr. Wallace continued, "we will help you save money for your old age in the most secure way possible, and while you are doing that we will protect your loved ones. What profession, what vocation, except that of the church fulfills a higher duty to humanity than does the insurance company and its salesmen?

The day has gone by when the life insurance agent, as he was called, was generally treated as an intruder. To-day, the life insurance man of knowledge and experience does not fear to go into the office of the greatest men in the land. He feels that he will be well received, in fact the higher the man usually the better reception because he knows that you are there on legitimate business."

Club Bag to Mr. Bolton.

Confederation Life men were prominent at last night's meeting of the Life Underwriters' Association. The principal addresses were given by C. D. Devlin and William Wallace, of Confederation Life head office, and included in the proceedings was the presentation of a club bag to William Boulton, manager of the Central Ontario division, by T. H. Gillespie as a tangible expression of the appreciation of the district managers and salesmen of their chief's kindly cooperation and inspiration. Malcolm C. Burgess, of Belleville, who assisted in staging this little surprise, stated that the gift signified the men's high regard for Mr. Boulton to whom they felt indebted for his unfailing assistance.

"It's for the abuse we have received in the last two years," was Mr. Burgess's ironic tribute.

"I appreciate this expression of your good will far more than I can tell you," Mr. Boulton said in reply and acknowledgment. "To work with you is real life. I never began to live until I went into the life insurance business. This is where you get in close touch with humanity, with men and women of all kinds. It gives you a great insight into the lives of your fellow men.

"I may have felt some resentment when I was sent to Peterborough, but I wouldn't exchange the five years I have spent here for the same period in any other part of the world. There are no better people, and there are no keener nor brainier life insurance men anywhere than are the life underwriters of Peterborough. I thank you for your co-operation during those five years. Last year we did $175,000 more than any previous year in the division, and we have 400 p.c. more business than five years ago. That is proof positive of the possibilities of the expansion of life insurance in Central Ontario."

Origin of Insurance.

Mr. Wallace's address was a sketch of the beginnings of life insurance The first policy was written in 1640 in the reign of Charles I, and was in the form of an annuity.

"Strange, isn't it, that after all these years we are boosting to-day the monthly annuity form of insurance?" he asked.

"That first policy was issued as a result of Charles I getting into financial difficulties. In the same way to-day, insurance is planned and sold to save people from getting into financial difficulties."

The Mercers' Guild, the richest and most influential in the England of the Stuarts, was an association of drygoods merchants. They originated the first insurance as an annuity plan, the payments being made during life, but nothing being paid after the death of the annuitant. It was sold to the public and the proceeds tided over Charles and his government.

A few years later a Kentish rector proposed to insure lives and pay death claims but this plan failed. Yet it is the foundation and contains much of the magnificent institution of life insurance as it is sold in Can-

Touring Canadian Farmers Entertained By Prince of Wales At St. James' Palace

LONDON, Jan. 26 (Canadian Press Cable).—At the reception tendered them yesterday in the State Room of St. James' Palace, the Canadian farmers who are touring the British Isles were especially struck by the readiness with which the Prince of Wales remembered acquaintances made during his ranching experiences at the "E.P." ranch at High River, Alberta.

"Have you brought your bagpipes with you?" the Prince asked W. Sharpe, who had reminded the Prince of having played them on the "E.P." ranch.

To a former resident near the "E.P." ranch the Prince made many enquiries about affairs in Western Canada.

Those members of the party who come from the Peace River district of Alberta, asked the Prince to visit them on his next trip to Canada.

"I will do my utmost to make it," he replied. "I am sorry that I have not been there before."

The visitors remained at the Palace for about half an hour, and prior to being received by the Prince were given a reception by Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner in London, at Canada House.

UNITED STATES TO CONSIDER CAREFULLY ALL PROPOSALS BROUGHT BEFORE CONGRESS

Will Not Offer Approval or Disapproval With Undue Haste.

TARIFF ISSUE DISCUSSED.

Indications Point To Long Drawn Session Before Conference Concluded.

HAVANA, January 26 (Canadian Press).—The United States will proceed very slowly with their approval or disapproval of any treaties or resolutions brought before the Pan-American Conference now in session here. This was made clear yesterday when three delegates from the United States in two different committees asked that all proposals and principles be submitted and left in draft form until the delegations could ascertain their feasibility in the light of the law of their respective countries. Incidentally all indications at present point to a long drawn out conference in Havan before the sixth Congress of American Nations is concluded.

In the Pan-American Union Organization Committee, Charles Evans Hughes, head of the United States delegation, interposed in a debate on the point of whether the committee would bring in its findings in the form of a treaty or a resolution. Mr. Hughes suggested that the delegates would first have to know what proposals were to be embodied in the resolution or treaty, then they should have ample time in which to consider them before they committed themselves to anything. In the Private International Law Committee, Judge M. J. O'Brien, for the United States, reminded that committee that Washington could not commit itself to anything until it could be made quite certain that proposals before the Congress did not conflict with the laws of the respective states of the United States.

Judge O'Brien added his assurance that Washington was not antagonistic to anything which had been brought up so far, but that the Federal authority in the United States could not risk a clash of authority with the sovereign rights of the states of the Union.

Mexico Backs Protest.

Argentina's protest against high tariff barriers and the system of arriving at tariffs based on cost of production was supported yesterday by Mexico. At the same time, Peru opposed the introduction of tariff questions apart from other phases of the economic problem, such as uniformity of currency and stabilization of production.

It was Salvador Urbina of Mexico who took up the proposal made on Tuesday by Argentina and supported it. The proposal is to empower the Pan-American Union to deal with tariff matters and to recommend a basis of reciprocal tariffs. Urbina thought that while the union ignored the tariff issue, it was not living up to its professional aims.

On the other hand, Jesus Salesar, head of the Peruvian delegation, did not want the emphasis placed on the tariff, but thought that all the factors entering into the exchange of trade should be considered together.

The point came up in the Pan-American Union Organization Committee where on Tuesday Mr. Hughes of the United States delegation met the Argentinian attack on high tariffs by briefly stating that he thought the discussion was not relevant to the real work of the committee, which is the organization of the Union.

Clam Diggers Find Ambergris On Beach

ASTORIA, Oregon, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press).—The sands of Sunset Beach proved golden sands for two clam diggers here. When James Garner and Harry Brown found a ball of a wax like substance weighing between four and five pounds on the beach near here they did not know at first that they held eight thousand dollars worth of ambergis. Believing, however, the substance might be worth something, they brought it to Astoria. No one could estimate its value. Finally, they sent some of it to Los Angeles, where it was identified as ambergris, worth from $40 to $100 an ounce.

PRINGLE STORE CHANGES HANDS

T. Anthony Buys Out Fruit and Fish Business on George Street.

OPEN FOR BUSINESS.

Progress has been quite noticeable in the business of Thomas Anthony, Hunter Street East, and concrete evidence of this progress is given by the recent purchase of the Pringle store, Market Building, on George Street, by Mr. Anthony. The East City merchant opened his new store for business on Wednesday with a full stock and is well pleased with his new stand. "T. Anthony, Fruit, Fish and Vegetables," is the firm name.

Mr. Anthony's store on Hunter Street has been taken over by E. V. Crebar, who will continued to cater to the patronage built up in that section by the former owner.

STORM KILLS SIX PERSONS

Heavy Property Damage Done in Eastern Canada and United States.

COMMUNICATION BROOKEN.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (Canadian Press).—Six deaths, score of injured and heavy property damake was the known toll in the East today of one of the severest wind storms in recent years. Extending from Cape Hatteras, off the North Carolina Coast, to Newfoundland, the gale left in its path disrupted communications and hampered traffic on land and a marked curtailment of shipping at sea.

In Canada, every form of traffic was interrupted in the Ottawa Valley by what was described as the worst storm of its kind in ten years, bringing with it more than a foot of snow. In the Province of Quebec, two feet of snow accompanied a fifty mile an hour wind, snowing in one train and disorganizing communication.

Cold Follows Snow

OTTAWA, Jan. 26 (Canadian Press).—Sub-zero weather today followed yesterday's driving snowstorm. In the storm which started late on Tuesday and lasted into last night, sixteen inhes of snow fell in Ottawa. This is the greatest fall since 1915, when eighteen inches came down in two day in March.

CHILDREN'S AID SEEK HELP TO CARRY ON WORK

Trent Waterway Development Association Asks Grant From Council.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED.

Both Cases Referred to Finance Committee For Consideration.

Two delegations, one representing the Children's Aid Society, and the other from the Trent Waterway Development Association, waited on the county council yesterday afternoon, and asked for grants towards the carrying on of their work.

In each case the matter was referred to the Finanee Committee, where it will be given due consideration.

The County Council this year is faced with a large highway construction bill, which if levied on the county will increase the tax rate 5 mills. The council has to give a great deal of consideration to all grants that it makes in order to keep the county rate from being increased out of bounds.

Warden Smithson carefully pointed out the financial difficulties of the county to each of the delegations.

The deputation from the Children's Aid Society consisted of the President Dr. R. C. Blagrave, Joseph Wearing and John Edgar. Dr. Blagrave in addressing the council stressed the economic value to the community of bringing children up in the proper surroundings so that when they grow up they will not be a menace to the community. "The Children's Aid has undertaken to look after the welfare of all children in the county who are less fortunate, and who are not in proper surroundings, and it promises to give them the rights they deserve," said Dr. Blagrave.

During 1927 children from the city spent 2016 days in the Shelter, and those from the county 1325. According to Act of Parliament, the Society may collect 75 cents per day from the county or the city for every child under its care, and also a certain amount for overhead expenses. The agent's travelling is all done in the county so necessarily this would be charged against the county council, explained the speaker. In conclusion, Dr. Blagrave asked for an increased grant over last year, when $1000 was given.

F. D. Kerr, K.C., J. W. Fraser Ald. C. H. Ackerman composed the deputation from the Trent Waterway Development Association.

The various speakers told the council the great work that their association was carrying on, and asked for a suitable grant. J. W. Fraser said: "You can make no better investment than to continue the annual grant for the tourist trade in this trade was becoming one of our best assets.

Col. Ackerman spoke in quite an optimistic mood and prophesied that the day was not far off when the American tourist would be with us for 12 months in the year. He told of the Oke Ridge Camp at Stoney Lake that was being built and which was expected to be occupied most of next year.

Enters Protest.

At this point Reeve Rye entered a protest against the wholesale slaughter of fish in Rice Lake that has been going on this winter. At the present time tons of fish are being taken out of Rice Lake, and last week alone half a ton came into the city of Peterborough, besides that which went to Port Hope and surrounding municipalities. This thing cannot go on for it is the fish that brings the tourist here,' said Mr. Rye. He suggested that a clause be added to the act whereby in the inland Ontario lakes it would be illegal to take fish through the ice during the winter. Reeve Tanner agreed with Mr. Rye, and said that from now on the Trent Waterway System would receive competition from the Ferguson Highway in Northern Ontario in attracting tourists and he thought that the fish ought to be protected.

F. T. Webster presented the plans for draining the swamp on the base line road in the Township of Otonabee.

Constructing a wooden culvert across the road and digging the drain he estimated the cost would be $20,600 and if a cement culvert were built the cost would be $24,000. To build a two-span steel bridge over the sink hole and not drain the swamp the cost was estimated at $40,400, and if the old floating bridge was rebuilt and the approaches raised the cost would be around $14,000.

Warden Smithson said the figures were much higher than he had expected, and he thought the township ought to take advantage of the Drainage Act. "The road is a necessity, for nearly all the stock and grain coming from the west to the Keene station has to go over this bridge. The water is being held back more every year and the width of

CANADA IS SENDING MINISTERS TO TOKIO AND PARIS, ANNOUNCES THRONE SPEECH TO PARLIAMENT

No New Evidence In Sinclair Inquiry

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 26. —Canadian Press. — Half a dozen witnesses passed in rapid succession yesterday before the Senate lands committee but none of them shed any material light on the main subject of inquiry what became of the three million dollars of profits made by the Continental Trading Company, Limited, of Canada, in the purchase and sale of oil in this country

Of these profits $233,000 have been traced from Harry F. Sinclair to Albert B. Ball, after the lease of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve in 1922, but it appears now that the committee is going to encounter serious difficulties in getting track of the remainder.

The Sinclair payments to Fall recounted in detail Tuesday by M. T. Everhart, son in law of the former interior secretary, were touched upon briefly yesterday. Everhart testified that to obtain his one-third interest in Fall's New Mexico ranch holdings for which it was claimed $233,000 in Liberty bonds were delivered to Everhart Sinclair would have to depend upon the words of Fall and Everhart

BOARD PASSES VOTE OF REGRET

Motion Setting Forth Work of Richard Hall For Hospital Recorded.

SINCERE SORROW.

The following resolution was passed at a special meeting of Nicholls Hospital Board, held yesterday:

Resolved: That this Board at a special meeting convened, desires to place on record the sincere sorrow felt by the Board at the passing of Mr. Richard Hall, its honored chairman.

Since the inception of the Nicholls Hospital in 1883, Mr. Hall has been continuously the Chairman of the Board. In the early days, and, during the building of the present hospital, Mr. Hall, a close friend, and afterwards executor, of Mrs. Nicholls, followed her desires to provide a place for the treatment of the sick. In his judgment Mrs. Nicholls had the greatest confidence, and, doubtless at his instigation placed a substantial endowment towards the upkeep of the hospital, and this was afterward supplemented by Mr. Hall out of the residue of Mrs. Nicholls' estate, again showing the love he had for the institution founded by Mrs. Nicholls. The disposal of the residue of the estate was entirely at the discretion of Mr. Hall, and, his action demonstrated his interest in the institution with which he had so long been connected. This has made possible the carrying on of the hospital with very small cost to the ratepayers.

For many years, until sickness overtook him, Mr. Hall was a visitor to the hospital two and three times a day. He followed every item of its activity and his wise counsel was always available as occasion demanded. Since his confinement to the house he has followed the hospital work with keenest interest although unable to be active in its affairs.

This Board feels itself pledged to the carrying on, extension, and amplification of the work so dear to the heart of Mr. Hall and is seized of the fact that no more enduring monument to his memory, and that of Mrs. Nicholls, could be erected than that the Nicholls Hospital should expand and rank among the highest, in merit, in the province.

That this board now adjourn to attend the funeral of Mr. Hall, and, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the members of the family.

4.—Negotiations continuing with Prairie Provinces for return of natural resources.

5.—Government considering restoration to British Columbia of railway belt lands and Peace River block.

6.—Railway problems of several provinces, as outlined at conference, under consideration.

7.—Contracts let for grading and bringing Hudson Bay Railway extension to Fort Churchill.

8.—Airship mooring tower to be erected on airship base near Montreal and public air terminal for airplanes provided.

9.—Departments of Health and Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment to be amalgamated in a single department of National Health and Veterans' Welfare.

10.—Trade treaties between Canada and "certain foreign countries" to be submitted to Parliament.

Conference of Value.

In part the Speech from the Throne said: "Following an announcement made during the last session of Parliament, a conference was convened at Ottawa in November between the Dominion Government and the governments of the provinces of Canada. It is the opinion of my advisors that this conference proved of the utmost value in facilitating the full and free exchange of views between the participating governments on problems of mutual interest and concern. Your attention will be invited during the present session to some of the more important matters discussed at the conference.

"As a result of the Dominion Provincial Conference, my advisors have decided, pending the complete revision of financial arrangements as contemplated by the Duncan report, to recommend the continuance to the Maritime Provinces of the money grants made at the last session. In the light of the discussions at the conference, my Ministers are continuing negotiations with the Prairie Provinces for the return of their natural resources and are giving consideration to the return to the Province of British Columbia of the lands of the railway belt and the Peace River block. Consideration is also being given to the railway problems of several provinces, as outlined at the conference.

Representation Improved.

"As contemplated by the conclusions of the Imperial Conference of 1926, provision was made on July 1 for direct communication between His Majesty's other governments of the British Empire. The further implementing of these conclusions, which aim at more effective consultation through personal contact by the appointment to Canada of a representative of His Majesty's Government in Great Britain, is being discussed between the Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs in Great Britain, who is at present in Canada, and members of my Government. By agreement between the Governments of France and Canada and the Governments of Japan and Canada, it is proposed that each of these countries shall be represented in the other by a Minister plenipotentiary.

"Satisfactory progress has been made in the organization of the Department of National Revenue. The final report of the Royal Commission on Customs and Excise will be presented immediately and legislation based upon the report will be introduced."

The Weather

After the recent severe storm, the weather has apparently settled. The lowest temperature last night was two degrees above the zero mark—clear and crisp, with no wind. This date last year was 8 day. In the morning the temperature was 21 degrees below zero. At the noon hour it was 13 below, thus being one of the really cold days of last winter. On the following morning (the 27th) it was 25 degrees below.—W.P.

COUNTY BOARDS ARE APPOINTED

United Counties Council Appoints Committes For Year.

VISITS HOSPITAL.

COBOURG, Jan. 26.—Yesterday afternoon's session of the Counties Council did not accomplish much in the line of business. There were a few communications read and the seven standing committees for the year appointed their respective chairmen. At three o'clock the Council adjourned to allow the members to be present at the ceremonial in the court room, where Judge O'Connor, newly appointed judge for the United Counties, was to take the oath of office. During the afternoon the Council also visited the Cobourg Hospital as guests of the staff and nurses. A most delightful cup of coffee and a variety of tasty pastries were served them upon their arrival and before they were shown through the building.

Before Warden Davidson entered the chamber, the clerk took occasion to enumerate several minor details relative to the procedure of the Council. He pointed out that failure to observe these rules was not such a serious offence, but that it added greatly to the dignity of the meeting when each member was particular in regard to them. Most of the suggestions were followed during the session.

The reading of the minutes was a lengthy affair, as all the items of correspondence read the previous evening had to be mentioned. After a minor correction had been made the minutes were accepted as correct. The correction was in the account of the election, where one candidate's name had appeared in the place of another.

There were few communications to be dealt with. The first was a letter from the Department of Public Highways to Dr. Wilson, Hastings, enclosing some duplicate information which he had requested. The letter was referred to the Finance Committee as it dealt with the Government grant for work on Hastings pavement. There was also a letter from the Campbellford Council, asking that the Council consider pavement there for this year's program. An invitation from the Hospital of Cobourg, inviting the Council to visit that institution was read and accepted. The next communication was from the Children's Aid Society at Port Hope, signed by Dr Daly. It requested that the usual grant to that institution be continued this year.

The final communication was an invitation from Sheriff Nesbitt to the Council to be present at the ceremony when Judge O'Connor would formally assume the office of Judge for the Counties.

H. R. Willmott spoke very impressively in favor of the acceptance of the invitation. He thought it quite appropriate and very important that the Council attend in a body. He concluded his remarks by a motion that they do so. Reeves Elliott and Bygott also spoke to the motion, the former in opposition and the latter in favor. This resulted in an amendment to adjourn for sufficient time to attend being passed instead of the original motion to permit those who so desired to leave.

At three o'clock the Council adjourned till after the ceremony.

SCORE FIRST VICTORY IN HICKMAN TRIAL

Defense Counsel Wins Fight For Appointment of New Jurist.

ON PREJUDICE CHARGE.

Trial Judge is Expected to be Named by the Judicial Council.

Hall of Justice, Los Angeles, Jan. 26: Canadian Press. — Swift and unexpected moves that ended in the defence scoring a prime victory, that of obtaining a new judge by charging bias and prejudice to the jurist assigned the case, marked the opening day of the sanity trial of William E. Hickman, kidnapper and slayer of 12 year old Marian Parker.

Superior Judge Carlon Hardy filed an affidavit consenting "in the interests of justice and the hearing of this trial" to remove himself from the case. The trial judge is expected to be named by a judicial counsel, headed by William Waste, the chief justice of the California Supreme Cout.

Striking swiftly after the trial was called to order yesterday morning, Jerome Walsh, Kansas City attorney defending Hickman, entred an exception to Judge Hardy. The defense charged bias and prejudice on on three separate grounds and the court denied that such were true. Forty minutes after the trial opened adjournment was taken until the afternoon to give the petition more consideration.

After an hour's conference with Superior Judge Victor McLucas Judge Hardy decided to file a counter affidavit. In this, although denying the harboring of any bias or prejudice, Judge Hardy in effect disqualified himself from the trial.

Enters Protest.

District Attorney Asa Keyes, chief of the state's attorneys, vigorously opposed the court's action and he urged the overruling of the defence's exception. Keyes refused the legal opportunity of conferring with the defence counsel to select a judge mutually acceptable and the procedure of naming Judge Hardy's successor, went to the judicial council, empowered by law to so act in such a situation.

The swift action of the morning session was eclipsed by the afternoon session, which lasted only 20 minutes. Adjournment was taken until Thursday morning.

In contrast to the morning session, when few women were among the spectators and a dozen seats were vacant in the courtroom the afternoon session found the court room filled to capacity

A large percentage of the crowd included colorfully-dressed women. There were half a dozen young girls among the spectators in the court-room, but outside in the corridor, a solid six foot hight board barricade built to keep the crowd back was a buzzing, stirring mass of eager women and girls.

Hickman remained quiet and apparently little moved by the court actions. His near-black wavy hair was slicked back. He was a slight figure huddled in a big chair, between a deputy sheriff and his tall attorney.

HEAVY STORMS STRIKE IN EAST

Snow Storm Overwhelms Parts of Quebec, While Gale Sweeps U. S.

DAMAGE IS HEAVY.

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press).—Exceptionally heavy snowstorm struck the entire Province of Quebec on Tuesday and at noon yesterday was still raging. From Quebec, Three Rivers, and other points came reports of snowfalls to the depth of several feet. Wire facilities were severely crippled, the telephone companies reporting the loss of most of their long distance lines while both Canadian National and Canadian Pacific telegraph companies were accepting messages and press reports for Quebec and Maritime points subject to heavy delay.

HEAVY AT OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, Jan. 26.—Ten and a half inches of snow had fallen in Ottawa since Tuesday, the Central Experimental Farm reported at ten o'clock yesterday. At that hour there was no indication of a let up, in fact the snow seemed to be falling faster than at any time since the storm started late Tuesday.

GALE HITS NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press).—A gale swept New York early yesterday, uprooting trees, shattering store windows, and ripping signs from their moorings. It followed a heavy rain Tuesday night which ended the warmest January 24 in fourteen years. The highest wind velocity was 66 miles at seven a.m. yesterday. Shipping was warned of a storm of great intensity centering over Maine which would bring west and northwest gales all day.

MUCH DAMAGE DONE.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. Jan. 26—(Canadian Press).—Thousands of dollars damage was done in this state yesterday by a sixty mile gale which ripped roofs from buildings, brought telephone poles crashing down, and blew in the side wall of a factory at Burrington. The roof of Newport Casino Piazza was blown off, high waves carried away cement fences near the beach, and the steamer Commonwealth was blown from her dock onto the mud flats. She was hauled off later by several tugs.

In Peterborough Churches

GEORGE STREET UNITED.

The Rev. J. E. Todd, pastor of George Street United Church, preached at both services on Sunday. At the morning service he read the fourth chapter of Paul's second Epistle to Timothy taking as his text the tenth verse: "For Demas hath forsaken me, having loved this present world and is departed unto Thessalonica."

"One of the saddest things in this world", said Mr. Todd, "is a friendship broken. I can imagine Paul saying Demas has forsaken me. This is the last word spoken in the Scripture about Demas. What had happened him? Had he some sickness or disease or an ugly sin? Nothing of that nature had happened to Demas.

"A very simple thing had happened. Demas loved life, the present world and Paul saw that he was not suitable to fit into his work or the life of Jesus Christ.

"James and John understood the same thing and Jesus said: 'My kingdom is not of this world?'

"What is meant by this present world? Does it mean the world of nature? No it is not the world of nature for God loves the hills, valleys, mountains and streams and all forms of nature. Is it the world of men? Not the world of men because God gave His only begotten Son to save man from his sins.

"What's wrong with the world? Is it not selfishness. The spirit of self pleasing? Demas set out on this way and how many of us set out on this way? It took the prodigal son out among pig-stys. His brother had this spirit and he remained at home. This spirit of self pleasing always takes a man away from God.

"Demas had many companions, was considered a good fellow among men, who were seeking to enjoy themselves regardless. He had enjoyed a great privilege in walking shoulder to shoulder with Paul, a man who was resolute, determined and ready to face all dangers. While in Rome Demas saw around him pleasures, life, gayety. He and Paul walked down the street and go to the dreary church and he was not much interested. This is the beginning of the end. There is no room in Paul's life for a man like Demas.

Demas was a getter. He was out after the things of this life and it is a fair thing to assume that he made good in a worldy way with his ability but I'm wondering if there ever rose up in Demas' mind the memory and regret of those past days with Paul.

Paul was now in prison and he writes to Timothy to get there quick- and bring his cloak and books and especially his parchments. Paul did not get much out of the world, neither did Christ. Paul said: 'I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness? Do you call that a failure?

"The spirit of selfishness, of self pleasing that gets hold of a man, makes him loose his true sense of values and there is a conflict between the call of both sides.

"Which side are we going to give ourselves too? Here we see this conflict between Demas and Paul. 'Which side am I going to follow' is the question we must ask ourselves. We must decide and take our chances."

In conclusion Mr. Todd prayed that people might be given a clearer vision of the Paul way and at the end they might say: "We have fought a good fight. Henceforth is laid up for me a crown of righteousness."

At the evening service Mr. Todd's theme was "The Glory of the Commonplace" and his text was taken from II Kings, fifth chapter, eleventh and twelfth verses.

"Naaman, the captain of the host of the king of Syria was a great man in those times and was nearly spoiled by so much praise. Every man in high position runs same risk if he believes all the things said to him. Common sense is a great gift of God. Man with good common sense has a great deal to be thankful for", he said.

"Naaman discovered he was not nearly as important as he thought himself. When he cames to the door of the house of the prophet Elisha to be cured of his leprosy, he expected that Elisha would come out and a great miracle would be performed. He was disappointed and

SHORT COURSE BRIDGENORTH BEGINS MONDAY

Young People of Ennismore and Smith Get Chance to Study.

FOR FOUR WEEKS

Many Subjects Will Be Taken Up With Classes for Boys and Girls.

The Peterborough County Annual Short Courses in Agriculture and Home Economics commence on Monday in Bridgenorth hall and United church under the able direction of J. B. Nelson, B.S.A. agricultural representative for the county, and E. S. Summers, B.S.A., and Miss Edith Hopkins.

Classes will be held from 9.00 to 4.00 o'clock five days a week for four weeks in February. All the farm young people in the county who are not attending school are eligible to take the course, and the older people are welcome at all times and are especially invited on the special farm days.

Winter classes in Agriculture and Home Economics have been regularly held in the various parts of the County of Peterborough for many years and have grown in interest from year to year. The Bridgenorth section is chosen this year because it has not before had the opportunity and because there are over three hundred young people in the district.

No attempt will be made to teach the whole science of agriculture and home making in a period of twenty days, but many underlying principles will be explained and it is hoped that an interest in better farms and better farm homes will be developed.

Live Stock.

A study of feeding, breeding and management problems of the various classes of live stock, including a study of the different breeds, pedigree papers and feeding value of home grown stock on nearby farms.

In the girls' classes, one half of the day will be devoted to home economics and the other half to either sewing or home nursing.

A literary society will be conducted for practice in public debating, conducting meetings and handling a class paper. This society will be the forerunner of a permanent Junior Farmers' Association. Its officers will arrange for a banquet at the conclusion of the course.

GALE SWEEPS NEW ENGLAND

Widespread Damage Done Over North Eastern States During Storm.

DROP IN TEMPERATURE.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 26 (Canadian Press).—The heaviest gale of the winter caused widespread damage in New England yesterday. Several vessels were driven ashore or endangered, buildings were unroofed, chimneys, trees and wires blown down, walls demolished and windows smashed.

The greatest force of the storm was along the Southern New England coast. At Newport, R.I., Captain Sterling Fullerton of the barge Harry E. Keeler and his wife were brought ashore in the breeches buoy after the vessel had broken her moorings in the bay and had been driven on the rocks. Bath houses at Newport were moved from their foundations, small buildings were demolished, stones picked up by the gale broke windows and several cottages near the Beavertail Lighthouse were wrecked. The Fall River liner Commonwealt slipped her moorings and went into the mud, but was hauled back to her dock undamaged.

At Point Judith, R.I., the two-masted schooner Alice S. Wentworth, after safely passing through the breakwater into the harbor of refuge, dragged her anchors and was in such imminent danger of doing on the rocks that Captain Z. N. Tilton and his two nephews, comprising the crew, deliberately beached the vessel. They made their way ashore in a dory.

Mile-a-Minute Gale

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (Canadian Press)—Southern and Eastern States and parts of Canada bowed yesterday under the force of a more than mile-a-minute gale that left minor devastation in its wake.

During the day there was a general drop in temperature and heavy snow fell in Quebec and parts of New York.

The most serious accident of the two- day storm occurred in Tennessee, when a schoolhouse was blown over and four children were killed.

A far more serious catastrophe was narrowly avoided in New York City when a great iron water tank was blown over and plunged four storeys through a lower west side building crowded with men and women workers.

Although 55 men and women were working on two floors, through which the tank crashed, only three were injured and they not seriously.

Possibly the greatest money loss due to the storm was caused by the breaking of plate glass windows. In Manhattan alone, glass valued between $20,000 and $30,000 was broken.

The gale was so strong that ships were torn from their moorings, trees were uprooted or snapped like twigs, roofs were ripped away and whole houses wrenched from their foundations.

In many towns, power and light systems were put out of commission, communication lines were destroyed and local transporation generally disrupted.

Reports of the storm's havoc came in from Delaware and Maryland, Tennessee, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, all the New England States, New York, the Province of Quebec and Nova Scotia.

Toronto Market Firm; Trading Fairly Heavy

TORONTO, Jan. 26 (Canadian Press).—General firmness with occasional slight gains characterized the market on the Toronto Stock Exchange in scattered but still fairly heavy trading today. Smelters showed the biggest gain, an eleven point advance at 283. Nickel recorded a 2¾ gain at 98 and Pacific Grain sold up three at 65. Seagrams, the most active stock, was 1¼ higher at 27⅞, and Zimmerknit gained an equal amount at 29½. Dominion Stores, Arnold, Loblaw, and Christie all firmed. Massey Harris eased fractionally at 44¾. The oils and liquors were firm, with British American gaining a quarter at 38¼. Goodyear Tire gained 1¼ at 156 in the unlisted section, where trading was lighter.

Pacific Coast Mines Appear On Exchange

TORONTO, Jan. 26. — Canadian Press. — A group of British Columbia stocks made their appearance on the Standard mining exchange to-day and coincidently further weakness was shown in the former favorites. The Kirkland Lake issues were weakest in an irregular list. Teck Hughes lost 25 points at 9.20; Lake Shore eased back to 25.00, a half dollar loss. Wright Hargreaves hovered around 5.60, and Kirkland Lake Gold sold around 2.33. Coast Copper lead the Coast stocks with a five dollar jump at 55.00. Sudbury, Hudson Bay, Sheritt and Mining Corporation firmed jointly.

Wheat Prices Go Up Following Liverpool

CHICAGO, Jan. 26. — With persistent dryness and low temperatures reported in the domestic winter wheat territory, wheat prices showed an early upward trend here to-day. Liverpool wheat quotations, higher than were looked for acted also as a strengthening influence.

Opening unchanged to ½c higher Chicago wheat reacted a little and then scored gains all around. Corn and oats likewise developed firmness, corn starting at ¼c off to ¼c up, and subsequently making a general advance.

Opening prices were: Wheat March 129 5-8; May 130½; corn, March 87, May 90 1-8; oats, March 54 1-8; May 55 1-8.

TALKS ON POETS ARE CONCLUDED

Dr. Pratt Concludes Series of Six Lectures at Y.W.C.A.

APPRECIATION EXPRESSED.

Dr. A. E. Pratt, of Victoria University, Toronto, concluded his series of lectures on the Modern Poets and on Shakespeare, in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. last evening. His final address dealt with the concluding scenes of "Hamlet," which was commenced at last week's meeting, and at the close, Miss Margaret Hamilton, in the chair, expressed the appreciation of the association and of the audiences for the splendid series of half a dozen lectures which comprised Professor Pratt's contribution this year. A standing vote of thanks was also accorded him by the audience.

The musical program of the evening consisted of a vocal solo by Miss Alma Blanchard, with accompaniment by Miss Margaret Widdess, who also played a pianoforte number.

Professor Pratt commenced last evening with the first scene of the second act of "Hamlet" and progressed to the ending of the play. The first scene he characterized as important as an illustration of the environment surrounding Ophelia, while the second scene shows Hamlet's intellectual agility and his sololiquy in this portion of the play, a specimen regarded as one of the most glorious pieces of prose in all literature, gives evidence of his assured insanity.

In the various scenes of the third act are shown Hamlet's conviction that Ophelia is aligned with the king and an explanation of his reason for not killing his uncle is given in his feeling of the uselessness of life and the breakdown of his moral idealism. His final blow is the shattering of his faith in Ophelia.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

Interesting Papers Read at the First Meeting of New Year.

St. Andrew's W.M.S. held its first monthly meeting of the year on Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. J. W. Gordon in the chair. At the opening of the meeting Rev. Mr. Gordon addressed the members on behalf of the Bible Society, and asked for their hearty co-operation in the canvas of the churches which is to take place next week.

The ladies were then favored with a pleasing vocal solo by Mrs. H. Doig, who was accompanied by Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park.

A paper on the New Year was read by Mrs. Gordon followed by a season of prayer led by Mrs. M. Kerr.

The Watch Tower Heralds, of which Mrs. A. Porteous is leader, were heard from, and had some very interesting messages to offer.

The Misses F. Dickson and E. Ferguson, who acted as delegates to the recent Presbyterial Convention held in St. Andrew's church, presented their reports, which were very accurate, and which were listened to with much interest.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mrs. W. F. Nelson read a very fine paper on "The Needs of Humanity."

CHURCH REPORTS MOST FAVORABLE

St. John's Annual Vestry Meeting Held For Transaction of Business.

WARDENS RE-ELECTED.

There was a good attendance at the annual vestry meeting of St. John's Church, held in the Parish House on Monday evening, January 23rd, with the rector, Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D., in the chair. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read by the vestry clerk, G. A. Smith.

W. J. Kent, People's Warden, presented the annual financial report, showing a decided increase over 1926, with a revenue for parochial purposes of $10,194.31, for the Centenary Fund $2,813.27, and for purposes outside the parish $1,507.44—making a total of $14,515.02. There was also the sum of $3,786.93 collected from other organizations in the parish, making a grand total revenue of $18,301.95, leaving a small balance on hand of $97.87. A very encouraging part of the statement was that referring to the Centenary Fund mortgage, which has now been reduced to $8,000. The report of the Centenary Fund showed a balance of $323.26. The sum of $2,813.27 was received during the year. It is hoped to further reduce the mortgage by $1,000 in March, through the generosity of the Church Women's Association, which has contributed $600 towards this amount, as well as the interest, $260.

Reports were received from the representatives of the various church organizations, showing much progress in the different departments during the year.

Special mention might be made of the Church Women's Association, which, in addition to raising $760 for the Centenary Mortgage Fund, among other things supplied cork matting for the church, at a cost of $282.45.

The report of the Sunday School showed the largest attendance in its history. Regret was expressed by the superintendent, E. Sorby, and Dr. Blagrave at the resignation of Miss Margaret English, superintendent of the Primary Department, after a long period of faithful service. Owing to her absence through ill-health, it was regretted that a public presentation of a wrist watch and handsome wall clock could not be made at the vestry meeting, as a slight token of the high esteem in which she is held, and the great appreciation of her services in the Primary Department of the Sunday School. Her successor, Mrs. F. D. Craig, was warmly welcomed.

Dr. Blagrave expressed his warm appreciation of the work accomplished by the different organizations during the past year, thanking the Advisory Board most heartily for their splendid co-operation, particularly during the Centenary celebration, and the lay readers, Messrs. R. N. Stuart and D. G. Melton, for their valuable help rendered in the services of the church.

A letter was read by Mr. Kent from the secretary of the Local Council of Women, stating that an International Exhibition of the Works of the Press is to be held at Cologne, Germany, in the early spring, and suggesting that St. John's donate a copy of the recently published Centenary History, so admirably written by F. M. DelaFosse, as worthy of a place in this Exhibition. It was decided that a special copy of the book, similar to that donated to His Excellency the Governor-General, be prepared and donated for this purpose.

Then followed the election of officers for the ensuing year:

Col. A. Stevenson was re-appointed Vicar's Warden, and W. J. Kent re-elected People's Warden.

The following were elected to the Advisory Board for 1928:

Messrs. J. A. Aymer, chairman; W. R. Thompson, secretary; E. S. Martin, S. T. Medd, Dr. G. S. Cameron, A. W. Turner, W. R. Morris, A. L. Killaly, J. J. Howden, R. Fair, W. Dolby, W. Sangster, H. Long, F. D. Kerr, W. T. Holloway, R. Denne, G. B. Boucher, J. B. Horn, Gerald Wood, W. C. Ackerman, E. Sorby, W. Comstock, R. N. Stuart, C. H. Rogers, D. G. Melton, A. E. Caddy, F. L. Roy, J. F. Strickland, Mrs. Young, Mrs. A. W. Turner, Mrs. George Wesley.

The sidesmen for 1928 are as follaws:

Messrs. F. M. DelaFosse, C. G. Graham, C. L. Brewer, F. Hills, B. D. Hall, W. F. Turner, C. E. Jamieson, W. R. L. Blackwell, J. D. Patterson, D. J. Lawrie, A. L. Stedham, R. E. Clarke, C. Coleman, D. Yarnold, G. Davis, Bert Graham, A. L. Amys, A. Hood, L. Conway, Ed. Coleman, Walton Stevenson, Ed. Hatton.

A. W. Turner was re-elected chairman of the Envelope Committee.

Messrs. J. A. Aylmer and R. N. Stuart were elected representatives of the Bible Society; Robert Fair to the Hospital Board; Alex. Gibson to the Board of the William Hall Poor Trust Fund; and Dr. W. T. Holloway to the Board of the Protestant Home.

Messrs. G. M. Lyons and A. L. Amys were appointed auditors for 1928, and G. A. Smith re-elected vestry clerk.

Messrs. R. Fair, B. D. Hall, and F. D. Kerr were elected as delegates to the Synod, with substitutes in E. S. Martin, R. N. Stuart, and J. J. Howden.

A resolution was passed that the thanks of the vestry be tendered to the choir, officers of the church, the Chancel Guild, and all other organizations in the church for their splendid work and co-operation during the past year.

REVUE REHEARSALS GOING VERY WELL

"Leave It To Gloria" Has Good Plot and Plenty of Humor.

Rehearsals are progressing satisfactorily for the comedy revue, "Leave It To Gloria," which is being presented at the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week, under the auspices of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham, whose main endeavor at present is the beautifying of the city's Memorial Park on Armour Hill.

The revue has everything that goes to make up a successful production of this type. It has an interesting story, with a hint of mystery in it, because the identity of "Gloria" remains as a puzzle for some time after the commencement, it has plenty of rollicking humor of a clean, wholesome type, dialogue that brings a chuckle, and characterizations that are exceptionally striking. There is fun and light and color and amusement in "Leave It To Gloria," with its cast of over one hundred people.

One of the main attractions is the music, which is snappy and sparkling and the choruses of clever dancers in bright and dainty costumes. The range of these is very wide, including, as they do, a "Bowery" number in the plainest of outfits and progressing to the striking "radium" chorus and dance, and the lovely "Primrose" and "Show Girls" numbers. There are also vocal solos and dances that are calculated to bring down the house.

Altogether, considering the nature of the gay Revue and the worthy object for which it is being produced, "Leave It To Gloria" should have packed houses on both nights.

NO MORE PILES

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds because it relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe and lasting relief to Pile Sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. McDermir & Jury, Bond's Drug Store and druggists anywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee.

Curling

At Peterborough.

The final game for the District Cup was played on Tuesday between two rinks from the Peterborough Curling Club and two from Millbrook Curling Club with the local rinks winning by 6 points.

R. H. Edmunds of Millbrook, defeated Ira Moore of Peterborough, by 23 points to 11, but J. H. Sedgwick carried the Peterborough colors high by defeating John Steele of Millbrook by 21 points to 3.

The final game will be played between Lindsay and Peterborough, and the winners are to go to Toronto.

In last night's Examiner it was stated that Peterborough won by 7 points which should have been 6. The information was received at the curling rink from one of the members as the score cards were not available at the rink.

MAYOR VISITS

ada and the United States to-day.

A Successful Plan.

Then the Mercers Guild stepped in. They loaned large sums of money to the King and hadn't received it back. They were forced to contribute to the government. They owned large landed estates throughout England. These they pedged as security for the fulfilment of the new life insurance which they issued and carried to success. To-day there is 101 billion dollars of insurance in force according to the reports for 1925, the latest available figures and 75 per cent. of that amount is in force in Canada and the United States. Insurance ranks third to the steel and automobile industries.

"Instead of money being spent in joy-riding," said Mr. Wallace, "if invested in insurance it is saved for the future use of people."

Addresses were also given by Mr. Devlin and by W. A. Nodan, of Toronto, representing the London Life. Mr. Nodan spoke briefly on group insurance. Incidentally he said that on Monday a man was driving a truck along a street in Peterborough. The truck stopped, but the engine kept going. On Wednesday that man's widow received $1,000. Her husband had paid only $7.20 on that policy. That is the mission of insurance, Mr. Nodan said.

A vote of thanks was conveyed to the three speakers on a motion by George Gibbons of the Mutual Life, seconded by I. P. McNabb, of the Dominion Life, who also congratulated Mr. Boulton on the success of the Confederation Life conference.

H. B. Matthews, of the London Life(and president of the Peterborough Life Underwriters' Association, was chairman.

Afternoon Session.

A feature of yesterday afternoon's Confederation Life conference was a visit by Mayor Denne, ascompanied by Aldermen Stocker and Huffman. They were introduced to the assembly by T. Herb Gillespie and were very cordially welcomed.

"I want to welcome Mayor Denne, not only as the Chief Magistrate of this city," said Mr. Boulton, "but also as a Confederation Life policyholder And we welcome Aldermen Stocker and Huffman as members of the city council, and as potential policy holders in our company."

Mr. Devlin added a warm note of appreciation. "It is exceedingly kind and gracious of you to visit us," he said. "The Confederation Life has been established in Peterborough for many years. In the old days the Confederation Life caught the people of Peterborough when they perhaps were not seeking the Confederation Life. Our president however, knew that the good people of this district were the kind who would keep business in force once they had learned the virtues of life insurance and had taken out policies with us. It was our misfortune to lose Harry Rush, but I wish to say that there are no Confederation Life meetings in this division at which he is not remembered. Peterborough and Harry Rush were always regarded by the head office as two bright stars.

Founded in 1871.

The Confederation Life Association was founded in 1871 by J. K. Macdonald now president of the company, and the dean of Canadian insurance, who on his 90th birthday, in October last, presided as usual over the regular meeting of the Board of Directors. C. S. Macdonald is the Vice-President and General Manager, and J. Tower Boyd, General Manager of Agencies. Over $50,000,000 of new insurance was issued and revived by the Confederation Life in 1927, and the total business in force at the close of the year was $258,466,184. Payments to policy holders and beneficiaries in 1927, in matured policies and dividends thereon, annuities death claims, disability and double indemnity benefits, etc., amounted to $5,463,584, an increase of $968,228 over the year 1926.

"We never did as much business in Peterborough as in 1927," Mr. Devlin concluded, "but Mr. Boulton says that last year's business total is not good enough for 1928. We certainly hope that Confederation Life will keep pace with the growth of Peterborough."

Mayor Denne expressed his pleasure with this convention coming to Peterborough year after year, and regretted it was not held in the summer when the visiting Confederation men could be shown the beauties and industrial strength of this city.

Ald. Stocker declared himself a "booster" of the idea of life insurance. "If I had my life to live over," he said, "I'd carry ten time more life insurance. I tell young fellows that it is like putting money in the bank, but that they can't get it out whenever they like."

He recalled several instances of the protective benefit of insurance. Ald. Huffman said he was glad to see the Confederation Life men come to Peterborough, and expressed the hope that their sessions would be highly successful.

Mr. Boulton's Gratitude

Toward the close of the afternoon Mr. Boulton, as Divisional Manager, extended his thanks to head office for making the conference possible and also for sending two men of the calibre of Mr. Devlin and Mr. Wallace.

"These conferences help us a great deal in our business," Mr. Boulton affirmed. "I wish to say, too, that I appreciate the good spirit of friendliness that exists in this territory. I know that every man feels that my job is his and that his job is mine. The work has been harmonious, and congenial, and peppy Last year we wrote 105½ per cent of our allotment in this division. Our allotment for this year has been increased, and we're going to get it. Confederation Life takes second place to none. We've got the goods and we have the men."

T. P. Lancaster of Havelock was introduced by Mr. Gillespie as a recent acquisition to the district selling staff.

Miss Giles was the recipient of an ample box of chocolates from the salesmen with their eulogies of her paper on "The Use of the Rate Book" and her efficiency as cashier of the Peterborough division office.

How many dollars can you save between the clothes hamper ? and the mending pile

DOESN'T it sometimes seem that the mending pile is big beyond belief? Didn't you ever wonder why?

Even your most delicate underclothes shouldn't go to pieces if you give them fair treatment. Have you looked in the wash-tub for the reason? It may lie there.

These dainty clothes that modern women wear are more difficult to wash than grandmother's calico. And wrong laundering means weakened fabric, faded colour, frayed edges.

If it isn't the mending basket, it's the scrap basket they're headed for. It all depends on the soap.

Surprise Soap was first made in St. Stephen, N.B., 44 years ago, on the policy that Quality should be the first consideration.

This policy has never been altered and quality has improved with advancing knowledge, keeping pace with modern requirements.

WAR IS H.......

To The Editor of The Examiner,
Dear Sir:

In the disgraceful condition of our City streets (which shows no sign of improvement) would it not be a good idea for some of the 93rd to be put to work to dig trenches to let the water off? This would make it possible to clean the sidewalks off and would be splendid trench-digging exercise besides being for public benefit.

Yours sincerely,
SOLDIER'S WIFE.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germs growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchiel asthma, bronchitis, and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or 'flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

GOITRE

Why Dr. W. J. Hughson's Famous Goitre Remover is still becoming more famous. The following letter explains:

W. S. Hughson,
Dear Sir:—

I receive so many enquiries concerning your Goitre Remedy, that I should find it convenient if you would send me some more of your literature that I might give it to those interested. I even had a letter all the way from Florida asking about it. I also want to tell you something else which, perhaps you do not know. I find it to be a wonderful Remedy for Poison Oak and Poison Ivy. I get poisoned with those things every summer and the Goitre Remedy heals it much better than anything else I have ever tried. I am still feeling wonderfully well after getting rid of the Horrid Goitre.

Yours truly, Mrs. J. D. Mills, Redlands Nursery, Sarnia, Ont.

We have many similar letters, such as the above, on file. For particulars of this Famous Remedy write W. S. Hughson, Dept. P. E., 88 Soudan Ave., Toronto.

THE DEER HUNTING SEASON.

The Peterborough County Council has been asked by the Simcoe Council to petition the Ontario Government to reduce the deer hunting season to fifteen days.

There is reason to doubt the success of the experiment of last year when the open season was extended to thirty days, and from reports from various sections as to the scarcity of game, the Government would be quite justified in scrapping the new policy and going back to the old conditions.

If the deer are to be preserved to provide a reasonable amount of hunting each year, a longer season does not appeal as the most effective way of bringing about such a result.

The resolution passed by the Simcoe County Council indicates that the wisdom of extending the season is likely to be under fire from more than one quarter, and that the coming session may find the Government bombarded with suggestions that the thirty-day limit should be cut in two in the interest of game preservation.

If deer are not to disappear altogether from Ontario's hinterland some consideration will have to be given this question.

WARDEN DAVIDSON.

The old story of King Bruce and the spider is recalled by the fact that Charles H. Davidson, Deputy-Reeve of Campbellford, has been elected Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham.

The new Warden had been defeated on two other occasions when he sought the highest honor in the gift of the people of the United Counties, and on this occasion was only elected after eighteen ballots had been taken.

The Examiner feels that the Council of Northumberland and Durham will have no reason to regret its choice.

Mr. Davidson, who is widely known throughout the whole district, is a Campbellford business man with a wealth of experience in municipal politics.

He has been a member of the Town Council for a score of years, has had five years' experience as Reeve, three as Deputy-Reeve, and is now in his eighth year as a member of the County Council.

Warden Davidson will bring to his responsible position business ability and shrewdness, as well as the close acquaintance that years of participation in municipal affairs has given him with the problems that will have to be dealt with by the Council.

He will receive hearty congratulations from all sides upon the honor that has been given him.

SPOOKS AND NEWS.

A letter signed "The Keatings" in last evening's Examiner dealt with the now familiar subject of the Seymour ghost, asking the question as which were the most annoying, reporters or ghosts.

That, of course, is a matter of personal taste, and we did not propose to reply to the communication until we noticed that the writer referred to newspaper men as "not concerned" with the matter of the appearances of this barrel-shaped spook.

We cannot let that pass.

Newspaper men are very much "concerned" about ghosts.

Spooks are news.

People may not believe in such things, but they like to read about them.

They like to feel their hair slowly rising and cold chills chasing up and down their spinal column as they imbibe all the details of mysterious spectres, awe-inspiring noises, rattling chains and all the other effects commonly associated with the visit of ghosts.

Spooks in general who may have intentions of visiting the Peterborough district are solemnly warned that so far as The Examiner is concerned we cannot keep their visits a dark secret.

If they persist in coming they'll have to expect publicity, for in spite of last night's letter, we are "concerned" about ghosts.

We'll even interview them if they'll give us a chance.

ENFORCING THE LAW.

Ontario's Legislature will soon be in session again, and the annual process of turning out fresh legislation will be in full swing.

There seems to be no end to this business of passing new laws.

The statute books are loaded up with legislation, much of it never enforced, and yet our governing bodies go on putting new laws into being.

What we really need more than this annual crop of regulations is a more effective enforcement of some of those already in effect.

We have laws against glaring motor headlights.

Yet they are met every night on every road, and prosecution of the offenders is a novelty.

We have a law that all drivers must have an operator's license.

Yet Ottawa reports that in that city alone there are 5,000 drivers without such a license.

We have a law requiring all vehicles to be illuminated after nightfall.

Yet you find horse-drawn vehicles on almost every road without the lights called for by the regulations.

The list might be lengthened indefinitely, but what's the use?

We have mentioned enough to justify the contention that real enforcement of the present laws should be sought before more are put on the statute books.

THE DEIGNTON TRAGEDY.

Moralizing on the terrible Deignton tragedy, in the city of Toronto, does not lead to any satisfactory conclusion. Deignton seemingly was driven mad by lack of employment, and he desired to save his family from a life of poverty. He was a highly educated man, an accomplished linguist, and a war-hero. None of these qualifications could insure him steady employment. The market for linguistic attainments is necessarily very small, and an all-round cultural education, while highly important as a development of character, is not always a key to employment.

Nor does war service, however distinguished, afford an assurance of employment. Promises were made in the excitement of war and the need for recruits, which could not possibly be fulfilled unless our economic and industrial system were revolutionized, and perhaps not then. Preferences are given to returned soldiers, but employment cannot be created to serve all, as is vividly shown in England by the presence of a vast body of unemployed men. War-hawks of the less intelligent type say that war serves the purpose of relieving congestion by removing surplus population. The late war killed off several millions of the bravest and brightest, but it left the unemployment situation worse than ever.

Even in the best conditions cases like that of Deignton are likely to arise. Only in some Utopia such as never existed could every man be fitted into his proper place. The professions afford only a limited field. Many estimable men are unfitted for the keen competition of commercial life. It is sometimes said that there are too many young men seeking white collar callings, and that more should engage in mechanical pursuits. But if this advice were generally followed it might result in the overcrowding of certain trades. Another common piece of advice is to go "back to the land." It is good advice to a certain extent, but even there the increased use of machinery tends to diminish the demand for human labor.

It is a curious fact that one seldom finds the foreigner in Canada in the ranks of the unemployed. The Chinaman opens a laundry, the Greek a restaurant, the Italian deals in fruit, the Jew finds a place through his genius as a trader. Would you or I, landing in Brazil or some other country of whose language we were ignorant, show a similar adaptability? Possibly there is a stimulus to energy in the very difficulty of the situation. The story of the beaver climbing the tree because he had to climb it, "the dog was crowding him so," may be a humorous exaggeration of a truth. Canadians do well in the United States, because they deserve it no doubt, but also perhaps because they are thrown more completely on their own resources than in their own country.

But we are free to admit that there is no comfort in these reflections and that they point to no remedy for the conditions which led up to this terrible tragedy. The slayer has given himself up to justice and any comment upon his action would be out of place. There is no room in the heart for anything but horror and sorrow. Newman, after considering the world in its length and breadth, the aimless courses and random achievements of men, the disappointment of life, the success of evil, physical pain, mental anguish, and even greater evils, says: "All this is a vision to dizzy and appal, and inflicts upon the mind the sense of a profound mystery, which is absolutely beyond human solution."—London Advertiser.

MR. KING IS CANNY.

Remembering the fate of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1911, following the negotiation of his now historic reciprocal trade agreement with the United States, Premier King is moving slowly and cautiously in connection with the St. Lawrence waterways scheme. To a deputation representing the Associated Boards of Trade, which waited on him this week and urged the Government to proceed with this proposition, Mr. King asked for an indication of public sentiment. Would the people stand behind the Government if it opened negotiations with the American authorities, he wondered. "Can anyone speak for Toronto?" the Hon. Charles A. Dunning interjected.

Governments have to be canny if they are to remain in power, Mr. King indicated, adding that a Government out of office is worth nothing at all. That is why he wants to be sure of his ground before espousing the St. Lawrence plan. Mr. King was a member of the Laurier administration in 1911. The Government was beaten to a frazzle and he lost his own North Waterloo seat on that occasion. It was a bitter pill and an object lesson to all politicians. And it all came about because a political party that had been out of office for 15 years saw in the trade measure revived by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, an opportunity to get back into power. Everyone remembers the intense campaign that followed. It succeeded and Sir Robert Borden triumphed.

The Globe thinks it is a sad commentary on Canadian political history that Premier King found it necessary to ask this week's deputation whether the St. Lawrence project, if sponsored by the present Government, would be considered on its merits or whether the issue would be sidetracked by the raising of some ancient bogey. "Premier King," The Globe adds, "present day leader of the party which has suffered most from such absurdities in the past, naturally wondered whether the men now favoring the plan, would follow through thick and thin, supposing the old bogies are resurrected."

It is, as The Globe says, a sad commentary on our political history that Mr. King should find himself in this position, but probably our record in this respect is not much different from that of other nations. The United States, for instance, is still outside the League of Nations, not because the people of that country are unsympathetic to the League, not because they do not agree with its aims and objects, but because, in the course of the old game of politics, the League became a handy weapon and was used to the limit. Many other such examples might be cited. It is to be hoped, however, that with the lesson of Reciprocity before us, Canadians can consider the St. Lawrence plan in a calm, unprejudiced manner.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The only way to write accurate comments on this winter's weather is to sit up all night and watch it.

Canadian farmers touring England just now are doubtless finding the weather over there decidedly home-like.

Reports from his training camp say that Hon. R. B. Bennett, new Conservative leader, has finished his preliminary workouts and will go into his first battle in good shape. In the camp of the present titleholder there is similar satisfaction over the condition of Premier King.

Peterborough teams are not among those who are complaining that there is not enough scoring in modern hockey.

With Frenchy Belanger and Izzy Schwartz likely to meet for the flyweight championship, there will be natural wonder as to what has become of all the Irish fighters.

One of the exciting features of this session of Parliament will be watching T. L. Church, M.P., trying to cover all the topics in the world in forty minutes.

Surely it isn't the Canadian navy that has made Rear-Admiral Plunkett see war clouds on the horizon.

If no ill-luck befell you yesterday—Friday, the 13th—remember that there are two other days of the kind this year, in April and July.—Hamilton Herald.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 26 (Canadian Press).—The trade in cash grain here yesterday was again of a very limited character owing to the absence of any demand from exporters. There was some inquiry from local buyers for oats for all-rail shipment from Fort William and sales of a few cars were made. Spot prices were unchanged.

Only a small volume of business was done in Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour, but the undertone was firm.

A good trade was done in all lines of millfeed and prices were unchanged. The tone of the market for standard grades of rolled oats was steady with a fair demand.

Little business was transacted in eggs, but values ruled steady. The receipts were 1,398 cases.

There was an improvement in the demand for potatoes and a moderate amount of business was worked at firm prices. Sales of Prince Edward Island Green mountains were made at $1.20 per bag of 90 lbs; Prince Edward Island White potatoes at $1.15 per bag of 90 lbs; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.10 per bag of 90 lbs in bulk; New Brunswick White potatoes at $1.05 per bag of 90 lbs in bulk, and Quebec varieties at 95c to $1 per bag of 90 lbs in bulk, ex-track.

A steady feeling prevailed in the market for imported beans with a fair business passing. Sales of odd cars of choice white hand-picked were made at $2.80 per bushel, ex-track, and broken lots at $2.90 per bushel, ex-store.

Owing to the continued disappointing demand for butter and the liberal supplies available a weaker feeling prevailed in the market and prices were reduced ½c per lb. The receipts were 94 packages.

Business in cheese continued extremely dull, but prices were unchanged. The receipts were 213 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 6 (Canadian Press).—Grain values here went lower yesterday, responsive to Wall Street weakness and to unlooked-for downturns in wheat quotations at Liverpool. Chicago closing prices for wheat were unsettled at ½c to ⅝c to 1c net decline, with corn 1 cent to 1½c down; oats ¾c to 1c off, and provisions varying from 10 cents drop to a rise of 7 cents.

Orders to sell out wheat holdings, and thus put a limit to losses, were automatically forced into action by the downward swing of the wheat market. Important buying ascribed to the southwest developed, however, at the lower levels reported, and helped to bring about something of a rally in the late dealings. On the other hand, export demand for wheat from North America continued to be slow, and there were reports of free cheaper offerings of Argentine wheat at Liverpool.

Persistent complaints of dry weather in domestic winter wheat territory were associated with buying orders from the southwest. In this connection, particular notice was taken of an official report that a considerable amount of wheat in the western third of Kansas had failed to germinate. Attention was given also to a statement that wheat receipts at Western points since July 1 have been 376,000,000 bushels against 290,000,000 bushels in the corresponding time the year previous, but that the parallel disappearance was 318,000,000 bushels compared with 256,000,000 bushels.

Auspicious weather conditions for the movement of the corn crop was a factor conductive to lower corn prices. Besides, arrivals of corn yesterday were on a liberal scale at all the leading markets. Country offerings, though, were light. Oats declined with corn.

Provisions averaged easier, reflecting the course of hog values and of grain.

PLANE PRESENTED TO TORONTO CLUB

Sir Charles Wakefield is Giving "Moth" to Civilian Aviators.

News has just come from London, England, to the effect that Sir Charles Wakefield, Bart., is presenting a Moth aeroplane to Toronto Flying Club. A Moth costs in the neighborhood of $7,000, so Sir Charles' gift is quite a handsome one. Sir Charles is without doubt the world's greatest benefactor of flying. He has presented aeroplanes to flying clubs throughout Great Britain, to promote the interests of flying.

Sir Alan Cobham, who made the greatest flight the world has ever seen to date—that is from England to Australia and return, 28,000 miles—is a protege of Sir Charles. Sir Alan is now mapping South Africa, a stupendous and colossal task. It will cost a fortune, which Sir Charles is gladly giving as his contribution to strengthen Empire bonds.

Sir Charles Wakefield presented the Mace to the Canadian Parliament shortly after the war. For two years during the war he was Lord Mayor of London, during which time he earned the undying gratitude of tens of thousands of soldiers. He is a great educationalist and is the author of a book that has received world-wide recommendation, "On Leaving School and the Choice of a Career." Sir Charles Cheers Wakefield, Bart., is the President of C. C. Wakefield & Co., Ltd., manufacturers of Castrol motor oil, who opened offices in Canada about a year ago.

The Least Excitement Made Her Heart Palpitate and Flutter

Mrs. Ambrose Orser, Elginburg, Ont., writes:—"I suffered for some time with a bad heart which seemed to be controlled by my nerves. The least little excitement would cause it to flutter and palpitate, and at times I would have real bad spells. I suffered in this way for some time when, one day, I saw

Dr. Frank Crane's Daily Editorial

FOR THE BEREFT

By Dr. Frank Crane.

A woman said to me the other day, "Why don't you write something that we can give to comfort a bereft person. There seems to be nothing that can be said or done."

As far as saying anything that can remove the pain of separation that can probably be done by nobody.

When we have lived years with one who is beloved, and he or she is taken from us, no power that we know of can prevent the hurt.

First of all, therefore, we should make up our minds that we must suffer. Suffering has its place in the human program and often it is productive of the greatest good to character.

We don't want the suffering taken away. In a sense we may say we enjoy suffering and would not feel right if we did not suffer.

But we should remember that this is a normal and natural pain that is incident to life. It is not peculiar to us. It is not a hardship directed at us alone, but probably all loving hearts at some time must experience it.

We must therefore adjust ourselves to it as a part of the human lot, a part of the sub-soiling, a part of the striking in of the plow of pain that destiny has in store for us.

Because of the very devastation of this experience, the emptiness left in our hearts, we have one of the strongest proofs of immortality. The one thing that defies and outlives death is love. Let our love be strong enough to be able to cope with sorrow and let our faith be strong enough to be triumphant over sorrow!

We should remember, also, that even in the hour of sudden bereavement the stern command is laid upon us to go on. We must live our lives. We must take up the remainder and bravely face the future in spite of all that has happened to us.

This is the proof that we are made of the right material. Those who give way to suffering and allow themselves to be crushed, and those who give themselves over to pessimism are weaklings.

The dead themselves would want us to be brave, and to go on, triumphant to the end.

MEN'S CLUB HOLDS ITS FIRST MEETING

Knox Organization Starts Off With Banquet—Name Finally Chosen.

The men's club of Knox United Church met for the first time since their organization on Monday evening at 6.30. The ladies of the church served a very sumptuous banquet to forty members, who did full justice to the good things provided.

At the conclusion of the banquet the president, Mr. Herald, took the chair.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, T. Pacey, and approved. It was decided to call the organization, The Men's Service Club of Knox United Church; meetings to be held the first and third Monday of each month. A cordial invitation to be given to the men of the congregation to join with them.

A. Pitchford gave a talk on "The Quaker Oats Products," speaking of flour, rolled oats, puffed wheat, puffed rice and Quaker corn flakes. This plant in Peterborough manufactures all the Quaker corn flakes sold in Canada. His subject proved very interesting and instructive.

Community singing was led by H. McCannon with Mr. Nicholls at the piano.

IN POLICE COURT

Claud Alexander Gosling, alias Clarence Lowery, who pleaded guilty last Monday to a charge of vagrancy, was given two months in the common jail this morning. Gosling, who gave his name as Clarence Lowery when he was arrested in the C.P.R. station early Monday morning, claimed that he had come to Peterborough on Sunday to look for work, but Chief Constable Newhall was rather suspicious about his story and had his finger prints taken and sent to Ottawa, where it was found that his name was Claud Alexander Gosling, who had served time in Winnipeg on four charges of theft. The prisoner admitted to Chief Newhall that he had spent the last two years in the United States and he had a record there.

Chief Newhall told The Examiner that he suspected the prisoner was the forerunner of a hold-up gang and it was only part of his real prevention program in looking up the man's record before he was called upon for sentence.

A local young man who had left home over a disagreement pleaded guilty to the same charge and was let go until called upon for sentence as he has since returned home.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Bob, waiting with drawn face and fear-darkened blue eyes outside the operating room, fell upon the white-coated, rubber-gloved doctor as soon as the door opened.

"Tell me, doctor! Don't waste words trying to break it gently! For God's sake, what's the matter with my wife? Will there have to be an operation?"

Dr. King raised his astonished white eyebrows, then burst into a fear-dispelling chuckle of genuine mirth. "Who said anything about an operation, young man? The only thing that ails your wife is that she's going to have a baby."

Bob grinned foolishly, then passed a hand over his dazed eyes. "But doctor, are you sure? I don't see how it could be—?" We've been hoping and praying for a baby, but—"

"I know, I know!" Dr. King interrupted jovially. "Nature plays tricks on women sometimes, for Nature, being a female goddess, likes surprises. No doubt about it, Hathaway. You're going to be a father, if you take good care of your wife. Her condition explains a lot that's been puzzling me about her case. Women are apt to cut up funny didoes when a baby's on the way. You never can tell how a highstrung woman will react——"

"Highstrung?" Bob repeated, still dazed. "But Faith's not a highstrung woman, doctor. She's the most serene, well-balanced girl I ever knew. If it were Cherry I'd agree with you, but Faith——"

"Your sister-in-law isn't half as highstrung and nervous as your wife," Dr. King said with sudden seriousness. "You drop into my office sometime when you're in Darrow and let me tell you a few things for your own good and for your wife's protection, Hathaway. But I might as well tell you right now that Mrs. Hathaway is a bundle of nerves, under that calm exterior of hers. Of course she has not been so calm since I knew her but I can guess. I know her type. Your sister-in-law blows up every time she gets up a pound of steam, and you deduce from her many explosions that she's highstrung. Your wife bottles it up, and seethes and boils inside. Sometimes the lid blows off, and she goes to pieces. This time she had amnesia, but you can take my word for it that her collapse was largely due to her condition, which she didn't suspect. She's as much surprised as you are."

Bob paused only to wring the doctor's hand, then sprinted for the elevator, his handsome young face so glorified with joy that two nurses nudged each other and giggled.

In her bed again, Faith lay with her hands clasped over her heart, which was racing with joy. "The perfect solution," she told herself with prayerful gratitude. "Since I'm going to have a baby of my own, I can convince Cherry that I can live without her baby, and she will be free to marry Nils."

The door opened and Faith, expecting Bob, was extending her arms in welcome when she saw that her visitor was Cherry, a pale Cherry with circles under her lustreless golden eyes.

"I've written Nils his answer, darling. I've told him that I can't marry him because I don't love him. It was the truth, too," Cherry lied valiantly. "I'm always getting excited over some man or other and then losing interest."

TORTURING NEURALGIA.

The Cry of Starved Nerves For Rich, Red Blood.

Most people associate neuralgia with a pain in the head or face, but neuralgia may affect any nerve in the body. Different names are given to it when it affects certain nerves. Thurs neuralgia of the sciatic nerve is called sciatica, but the character of the disease and the nature of the pain are the same; the cause is the same, and the remedy, to be effective, must be the same.

The pain of neuralgia is the cry of starved nerves for nourishment. Normally the bloods feeds the nerves, but if it is thin and weak it cannot do so. Hence, neuralgia and other nerve disorders. Build up and enrich your thin blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and you are attacking neuralgia at its root. These pills supply to the blood just the elements that the nerves need, and they have been proved to be the best possible remedy for the treatment of neuralgia, sciatica, neuritis and in fact for all diseases that owe their origin to weak nerves.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50c. a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

C.G.I.T. MEETING WELL ATTENDED

New President Takes Office—Girls Decide To Hold Tea.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 25.—The Wide Awakes group of Canadian Girls in Training held its weekly meeting at the leader's home on Friday night, with a good attendance, considering the stormy weather, and the fact that some members were required at another gathering the same evening.

The new president, Elsie Spence, filled the chair capably, and during the discussion of business items it was decided to have as many of the members as possible attend the district conference at Peterborough, January 27 to 29, and to hold an afternoon tea, at the leader's home, on Saturday, February 4, from 3.30 to 6 p.m., the public generally, to be invited. The girls will also provide the program at the Valentine meeting of the Mission Circle on February 14, the silver collection taken to be added to their funds.

Passages illustrating Christ's teaching about prayer were read for the Scripture lesson, and following the repetition of the watchword for the year, "In the morning, I will look up" (Psalm 5.3), the leader read "The Measuring Rod," as the most appropriate way of impressing the lesson of soul growth.

The usual social time was enjoyed at the close. There will be no meeting this week owing to the week end conference, and the following week practice for the missionary play to be presented on February 14 will be arranged in place of the regular session.

MRS. H. T. KEITH PASSES AWAY

Wife of Former Pastor of Knox Church Dies on Tuesday in Winnipeg.

AFTER LONG ILLNESS

WINNIPEG, Man., January 26 (Special to The Examiner). — Following a lengthy illness, Mrs. H. J. Keith, wife of Rev. Dr. Henry J. Keith, minister of St. Andrew's United Church, River Heights, passed away at 6.45 on Tuesday morning at her home, 211 oak Street. Mrs. Keith had been in poor health for some years, and after an illness last July her condition commenced to give serious concern. Last week it was realized that she was slowly sinking. On Sunday it was announced in St. Andrew's Church that Mrs. Keith had rallied somewhat the night before, and the prayers of the congregation were urged for her recovery.

A change for the worse set in on Sunday, however, until the end came on Tuesday morning.

Mrs Keith, whose maiden name was Louise McDougall, was a graduate of McGill University in 1904. Along with her husband, she served as a missionary in India, but ill-health made it necessary for her to abandon this work. Following her return to Canada she resided in Peterborough and Edmonton, where Dr. Keith held pastorates prior to coming to Winnipeg.

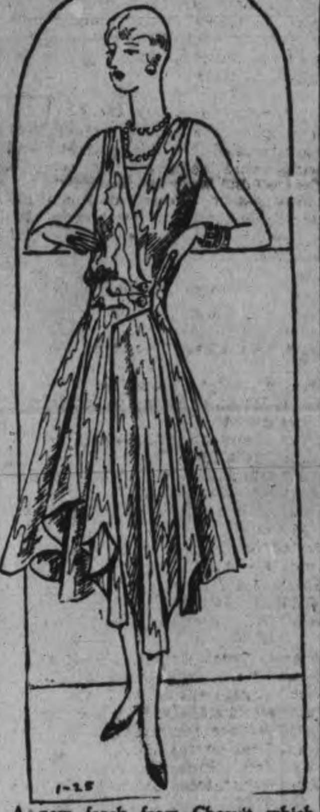
During the period when her husband ministered to both Old and New St. Andrew's Churches, Mrs. Keith worked exceptionally hard, and friends maintain that in her devotion she undermined her health at this time.

She was particularly interested in the missionary and children's activities of the church, having been leader of the Mission Band at St. Andrew's and assistant secretary of the Conference, Women's Missionary secretary, Mission Band Branch. Mrs. Keith was also known for her literary ability, having had a number of stories and poems published.

Mrs. Keith is survived by her husband, two daughters, Louise and Margaret, and one son Robert. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



A new frock from Cheruit which bears out the prediction that the new clothes will demand more material than the old. This is of red moire silk. The bodice is buttoned at the front at the normal waistline.

"More material"—"Plus d'ampleur"—says Dame Fashion speaking to her followers here and in France, and it will be interesting to see in which country this new edict is received most willingly. Few women, I am sure, wear short, scant skirts now for the mere sake of showing the legs. As someone remarked the other day, women's legs are all pretty much alike and the public has become perfectly used to seeing them. But women do cling tenaciously to the short, scant skirts because they find them comfortable and feel more youthful and less dowdy when wearing them.

It is very hard to dance your best in a period frock five yards round the hem and almost down to the ankles when for several seasons you have danced in a scant little ruffle that barely covered your knees.

If there really is a definite revival of fuller clothes, containing much more material, am sure we— or rather the costumers and designers who make the frocks for the period plays that gain popularity—will have the stage to thank or to blame for the change.

You see a charming actress going through her paces in a seventeenth-century frock with snug low-cut bodice and full long skirts and you cannot help but feel that there was a very definite allure to those clothes that your own straight short frocks do not possess. You would at least like to try one—and so you go to your dressmaker and talk about period frocks. You do not realize perhaps that the actress who has appeared so charming in the seventeenth-century costume has spent many tiresome hours acquiring just the gestures and poses needed to set off the full long skirts and snug bodice.

The frock shown in today's sketch is one of the most charming of the new French models showing decidedly more material than has recently been used. And please notice the slightly pointed shoulder straps. The shaping is contrived by means of a few fine tucks. These shaped shoulder straps are considered much newer than the straight straps to which we have become accustomed.

Sage Tea Dandy to Darken Hair

By DOROTHY LANG

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of 'Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound' at any drug store. It costs only 75 cents. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

Around the City

The members of St. George's A.Y.P.A. enjoyed a very humorous and intensely interesting talk at their meeting on Monday evening, when Mr. J. Bell described in a vivid manner a trip across Canada undertaken by him on foot, with reference to many incidents that befell on the journey. At the conclusion, Rev. J. L. Hughes, on behalf of the society, thanked Mr. Bell for the treat he had given the members.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

FRIDAY, JANUARY 27, 1927.

This is a day of many planetary influences, good and bad, according to astrology, the benefic aspects dominating.

Early in the day it is well to seek superiors in case a request of importance is to be made.

Those who are promoting any business project should make the most of the morning hours, which incline men and women of wealth toward new projects.

Again Mars is in menacing aspect and seems to presage more agitation of warlike tendency.

This figure also inclined men and women to be irritable and quarrelsome. It is unfavorable to domestic happiness.

There should be a feeling of buoyance and stimulation today, inclining toward the pushing of enterprises.

While it is wise to be energetic in projects that have been started, new schemes should not be begun until a better aspect prevails.

Under this direction of the stars the mind may be unstable and its owner irritable. Egotism is encouraged under this sway.

Men and women are warned that self control and self discipline are more needed than in the past for the inclination toward intense individualism is responsible for much sorrow.

Divorces will continue to multiply and marriage problems will fix attention, but return to old standards of life will solve many difficulties, the seers point out.

Women are subject to a planetary rule that seems to fix upon them the responsibility of many reforms. They are to set the high mark of behavior, it is forecast.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of many favors and great prosperity in the coming year. Change and travel are indicated.

Children born on this day probably will be strong of will and able of mind. The subjects of this sign have tremendous possibilities and may rise to great heights and distinguished associations.

Headaches nearly drove me wild and I had a sickly, sallow complexion. Tanlac has increased my weight 14 pounds and has given me a wonderful appetite. My nerves are steady I sleep well and have health and strength that make life a pleasure.

Each of the roots, herbs and bark in Tanlac has its own special value in bringing back health to the sick. Only in Tanlac can you get this invaluable combination. So it is important to insist on having Tanlac not a substitute. Get a bottle today at your druggist's.

produced in factories. The position of Burns is unchanged.

One reason advanced by the speaker for this was that the first thing a Scottish child hears is the poetry of Burns. He wrote for all occasions. There are songs for childhood, for lovers, for the home. The depth of his sympathies was commented on, the speaker remarking that there was one poem he couldn't think of just at the moment, not the mouse, to be reminded by several voices of the poem about the louse. No matter what it was Burns would get a rhyme out of it. He even expressed sympathy for the devil.

"Burns appeals, not to the head, but to the heart," continued Mr. Wilkie, "although I should have thought that would apply least to the Scotch, whose hearts are notoriously hard, like their heads and hands, but maybe they are misjudged." The Scotch, he said, used to go to England to steal cattle, but now they go and take all the best jobs. Scots have held the office of Prime Minister and one is Archbishop of Canterbury. They had a reputation for fighting to the end, but after the fight would deal easily in the matter of ransome. "You can get a Scot to give you something, but you can't take anything away from him," commented Mr. Wilkie.

There was one more point he wished to make, said Mr. Wilkie, stating that speeches such as Mr. Gordon's, or even his own, were a waste of time at such a gathering, and that was that Burns was more than a poet. He was a philosopher, and more. Mr. Wilkie recalled that at the start of a conference about a labor dispute one party wished to sing God Save the King. The others wished to sing the Red Flag; they compromised on Auld Lang Syne.

"When Burns wrote, "Man to man, the world o'er, shall brithers be, for a' that," he was ahead of his time," said Mr. Wilkie. "The world is getting slowly to that ideal of life. Burns was more than a poet; he was a prophet. He was ahead of time in foretelling that every man hall be a brother to every other man. His poems have done a great deal to bring it about and are still working because they are still being read. The day is coming when this will be true and when it comes Burns will not only be a great poet but a great prophet whose prophecy he has himself helped to realize."

The Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.

The toast to "The Twa Countries" was responded to by the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who combined with it the toast to "The Absent Ones," as the Rev. W. Edgar, who was to have proposed it, was unable to attend. "We are fortunate to have Mr. Wilkie come here instead of going where there might be more Scots, but none of better quality," said Mr. Gordon in his introduction. One reason Scots are so at home in Canada, he continued, is that two countries have similar conditions. There is the great desire for education in both countries. There is the same spirit of democracy. Scotland has never been burdened by an aristocracy which would not work.

With all these advantages— the climate which makes for vigorous and stalwart men and women—the country which made work necessary— it is no wonder the Scots have succeeded. Canadian history shows that they opened up the great west, coming as settlers after the French had explored it. In fact the C.P.R. was practically financed and built by Scots.

This country owes much to Scotland and Scotland owes a great deal to this country. In Canada and the United States there are more Scots than there are in Scotland. There are Scots everywhere leaders in parliament, law, medicine, colleges, engineering and machinery.

Is this because the race is superior, asked Mr. Gordon, or is it because the people learned early in life the need for patient and unceasing industry. This latter quality has given them all their great achievements.

Mr. Gordon recalled one Burns' Night when he had been out in the foothills of the Rockies and the "laddies" had come in from all directions and organized a banquet. That, he said, is happening all over the world, in hamlets and cities. Wherever there are Scots they are celebrating a night holy to them. While they are absent they are actuated by the same feeling of pride in their country and poet.

There is no reason, concluded Mr. Gordon, for anybody to be discouraged in this country with its great resources. With the change now in progress from steam to electricity, Canada should become the centre of industry for she has power for a population of 150,000,000. "I feel sure," he declared, "that Scots will do their part in making this the greatest of self-governing nations in the British Empire."

Our Club.

In responding to the toast to "Our Club," George Low, past president, said:

The Peterborough Caledonian Club has been in existence since 1913, and has been functioning ever since, although at times it suffered from some losses. After the war it was necessary to make the club meetings more popular, and the committee in charge then took steps to do so. The inclusion of the ladies was one of these features to which there was opposition, but which has aided in making the club a success. The club's existence is justified, said Mr. Low, because many a Scottish immigrant would spend a lonely time if it were not for the club. The meetings are interesting, even when there is only business to discuss, and there is a large attendance at all times.

Mr. Low closed with an appeal for all to turn out and support the new executive, which has already shown its ability by its arrangements for the dinner. If every member would consider himself a minor member of the executive, the club would become the best of its kind in Canada.

The Lassies.

Bob Hendry was deputed to respond for the lassies when that toast was honored by all the laddies present, and after remarking on the indispensability of the lassies around the club, he quoted a poem written by his brother in Minneapolis especially for the occasion.

"We are greatly indebted to the lassies for what they have done for the club, and have had a great deal to do with the success of the club. Those who are the oldest in membership in the club are youngest in enthusiasm," said Mr. Hendry.

His brother's poem follows:

Just Rabbie Burns.

I wonder what Burns would think and say
If he lived and was here with us today,
And know how we all do love to sing
His verse that joy to Scotchmen bring.
He'd know that we who are gathered here
For Auld Lang Syne, and to still revere
The memory of him who in nature's turn
Wrote that lowly man was made to mourn—
Just Rabbie Burns!
Just Rabbie Burns, of humble birth.
The world has never learned the worth
Of Burns' golden lyric pen
That wrote the prayer for coming men.
He drew a picture in heavenly light
When he wrote "The Cottar's Saturday Night";
"Scots Wha Hae" and "Scotland's Fame"
All honor Rabbie Burns' name—
Just Rabbie Burns!

Music and Recitation.

The musical numbers formed an important part of the program. The songs, as well as the readings which were interspersed, were mostly from Burns' works. Solos were given by Mrs. W. Byers, singing "Angus Macdonald," with "Hail, Caledonia!" as an encore; John Anderson singing "There Was a Lad," which he sang at the first Burns supper of the club in 1913, and "Scots Wha Hae"; Mrs. G. Jackson singing "To Mary in Heaven" and "For the Sake o' Somebody"; and Mrs. Howse singing "A Rosebud by My Early Walk" and "Phyllis the Fair." Miss Cathie Taylor, violinist, played "Adoration" and "On the Banks of Allan Water."

Accompanists were Miss Mary Hemphill, Miss Emma Lou Chenhall, and Mrs. John Anderson.

Readings included "Burns' Epistle to Davie, a Brother Poet," "A Man's a Man," and Burns' Nicht in Fallinbrae," by Miss F. G. McNeely, and "Tam O'Shanter," by Joseph Grierson.

The concluding number of the program was a trio, Messrs. Grieve, Hyslop, and Clark, singing the popular "Willie Brewed a Peck o' Maut."

Votes of thanks were proposed by James Barton to the speakers, by Bob Hendry to the president, and by the president to all others who had helped to make the evening such a success, and the gathering broke up with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

was wroth and said: 'I thought he would surely come out to me.'

"Naaman came laden with gifts. Elisha said: 'You don't owe me anything, nothing you possess can possibly repay me.' In this materialistic age many of us think that dollars and cents can repay for everything but I think of some things in this old world that can not be bartered for.

"The church of God. When you give your contribution to your church you are doing the right thing yet you are giving any rightful exchange for all the good things you have received.

"Home.

"Friendships can not be bought in dollars and cents.

"Naaman nearly lost out because he was disdainful of the common things of life—and refused at first to wash in the river Jordan. How many people fail to see the glory and power of God in the common everyday things of life?" Mr. Todd continuing said his highest ambition was not to be a great orator but to point out to people the glory of God in the commonplace things of life.

"Do you say you have not seen the glory of God in the commonplace things of life. Is the lack of service as we go about our everyday tasks? Jesus said: Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least ye have done it unto me.' Unless men and women can link up the tasks they are doing with God in some way their outlook is hopeless. We have received certain talents that at his coming he may receive his own with interest. We are not out simply to enrich ourselves but to help our fellow-men. No man is a real success in his profession unless he has the interests of his fellow-men at heart. In mercantile life, in home life this principle holds good. All the time we should be living in this higher attitude where God is.

"The Naaman spirit makes us tired of our jobs and we do not look at our tasks in the right way.

"The Naaman spirit blinds us to revelations. Many people say God does not speak to people the way he used to in Bible days. God speaks more plainly now. In Biblical days there were only the outstanding few who heard his message. Now he speaks to large congregations who go out into the everyday workaday world bearing his message. God is still speaking to men. We get a call to do something. God is speaking to us concerning trivial tasks. Have you never felt strangely called to do something or at a church service felt strangely moved? That was the voice of God speaking to you and in answering the call and performing some commonplace task of life you made the world richer.

"Man makes a mistake in letting his mind dwell on the time, when God will come. God is here. God is speaking to us through the medium of the tasks we have committed ourselves to. May He speak this message to us as we go out upon our tasks of the coming week."

IN POLICE COURT

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 26.—Joseph Watters was the first person to appear before Magistrate Payne in Police Court on Tuesday morning. He was charged with having intended to defraud Frederick C. Hendy with a worthless cheque for $30.00. Through his counsel, D. J. Lynch, Watters pleaded guilty and elected to be tried by the magistrate.

Howard W. Lapp, manager of the Standard Bank, was the first witness called by W. F. Kerr, K.C., for the prosecution. Lapp testified that he was the manager of the bank in question and that Watters had no account there at the time or since. He had searched the register as far back as 1914 and could find no account for the accused. Asked by Lynch whether Watters had any money in the bank since the cheque had been presented, Lapp replied that he had not. He further stated that the cheque had been presented to the ledger keeper and not to himself. He, as manager, had not seen the cheque presented.

Frederick C. Hendy, called by the Crown, stated that Watters had wanted the money as a loan and had asked him to wait three days before presenting it. Waters promised to have the money in the bank at that time.

Instantly the alert attorney ceased his questioning, explaining that as Hendy had taken the cheque on a personal promise, he had no case under the Criminal Code. This seemed to surprise Hendy.

The second charge against Watters was of a very similar nature. He had given A. P. Hind, jeweller of Campbellford, a cheque for eight dollars in payment for a ladies' wrist watch. This cheque also proved worthless.

Lapp, Standard Bank manager, testified as on the previous charge. A. P. Hind stated that he had known Watters and that the cheque was for a lady's wrist watch sold before Christmas. In this case, too, it developed, Watters had promised to meet the cheques. Therefore the second charge also had to be dropped.

The second prisoner to appear was a married woman, aged twenty-three and the mother of four children. Her given place of residence is Warsaw, near Peterborough, but she has visited Campbellford on other occasions. The charge against her was laid under Section 239 of the Criminal Code, which is the Vagrancy Act. The sentence of the magistrate was six months in the common gaol.

Now the results in slender figures, new beauty and vitality, are seen everywhere.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. So you know the effects are beneficial, and why they all occur. Learn what so many have learned in 20 years about it. Do it now. Ask your druggist for a $1 box of Marmola and learn what it means to you.

PREMIER GIVES LIBRARY BOOKS

Mr. Ferguson Sends 12 Historical Volumes To Millbrook.

"MAKERS OF CANADA."

MILLBROOK, Jan. 26.—D. Hampton received on Saturday, as a gift from Premier G. Howard Ferguson to the public library, a case containing twelve volumes of the Makers of Canada series. The books are well bound in crimson cloth, printed on good paper in large, clear type, and have numerous illustrations.

It is in connection with his office as Minister of Education that the Honorable Mr. Ferguson is presenting this series of books to school libraries throughout the province not already so furnished, or as has been the case locally, to the public libraries.

The books are from the Oxford press, the titles including: Champlain and Laval; Frontenac, Montcalm and Wolfe; Dorchester and Haldimand; Simcoe and Brock; Mackenzie, Baldwin, La Fontaine, Hincks; Papineau and Cartier; Sydenham, Elgin, Ryerson; Brown, Macdonald, Howe, Tupper, Tilley; Mackenzie, Selkirk, Simpson, Douglas; Van Horne, Strathcona; Sir Wilfrid Laurier; L. J. Burpee.

Suitable acknowledgement of the gift will be made to the Premier by Mr. Hampton, on behalf of the public library board; it is owing to Mr. Hampton's initiative that the community has a flourishing library, and it is only within the past two years that his health has made it imperative that he retire from actively filling the office of librarian.

Imagine a cone-shaped pile of ice-cream, a city block wide at the base and 3800 feet high. That is the volume of ice cream consumed in the United States each year. This is enough to give every person in the country 80 dishes.

There are approximately 4500 ice cream plants in the United States, valued at more than $450,000,000.

"Captures the Soul of the Music!"

—says Fritz Kreisler—famous violinist—
in praise of the new Orthophonic Victrola.
It captures all who listen to it!

Captures the soul of the violin, of the piano, the clarinet, the voice—captures the soul of any and all musical sounds, singly and together! Plays naturally the tones of these musical sounds, and all the rippling overtones, that give beauty and color to music. Captures the low fundamental notes that give instrumental music its depth and richness, and liberates them at your pleasure.

All this is yours in the new Orthophonic Victrola (and only in this instrument). And all because scientists have shown us the practical application of the principle of "Matched Impedance" or "smooth flow of sound", the patents for which are Victor-controlled.

Thus you may have beautiful, realistic, music at home, and you may have graceful cabinets finished in fine woods. Artistically designed models—all equipped with a device which stops every record after playing. Electric drive which eliminates winding is optional at slight additional cost. Prices from $1400 to as low as $115.

Obtainable on convenient payments at all His Master's Voice dealers.

TRIS SPEAKER GIVEN RELEASE BY WASHINGTON

Famous Big League Outfielder Becomes Free Agent Feb. 15.

WAS DRAWING CARD

Would Not Accept Cut in Salary Offered by Clark Griffith.

NEW YORK, N.Y., January 26. — Tris Speaker, whose services were sought by clubs in both major leagues a year ago when he was the "white-washed" hero of a winter scandal, was given his unconditional release by the Washington Senators yesterday. Clark Griffith, who outbid his rivals among the club owners in competition for Speaker a year ago, sent word from Florida that he is a free agent on February 15.

A year ago Speaker and Ty Cobb were exonerated by Judge Landis after accusations affecting their honesty, and while they were cut loose by their own clubs, they auctioned off their services and both enjoyed a most lucrative session.

Cobb in Same Boat.

Scandals are dead now, however, and Speaker having refused to accept voluntarily a decided cut in salary, has been released unconditionally.

Ty Cobb is in somewhat the same predicament, although if the former manager of the Tigers, who signed with Connie Mack's Athletics a year ago for some $60,000, will accept a big reduction in wages, he may not find himself out of a job.

Speaker after years of service as a star of the Boston Red Sox and the manager of the Cleveland Indians, became involved in the scandal instigated by Dutch Leonard, former Boston and Detroit pitcher. Leonard alleged that Speaker and Cobb had conspired to bet on a ball game between the Indians and the Tigers.

Was Drawing Card.

Baseball fans throughout the country, outraged by the scarcely supported charges against "Spoke," the "Grey Eagle" rallied to the support of their heroes.

After the Landis exoneration, Speaker, who had just about reached the end of his playing years, was valued at $50,000, at which price Clark Griffith, of the Washington Senators, bid him in. As a drawing card, Speaker was valuable to the Senators in 1927. Moreover, he played in 141 games, hit, and was generally useful to a club. But this year Speaker is just a centre fielder, with dimming eye and failing legs, and he no longer commands any sum as the Senators paid to get him.

Griffith gave Tris a chance to cut his own salary, which Speaker indignantly refused. Accordingly, no contract will be sent the former star, and on February 1 he automatically becomes a free agent.

There are several clubs which can use a .327 hitter in the outfield and Speaker may catch on somewhere with his policy of heavy hitting.

MARLBOROS WIN SHUTOUT GAME

Beat Petes 6-0 in Senior O. H. A. Game in Toronto.

PETES TRY HARD.

TORONTO, Jan. 26. — Marlboros improved their chance to qualify for the Senior O.H.A. group play-offs with a decisive 6 to 0 victory over Peterborough at the Mutual Street Arena last night. The Dukes had a margin in every period, the Petes being outplayed, although willing to stick to their lost cause and make the game interesting for the few fans. There was not much good hockey, but the wild playing of "Red" Foster for Marlboros, and Ken Kane's comedy on the Peterborough team provided plenty of action. Both were the outstanding performers on the ice, and there were few dull moments when they got going.

Marlboros made sure of the win in the second period, when they raced in four goals, adding to their single score of the first frame. The Petes did not have the speed or system to halt the locals when they staged their rampage, Ken Kane being about the only one who was effective in any way. Marlboros turned in one of the best games, the front line going well. Nugent led the Dukes from his defensive position, playing a strong game on the rearguard, while three of his rushes resulted in scores. Nugent was the star of the game, the Petes being unable to beat him in any way.

Dukes Improved

Although the Dukes' prospects for group honors are considered small, on their play last night they should give the leaders a battle. The forward line of Heintzman, Miller and McPherson played fair hockey, while the defence was extra good, Baker being unbeatable in goal, while his guard of Nugent and Underwood gave him reliable protection. If Harry Watson can keep the collection of players together that worked for him last night, then the Dukes may cause a few upsets before the schedule is completed.

Kane was the only player to show any ability for Peterborough, and he gave the Dukes plenty to worry about. Kane reached the goal on many of his solo dashes, but was kept off the score sheet while he made several clever plays that went to waste with no one to work with him. Kane has all the qualities of a star player, but he mixes so much foolish play and kidding into a game that it detracts from his usefulness.

Rampage in Second

Marlboros landed a lone marker in the first period, when Nugent stickhandled his way the length of the ice and picked the top of the net. In the second the Petes faltered and the Dukes counted four, McPherson getting the first from a hard drive, while Bruce and Underwood combined for another. Foster and Nugent increase the total. In the last frame Nugent again located the nets. The teams:

Peterborough—Goal, LeBarr; defence, Rose and Leckie; centre, Williams; wings, Kane and McFee; subs, Cripps and Foley.

Marlboros—Goal, Baker; defence, Nugent and Underwood; centre, Miller; wings, Heintzman and McPherson; subs, Foster and Bruce.

Referee—Steve Vair.

The Summary:

First Period:
1—Marlboros, Nugent 2.00
Second Period:
2—Marlboros, McPherson 3.00
3—Marlboros, Bruce, Underwood 10.00
4—Marlboros, Foster 1.00
5—Marlboros, Nugent........... 1.00
Third Period:
6—Marlboros, Nugent 13.00

Final score—Marlboros 6, Peterboro 0.

BELANGER WILL TAKE ON GENARO

Action of N. Y. Board Unwarranted in Opinion of Ontario A. C. Chief.

WILL NOT STOP BOUT

TORONTO, Jan. 26.—That there is something sinister in the suspension of Frenchy Belanger, flyweight champion of the world in 28 States and Canada, by the autocratic New York State Boxing Commission, is the opinion of Playfair Brown, matchmaker of the Shamrock Club, and his associates. The action of the body, which is at daggers drawn with the National Boxing Association with which the Ontario Athletic Commission is affiliated, came as a decided shock to Manager Dave Garrity, who looks after the interests of the button-eyed Belanger, whose sensational climb to the peak in the 112-pound division is the talk of the fistic world.

Garrity knew nothing of the matter until he was informed by some friends, and he was utterly flabbergasted. It was the first intimation that he had that any trouble was pending. If any notification was sent him to appear before the New York commission and give his version of the happenings in the Belanger-Frisco bout at Buffalo then it must have gone astray.

Garrity says he would have gladly made the trip if the order had reached him, but it didn't. Like others acquainted with the situation, Garrity smells a large sized rat. He looks upon the matter as part and parcel of the campaign of the Madison Square Garden outfit to regain control of the flyweight situation which through Belanger's activities has passed into the hands of the N.B.A.

Brown's Opinion.

This is the view held by Playfair Brown. The latter believes that it is an attempt to block the proposed bout here between Genaro and Belanger slated for February 6. The former is managed by Joe Jacobs, who also manages Jack Delaney, and if Genaro fulfills his engagement here Jacobs and his entire string would probably be thrown out in the cold. But there is this about it, Belanger's match with Genaro was made two months ago and consequently any action taken by the New York authorities cannot affect the impending clash, which has a decided bearing on the championship.

"Unwarranted," Says Mr. Murphy.

J. P. Fitzgerald of the Ontario Athletic Commission intimated that the bout would go through as arranged no matter what happens. Both boys have signed, and in his opinion the suspension would not prevent the consummation of the match even if it were billed to take place in New York State.

Chairman T. A. Murphy of the O. A. C. was just as emphatic in his views regarding the impasse. He characterized the suspension as unwarranted and declared that it would not be recognized either by the Ontario Athletic Commission or the N.B.A., of which he is a Vice-President. As to Belanger's alleged offense at Buffalo which brought about the action of the New York commission, Mr. Murphy gave it as his opinion that no foul was committed. He saw the bout, and he makes no secret of his belief that the referee exceeded his authority in stopping the contest and giving the fight to Frisco Grande on a foul. One of the two judges also made a similar statement at the time of the occurrence. Belanger himself says that the blow which caused his disqualification landed in fair territory and that the Filipino flyweight who was in distress took the easiest way out of a tight spot.

Will Go On With Bout.

In any event the Genaro-Belanger affair will go ahead as advertised. Reports from New York are to the effect that Genaro has turned down a bout with Young Marcelles at Rochester on the 30th because of his prior engagement with Belanger here. Jacobs, in declining the proposition on the part of his battler, said that he had been notified by the Ontario Boxing Commission that he must not participate in any bout within ten days of the date of his fracas with Belanger and that he intended to abide by the edict of the Canadian body.

A Unique Hockey Situation In West

REGINA, Jan. 26.—A situation probably unparalleled in the history of professional hockey has been created in the Prairie League—a situation that has thrown the onus of the first series championship on a 20th part of a hockey game carried over from an unfinished contest.

With the title hanging in the balance, the Saskatoon Shieks and Moose Jaw Maroons were interrupted late in the third period a few nights ago when the power plant in Moose Jaw experienced a breakdown and plunged the rink and city into darkness for two hours. Saskatoon were leading 2-1 at the time, and another three minutes and 12 seconds remains to be played before a winner could be declared.

No replay has been ordered, but when the Shieks visit Moose Jaw for their next league fixture on February 2 in the second half of the schedule the teams will tack a "fractional fray" of three minutes on to the end of the main broil, after a two-minute rest, in which the championship of the first series will be decided one way or the other. Saskatoon, of course, will enter this novelty just one goal to the good.

New Haven Player Placed Under Suspension by League President.

HAS RIGHT OF APPEAL

BOSTON, Mass., January 26 (Canadian Press). — Billy Coutu, defence player of the New Haven Club, was suspended from the Canadian-American Hockey League for the rest of the season by President Charles C. Clapp yesterday. The suspension was imposed as a result of Coutu's attack on George Redding, of the Boston Tigers, during the Boston-New Haven game at New Haven.

Coutu, who knocked the Boston player unconscious with his stick, was given a major penalty and fined $25.00 by the referee. In announcing Coutu's suspension, President Clapp said he had made a thorough investigation of the case. Coutu has the right of appeal from President Clapp's decision to the Board of Governors of the League.

Coutu was banished from the National Hockey League for life last spring for an attack on a reefree after a match between the Boston Bruins and the Ottawa Senators. The Bruins subsequently sold him to Minneapolis, and that club in turn sold him to New Haven.

HAVELOCK INTERMEDIATES WIN 7-5 TUSSLE FROM BOBCAYGEON

Bobs Unable to Overcome Early Lead of Railroaders.

PLAY CLEAN HOCKEY

Will Play Lakefield Here Friday Night for Group Championship.

Playing their second game in two nights, with Ken. Reid on the defense with a broken rib and Johnson not much better, Bobcaygeon Intermediates last night stepped out onto Brock Street Rink, were beaten 4-0 in the first two periods, and then staged a rally that brought them right up on a 4-4 basis with their Havelock opponents. Davidson, the Moguls' net guardian, was relieved by Armstrong, and the brief respite enabled his teammates to settle down. In the last ten minutes they showed better form and outscored the plucky Bobs, to walk off with the weighty end of a 7-5 count, but not before the lads from the tourist town had shown the fans plenty and redeemed themselves for earlier mistakes. Into that last session they crammed more excitement than has been dished up locally for some time, and the fairly large crowd present showed their appreciation in no uncertain manner. By their win, Quinn and Co. find themselves tied with Lakefield for the group championship, which will be settled in the game here Friday night.

The game last night did not merit high classification from the point of view of the hockey critic, but as a battle royal, with plenty of clean, fast effort on the part of both teams and a rally that came well nigh shifting the spoils of victory to the crippled underdog fighting an uphill fight, there was little to be desired. The Railroaders deserved their win, and in defeat the 'Caygeonites were far from disgraced.

Particularly good was young Nicholls in the nets for the Bobs. Save for a bad night in his home town when the same teams last met, he has been turning in fine games, and his efforts to keep his teammates in the running last night won him plenty of praise from all hands. Time after time he was called upon to save when his crippled defense had failed, and he came through in admirable fashion. Beaten seven times, he stopped seven times as many from close in and far out, high up and low down. In front of him, every red-sweatered defender and attacker worked like a trojan. For this reason, it would not be fair to pick a star. The same team will be a hard one to beat for group honors next year.

As for the Havelock team, they are too well known locally to make necessary mention of individual ability. They went out last night to win, played clean hockey throughout, and from all outward indications bid fair to win here on Friday night. Truly, they suffered an unpleasant awakening when, after out-playing their opponents in two of the three periods, they found themselves in need of a counter to win, but they showed plenty of punch by stepping out for a total of three counters in ten minutes to the one of the opposition. Brennan was their best bet, with Wright and Pollock close seconders. All three proved most aggressive attackers and found Nicholls their only real stumbling block—which he certainly was.

The Game.

The initial session started slowly, and for a time play was mostly in mid-ice, but the Bobs, hesitant in getting away together, lost the rubber, and Brennan tried Nicholls. Not to be outdone, his teammates, Hooper and Wright, tried the same, and the visiting goalie was called upon to save twice more before play shifted, and the tension was still further relieved when Brennan drew a rest for spilling Lorne Wright half way down the ice. Laing drew a penalty for dropping the same player, and playing six men to four, the tourist town lads capitalize on three attempts, they lost time, Brennan set sail from the box, picked up a loose puck, and shooting from the right rail from forty feet out, beat Nicholls for the first goal of the game. End to end rushes, with both goalies being called upon, failed to develop anything further in the line of counters, and the gong suspended hostilities with the count unchanged.

2nd Period.

The middle session found the Moguls at their best as they held the margin of play and added three counters to their total. After three minutes of indefinite checking, Hooper and Pollock went through, the latter grabbing the disc at the corner of the goal, and giving Nicholls little chance to save. A minute later Wright did the trick single-handed when he drifted one in from way out on his own wing. The Bobs tightened up after that, and for the next ten minutes there was little other than close checking and an occasional threat that was soon smothered. Then, to break the spell, Wright went through while the opposition was still out of formation after an attack, and he held the shot until right in on the goalie. He scored.

Reid took a rest for spilling Brennan, but the period ended without further scoring.

3rd Period.

The chucker was the big session of the night, with no less than eight goals being registered on the two goalies. When the teams took the ice there was no indication of the big splash, but at the very face-off Edgar drove in a long one and Hill went in for the rebound. Hooper was chased for a minor infraction, and while he was off Hill again did the trick, this time from the blue line, four minutes from the start. And just to show that it was more than a one-man team, Ken. Reid passed to Kelso, who registered on a long heave.

Within striking distance, the Bobs let loose with all they had, and after derailing the C.P.R. boys on two occasions, Lorne Wright followed Reid's example. His shot was blocked, but Hill scooped up the rebound and knotted things right there. Davidson, hurt during the scramble, was replaced by Armstrong, and during the interval either the Bobs lost their horseshoe or Quinn's outfit stole it from them. Anyway, when the battle was resumed it strongly resembled the first canto, and Brennan put his team in the lead with a nice rush and shot from the blue line. Hooper added another and Wright another. Quinn tripped Reid, thus weakening his team so that the 'Caygeon defenseman was able to set sail from his own doorstep, pass through stormy seas, sidestep Hooper and coast in on Armstrong, who held the puck between his skates. Reid promptly pushed him into the net, feet and all. That ended the counting for the evening and the boys from the railroad town went home happy.

The teams:

Bobcaygeon—Goal, Nicholls; defense, Reid and Johnston; centre, Hill; wings, Edgar and L. Wright; subs., Kelso and Nicholls.

Havelock—Goal, Davidson and Armstrong; defense, Quinn and Hooper; centre, Pollock; wings, Brennan and Wright; subs., Geraldi and Laing.

Referee—Wm. Jackson, of Peterborough.

L. V. O'CONNOR TAKES OFFICE

Is Sworn in at Cobourg as Judge of the United Counties.

MANY ATTEND.

COBOURG, Jan. 6.—At three o'clock yesterday afternoon, an assembly of noted and distinguished persons awaited the arrival of Lawrence V. O'Connor, new Chief Justice of the United Counties. Notables from the Church as well as the State sat waiting to do honor to the tall man with irongray hair and clear-cut features, who would soon be formally installed in the highest office of the Counties to administer justice without fear, favor, or affection. Directly in front of the bench were several of the most learned lawyers of the Counties, two of them Benchers of high standing. Among those present were W. F. Kerr, K.C., President of the Bar Association of the United Counties; F. M. Field, K.C., Vice-President of the same association; Archie Cochrane and A. R. Willmott, while at the end of the table sat County Magistrate Floyd.

On the Bench's right flank, the Cobourg Ministerial Association occupied the places of honor. Rev. Frank . Harper, Rev. J. N. Norton, Rev. Monsignor Kelly, Rev. Father Butler, Rev. J. T. Daly, Rev. T. Stannage Boyle, and Rev. W. R. Tauton were the gentlemen who represented the association and the Church. Across the court room, on the left hand of the Bench, the Council of the United Counties occupied the rows of seats.

Shortly after three o'clock Judge O'Connor, escorted by His Honor Judge Huycke and Sheriff Nesbitt, entered the court and took his place in the heavily upholstered, brown leather chair. Immediately, Judge Huycke invited Warden C. H. Davidson, ex-Warden M. J. Elliott and M. E. Cooper, Mayor of Cobourg, to sit on the raised platform on either side of the Bench.

The Clerk of the Court, J. T. Field, with due ceremony, read aloud the official notice of the appointment. W. F. Kerr, K.C., as head of the Bar Association, administered the oath of office in a quiet, unassuming manner. Judge O'Connor kissed the open Bible with his features immobile though the eyes of two counties were upon him. His manner at once inspired confidence and assurance that here was a man capable of living up to the last letter of the oaths with which he was binding himself.

Judge Huycke, Peterborough, presiding official of the ceremony, expressed his great pleasure at being called upon to welcome Judge O'Connor as his colleague on the Bench. He explained that the United Counties and Peterborough County were in the same district. Therefore they were more or less jointly responsible for the district law. Briefly then, Judge Huycke touched on the brief interval since the death of Judge McGlade, who had been greatly admired and highly respected, and whose death was so deeply regretted.

To Judge O'Connor, Judge Huycke tendered a hearty, cordial and affectionate welcome, and expressed great pleasure that they were to be colleagues. He felt certain that Judge O'Connor would administer Justice with care and accuracy. After a brief resume of the terms and personalities of the Judges who had occupied the United Counties Bench during the last few years, Judge Huycke, speaking for al present, once more welcomed Judge O'Connor.

W. F. Kerr.

W. F. Kerr, K.C., president of the Bar Association of the United Counties, said that the announcement of Judge O'Connor's appointment had not come as a surprise to him. He had known that the new Judge's ability would gain recognition, and if he were not appointed to the United Counties bench, he would surely have presided in a smilar capacity elsewhere. Touching on Judge O'Connor's early experiences, Mr. Kerr paid His Honor a very fine and sincere compliment. Judge O'Connor's appointment was "a wonderful tribute to his ability, integrity and singular command of temper," he said.

He was prepared, he continued, to give the Judge a warm welcome and assured him that there were plenty of duties awaiting him. This meant hard work, but Mr. Kerr thought Judge O'Connor was equal to the task. "May he last long," said W. F. Kerr in Latin, which he translated for the benefit of those who were unfamiliar with either the tongue or the quotation.

F. M. Field, K.C.

F. M. Field, K.C., vice-president of the Bar Association, expressed his great pleasure at being present to welcome Judge O'Connor. He had known the Judge, he said, professionally, socially and in the realm of sport for a considerable number of years. He was pleased that there was such a distinguished assembly present to welcome the Judge. The Curling Club, of which Mr. Field is president, had welcomed Judge O'Connor by appointing a rink with him as skip. They had even gone further and entered the rink in a bonspiel in Toronto which was to be played February 20. Just as he finished his remarks, Mr. Field paid a fitting tribute to Warden Davidson as a man of influence in the counties.

Judge O'Connor rose to respond to the addresses of welcome. And as he rose, so did the entire court to await his bidding, which came in the form of a slight gesture to be seated. He was quite carried off his feet by the enthusiasm, he said, and had not expected such a large and representative audience. He thought that Judge Huycke and the others who had spoken had even indulged in flattery. He was quite well acquainted in the United Counties, being a native son of an adjoining county, and had had business dealings for many years with Judge Huycke, whose modesty had forbidden him mentioning their first meeting. But Judge O'Connor did not hesitate to do so. Having considerable regard for detail, he recalled an incident in Lindsay many years ago when he, as junior member of the bar, had been appointed to defend a prisoner charged with theft. Judge Huycke at that time was prosecuting for the Crown, and they had fought a legal battle all afternoon. The man charged had been caught red-handed. but in his youth, Judge O'Connor said. he thought "he ought to be let go anyway." Judge Huycke had been amused at the time, but there had always existed the most kindly feelings between them. But at the time, Judge O'Connor continued, he had gone into court with fear and trembling. Now, after so many years, it was pleasant to be so closely associated again.

As on the day of his first court case, Judge O'Connor said he felt some of the old "fear and trembling," knowing, as he did, that the Bar Association of the United Counties was exceptionally strong, and headed by such capable benchers as F. M. Field and W. F. Kerr. He felt certain that, with their assistance, he could carry on his duties with efficiency.

For any man to leave his home at his time of life. continued Judge O'Connor, was not an easy thing, but he had come among friends and wanted to be one of the number. He also appreciated the presence of the clergy. His oath, he said, was such that he could not err. He must do his duty with out "fear, favour or affection." With the Counties Council, he thought he should become better acquainted, as in his opinion, he should work "hand in hand" with them.

Concerning his curling prowess, he would say nothing at present in case he was forced to retract it later on the ice, but the welcome of the Curling Club he hoped was an indication of the feeling of the people.

To the late Judges McGlade, Cameron, Ward and Benson, the newly appointed Justice paid tribute. To follow such men of integrity was no small task, he claimed, and he felt the responsibility. Then expressing his gratitude for the warm reception, he hoped with the help of the Almighty to "carry on."

Warden Davidson, ex-Warden Elliott and M. E. Cooper, Mayor of Cobourg, was each given the opportunity of speaking.

When the ceremony was concluded, Judge O'Connor came down from the bench and an informal reception was held.

"BEN-HUR" HAS NO EQUAL IN HISTORY OF PHOTOPLAY

Fleet of 100 Ancient Vessels in Big Sea Fight Between Romans and Pirates

General Lew Wallace's "Ben-Hur: A Tale of the Christ", that was a stage spectacle twenty-two years, and as a book enjoyed a circulation as large as the Bible, will be seen for the first time as a picture in Peterborough at the Grand theatre on Monday next. It boasts a cast of 150,000.

Fred Niblo directed the production which begins with the Wise Men and the Star of Bethlehem, pictues Jerusalem under the Roman tyranny and the commendation of the Prince of Hur to the galleys. The battle 'twixt the Roman fleet and the Greek pirates was filmed with a great Ben-Hur navy of antique modeled craft off the coasts of Italy.

Thrills and Romance.

The celebrated Antioch chariot race, in which Ben-Hur and Messala contest for the palm, occupied three months in the making. Twelve quadrigas are driven seven laps over a course facing a Circus Maximus that holds nearly a hundred thousand spectators. The exquisite love story of Ben-Hur and Esther is intertwined with the thrilling action.

The final scenes deal with Ben-Hur's assembling of legions in the plan to establish a kingdom of Judea, the discovery of his long lost mother and sister in the Vale of Hinnom, the procession of Palm Sunday, and the healing of the sick ones by the Saviour, whereby Ben-Hur and his beloved Esther and kinfolk are reunited.

A World Epic.

In a grandiose epic that has taken three years for its completion and included as many real-life adventurings as an historic odyssey of the Old and New Worlds, Ramon Novarro (in the title role), Betty Bronson, May McAvoy, Francis X. Bushman, Carmel Myers, Claire McDowell, Kathleen Key, Nigel de Brulier, Mitchell Lewis and Frank Currier have prominent parts. The music for the production was written by David Mendoza and William Axt, the composers of "The Big Parade." The offering is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture made by special arrangement with A. L. Erlanger, C. B. Dillingham and F. Ziegfeld, Jr., and it cost $4,000,000.

MIX AND TONY TAKE WILD RIDE IN AUTO TRAILER

Theatre patrons who will see Tom Mix in "The Arizona Wildcat", Fox Films latest release, will view the western star in new and more daring acts than he has had put on the screen before.

Mix has the role of Tom Phelan, owner of an Arizona ranch famous for its polo ponies, and in the opening sequences Tom rescues Dorothy Sebastian from the wreckage of a stage coach at the edge of a high waterfall. She was in the coach when the horses ran away and wrecked the vehicle at a ford above the falls. The coach floats to the falls and is caught by rocks where Mix, riding Tony, dashes to the rescue.

Mix throws a rope over a limb of a tree and tie an end to the pommel of the saddle and the other about his waist. Then Tony walks forward and lowers Tom so that he can take Miss Sebastian in his arms. At Tom's signal the horse walks backward and pulls both out of the coach as it topples over the brink of the fall.

After arriving at the ranch Tom again saves the girl after she has attempted to ride an outlaw horse and provides a lot of thrills as Tony takes seemingly impossible jumps.

Tom is called to Santa Barbara to ride in a polo game, which will decide an East vs. West tournament. He finds Wallace Van Acker captain of the eastern team. Van Acker is leader of a gang of crooks that are unloading a lot of worthless stock in the millionaire Santa Barbara colony.

Van Acker tried to keep Tom out of the game by tricking him and his horse into a van and having them driven out into the mountains instead of to the polo field. Tom discovers the trick and by the time he has knocked out the two crooks who are driving the polo game has started. Tom speeds back toward the field, but wrecks the machine before he arrives.

Finally he gets Tony out of the wreckage and gallops to the polo oval to find the Eastern team is leading. Tom braces up the westerners and scores a goal, tying the score. Van Acker, seeing that he is losing, hits Tom with his mallet, but in spite of the blow he leads his team to victory, only to find that the girl, who carried a large sum of money, had been tricked into the hands of Van Acker's accomplices.

Tom rides to her rescue. He finds the crooks have closed the house where the girl is held, so he rides Tony to the roof. Then the roof caves in and Tom and the horse drop into the room where the girl is fighting to save her money. Tony wrecks the house while Tom is routing the crooks and saving the girl.

Tony does a beautiful jump over a high gate, carrying Mix and Miss Sebastian in the final fade out.

R. William Neill directed the production, which is to to have a showing at the Capitol Theatre, commencing today.

"LOVE MAKES 'EM WILD" HAS MORE THAN ITS SHARE OF ROMANCE AND COMEDY

Johnny Harron and Sally Phipps have the leading romantic roles in "Love Makes 'Em Wild," Fox Films version of "Willie the Worm." The film is coming to the Regent Theatre Friday. J. Farrell MacDonald and Arthur Housman are in the fine cast chosen to enact the vehicle.

"Love Makes 'Em Wild" has more than its share of romance and hilarious comedy. It concerns Willie Angle—disparagingly called the Worm who had spent his life crawling into holes and pulling them after him. He was blamed for everything at the office and he took the vituperation they heaped on him along with his weekly $30.00.

There was Mary O'Shane at the office who had bet Willie would invite her to lunch; who had humilitated him by paying for it herself, completing the slur by telling him of her bet There was a sneering elevator boy, who had shut the gate insultingly in his face. There was the janitor who had malignantly squelched Willie. Finally there was Blankenhorn, the general manager, who had equashed Willie repeatedly. There was—always—Mary's mocking echoing laugh.

For the first time known, a shark and a white sturgeon were caught recently at Nova Zembla, the Arctic Island in the Kara Sea, and observers there say that this indicates that a warm ocean current has shifted so that it now skirts the shores of the island.

Steel ships are built by men's muscles

531 shipyard men say they relieve muscle lameness this way

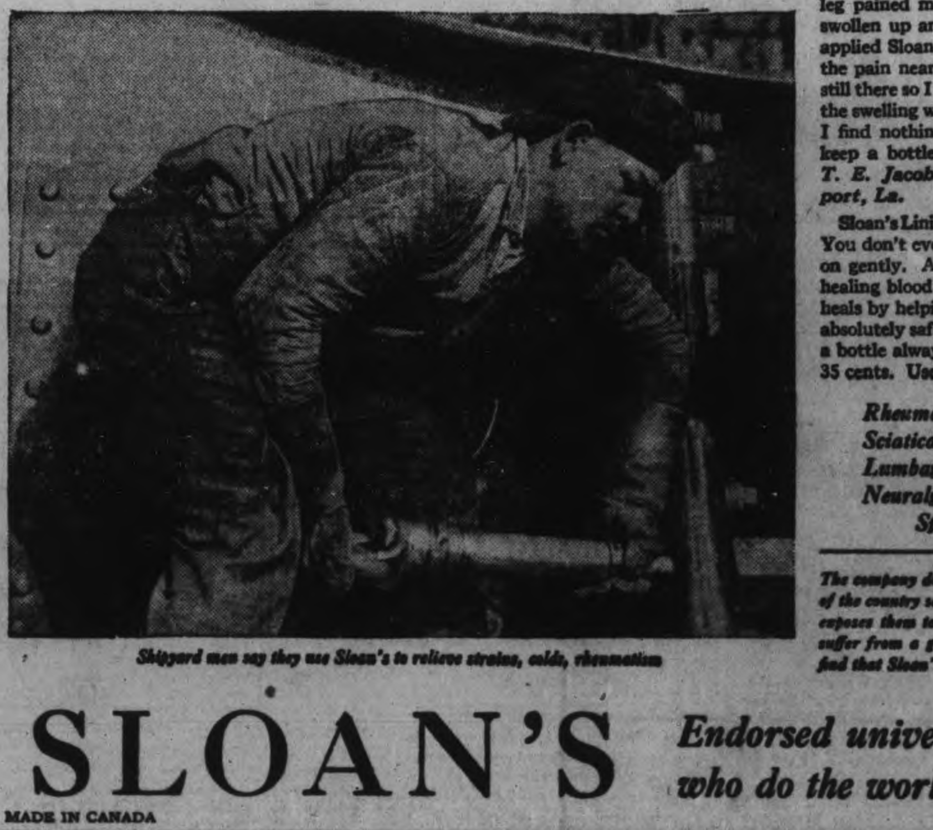
IT'S A REAL man's job—the work of the men on the ways in the big shipyards. It takes all the strength—the skill—the courage a man's got.

Big wages—adventure—the spice of danger! Yes, and stiff backs — occasional wrenches, sprains, bruises—and rheumatism when you've been riding the girders or running the big traveling cranes out in a drizzling rain all day.

How do men who do this heavy work relieve the effects of strain and exposure? How do they treat the occasional minor injuries that are bound to occur?

We went out and made a canvass of the hardy men who work at this heavy and exacting labor, and put all these questions straight up to them.

531 that we asked told us, "We use Sloan's."



Shipyard men say they use Sloan's to relieve strains, colds, rheumatism

Miners, steel workers, policemen, firemen, stevedores, farmers—all who do hard muscular work know Sloan's. It is the liniment that always kills the aches that come from exposure to cold and wet, from heavy lifting—from strains, sprains and wrenched muscles.

Workers in every trade praise Sloan's

Read what this garage worker writes: "One night when I came in from my work my left leg pained me and the next morning it was swollen up and worried me when walking. I applied Sloan's Liniment to it that night and the pain nearly all left, but the swelling was still there so I applied it again and the next day the swelling was all gone. For aches and pains I find nothing to beat Sloan's Liniment. I keep a bottle in the garage where I work." T. E. Jacob, 1213 Reynold St., Shreveport, La.

Sloan's Liniment is pleasant and clean to use. You don't even have to rub it in. Just pat it on gently. At once you feel a tide of fresh, healing blood rush to the aching spot. Sloan's heals by helping nature. It isn't a drug—it is absolutely safe and cannot harm anyone. Keep a bottle always in the house. All druggists—35 cents. Use it for:

Rheumatism Lame muscles
Sciatica Stiff neck
Lumbago Colds and Neuralgia congestions
Sprains and bruises

The company doctor of one of the biggest industries of the country says of Sloan's: "People whose work exposes them to strain or to damp and cold usually suffer from a good deal of muscular soreness. We find that Sloan's gives them quick, positive relief."

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

THE STORY THUS FAR

"The gentleman came out of Miss Odell's apartment about 11.30," said Jessup, "and asked me to call him a cab. While he was waiting, Miss Odell screamed. We rushed back to her door and he knocked. She answered and said everything was all right and for him to go home. About ten minutes later someone called her on the phone and a man's voice answered from her apartment." No one else had come in, said Jessup, or gone out. The only other means of exit or entrance was the side door to the alley, and that had been bolted on the inside the evening before and was found that way in the morning. Yet Margaret Odell's strangled body was found in her apartment the next morning.

CHAPTER X

"But even if Dubois does identify those prints," said Markham, "we'll have to show how the owner of them got into this place last night. He'll claim, of course, they were made prior to the crime."

"Well, it's a sure thing," declared Heath stubbornly, "that there was some man in here last night when Odell got back from the theater, and that he was still here until after the other man left at half past eleven. The woman's screams and the answering of the phone call at twenty minutes to twelve prove it. And since Doc Doremus said that the murder took place before midnight, there's no getting away from the fact that the guy who was hiding in here did the job."

"That appears incontrovertible," agreed Markham. "And I'm inclined to think it was some one she knew. She probably screamed when he first revealed himself, and then, recognizing him, calmed down and told the other man out in the hall that nothing was the matter. . . . Later on he strangled her."

"And, I might suggest," added Vance, "that his place of hiding was that clothes-press."

"Sure," the Sergeant concurred. "But what's bothering me is how he got in here. The day operator who was at the switchboard until ten last night told me that the man who called and took Odell out to dinner was the only visitor she had."

Markham gave a grunt of exasperation.

"Bring the day man in here," he ordered. "We've got to straighten this thing out. Somebody got in here last night, and before I leave I'm going to find out how it was done."

Vance gave him a look of patronizing amusement.

"Y' know, Markham," he said, "I'm not blessed with the gift of psychic inspiration, but I have one of those strange, indescribable feelings, as the minor poets say, that if you really contemplate remaining in this bestrewn boudoir till you've discovered how the mysterious visitor gained admittance here last night, you'd do jolly well to send for your toilet access'ries and several changes of fresh linen—not to mention your pajamas. The chap who engineered this little soiree planned his entrance and exit most carefully and perspicaciously."

Markham regarded Vance dubiously, but made no reply.

(Tuesday, September 11, 11.15 a.m.)

Heath had stepped out into the hall, and now returned with the day telephone operator, a sallow, thin young man who, we learned, was named Spively.

His almost black hair, which accentuated the pallor of his face, was sleeked back from his forehead with pomade; and he wore a very shallow mustache which barely extended beyond the alae of his nostrils. He was dressed in an exaggeratedly dapper fashion, in a dazzling chocolate-colored suit cut very close to his figure, a pair of cloth-topped buttoned shoes, and a pink shirt with a stiff turn-over collar to match.

He appeared nervous, and immediately sat down in the wicker chair by the door, fingering the sharp creases of his trousers, and running the tip of his tongue over his lips.

Markham went straight to the point.

"I understand you were at the switchboard yesterday afternoon and last night until ten o'clock. Is that correct?"

Spively swallowed hard, and nodded his head. "Yes, sir."

"What time did Miss Odell go out to dinner?"

"About seven o'clock. I'd just sent to the restaurant next door for some sandwiches——"

"Did she go alone?" Markham interrupted his explanation.

"No. A fella called for her."

"Did you know this 'fella'?"

"I'd seen him a couple of times calling on Miss Odell, but I didn't know who he was."

"What did he look like?" Markham's question was uttered with hurried impatience.

Spively's description of the girl's escort tallied with Jessup's description of the man who had accompanied her home, though Spively was more voluble and less precise than Jessup had been. Patently, Miss Odell had gone out at seven and returned at eleven with the same man.

"Now, resumed Markham, putting an added stress on his words, "I want to know who else called on Miss Odell between the time she went out to dinner and ten o'clock when you left the switchboard."

Spively was puzzled by the question, and his thin arched eyebrows lifted and contracted.

"I—don't understand," he stammered. "How could any one call on Miss Odell when she was out" ?

"Some one evidently did," said Markham. "And he got into her apartment, and was there when she returned at eleven."

The youth's eyes opened wide, and his lips fell apart.

"My God, sir!" he exclaimed. "So that's how they murdered her!—laid in wait for her! . . ." He stopped abruptly, suddenly realizing his own proximity to the mysterious chain of events that had led up to the crime.

"But nobody got into her apartment while I was on duty," he blurted, with frightened emphasis. "Nobody! I never left the board from the time she went out until quitting time."

"Couldn't any one have come in the side door?"

"What! Was it unlocked?" Spively's tone was startled. "It never is unlocked at night. The janitor bolts it when he leaves at six."

"And you didn't unbolt it last night for any purpose? Think!"

"No, sir I didn't!" He shook his head earnestly.

"And you are positive that no one got into the apartment through the front door after Miss Odell left?"

"Positive! I tell you I didn't leave the board the whole time, and nobody could've got by me without my knowing it. There was only one person that called and asked for her——"

"Oh! So some one did call!" snapped Markham. "When was it? And what happened?—Jog your memory before you answer."

"It wasn't anything important," the youth assured him, genuinely frightened. "Just a fella who came in and rang her bell and went right out again."

"Never mind whether it was important or not." Markham's tone was cold and peremptory. "What time did he call?"

"About half past nine."

"And who was he?"

"A young fella I've seen come here several times to see Miss Odell. I don't know his name."

"Tell me exactly what took place," pursued Markham.

Again Spively swallowed hard and wetted his lips.

"It was like this," he began, with effort. "The fella came in and started walking down the hall, and I said to him, 'Miss Odell isn't in.' But he kept on going, and said, 'Oh, well, I'll ring the bell anyway to make sure.'

"A telephone call came through just then, and I let him go on. He rang the bell and knocked on the door, but of course there wasn't any answer; and pretty soon he came on back and said, 'I guess you were right.' Then he tossed me half a dollar, and went out."

"You actually saw him go out?" There was a note of disappointment in Markham's voice.

"Sure, I saw him go out. He stopped just inside the front door and lit a cigaret. Then he opened the door and turned toward Broadway."

"'One by one the rosy petals fall'," came Vance's indolent voice. "A most amusin' situation!"

Markham was loath to relinquish his hope in the criminal possibilities of this one caller who had come and gone at half past nine.

"What was this man like?" he asked. "Can you describe him?"

Spively sat up straight, and when he answered, it was with an enthusiasm that showed he had taken special note of the visitor.

"He was good-looking, not so old—maybe thirty. And he had on a full-dress suit and patent-leather pumps, and a pleated silk shirt——"

"What, what?" demanded Vance, in simulated unbelief, leaning over the back of the davenport. "A silk shirt with evening dress! Most extr'ordinry!"

"Oh, a lot of the best dressers are wearing them," Spively explained, with condescending pride. "It's all the fashion for dancing."

"You don't say—really!" Vance appeared dumbfounded. "I must look into this. . . . And, by the bye, when this Beau Brummel of the silk shirt paused by the front door, did he take his cigaret from a long flat silver case carried in his lower waistcoat pocket?"

The youth looked at Vance in admiring astonishment.

"How did you know?" he exclaimed.

"Simple deduction," Vance explained, resuming his recumbent posture. "Large metal cigaret cases carried in the waistcoat pocket somehow go with silk shirts for evening wear."

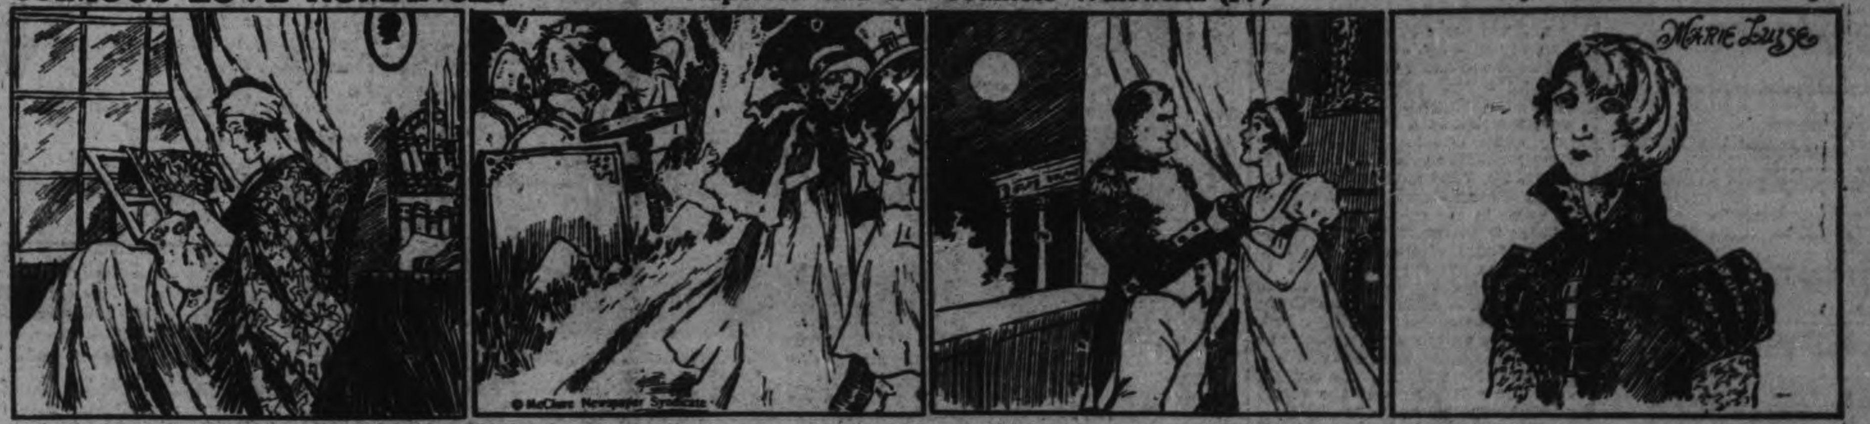
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES

Napoleon and the Countess Walewska (IV)

By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate
MARIE LUISE

After the battle of Wagram, in 1809, one of Napoleon's great victories, when he was at the height of his power, he lived in the palace of Schonbrunn, in Vienna. He hired a lovely villa on the outskirts of the city for the Countess Walewska, and had it furnished to her taste. There she lived quietly and happily.

He would send his first valet de chambre in an unostentatious closed coach for Walewska. He always cautioned the valet against the bad roads. "Take care, Constant," he would say, "it has been raining and the roads must be bad." One night the coachman, in turning out to avoid a rut, overturned the carriage. The Countess was not injured.

After that Napoleon was more than ever solicitous for her safety. He established her in a house in Paris, near his palace of the Tuileries. She had a gold ring made for him, and wound some of her hair around it and gave it to him, with the words, "When thou shalt cease to love me, forget not that I love thee."

Napoleon apparently never ceased to love the Countess. But he was unhappy because he and Josephine had no son. And when his young heir, son of his brother and Josephine's daughter Hortense died suddenly, he decided to divorce Josephine and remarry. In March, 1810, he married the young Archduchess Marie Louise of Austria.

HOUSE OPENING THIS AFTERNOON FULL OF COLOR

Ancient Ceremonies Expressing Prerogatives of Crown and Commons Carried Out.

BRILLIANT PICTURE.

Presence of Diplomat Eclipses Consular Group—Ladies Sit Beside Throne.

OTTAWA, January 26 (Canadian Press).—The ancient ceremonies were all observed and colorful gestures expressing the prerogatives of the Crown and Commons were performed to-day during the hour and a half of pageantry which is the opening of Parliament.

In front of the Parliament Buildings guardsmen in bearskin busbies stood with fixed bayonets in drifting snow, suggesting the famous pictures of Napoleon's old guard. His Excellency arrived with an escort of Dragoons, bearing lances with pennons snapping in the winter wind. God Save the King echoed across Parliament Hill, the general salute, guns start booming a salute across the Ottawa Valley and the ceremonies commenced.

The Governor-General's party moved down the Hall of Fame, where the House of Commons protective force lined the way. Long before, the Senate Chamber was crowded with invited guests and the commoners were idling in their places in the Lower House waiting for the summons to hear the Speech from the Throne. The Senate presented a particularly brilliant picture this year. Her Excellency and her party had taken their places at the left of the Throne, around which were grouped the Privy Councillors and aides de camp. The Consular group representing many nations of the world were perhaps slightly eclipsed this year by the presence of a diplomatic representative, the Minister from the United States, who is the first of the diplomatic corps now being created.

Gray? Never!

A wise man or woman won't use a dangerous hairdye; nor anything that gives hair the dull, dyed look that's worse than grayness. Kolor-Bak is a very different proposition! A clean, colorless liquid which gently and gradually brings the hair to the color it should be. Your hair is unharmed—doesn't even lose its lustre—and the scalp is actually benefited!

Blonde or brunette; auburn, brown or black; no matter about the shade, for the one bottle of this clear liquid is right for everybody. Lots of people you know may use it—you can't detect it. Kolor-Bak will give you the same perfect results; that's guaranteed when you buy it.

She Could Not Work HEADACHES Were So Severe

Mrs. A. Riehl, Burstall, Sask., writes:—"I was troubled with very severe headaches, and sometimes I could not do my work.

"One day a friend told me about and advised me to give it a trial. I decided to do so, and after taking a few bottles I found it had done me a world of good, and I haven't had any headaches for a long time now."

At the end of a busy day
When you shut
Out the drizzle,
The sleet or snow,
But somehow you just can't
Shake the weather
Out of your system—
There's nothing so invigorating,
So comforting,
As a bowl of steaming soup—
That is,
If you have McCormick Oven-kist Sodas
Served with it.
Oven-kist Sodas
Give you that Christmas Dinner feeling—
You don't know when to stop.

N.B. We could not improve the familiar McCormick's Jersey Cream Soda—but we have made the package, moisture-proof—the flavour and crispness of these popular sodas is retained indefinitely.

Have you tried the new Oven-kist Salted Crackers or the dainty Oven-kist Reception Wafers! They really are delightful.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

The slavish fear of unending torment in a lake of fire and brimstone, operates painfully upon the minds and hearts of children and simple minded grown-ups, who are imaginative and conscientious, and who have had drilled into their minds that this horrid doctrine is taught in the Bible. The preaching of this blasphemous doctrine of devils has goaded multitudes into becoming church members,imagining that they are insured against this burning hell of fire and brimstone, notwithstanding the fact that many of those same church members are selfish, proud, untruthful, dishonest and bad tempered, entirely lacking the spirit of Christ. Many in the church and out of it are awaking up to see the fallacy of the creeds they have been subscribing to. Surely knowledge is increasing.—M. T. BUTCHER. 1d-22-2970

C.G.I.T. GIRLS MEETING HERE

District Conference Opens on Friday Evening in St. Paul's Church.

INTERESTING PROGRAM.

The district conference for Canadian Girls in Training, which opens here to-morrow evening in St. Paul's Church and progresses to a closing in the same church on Sunday afternoon, with intermediate sessions at George Street church on Saturday, promises to be both interesting and educational for the many girls in the city who have allied themselves with the various C.G.I.T. groups, whose four-fold aspects comprise development along spiritual, mental, physical and social lines for the members.

Twenty-five of these conferences are being held in Ontario during the fall and winter months. Each district has its own conference, and the province has been divided so that every Girl in Training may find it possible to attend. The common theme running through these meetings is the privilege which is pointed out to the girls, as: "To be alive in such an age, to live to it, to give to it."

The program opens with to-morrow evening's session in St. Paul's church, followed by a morning session in the same building on Saturday, and a Saturday afternoon entertainment of outside delegates, followed by a banquet at George Street church, and an evening session which is open to the pubdic. On Sunday afternoon at 4.15, the conference closes with an organ recital and open session at St. Paul's church. Parents of girls who are members are requested to see that they attend these conferences, and a general invitation to the public is extended for the open sessions on Saturday night and Sunday afternoon.

The speaker in charge of the conference will be Miss Edith Sinclair, one of the Girls' Work secretaries, of Toronto, who will represetn the Provincial Girls' Work Board.

Delegates are expected from Lakefield, Port Hope, Millbrook, Lindsay, Grafton and Woodville, as well as from the Peterborough churches.

We know she oft is with us—
With us still to guard and guide;
Oh the joy of that re-union
When we reach the other side.
In that land of song and beauty
Parting hands are clasped no more;
When we meet again, dear mother,
'Twill be where parting all is o'er

ANNOUNCEMENT PLEASES.

Toronto Flying Club Says Factory Will Make City Centre.

TORONTO, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press).—The intimation that an English airplane company, the De Haviland firm, after much investigation had settled upon Leaside, near here, as the site of its Canadian assembling plant, is hailed with great satisfaction locally. Captain Earl Hand, President of the Toronto Flying Club, said it would mean that Toronto will be the flying centre of Canada at least in respect to the "moth" type of plane.

STUDY COURSE STARTS.

Y.W.C.A. Girls Meet Weekly For Supper, Address and Discussion.

FORMER OFFICERS HERE FOR WEEK-END

Commandant and Mrs. A. J. Smith To Take Services at Temple.

The Songster Brigade of the Peterborough Temple has charge of the services in the Temple for the coming week-end, January 28 and 29. The Brigade is under the leadership of Songster Leader Ben Smith and is composed of thirty-five vocalists.

Commandant Ham has invited the father and mother of the Songster Leader to direct the services on the Saturday and Sunday. They are well known to Peterborough folk, having been stationed here some time ago, and were responsible for the rebuilding of the Temple after the fire in 1923. They are none other than Commandant and Mrs. Arthur Smith, now in charge of the Men's Social Service activities in the Capital city of Ottawa. They will receive a very warm welcome at each of the services, from their old friends and comrades.

Commandant Smith will also preside over the Songster Musical Festival to be held on the Monday night, January 30th. This will also commence the Bigger and Better Campaign that Salvationists have been planning.

DON'T MISS THIS; LAKEFIELD VS. HAVELOCK

To-morrow Night at the Brock Street Rink at 8.30 O'clock—O.H.A. Series.

The hockey match to-morrow night between the Lakefield and the Havelock Intermediate O. H. A. teams, promises to be one of the very best contested games of the season.

Lakefield is in the lead by one game and it is necessary for Havelock to win the game to-morrow in order to tie Lakefield for the district and stay in the running.

Havelock is bringing a special train load of supporters for the game to-to-morrow night, and there is no doubt but that a very large number will be down from Lakefield.

Peterborough turns out usually very strong for the Havelock games and there is every evidence of being a good crowd to see a well contested game.

ENGINEERING INSTITUTE HEARS DESCRIPTION OF CONSTRUCTION WORK ON WELLAND SHIP CANAL

Construction Engineer Gives Interesting Address at Meeting of Local Branch.

SLIDES SHOWN

Gives Short History of Improvements to Navigation on Great Lakes.

Some of the engineering feats in the construction of the Welland Ship Canal were explained to the members of the Peterborough Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada by A. J. Grant, engineer in charge of construction, who was for a number of years in charge of the construction work on the Trent Valley Canal, with headquarters here. Mr. Grant began with a short history of improvements to navigation on the great lakes, particularly by canals, and finished with a number of views of parts of the work.

The Welland Ship Canal is one of the greatest engineering works under construction at the present time in all the world, declared Mr. Grant. It is a link in 2,230 miles of navigation from Belle Isle to Duluth, a waterway that passes through a rich agricultural and mining area, the most densely populated part of the continent, and provides facilities for commerce that no other district enjoys. From Montreal to Duluth is 1,300 miles, of which 1,000 is open lake navigation. When the St. Lawrence canals are deepened or enlarged the city of Toledo expects to be the centre of distribution for the Mississippi valley. Sixty-four per cent. of the vessels which passed through the Panama Canal in 1926 will be able to use the system.

First Attempt Abandoned.

The first attempt to canalize the St. Lawrence was made in 1700. This was abandoned because of the cost, and the next attempt was made by the Royal Engineers early in the 19th century. In 1798 the North-West Company built a canal and lock at the Soo. but the Americans destroyed it in 1812. After the war of 1812 the government of Upper Canada ordered a commission to enquire into the building of a canal at Cornwall. The work was started in 1821 and completed in 1825, the same year as the Erie Canal from Buffalo to Albany.

The history of canal construction across the Niagara Peninsula has been one of enlargement, for at no time has the canal been capable of passing the largest boats sailing the lakes. The locks now being built are 859 feet long, 80 feet wide, and have water 30 feet deep. The present locks are 270 feet long, 45 feet wide, and 14 feet deep.

The construction of the canal was considered in 1816, when a commission was appointed. In 1823 the report was presented, in 1824 the work was started. and in 1829 the first vessel passed. In 1833 the canal was completed and remained in service until 1850. This first canal had forty wooden locks. The canal built in 1850 had twenty-six stone locks, 150 by 26 by 9. In 1850 the St. Lawrence canals were completed and the first vessel passed from Montreal to Chicago. In 1870 it became evident that the requirements of navigation called for larger and more uniform locks on all the system and the present canal was built. Now it seems that the dream of deep water navigation from the ocean to the head of the lakes is on the verge of being accomplished.

The new canal will be 25 miles long, while the present channel is nearly 27 miles long. The minimum depth is 25 feet, with many parts 27½ feet. Over the sills at locks and bridges there is 30 feet of water. The bottom width is 200 feet and the water line width 310. The fall of 325 feet from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario is taken care of by seven locks with a drop of 46½ feet each, and a guard lock at Port Colborne.

After the conclusion of his address and the showing of the slides, Mr. Grant spent the best part of an hour discussing different phases of the work and answering the questions of the members. A. E. Caddy acted as chairman.

O.H.A. HOCKEY TO-NIGHT HAVELOCK VS. LAKEFIELD

A Good, Clean, Strenuous Game is Expected—Don't Miss It.

To-night's hockey game at Brock Street Rink is going to bring great rural crowds from the north and east districts of the county, when Havelock and Lakefield meet in what is a very necessary game for Havelock to win.

Lakefield is leading the group by one game, and it is altogether necessary for Havelock to win to-night's game in order to tie up the round and get into the play-off with Lakefield.

Special trains are bringing in the supporters of the two teams, and it is presumed the roads to Peterborough will be black with cars

It should be a good game, as from the scores in the previous games they look very evenly matched.

Mayor's Picture Is Broadcast

Thousands of listeners heard the prolonged squeal, lasting for ninety seconds and punctuated by a sharp, regular cracking, as Station WEAF put the picture on the air.

PETERBOROUGH FIRE LOSS LOW

City Stands Fourth Among Cities of Its Size in Canada.

$1.54 PER CAPITA

Statistics are most interesting to those whom they most directly concern and for this reason, the following information and comparisons will be received with pleasure by the average Peterborough citizen.

Fire Chief Gimblett has received from the Dominion Fire Commissioner, J. Grove Smith, a statement showing the number of alarms, fires, loss, and loss per capita annually of eleven cities of the Dominion having a population of from twenty to twenty-four thousand people and Peterborough's place is high.

The cities mentioned are Fort William, Kingston, Oshawa, Outremont, Peterborough, St. Catharines, Sault Ste. Marie, Sherbrooke, Westmount, New Westminster, and Moncton.

In 1927 this city stood fourth with 438 alarms, 54 fires, $33,646 loss, or $1.54 per capita; in 1926, eighth; in 1925, second; in 1922, fourth; and in 1923, eighth.

This record speaks well, not only for the efficiency of the local fire brigade, but for the care that the citizens have exercised in fire prevention.

W.C.T.U. HEARS TALK ON WOMEN

Dr. A. J. Brown Gives Interesting Address at Regular Meeting.

BUSINESS TRANSACTED

A meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held on Wednesday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. with the president, Mrs. A. J. Throop, in the chair, A splendid address on "Woman's Value to Society" was given by Dr. A. I. Brown, who divided his discourse into several heads, speaking of woman's ancestry, her intellectual endowments, her moral integrity, her sense of responsibility, her high ideals and her preservation of the sanctity of the home, also her own personal responsibility.

The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. J. H. Rowe. Mrs. A. E. Micks was appointed as superintendent of Young People's Work. A letter of sympathy over his wife's death was sent to W. A. Anderson, M.P.P., of Keene, and letters of appreciation for flowers sent to the sick, were read. Mrs. W. A. Payne reported that a bale of clothing and bedding valued at $68 had been sent to the Indians in Northern Ontario. It was decided to observe Frances Willard Day in February.

Miss Bertha Hill gave a vocal solo in sweet voice, accompanied by Miss Alma Blanchard.

UNITED CHURCH IS FACTOR FOR CANADIAN UNITY

Rev. Dr. Wilson Makes Plea For Support of Its Work.

IDEAL BINDS COUNTRY.

Annual Meeting of Congregation Follows Meeting of St. Andrew's Men's Association.

Over one hundred and thirty members of the congregation and of the Men's Association of St. Andrew's United Church sat down to a splendid supper in the basement of the church last evening, on the occasion of the annual congregation meeting. It was one of the most successful yet held, proving for all present a social and business treat. The ladies of the church had provided a most appetizing spread and it was done full justice to. Cold, snappy weather is always conducive to healthy appetites.

For this occasion, the committee in charge had made special provision for music and immediately following the supper, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Liddle contributed piano and vocal numbers that were well received, and elicited sincere applause.

Chairman Dearborn, in his opening remarks, extended a welcome to all present and made fitting reference to the splendid attendance, the musical numbers and other phases of the meeting. He then called upon the Rev. J. W. Gordon to introduce the main speaker of the evening.

The Rev. J. W. Gordon

The Rev. Mr. Gordon's remarks were brief but full of courteous reference to the man whom he was introducing, namely, the Rev. Dr. Wilson of Toronto, whose subject would be "The United Church Problem." Mr. Gordon also referred to the splendid social spirit so manifest at such gatherings as these, before retiring in favor of the speaker.

Dr. T. J. Wilson, who had spoken here on a previous occasion, expressed his pleasure at returning to speak in Peterborough. He referred to the splendid supper that had been provided and of the wonderful hospitality of the ladies, and narrated several humorous stories. Then, quite suddenly. . .

"Canada's greatest need is unity. The greatest factor in that unity is the United Church of Canada. If Canada needs the United Church, then the United Church has a right to expect support and co-operation," said he, in opening his address proper. He continued:

"I have crossed Canada many times since Church Union, and I have concluded that Canada is united, not by steel rails but a great Ideal.

"We have many problems to face in Canada—the possibility, now past, of the Maritimes breaking away; the French-English problem, and others. There is a great centrifugal force that throws things apart, but there is a great common Canadian Ideal, a citizenship that is keeping Canada together.

"I think I see a tremendous movement toward Canada; a half million a year within three years. Some of them will leave Canada, but many of them will return.

"The bigness of this Ideal—common standards of decency, of outlook on life and of moral standards—is what I am trying to emphasize. And the United Church of Canada is the greatest single factor—it is the greatest church, with the broadest outlook of any in history.

"Beyond the vision of every church there was facing the church of this country this cardinal problem: What must these churches do? The United Church's great contribution to the solving of Canada's problem was in uniting and in doing more home mission work than any other church. No other church can do that work—there is only one church in Canada that is pioneering in home missonary work.

"We brought into this United Church all that was greatest and noblest of our heritage and my plea is that we will save all that was best in Methodism and in Presbyterianism and in years to come so blend them that there will be no distinction between the two."

Dr. Davidson told of conditions in United States with a multiplicity of denominations and compared them with conditions in Canada since Church Union. He told of the work of the United Church in carrying the Gospel to unenlightened people in Western and Northwestern Canada.

"This has been a great adventure of faith, it has been and will be a wonderful success.

"There is less trouble now in the United Church than there ever was before and there has, perhaps, been less suffering.

"Like minister, like people, or like people, like minister, and I thank God for the congregation that made me and I say, also that we have a right to expect as much support or sacrifice from our congregations as we pastors, by reason of our office, are willing to make.

"The strength of the wolf is the pack, and the strength of the pack is the wolf. If there are any congregations in this presbytery that are
